Celebrate spring with C.H.S.

Come out of winter hibernation and celebrate spring at the Cohasset High School Spring Concert, Wednesday. April 13. The talented students in the various singing groups, expertly directed by Bry[illegible] Marks, and the Concert and Jazz Bands, ably conducted by Marcia LaJoie, will entertain you with a marvelous program of music.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium and is free to all. Selections will encompass a broad spectrum of musical styles from classical through pop so there is sure to be something to please everyone. Let your spirits soar and come celebrate spring with this Cohasset tradition!

Unicorn Singers to perform

The Unicorn Singers, directed by Margo Euler, will present a concert at 8 p.m. Saturday April 9 and 4 p.m. Sunday April 10 at Old Ship Church in Hingham.

The featured work will be a concert version (with some narration) of Gilbert & Sullivan's, "The Yeomen of the Guard."

Gilbert & Sullivan regarded "Yeomen" as their finest operetta, a belief shared by many. In addition, the program will include favorite opera choruses from Tchaikovsky's "Eugene Onegin and Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Advance tickets are $10 and $8 and are available at Noble's Camera Shop in Hingham Square or by calling 749-6561. Tickets at the door will be $10.

Cut-a-thon benefit April 10

April 10, Hernan's Salon, 25 S. Main St., will be holding its first annual cut-a-thon to benefit the Southeastern Branch of the Massachusetts Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Hernan's Salon will hold its cut-a-thon on the same day as "Cohasset by the Sea," a 10-Kilometer Walk beginning at the Cohasset Town Hall at 1 p.m. If walking is not for you, organizers urge you to help "cut out MS" by having your hair done instead.

There will be five hair stylists on hand from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Haircuts will be $25. No appointment is necessary. However you may call 383-1490 to book an appointment.

All proceeds will be donated to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society to help fund national research efforts as well as to provide services to over 6,000 Massachusetts residents and their families living with multiple sclerosis.

April vacation activities

ROCKET CAMP

The Hingham Community Center, 70 South St., Hingham is offering a one-day Rocket Camp from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday April 19.

Children in grades K-6 will learn about rockets and how they fly. They will then build and launch their own rocket.

The cost is $25 and students must be registered in advance.

BASEBALL CAMP

The community center is also offering a five-day baseball camp during April vacation. This camp will provide an opportunity for boys and girls age 6-12 to improve their skills and enable younger children to learn the game in a positive, recreational atmosphere.

Personalized instruction will be emphasized in all aspects of the game.

Call 749-9786 to register for these programs.

Gen. Hoar to speak

General Joseph P. Hoar will be the honored guest and speaker at the Fifth Annual Second Infantry Battalion/First Battalion Twenty-fifth Marines, US Marine Corps Reserve Association Dinner Friday May 6 at the Morrisette Post in Quincy.

Members of the organization are present and retired Marines who served during World War II, Korea, Middle East and Desert Storm.

The Second Infantry Battalion designation changed to the First Battalion, Twenty-fifth Marines in 1958 and is presently located at Camp Edwards.

Gen. Hoar is Commander-in-Chief of the US Central Command, responsible for the planning and conduct of all US military activity in a region comprising 19 nations of the Middle East, Persian Gulf, Horn of Africa and South Asia. He recently served as chief of staff to Gen. Schwarzkopf during Desert Storm.

Former Marines wishing to attend should call Sgt. Maj. JJ Cavanaugh at 335-7981 for reservations.

Yankee Magazine paintings in Brega exhibit

By Andrew MacLellan
Mariner staff

"Yankee Magazine's" most prolific and respected cover artist, David Brega, will open a retrospective of his published works at the Artist's Son Gallery in Cohasset, April 11-30.

Brega, a Marshfield resident, has painted seven Yankee covers and a magazine centerspread as well as the rack painting depicted on the publication's hard-bound 50th anniversary anthology.

A rising force in the fine arts field, Brega's skill at portraiture, his expertise in the trompe l'oeil style are especially suited to the rustic rhythms of "Yankee." Burrowing through antique shops and old farmhouses for subject matter — children's tops, ladles, postcards, cranberry scoops — he epitomizes the magazine's vision, mingling colorful reserve with a salty sense of humor. His attention to detail and his mastery of Realism have won him a growing legion of admirers.

Brega's relationship with Yankee spans a dozen years.

"I've really established a nice rapport with them over the years — with their art director J Porter and, of course, the editor, Judson Hale," he said last month from his Marshfield Hills studio. "They'll call me and tell me they're doing an issue on such and such and ask me if I have any ideas on the subject."

For the show, Brega has asked painting owners from across the Northeast and beyond to loan him original works which will hang alongside their magazine cover counterparts.

His latest "Yankee" project, entitled "New England," appeared on the March cover and has been made into a 20-by-24-inch poster. Printed by West End Designs owner Kathy Stacey under the label of Lynnfield Prints, the posters will be available at the April exhibit.

"This latest cover was a special issue," Brega said. "They came down and discussed it with me, telling me how it's about New England and how the region is enduring changes. It fits my work to a 'T.'"

"With the release of the poster, we thought it was a good excuse to give local art lovers a treat," said Artist's Son Gallery owner Domenic Micarelli. "A lot of people don't get the opportunity to see a body of David's work. And many times when you pick up a magazine cover, you don't realize that it's also a work of art. I think it'll be nice for people to see the originals and how much work goes into them."

J Porter, "Yankee Magazine's" art director, inspired the "Unchanging New England" theme, and was pleased with the stir Brega's covers have created locally.

Artist David Brega will host an exhibit of his "Yankee Magazine" works from April 11-30 at the Artist's Son Gallery in Cohasset.

"It's great to see him having this show and to have him involved with our magazine," Porter said. "He's a painter well beyond his years in talent. We're honored. I know I'm coming to the show to enjoy it."

Brega's "New England" depicts a single Maple leaf, metamorphosing into autumn splendor against the distressed wood backdrop of a New England Colonial-era door. The slab is actually the front door of Marshfield Hills residents Marcia and Walter Littlefield.

"I pass that way every day on my way to the little store," Brega said, "and I've always wanted to use that door. They said I came just in time because they were just about to have it restored.

"I don't know whether it's nostalgia or an appreciation for things that are old, and well-used and have character, but it's probably all of that — the surfaces, and patinas, the textures and colors. With age, they just become wonderful to paint. I'm somehow drawn to them.

"And I couldn't think of anything more appropriate than a leaf to represent the fact that the changes in New England are actually unchanging."

Brega's show will feature works borrowed from owners as close as Duxbury and from as far away as New York and Houston, Texas.

The couple from Duxbury bought their painting on first sight," Brega said. "It's a nice quote. They said, 'This painting shouldn't leave New England.'"

Other Brega works to appear at the show will include one of his more famous paintings and covers, "Crayon Box II" and one of his largest pieces, a 35-by-42-inch rack painting of "Yankee Magazine" covers which appeared on the publication's 50th anniversary anthology in 1985.

"The idea for the show came about for two reasons," Brega said. "One, obviously, was to collect these works and some of their studies and to provide an opportunity for people to see original paintings with their respective publications. And at the same time we are celebrating the release of the poster."

"It's a luxury for us to be able to exhibit his work," Micarelli said. "David's painting goes beyond artistry to the technical aspect where they become like pieces of jewelry. . . each and every one is a treasure."

The Artist's Son Gallery is located at 130 King St. (Route 3A) Cohasset in Jonathan Livingstone Square. The gallery is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

C. William Zadel, President and Chief Executive Officer of Ciba Corning Diagnostics Corp., was elected Chairman of the Health Industry Manufacturers Association for 1994-1995 . The association, a Washington, D.C.-based trade organization, represents more than 300 manufacturers, encompassing more than 700 businesses in the areas of health care technology. Ciba Corning is a leading world-wide manufacturer and distributor of medical diagnostic equipment headquartered in Medfield.

HIMA's primary goal is to encourage timely regulatory approval of safe, high quality and cost-effective health care products and technology. As chairman, Zadel will act as industry spokesman in Washington. According to Zadel, it will be his job to "ensure that the development of new technologies is encouraged and protected, no matter what happens with health care reform." He will also help HIMA determine which issues are most important to the industry and how to best use the industry's influence in Washington.

One of HIMA's major concerns is the backlog on product approval from FDA. Zadel says that every device manufacturer, including Ciba Corning, is suffering from these delays. And so is the public, he feels, because "they are being denied innovative new technologies."

Ciba Corning Diagnostics Corp., previously the diagnostic business of Corning Glass Works, was founded in 1985 and employes 3,200 people worldwide.

Boys aim for 'individual goals' on track

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

First-year head coach Joel Antolino looks at the drastic jump in the number of boys on this spring's track team in two ways.

"We have 25 to 30 guys out, which is amazing we had only eight to 10 (last year)" said Antolino. "But it also means we have a lot of inexperience.

"The future of the team is in the seventh, eighth and ninth-graders," Antolino continued. "It they stick with it they'll see the success in the future."

Antolino predicted the interest in track could rise even further if the proposal for an all-weather track receives the same enthusiasm by Cohasset as it did at Town Meeting. Residents showed their overwhelming support for the new track by casting a 326-5 vote in favor of the facility. However, the proposal still must be approved during the override.

Because of Cohasset's poor track, the team has been forced to hold its "home meets," at Scituate High for seven years.

"I think the lack of a facility realy hurts," Antolino said. "I talked to a few kids and they didn't want to do it because all the meets are away."

The future may look bright for the Skippers, but Antolino has to deal with the here and now in the South Shore League. Cohasset hasn't won a meet in two years since the track program was resurrected at the junior/senior high school (the Skippers were 0-8 last season), leaving Antolino with the task of trying to break the unflattering skid. Even with the larger turnout, he doesn't believe the team still has the amount of depth needed to pick up the ever important second and third-place finishes.

But more important than wins, Antolino wants to build on the talent he has. Individual goals are his main concern and the overall scheme this spring. Antolino said he wants to get as many athletes as he can qualified for the

Menis to lead Skippers' girl tracksters

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Oh, what Joel Antolino wouldn't give to be able to put Faye Menis in a slew of events on meet day for the Cohasset High girls' track team.

"She's definitely a team leader," Antolino said of his South Shore League All-Star. "She can do almost any field event, the sprints and hurdles. She's really just a talented kid.

"As talented as Faye is," Antolino continued, "we're limited in that she can only do four events."

Except for the fact that the girls have a proven All-Star on their team, the similarity with the boys' squad is almost identical. Both teams have an abundance of youth with limited track experience, but the rosters are have risen on each.

Antolino is confident the Skippers can improve on their sub-.500 record (3-5) of last season and said there may be "some surprises," among the ranks.

Megan Staunton and Jemilah Afshar will lead the middle distance runners,

Father doesn't force son to run

To the Editor:

I sure hope that you are a runner yourself.

I have been running for about six years now. I know all about being sore and hurt.

My son, Gary Moore, won the 13-year-old-and-under division at the Cohasset Road Race last Sunday. He trains off and on and only when he feels like running. I don't push my son to run, the way I push myself. What do you do with a son who runs a 43:07 10k and places 64 out of 488 official runners? I should add that he enjoys running.

Maybe you should check some facts about these kids who do train for these road races.

I suggest you interview some of these kids before you accuse the parents of being "foolhardy."

With Opening Day upon us, it's time to list a few reasons why baseball is America's sport.

Only in baseball can you be 30-pounds overweight and considered an athlete.

Gorman Thomas, a former slugger for the Brewers, looked like one of those weekend softball players who puts his beer down before making the catch in the outfield. And what about Cecil Fielder. He must weigh 300 pounds, but still he strokes homers and makes All-Star teams. Hey guys, stop the insanity!

Weird injuries seem to happen to baseball players.

Former Red Sox Wade Boggs once hurt his back putting on cowboy boots. Former Yankee Rich Gossage hurt his shoulder wrestling with Cliff Johnson in the shower. And Met Dwight Gooden was injured when Vince Coleman hit him in the arm while demonstrating his new golf driver in the clubhouse before a game.

Baseball players are notorious for their drinking and drug consumption.

Former Pirate Dock Ellis said he threw a no-hitter under the influence of LSD. Former Yankee Mickey Mantle once hit a home run in spring training while still drunk from the night before. And you could fill out an All-Star roster of players who have snorted cocaine. (Keith Hernandez, Dave Parker and Steve Howe to name a few.)

Baseball players have the coolest nicknames.

There are Hall of Famers Walter "Big Train" Johnson, Denton True "Cyclone" Young and George Herman "The Babe" Ruth.

As for current players there is Otis "My Man" Nixon, Mitch "Wild Thing" Williams and Frank "Sweet Music" Viola.

Baseball players are greedy.

Former Red Sox Tom Brunansky said he was "insulted" when offered a $6 million, three-year contract a couple years ago. Current Red Sox Mike Greenwell sulked when he was offered a two-year $6 million extension this spring. And Dodger Jody Reed turned down a two-year $7 million contract offer this spring. He demanded three years for $9 million. Needless to say, he didn't get it.

Baseball players like to gamble.

Former Red Pete Rose was banned for life for betting on baseball games, even though he said he didn't. (I bet he did.) Philadelphia Phillie Len Dykstra admitted to losing more than $50,000 on craps. And "Shoeless" Joe Jackson helped throw the 1919 World Series with the help and money of gangster Arnold Rothstein.

Baseball players chew tobacco.

Is there any other sport where the players have a big wad of leaves in their mouth that causes them to spit every two minutes?

Imagine if Larry Bird was driving down the court and had to stop and looey right on the parquet floor. Yuck.

Here's a good chewing tobacco story. Former Yankee pitcher Ron Guidry once dove for a comebacker and swallowed

Menis to lead girl tracksters

but Antolino has already seen the improvement in Afshar and is conteplating the idea of putting her in the mile and two-mile. "She seems to be developing a little more speed," Antolino said. Rebecca Jenkins and Andrea Grew are also slated for the two-mile.

Menis will run the 400 and head a pack of hurdlers, including Elena Tosi, Alex Creighton and Kristin Reynolds. Afshar's sister, Alia, is expected to be a point-scorer in the sprints.

Cohasset will be thrown into the fire early when they take on defending league champion Norwell on Thursday.

Antolino's approach to the girls' season is pretty much the same as that of the boys. He said he is going to stress to his younger girls to compete in a number of different events as the season continues as a means of getting a firmer grip on what their best events are.

Boys aim for 'individual goals'

invitational meets that roll around near the end of the season.

Antolino hasn't had the best of chances to assess the running and jumping events because of the poor track condition. The inclement didn't allow the long and triple-jump pits to be turned over and softened.

As a result, the majority of the practices were held in the school gymnasium where field events were worked on as much as possible, given an indoor facility.

Tenth-grader Ryan Sawchuck looks to be the most experienced member of the squad and will compete in the discus and 400 meters. Antolino has Dorian Bryant penciled in in the weight events (shot and discus), but did say "we'll try to find a running event for him."

Speedster Tom Allen should be a major point-scorer in the 100 and 200, and will be joined by Jason Pearseal in those events.

Scott Moe and Kevin Kilroy look to be the top-two runners in the middle-distance events, the 800 and mile, with Nick Terry and Brian Duffy both expected to answer the final call for the two mile. Duffy will also team with Kevin O'Donnell in the triple jump. O'Donnell will high jump as well.

Mariner Sports

It's running time again

by Kathleen Fox
Special to the Mariner

Although it's hard to believe when you look out the window, spring is just around the corner. When the days get warmer and the snow piles melt, many runners will come out of hibernation and hit the road.

The following tips should help make your return to running more enjoyable and safe:

• If you haven't been participating in a regular exercise program during the winter, don't try to run at the same distance or pace you were running last fall. Start out by running approximately one third the distance or time you were able to complete when you stopped running. Eventually, you should strive for at least 30 minutes of cardiovascular conditioning four to five times a week.

• Take a look at your running shoes. If you notice tread wear, wear on the inner or outer borders of the soles, or flattened arch support, it would be wise to invest in a new pair. A good time to break them in would be when you return to running.

• Make sure to warm-up and cool-down with brisk walking before and after you run.

• Dress in layers of comfortable clothing that allow ease of movement. On chilly spring mornings, remember a hat and gloves.

The muscle groups of your arms, legs and trunks should be stretched before and after running. Stretches should feel like a gentle pull and be held for 30 seconds each. If you are unsure of stretching techniques, the Sports Medicine staff of the Braintree Hospital Rehabilitation Network (BHRN) would be happy to send you a stretching program designed for runners. We can be reached at (617) 848-5353, Ext. 2231.

(Kathleen Fox, MA, ATC, PT, SCS, is a Board-certified specialist in Sports Physical Therapy and Director of the Sports Medicine Program at the Braintree Hospital Rehabilitation Network. Indoor, beginner golf lessons

The Cohasset and Scituate Recreation Departments are co-sponsoring indoor golf lessons for beginner players, scheduled to begin Thursday evening, April 7, at the Cushing School, Scituate.

Lessons are five weeks in duration, meeting one hour weekly. The fee for the five hour session is $60 per person.

To register, call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791. Classes are limited in size and registrations are accepted on a first call basis. Class times available are 6 p.m., 7 p.m., and 8 p.m.

Local golf professional and head golf pro, Mr. Dan Neary, will be instructing.

3rd Place: Carol Swain 1:18:57.

First/3 mile: Jen Huskins 45:37; second/3 mile/tie: June Simeone and Jean Bailey 1:00:44.

Best Costume: Laurie Pattison (Godiva); second place costumes: Maureen Harold and Carol Swain (cheerleaders).

Aerobics at center

The Community Center offers an hour of aerobic step, strength and flexibility training in a fun, non-competitive class Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 9 to 10 a.m. and Saturday, 8:45 to 10 a.m. Babysitting available. A 10-class card is $40. Drop in fee, $5. Call 383-0088 for more information.

Shark tryouts

The Metropolitan Boston Hockey League champion, Bay State Sharks Squirt Minor hockey team, will hold open tryouts at the Hobomock Arena Friday, April 22 at 7:50 p.m. and Saturday, April 23, at 12:50 p.m. The Sharks have openings in all positions, forwards, defensemen, goaltenders and alternates, for hockey players born in 1984. Any questions, Call Greg Coady at 826-2993 or Bob Hatch at 982-0276.

his chaw right in the middle of Yankee stadium. He turned green and tossed his cookies next to the rosin bag.

Baseball players have so many games that winning and losing doesn't really matter.

With 162 games in the regular season, even the best teams will lose around 60 times a year. A favorite baseball quote is "We'll get at 'em tomorrow."

Baseball has too many statistics.

Not only is batting average kept, but there is slugging percentage, earned run average, saves, quality starts, batting average after the seventh inning, steal percentage, fielding percentage, blah, blah, blah.

There is far too much focus on individual achievement. Baseball should have guys like NFL owner Al Davis. His motto for football: "Just win baby. Just win."

And last but not least, beanballs.

Baseball is the only sport where you can kill someone who you don't like. Ray Chapman was killed in the 1920's by a pitched ball. Now, if a pitcher takes offense to a batter, BAM, fastball right at the coconut.

Wade Boggs was once asked about Dwight Gooden's drug problem. He responded, "I don't want a bleeping coke-head throwing 90 miles-per-hour at my head."

Not bad, Wade. Just keep away from the cowboy boots.

—David McKee

I can't remember the last wave of coaching turnovers in such a short period of time as those that occurred last week.

Jimmy Johnson said goodbye to the Dallas Cowboys, while Mike Milbury said hello to The Heights.

Jim O'Brien is working out a semi-long-term contract with Boston College after his stock rose several shares with the Eagles' win over Indiana and its ogre of a coach, Bobby Knight.

The Milbury move was far and away the most surprising to New Englanders, not to mention those in the Bruins' organization. General Manager Harry Sinden made no secret of the fact that he was grooming Milbury to be the next GM at the end of next season. Instead, Milbury jumped ship and Sinden is faced with the task of finding another heir to the throne.

You can bet whatever the end deal is for Milbury, he'll be getting a sweet one. One supposed perk involved in the package is a free B.C. education for each of his four children.

The move is a win-win situation for B.C. and Milbury. The Eagles have been looking to stock their coaching staff with high-profile coaches. They have that in Milbury, and he'll be well-paid to do the job.

As for Johnson, you can't help but not like a guy who leaves his wife and kids to dedicate more time to coaching a football team. Hook him up with another outspoken ego-maniac in Cowboys' owner Jerry Jones and you have the makings of a war of words from the get-go.

Here's hoping Johnson's antics cast him in a bad light by those owners who need new coaches, but are hesitant to, hire a bonafide jerk to take over. Unfortunately, that's highly doubtful. He is a superb coach who turned a cast of misfits into a two-time Super Bowl winner.

public notice

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT NORFOLK, ss.
93P0577E1

To all persons interested in a certain bequest given to Thomas W. Poole of Cohasset, in the County of Norfolk, Timothy S. Poole, of New Bedford in the County of Bristol, and Temara A. Poole of Cohasset in the County of Norfolk, in the will of Theresa L. Williams late of Cohasset in said County, Norfolk, deceased.

A petition has been presented to said Court for a decree ordering complete distribution thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the twenty-seventh day of April 1994, the return day of this citation.

Witness, ROBERT M. FORD, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this thirtieth day of March, 1994.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT Norfolk Division Docket No. 92P1073E1 Notice Of Fiduciary's Account

To all persons interested in the estate of Harriet B. Long late of Cohasset in the county of Norfolk.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the first, second and final accounts of Edward B. Long and State Street Bank and Trust company, co-executors as Co-executors have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said accounts, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the twenty-seventh day of April, 1994 the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said accounts. If you desire to object to any item of said accounts, you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham this twenty-eighth day of March, 1994.

Pesky midges prefer Cohasset neighborhood

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Just why midges prefer Cohasset over Hull has town officials scratching their heads.

But nearly three years of data conclude that the pesky insects prefer the Cohasset side of Straits Pond, experts say.

Linda Beres of Hull Environment and Service Corps, a group working with Hull Schools to research the cause of the midge problem at the pond, and Walter Johnson, Phd., who is head of the engineering department at Suffolk University, asked selectmen Monday for $3,516 for a computer and environmental monitoring equipment to continue to study the issue.

The money will come from $5,000 Cohasset already appropriated as its share of the amount needed to study with the Straits Pond midge problem, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

Beres said a computer is a must.

"We have an enormous amount of data collected over 2-1/2 to three years," Beres said. "It's a convoluted problem and I can't see sitting down and doing it without a computer."

Beres works with Hull High School students who collect data at Straits Pond every weekend.

But both Beres and Johnson agreed that midges are primarily a Cohasset problem.

A map depicting where midges are the most concentrated showed in overwhelming numbers, the bugs prefer Cohasset. "The wind is a factor," Beres noted, adding "the midges prefer to deposit their eggs along the Cohasset side (of the pond)."

She explained that sewerage leaks into the pond from both Hull and Cohasset. The nutrient content in the sewerage attracts midges. On the Hull side sewerage leaks from several houses which are "hooked into street drains," Beres said. On the Cohasset side, the leakage is from failed septic systems.

The problem is equal from both towns, she said.

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby asked if sterilizing the midges so they can't reproduce is an option.

Beres said she had thought about that but wa[s] sure how to go about it.

"Ultimately, we're looking at getting the pon[d] natural balance and getting more fish in the pon[d] eat midges."

She said the pond needs diversity and the amount of algae promoted by the high nutrient level is strangling the oxygen content needed to sustain life.

"Last year Straits Pond was totally covered with algae, which resulted in a reduction of fish," she said.

Beres explained that fish love to eat the midges and increasing the fish population naturally would help.

No midges have been found near the tidal gate where the Weir River joins Straits Pond. At that location, the oxygen level is high and there are lots of fish, she said.

Shared new two-town van to give disabled mobility

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Standing by a sharp new handicapped-accessible van last week, Hingham selectman Katharine Reardon said getting around is something people often take for granted.

"We don't realize how valuable transportation is until we no longer have it," she said.

No one knows that better than the local Councils on Aging and Commissions on Disabilities in Hingham and Cohasset.

So thanks to a state grant and a lot of cooperation, a joint effort between the groups in the two towns has paid off.

A new 11-passenger van — complete with a wheelchair lift, mobile phone unit, and lower steps and wider seats for easier accessibility — is now available to transport people who have disabilities to doctor's visits, shopping trips and more.

The van, which will be manned by volunteer drivers, will augment local transportation programs for the elderly and disabled already in place.

Eighty percent of the van's cost was covered by a state grant through the Executive Office of Transportation and Construction (E.O.T.C.) with the remaining 20 percent split 3/5 to 2/5 between Hingham and Cohasset, amounting to about $5,800/$2,800 respectively.

Deadline for School Council candidates looms

Anyone interested in serving as a parent representative on a Cohasset School council should submit their name and a paragraph about themselves to the PSO Nominating Committee, Box 30 Cohasset, MA 02025 by April 15. School councils, mandated by the Education Reform Act, consist of the building principal, teachers, parents and a community representative.

The election will be held the week of May 2 through May 6. Ballots will be mailed to all parents of Cohasset school children, and will include information about the candidates. Names and paragraphs must be received by April 15 to appear on the ballot.

If we forget, who will remember?

(Editor's note: The following speech was presented by Ray Buckley, former POW, at the dedication of the POW/MIA Square, April 10 at Depot Court and N. Main St.)

We have gathered here today to dedicate this memorial to the POWs/MIAs of all wars. It was an honor for me to have been invited to speak. I thank Commander Tom Wigmore for this opportunity.

If we forget, who will remember?

Some of you here today cannot recall the dark days of WWII as the battling men of Bataan and Corregidor fought the Japanese with WWI equipment; because we had allowed our military strength to deteriorate. They held out for five months and were forced to surrender or be annihilated. The Bataan Death March will never be forgotten by those who made it.

How many remember the massacre of the POWs captured at Malmedy in the Battle of the Bulge? Winston Churchill said that the Battle of the Bulge was the greatest battle ever fought by the American Army.

The men that were captured in Germany will never forget being packed like sardines into boxcars with 60 to 70 men per boxcar, for transportation to a stallag. At the end of a five-day and five-night ordeal without food or water and under attack by their own planes because the boxcars were not identified as POWs, they arrive at a prison camp that has no heat, no sanitary facilities, and most important no food. I know because it happened to me.

My fellow prisoners and I had to survive on one-seventh of a loaf of bread and a bowl of soup a day. In

Cohasset's week

Rabies clinic April 16

A rabies clinic for cats and dogs will be held Saturday, April 16, from 1 to 3 p.m. in the Cohasset Town Hall auditorium.

Dogs must be leashed and cats caged.

Inoculation session for dogs only will be from 1 to 2 p.m. and, for cats from 2 to 3 p.m. Fee is $8 cash per animal. No checks or charges will be accepted. Arrangements were made by the Cohasset Board of Health with Dr. Charles Waters, veterinarian of the Hingham Animal Clinic.

Crime free trend continues

In his latest status report, Police Chief Brian W. Noonan reported March, like February, was relatively crime-free.

"Again, we suffered no major crime or Breaking & Enterings," Noonan said. "Considering what is going on in many of the surrounding communities, I feel very fortunate. However, good weather is just around the corner and the activity level is sure to increase.

"Now that the Police Department is at full complement, I feel very confident that we are prepared to handle the busy summer months," he said.

Noonan also noted that on March 24, police officers received their third and final vaccination for the Hepatitis B virus.

"The men and women of the department feel more confident with this increased level of protection when performing their duties," Noonan said.

Money is transferred

Selectmen approved a transfer request of $730 for the wire department this week. Wire Dept. Supt. Stephen Wigmore, said he moved money from his casual labor account to cover overtime incurred because of the stormy winter and that account is nearly used up. The transfer will cover vacation time and any overtime needed in April, May and June, he said.

Collection agency on board

Once some details in contract wording are clarified, selectmen plan to award the contract to provide collection services on over-due ambulance bills to Credit Recovery Company, Inc., the only company to provide a quote for the service.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon explained that the collection agency would charge 25 percent of each account collected. There is about $6,000 outstanding in unpaid ambulance bills, selectmen said.

Despite the need to hire a collection agency to recoup some losses, the town continues to collect a high percentage of its ambulance bills. In March the fire department had 35 billed calls and $11,737.21 in receipts was deposited with the town treasurer during the same time period. So far in FY'94, which ends June 30, the town has collected $69,677.18 out of $86,826.67 billed for a collection rate of 80 percent.

Bills are reviewed

Selectmen approved payment of $5,715.50 to Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson for professional services he provided the town in March.

They tabled acting on payment of $1,430.36 to Donald E. Reed, consultant geologist, for services relating to the proposed public works garage until they see if the water commission will pick up the tab. The geologist was called in to determine if water in a nearby well at the proposed garage site in the gravel pit near the Little League field off N. Main St. was contaminated or not. The potential garage site was eventually ruled out because as it turns out the area lies in a protected water resources district and the town by-law would require a variance before a garage could be constructed there.

Traffic tickets add up

Parking clerk expenses are up because Cohasset police are issuing more traffic tickets. Selectmen approved a transfer request for an additional $650 to cover expenses like data processing of the tickets. Expenditures out of this account are directly proportional to the volume of tickets issued by the police department, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said. Traffic tickets bring about $15,000 a year in revenue to the town and expenses take about 15 percent of that figure, Doyon said.

E-911 system to come to town

By Joyce Bain
Mariner correspondent

Most people are familiar with the number and many are even fans of the television show. Now Cohasset is getting the program. The 911 program, or Enhanced 911 to be exact.

Members of the E911 Committee, with representatives from the Board of Selectmen, the police department and the fire department, hope to have the program installed and running by the first quarter of 1995. The program will make having to memorize different numbers for the police and fire stations obsolete, allowing residents to simply dial 911 in the case of an emergency and be in touch with trained assistance.

Enhanced 911 is slightly different from 911 in that, rather than simply calling and speaking to a dispatch operator, E911 automatically prints the address of the caller on a screen in front of the operator. In addition, E911 provides a feature which allows physically disabled callers to type directly onto the dispatcher's screen. The committee, which has been meeting for just under one year, is very pleased that Cohasset will be installing the new system.

"It's something every department wants. It can do everything at once, and smoothly," Police Chief Brian Noonan said.

The state has mandated that every town install E911 by the end of 1995, and is providing the necessary equipment. In addition, some training costs will be kept down by the phone company which is providing a free system training course, funded by 411 directing information proceeds. Despite these donations, the Committee is estimating a cost of $145,000 in personnel and other expenses.

Members hope to utilize civilian dispatchers who will need emergency medical training, adding slightly to the budget. However, by using civilians, other personnel will be free to take over necessary duties.

Committee member Pete Donovan said, "This will free up people to do something they're trained to do rather than sit behind a desk."

The Committee is looking to cut costs and revise its budget by limiting personnel and creating partnerships with surrounding towns. The cost estimate was based upon the structures used in nearby Hanover and Norwell. It included three full-time dispatchers, Monday through Friday, and part-time dispatchers on weekends. However, in opening the program, Cohasset may choose to slim down from these models and employ more part-time workers, mixing civilian and uniformed workers. Also, they are looking into the possibility of being able to dispatch in conjunction with other towns, thereby sharing overhead expenses and cutting the budget.

The Committee plans to make a recommendation to Selectmen within the next two weeks to install Enhanced 911 without using 911 as an interim step, since 911 would require a completely different set of equipment and training sessions. No matter what selectmen decide, E911 will be installed by next spring, the E911 committee said.

Tag sale license okay'ed

Residents of the Harborview apartments, 60 Elm St., obtained approval Monday to conduct a one-day tag sale where they will sell second-hand items. Selectmen authorized issuing the group a Junk Dealer's license at their board meeting this week.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

A REALISTIC APPROACH

QUESTION: Does it make sense to buy real estate during inflation?

ANSWER: During inflation (and we're in it), there's an excellent case for investing in real estate. Most of the investment is paid for with borrowed money. Whenever you can borrow money at a fixed rate during inflation, you are money ahead. Here is your chance to turn inflation to your advantage. Your mortgage gives you full price dollars to work with today. You then pay them back with "cheaper" dollars you will be earning for the next 20 or 30 years. This is one of the reasons many wealthy indivduals continue to make big real estate investments.

Hingham will have use of the van for three days a week and Cohasset for two.

Cohasset's COA Director Kathy Bryanton sees the need for transportation for the disabled on the rise.

"I've been here eight years and since I've been here (the elderly) have gotten older and more frail," she noted. In Cohasset 14 percent of the town's senior citizens are over 80 years of age.

"Once they give up their license — it's much more difficult to get to the doctor, to the grocery store, or to do their banking," Bryanton said.

She explained the van is available to all ages and to those with all types of disabilities ranging from the wheelchair bound to people with impaired vision. She said the COAs will work with the Commission on Disabilities in both towns to identify those who need the type of assistance the new van can provide.

When someone is frail or disabled getting into a regular van or car can be difficult.

"In our own seven-passenger COA van with a sliding door, you have to be pretty agile to get in and out," Bryanton noted.

Cohasset's Gregory Doyon and Hingham's Charles Cristello, executive secretaries in the two towns, worked closely together to work out the plan to share the van.

Hingham's DPW Supt. Brian Sullivan helped Hingham COA Director Sandra Kent work out the maintenance plan and bookkeeping which will be kept by Hingham, Bryanton said.

Cohasset COA director Kathy Bryanton and Hingham COA Director Sandra Kent post by the new handicapped-accessible van to be shared between the two towns. Please call 383-9112 for more information about the van or to sign up to be a volunteer driver.

The five-year, flexible contract was drawn up by a local attorney. Bryanton explained that the particular days each town has use of the van can be adjusted if the need arises. Cohasset will have the van Tuesdays and Wednesdays and Hingham has it Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays.

Hingham firefighter Bob Keyes taught the volunteer drivers C.P.R, Bryanton said.

"Both towns are in agreement this is a new opportunity to learn and work out the kinks and we're both willing to sit down and negotiate if changes have to be made," she said.

HOME CENTER REAL ESTATE GIVES TO THE COMMUNITY...

HOME CENTER REAL ESTATE is very pleased to announce that a portion of every transaction closed will be donated to a local charity, beginning April 1, 1994.

The first program voted as a recipient of funding will be the D.A.R.E. program, Drug Abuse Resistance Education, of Hingham. The D.A.R.E. Officer for Hingham, Mike Peraino is "thrilled about Home Center's commitment to the program. The response to the program has been overwhelmingly positive and we need all the help we can get."

During a seventeen week core curriculum the sixth graders of Hingham cover issues of drug and alcohol awareness, abuse, self esteem and safety. The children meet with Officer Peraino once a week for one hour.

The D.A.R.E. program is a well developed National program, successful in many communities. The basic funding for the program comes from the cigarette tax; however, additional contributions are always needed.

Gail Petersen Bell, CRB, President, said "I was very proud of my Advisory Board for deciding to contribute a percentage of each sale to a worthwhile local cause. I had heard Mike speak at a Rotary meeting and I was so impressed with the D.A.R.E. program, that we decided that it should be our first recipient."

Home Center's Advisory Board has also targeted the Hingham Educational Foundation and the Mary Martha Learning Center as possible future recipients of Hingham sales.

For properties sold in other towns, a charity from that town will be chosen as the recipient.

HISTORIC REAL ESTATE
NATIONAL TRUST FOR HISTORIC PRESERVATION

If we forget, who will remember?

the prison that I was in, more than 18,000 prisoners died of starvation. On July 27, 1945, less than three months after the Germans surrendered, the Red Cross reported that it recovered more than nine million Red Cross food parcels that should have been given to the POWs. This represented deliveries of eight months, which had been secretly stored away by the Germans at Heppenheim in Nurenburg, and other storage places.

The Korean War prisoners saw the same bad times as their WWII comrades — the cold and starvation; the physical and emotional exhaustion.

Most of us here today can remember Vietnam, the war that took over 50,000 of our young Americans; and the 2200 MIAs that are still unaccounted for.

The late National Commander of the American ex-POWs, Stanley G. Sommers, a prisoner of the Japanese for over three years, when asked, "What was the usual POW experience?"

He replied, and I quote:

"There are no words that adequately describe being interned by a ruthless enemy that does not treat prisoners as human beings. Let me assure you, however, that everything you may have heard or read about such horrors is true.

"Naturally, all of us had to be in combat to be captured. Our land forces were overwhelmed by superior forces, our planes shot down, our ships sunk. I have never heard of a POW who wanted to be captured. Just to be taken prisoner by an armed enemy is a terrifying experience.

"As far as the stresses of capture go, many of us were sick, wounded or hungry when we were taken. My first response was fear, uncertainty and loneliness. Despite death and destruction all around, I tried to keep a little grim humor, and I prayed a lot.

"Prisoners' diets, in general, were grossly inadequate in both calories and protein. There was no nutritional balance; such items as fish, meat and dairy products were rare. Vitamin deficiencies were common; daily caloric intake ranged from zero to 1,400 — if you were lucky. Most prisoners experienced loss of 30 percent to 60 percent of body weight, as a result, some died.

"Medicines and surgical instruments were in extremely short supply. Most of the time they either were simply not available or were purposely withheld by the enemy. Lack of communication at times was complete; no newspapers, no radio, no mail from loved ones — but there always were disturbing (and, sometimes conflicting) rumors of battles lost or won. Labor in shipyards, factories, farms, mines or construction was a seven day-a-week slavery. If you were lucky, you might get one day off a month. There was no such thing as a weekly bath or a change of clothes.

"Outright brutality and torture by the guards were common: beating, shooting, standing at attention for hours, fingernail-pulling, bone-breaking, attack by police dogs, even beheading. Terror was complete."

Our MIAs are the brave people who fought for our country. They are not forgotten and thanks to you people here today, they never will be.

Somehow, somewhere, MIAs must know that they remain in our thoughts and prayers.

We can only hope that they understand that what they have gone through has not been in vain.

Their sacrifice must never fade from our memories and this memorial that we are dedicating here today will remind us of the MIAs of all wars and especially the: 78,750 MIAs of WWII; 8,177 MIAs of Korea; and 2,266 MIAs of Vietnam.

The POW/MIA Square at the intersection of North Main Street and Depot Court was dedicated Sunday. The sign was paid for by the Sons of the American Legion Post 118, Commander Tom Wigmore said.

REVIEW COURSE FOR UPCOMING POLICE EXAM

Gerard Whittemore, noted author and lecturer, is offering a course to prepare candidates for the upcoming Civil Service Police Examination.

The Commonwealth's Department of Personnel Administration has announced that it will administer the first police examination since 1990 for Massachusetts cities and towns and for the MBTA Police Department on Saturday, May 21, 1994. The deadline for applications has been extended to 5:00 PM, Friday, April 22, 1994. To be eligible to take this examination, you must be a high school graduate or possess a GED certificate, and you must have reached your 19th birthday on or before April 22, 1994. (Check with the Department of Personnel Administration regarding upper age limits in your municipality.) Applications for this examination are available at local police departments, city and town halls, or at the DPA, Examination Administration, One Ashburton Place, Boston, MA 02108.

The selection process for becoming a police officer is a highly competitive one. It begins with this entry level examination, so if you want to become a police officer, act now and file an application as soon as possible.

To earn the highest possible score on the exam, candidates should enroll in Gerard Whittemore's preparatory class. This course will familiarize and prepare students for three major sections of the exam. The first part of the examination, "Observation and Memory," will require candidates to look at a series of wanted posters for a brief time and then answer questions about them. Mr. Whittemore's sure-fire memorization techniques will aid students in their efforts to memorize names, faces and facts. Drills and practice tests will be provided for the next two sections of the test: "Learning and Applying Police Information," and "Judgment and Problem Solving."

Don't allow this opportunity to pass you by! In some municipalities a police officer can earn over $100,000 annually, when court time, overtime pay, paid details, and shift differentials are added to base salary.

Bring pens, pencils and notebook. Tuition is $175. Only cashier's check or money order made out to Gerard Whittemore, payable at the start of the course, will be accepted.

Two sessions are available:

Saturday, April 16, 1994 from 9:00 AM - 5:30 PM at the John B. Hynes Convention Center, 900 Boylston Street, Boston, MA.

Saturday, April 23, 1994 from 9:00 AM - 5:30 PM at the Boxborough Host Hotel, One Adams Place, Boxborough, MA (Exit 28 off 495).

around town

by Sallyann Chatterton

Jay and Jody Caron have wonderful news, they are the brand new parents of Camyrn, who was born March 22 at South Shore Hospital! Camyrn's brother Christopher and sister Courtney, as well as grandparents Mary Ellen Neagle and Jackie Bessett, welcome her with love and pride! What a lucky little one, to have all that love surround you!

Everyone that voted April 2 should be proud, there was quite a turnout! Do you know the first one that voted was Betty Grassie? And, she also won the housing authority position! Good work!

We must begin by saluting Tom Wigmore this week. He is the one Sons of the American Legion Commander. Tom was the organizer of last Sunday's parade to recognize the POWS and MIAS, and dedicated the square in honor of them. It looks beautiful!!

David Hassan carved the sign, and a wreath was placed there. Tom also made sure that there were veterans groups from all over, and Raymond Buckley, a WW II prisoner of war in Germany, addressed the people present. Tom also spoke, as did Steve Wigmore, commander of the George H. Mealy American Legion Post; Ralph Perroncello, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post; and Jane Hamilton, head of the American Legion Auxiliary. The weather wasn't that great, but everything else was, be sure to look at the results!

Like most of the rest of us, Doris Gould and Gertrude Young are quite accustomed to a rabbit or a skunk in the wilds of Cohasset, but their eyes popped this past week when, on returning to Gertrude's home on Hammond Avenue, they were greeted by a wild turkey calmly pecking away at seeds on the lawn! The bird, apparently realizing that Easter is not Thanksgiving so its a safe season for gobblers, continued pecking away for a while and then wandered slowly off into the woods. Gertrude says that this was a first for her, but others have reported seeing the turkey in the area.

Mimi and I were driving that way last week, and saw him in the road asleep. I got out of the car to try to rescue him, and off he went!! What a sight to see, he truly is a beautiful bird (what a place to take a nap! In the middle of a street, must go back to his heritage, when pilgrims didn't have cars!!)

The Head of the Upper School at Derby Academy Peter Frisch recognized the following students for exemplary effort, attitude, and interest at a recent morning assembly, and we want to let you know who they are: Ryan McWilliams, Theodore Noon, Ryan Staszko, Carl Dean, Alexander Gaston, Patrick Gaughen, Beth Pierson, Cornelia Wakeman, Charles Dean, Ashley Mihos, Elliot Noon, James Simons, Wiley Wakeman, Geoffrey McWilliams, Corinna Noering, Carter Noon and Morgan Pierson. Great job everyone!!

Additional news from Derby Academy! Did you know that in the Patriot Ledger Spelling Bee Carl Dean was the first place winner in grade 7? That is an honor indeed, Carl, and one to be proud of!

Well, Phil, Joan and Jill Shockman have done it! They have moved! Dazzle is now located right across from MacDonalds in Braintree Plaza, with lots more room and tons more to buy! What a nice birthday present for Jill, she has worked hard and will be even busier!! Best of luck to all of you, the new location should be a grand success!

Guess what folks, that is all the news we have for this week, but we sure are hoping that you will call with yours by next Sunday. We love to hear it!!

Priscilla Tebbetts

Priscilla Stebbins Tebbetts, 64, of Cohasset, an educational philanthropist and founder of Project Challenge, a financial aid project for Brockton students, died April 8 in South Shore Hospital, South Weymouth, after suffering an apparent heart attack.

She was a hearing officer for the State Department of Public Utilities and also worked for Don Kent Solar in Weymouth.

Before moving to Boston in 1954 from her native New York, she worked for General Electric in Schenectady.

Vice chairman of the South Shore Women's Caucus, she was a campaign leader for the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment in 1976 and led the Chardis Langmaid campaign for the state senate.

Mrs. Tebbetts was an organizer of the Project Bread Walk for Hunger and most recently, organized the program to help deserving Brockton High School students afford college.

"We're challenging them to do the best that they can and really take their education seriously," she said in an interview. "It's something I thought about for a long time — all these young people dropping out, and what that means for our country in general, and for our children, who are going to inherit this world."

Mrs. Tebbetts was born in Binghamton, N.Y. and graduated from Binghamton Central High School. She received a bachelor's degree in English from St. Lawrence University in 1951.

She and Ned Tebbetts married in 1957 and moved to Cohasset three years later.

Mrs. Tebbetts also leaves three sons, John Tebbetts of Riverhead, Long Island, N.Y., Richard Tebbetts of Cheney, Wash., and Charles Tebbetts of Amherst; and a brother, Roger Stebbins of Pennsylvania.

A memorial service will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday April 16 in the First Parish Meeting House.

Memorial donations may be made to Project Challenge, Stonehill College, North Easton or the First Parish Meeting House.

Velma L. LaFlamme

Velma L. (Barnes) LaFlamme, 78, of Cohasset, a homemaker and lifelong resident of Cohasset, died April 9 in Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston, after a brief illness.

Mrs. LaFlamme was born and educated in Cohasset.

Wife of the late Hershel M. LaFlamme and brother of the late William "Sonny" Barnes of Cohasset; she leaves a brother, John T. Barnes and two sisters, Helen E. Babb and Virginia M. Barnes, all of Cohasset; four nieces, Judith M. Salvaggi of Braintree, Vicky M. Williams of Cohasset, Sandra L. Lorgeree of Halifax and Patricia A. Carey of Pembroke; and four nephews, David F. Dowding of Calif., William H. Dowding of Fla., Scott Barnes and John T. Barnes Jr., both of Cohasset.

A funeral service was held April 13 in McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 33 Fourth Ave., Needham 02194.

Amateur Gardners update

The Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset will meet at 1 p.m. Tuesday April 19 at the home of Mrs. Alicia Seavey. Mrs. Ginni Nast and Mrs. Jean Syrmopoulos will serve as co-hostesses. Refreshments will be served.

The annual meeting will be held after which there will be a hobby show.

Members are asked to bring their "show and tell" projects.

Community gardners meet

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will meet at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday April 26 at St. Stephen's Parish. Coffee will be served at 9 a.m.

"Perennials for the Shade," will be the topic. Leo Blanchette, a designer, owner of a nursery specializing in unusual perennials. A writer for "Better Homes and Gardens," he will share information about exciting new cultivars as well as time-tested shade lovers.

Teamwork

Hingham volunteer driver Bob Shepard sure was proud last Friday of the new handicapped-accessible van whose purchase was possible because people in two towns cared enough to work as one.

Mr. Shepard, who couldn't stop smiling mentioned, "regionalization" and how the van is a step in that direction.

The state-of-the-art 11-passenger van complete with wheelchair lift and other features to provide easier access for the frail and disabled will be on the road three days a week chauffeuring Hinghamites about and two days a week Cohasseters will be able to rely on the service it provides.

Often grand-sweeping plans to regionalize parochial towns like ours get swept under the rug. Master plans to merge our schools, public safety services, or town governments may be too radical for our highly individualistic New England character.

But sometimes, as in this case, small, quiet steps can be taken toward regionalizing to save money and provide better service. Sharing a piece of specialized equipment like a van may seem cumbersome at first — but when those involved care enough to work out the kinks, it can work.

We applaud Gregory Doyon and Charles Cristello, executive secretaries in Cohasset and Hingham; Kathy Bryanton and Sandra Kent, the towns' COA directors; South Shore Elder Services, which is the area agency on aging; members of the towns' Commissions on Disabilities; Hingham DPW Supt. Brian Sullivan; Hingham Firefighter Bob Keyes — the present and future volunteer drivers — and all others involved in making the van possible.

Transportation is something most of us take for granted.

Just imagine for a moment, not being able to jump in your car to pick up your child from Little League or to go to the doctor or grocery store? What if going out to buy a gallon of milk or to pick up a newspaper was something you had to think more than five minutes about?

Thankfully, most of us can go about our busy lives and not worry about how to get from here to there and back again. But if through age or accident or illness we or our loved ones loose that independence — it's comforting to know that some local organizations and individuals had the foresight to do something about it.

'Hunger Walk' participants encouraged

To the Editor:

Sunday, May 1, nearly 600,000 people — that's one in ten in the state — will take part in the Walk for Hunger, the nation's oldest and largest one-day fundraiser for the hungry. I encourage people in Cohasset to participate in some way in the 25th Anniversary of this important event. The Cohasset Food Pantry, along with some 460 similar programs in other Massachusetts towns, has received funds from Project Bread which is the beneficiary of the Walk for Hunger.

We have found that, even in this relatively fortunate community, there are families who need help in meeting their food and household needs. Those who are unemployed, even for short periods, those who are self-employed or those whose work is seasonal, find the Food Pantry a valuable social service until their income resumes.

A grant from Project Bread helped us get the Cohasset Food Pantry started a year ago and so we urge you to call them at (617) 723-5000 to find out how you can help make the 1994 Walk for Hunger the most successful ever. There are numerous ways you can contribute — you can walk, volunteer, or sponsor an individual who is walking or volunteering. Registration for the walk is from 7 to 9 p.m., May 1, on the Boston Common. We hope Cohasset will be well represented.

Help with egg hunt appreciated

To the Editor:

The Cohasset Recreation Commission's Annual Easter Egg Hunt was held Saturday, March 26 with approximately 700 people attending.

The commission wishes to express their most sincere gratitude to the following organizations, town departments and individuals for their support of this event: Financial Sponsors — Cohasset Police Association, George H. Mealy American Legion Post #118, Rotary Club of Cohasset, and VFW Post #9146 of Cohasset. Thanks also go to the following town departments of Cohasset: fire, police, school, tree and park and wire departments.

For their time and effort, the following individuals are thanked: Mr. Richard P. Barrow, Mr. Robert Barrow, Mr. Ted Carroll, Ms. Jessica McDonald, Mr. Tom Wigmore, Mr. Brendan Mulcahey, Mr. Manny Salvador, Mr. Dana Salvador, Mr. John Roosevelt, and Mr. Eric Worley.

For their contributions, we wish to thank Mr. Clark Chatterton, Mr. Joe Laugelle, Mrs. May Barnicle, Mrs. Mary Edmonds and Mr. Joel Rosano. Special thanks to Mr. Bill Patrullo of Tom O'Brien Nissan of Kingston for use of their helium and tank.

Very special thanks are extended to Mrs. Jean Salvador and Mrs. Linda Patterson for their vital roles in the Easter Egg Hunt.

It is because of individuals and organizations such as these, that Cohasset remains a very fine community in which to live and work. We are truly grateful to all.

Jack Worley
Recreation Director

Concession help appreciated

To the Editor:

Now that basketball season is over, I would like to thank all the moms and dads (and siblings) who so graciously helped with the basketball concession stand — grades four through 12 at the high school.

Nearly everyone I called was willing to volunteer, and, after "zillions" of phone calls, it was inspiring as to how pleasant and cooperative people were! I hope you all had fun. This is the major fund raiser of recreation basketball, so without your help, it would not have been successful.

Cohasset Basketball Boosters thank you.

Home ownership is dream come true for single mother

Ask Lynda Kearns what being selected for a Habitat for Humanity home has meant and her answer is one any parent could relate to: "It is a chance to provide for my children."

Lynda, the single parent of two children, an 11-year-old daughter and a 7-year-old son, is one of the two families selected by Habitat for the renovated Bates Building at 43 Elm Street in Cohasset.

Forced to uproot her family first from Cohasset and then from Wareham, all the while working full-time in Hingham, Lynda had been living with her mother in a Quincy apartment for more than a year when she spotted a newspaper story about the Bates Building and Habitat for Humanity.

"I knew about Habitat from Jimmy Carter's involvement," remembers Lynda. "I was looking for a place I could afford and because I met Habitat's income requirements and had been a former resident of Cohasset, I applied, hoping to finally be able to provide some stability for my kids."

That was in February of '93. By March, she had been selected to occupy one of the two condominiums that volunteers had been working on since the previous October.

"I knew that all I needed was a chance," says Lynda, a secretary for the state environmental police. "Habitat for Humanity has given me that chance."

Like Habitat volunteers who work assiduously to break down the stereotypes surrounding affordable housing and persons of moderate income, Lynda Kearns, who just a few years ago was receiving welfare, has worked to dispel what she says is an unfair stereotype of welfare recipients.

"For me, welfare was a stepping stone," says Lynda, who enrolled in a secretarial program, got a job and got off welfare.

Lynda Kearns and her two children outside their home in the Bates House on Elm St.

"I've worked very hard to get where I am and I hope to instill in my kids what I've accomplished."

And now, Lynda can add home ownership to the list of accomplishments of which she and her kids can be proud. Looking around her new home, into which she moved late last summer, Lynda says that she can't help but he amazed "at how far it's come, how beautiful it looks."

And now that the frenetic pace and excitement of the past year has quieted down, what does Lynda remember most about being selected as a Habitat family?

"I think about all the different steps that the house has gone through, all the friends and family, the construction people and the volunteers and their families who worked on the house, everyone smiling and happy and so willing to help. And I think about what a positive experience this has been for my kids and me."

Habitat home is new start for young Cohasset family

When Traci and Peter Madge and their three young children moved in with Peter's mother in Cohasset they planned to stay for a year while saving for a home of their own. But for the Madges, whose livelihood derives from the sea, Mother Nature did not cooperate and the Madges' dream of ever owning their own home faded, year by year.

Due to winter storms, Peter, a lobsterman and cod fisherman, experienced two devastating years, losing precious sea time as well as expensive gear. Despite Traci's long hours working first at a local supermarket and more recently as a cook, the loss of Peter's livelihood plunged the family into debt.

Like so many young parents, the Madges are a hardworking couple trying to provide for their family in a tough economy. And all that many of those young families need is a chance, a start. Habitat for Humanity answers that need.

Traci remembers the first time she ever heard about Habitat for Humanity.

"Believe it or not," she says, "MTV did a story about the organization. My first impression was that these were good people doing good work."

Not too long after that, Traci read about the Smith family and their Habitat home in Weymouth. And then, a friend who had read about the Bates Building project in Cohasset called Traci, urging her to request an application. Traci did. She waited a week but no application arrived. She called back. Days later the application was delivered.

"I had a real deep feeling that our situation might qualify for a home," says Traci, now settled comfortably in the top story of the two-family Bates Building at 48 Elm Street. "There were five of us, Peter, me, Justin, 8, Michelle, 4, and Kaley, 2, all living in one partitioned room at my mother-in-law's. We were there for four years. It was unhealthy for everyone."

Traci and Peter submitted their application by the January 15 deadline and then underwent the requisite home visits and follow-up interviews. On March 11 of last year they were contacted by a Habitat board member. Traci remembers the call vividly.

Traci and Peter Madge and their three young children have realized their dream of owning their own home.

"We were in Florida," Traci says somewhat reluctantly, concerned that their much needed vacation might be misconstrued. "The trip was a Christmas gift from my mother-in-law. We had just watched the movie, 'Misery,'" laughs Traci, hinting at the relevance of the title to their own situation, "and we were getting ready for bed when the phone rang. It was Habitat, telling us that we had been selected for the house. I just wanted to pack up and go home, start work on the house and meet our new neighbors."

On August 7, at the dedication of the Bates Building, Peter Madge spoke simply and eloquently for his family: "I would just like to take a few minutes to thank everyone who helped make this day possible. From the day six months ago, when Fred and Margy came to visit us, to this day, we have encountered literally hundreds of people associated with Habitat for Humanity. Unfortunately, I can not remember all of their names. However, I do remember all of their faces and that they all had a common goal which was helping other people. This incredible organization has given my wife, the kids and me an opportunity to live like real people and to grow as a family. For this chance we will be forever grateful.

"Everything is looking up," says Traci. "It feels great to be homeowners. After living together in one room for so long, I tell people that I can't wait to be able to leave the room and close the door behind me. It's the little things I think about, things other people might take for granted."

Greenbush is no monster

To the Editor:

Regarding Ms. Livingstone's letter to the Mariner, in which she likened the Greenbush Commuter Rail to Frankenstein's monster:

Frankenstein's monster, as we know, was made up of disparate body parts loosely stitched together. Looking at the "hybrid system" Livingstone proposes, I see it is made up of two disparate modes of transportation — boats from Hingham, and monorails from Disneyland — loosely held together by feeder buses.

It seems to me that her system would be more like Frankenstein's monster.

Gage to run for Senate

Timothy E. Gage, a former member of the Weymouth Planning Board, announced his candidacy for the State Senate Monday with a swipe at supporters of Senate President William Bulger.

"The State Senate is an exclusive club whose members are awarded a pay raise and perks if they sign, seal and deliver their allegiance to the Senate president," he said.

"The incumbent, Brian McDonald, is a member in good standing of that club and the people of the South Shore have paid his dues."

A McDonald-Gage fight in the Democratic primary next September would be the first such clash in the newly created Senatorial district that runs from East Braintree to Duxbury.

Gage, 29, once an aide to ex-Rep. Robert Ambler and an intern to former Cong. Brian Donnelly, said "emphatically" that he would not support Bulger in his bid for a record eighth two-year term as Senate president.

"But I will not commit to the challenge orchestrated by Sen. (William) Keating because I will not broker my vote," he said.

He said he decided to run before Keating issued his challenge to Bulger, adding "I was encouraged by the fact that there were others who were willing to stand up for change.

"I think it is imperative to be absolutely candid and honest on this issue because the people in the district need to know where the candidates stand regarding legitimate change.

Tim Gage

"I am mystified as to why the incumbent does not feel the same way.

"Brian ran his previous campaigns on a platform of change but the only change that he made was to be the first chairman to receive a $7,500 pay raise and not hold s single committee hearing.

"His colleagues were probably impressed with this achievement but the people I have talk to are not."

McDonald's original Norfolk-Plymouth District included Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield and Duxbury. East Braintree was added during redistricting last ye[illegible]

Gage said that, under Bulger's r[illegible], the South Shore has not received its fair share and would receive more favorable treatment under new Senate leadership.

A lifelong resident of Weymouth, Gage has a degree in finance from Suffolk University and a law degree from Suffolk Law School.

He served as the youngest ever member of the Planning Board from 1985 to 1990, when he was not a candidate for relection.

paul pratt library corner

Real life authors, literature,

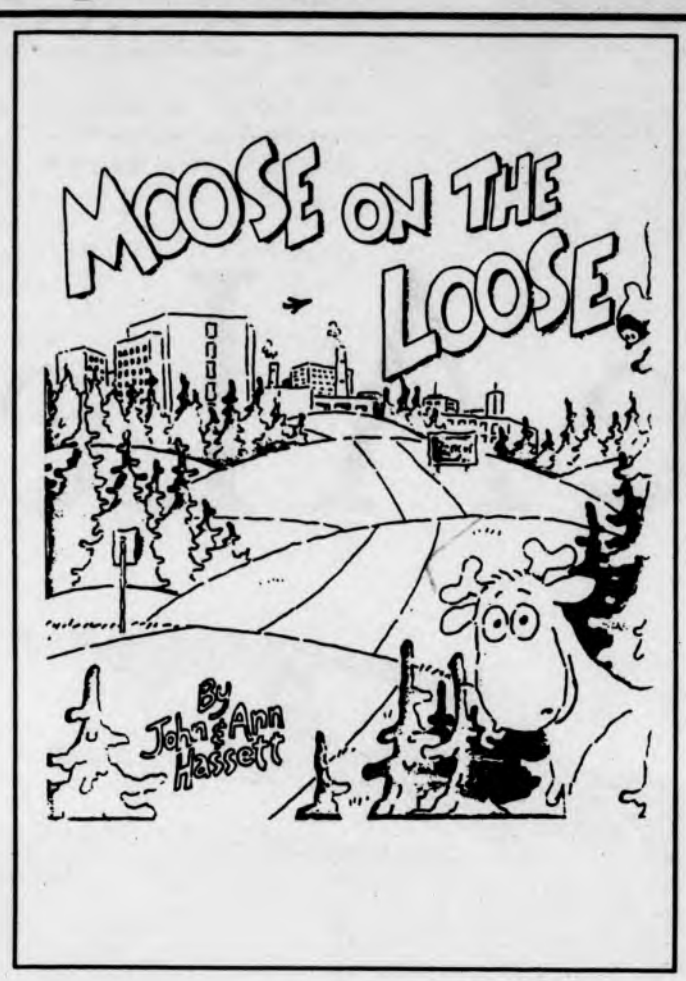
The Friends of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library will sponsor a workshop for children during National Library Week.

John and Ann Hassett, authors and illustrator of We Got My Brother at the Zoo, Junior: A Little Loon Tale and Moose on the Loose, will present a "how we make our books" workshop, at the library Tuesday, April 19, from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

The presentation includes impromptu drawings, hints for young authors, and question and answer time. Children will see book galleys, learn more about the process of writing children's books and create their own illustrations and text. This program is recommended for children from grades three to six.

Space is limited to 20 children. Reserve your space now! Sign up at the library or call 383-1348. The workshop is free.

Autographed copies of Hassetts' books will be on sale at the library, courtesy of Buttonwood Books.



Spring library hours

Hours at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are: Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; closed Wednesday; Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday, 2-5 p.m.

Computer catalogs ready

All information formerly contained in the card catalogs at the Paul Pratt Library has been transferred to Public Access Catalog Terminals (PACT). There are explicit instructions next to the PACT and library staff are available to help those who resist anything and everything involving computers!

Financial aid info at library

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (D-Cohasset, Hingham, Hull) has distributed the "Handbook on Admission and Financial Aid at Independent Colleges in Massachusetts" to the town libraries.

The handbook informs students and parents how and when to apply for financial aid. It describes the state and federal programs and has admissions information and application deadlines.

Blues and fusion rock

Friday April 15, at 8 p.m. Hingham's Coffee House off the Square will present storyteller Raelinda Woad, the country bluesmen, the Tarbox Ramblers, and the spirited, imaginative "fusion rockers" Blase' Cabaret.

Raelinda Woad is an "entertaining and captivating" teller of "true stories that have not quite happened yet." Her "original, contemporary and very hip tales" are may be the "classics of the 22nd century" according her hearers.

Michael Tarbox's Tarbox Ramblers feature Robbie Phillips' extraordinary washtub bass, Terry Donahue's drum, bass and washboard, Ben Travis' multi-strings and J. Place's harmonica. Together they draw on the great rural southern performers of the 20s and 30s to produce "straight ahead country blues".

Then Hingham's Nate Richardson and Ben Torrey along with playwrite/singer Jamie O'Neil and composer/clarinetist Ben Silverman will present the ever growing music of Blase' Cabaret. This was playfully defined as "fusion rock" and judged "Outstanding" by New England Performer Magazine.

The Coffee House of the Square, now in its 11th year, is at the Old Ship Church Parish Hall, 107 Main St., Hingham Square. The hall is handicapped accessible (except for the bathroom doors) and is served by the MBTA's 220 bus from Quincy Square. Admission is $5 with coffee, tea and deserts available. Profits go to the Unitarian-Universalist Service Committee for Central American Medical Aid.

For information call Sue Krueger at 585-6584, or the Church at 749-1679.

Gulf River talk slated

Spring is here! With it, in years past, the month-long migration of alewives (river herring) up the Gulf to their spawning grounds in headwaters of Bound and Aaron Brooks.

Why haven't they been seen in recent years?

What can be done to restore the run?

What's happening to other species that once frequented the Gulf, such as flounder and eels?

Are stripers, plentiful here last summer, back with us for good?

Ken Reback, fisheries biologist with the Massachusetts Division of Marine Fisheries, and the state's leading expert on river-breeding fish, will speak on these questions at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday April 20 at the Unitarian Parish House on Cohasset Common.

The Gulf Association is sponsoring this opportunity to learn about life under the waters of the Gulf River. The program is free and open to all.

Local residents in Annie

When the curtain goes up on Hingham Civic Music Theatre's production of "Annie" April 16, 17, 23, and 24, Cohasset residents Susan Carr and her daughter Caroline will be on stage.

Susan plays Lilly St. Regis, the flamboyant and none too bright girlfriend of Miss Hannigan's brother Rooster. The three conspirators attempt to pass Lily and Rooster off as Annie's real parents. Caroline will be Molly, one of the orphan's under Miss Hannigan's "care".

The adventures of the carrot-topped, vacant eyed "little orphan Annie" have changed with the years since she was first introduced in the comic strips. It was her message of hope that endeared Annie to a country struggling in the Hoovervilles of the "Great Depression". Her sunny philosophy, set to music as "Tomorrow" in the musical "Annie", carries our courageous young heroine from the clutches of Miss Hannigan into the arms of billionaire "Daddy" Warbucks.

Performances will be at Hingham High School, 41 Pleasant St., Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. and Sunday afternoons at 2 p.m. Tickets are $12; students and seniors $10. Tickets are available at Nobles Camera Shop in Hingham Square, Hingham Travel, the Hingham Public Library, and in South Weymouth at Olden's Pharmacy, or by calling (617) 749-0857. Group rates are available. Hingham High School is handicapped accessible.

"Pierson to Person"

Host Wigmore Pierson's guests Thursday April 14 will be the 16-piece big band orchestra led by Cohasset resident Frank Shooshan, well-known drum teacher on the South Shore.

This will be a special one-hour live performance in the studio. The public is encouraged to attend this unusual "Pierson to Person" show.

"Pierson to Person" is broadcast live from 8 to 9 p.m. each Thursday from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham and Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset and Scituate. The public is invited to be part of the studio audience. Those planning to attend should be at the studio on Gannett Road by 7:30 p.m.

For information call Robert Belliveau at 545-2500.

Support group for parents of children with ADD

A support group for parents of children with Attention Deficit Disorder will meet at 7:30 pm. Thursday April 14 in Scituate High School library.

The topic will be, "Living Successfully and Happily with Attention Deficit Disorder." A mother and her son will share their experiences with the group.

For information call Tanya at 545-6127.

AARP to meet

The American Association of Retired Persons, South Shore Chapter #1139, will meet at 1:30 p.m. Thursday April 28 at the Sons of Italy Hall, Rte. 3A, Hingham.

After a short business meeting, Michael LaPensee, outreach manager for NYNEX Center for Individuals with Disabilities and Carolyn McKeon, regional director of public affairs for NYNEX, will discuss services offered by the telephone company and answer questions.

Refreshments will be served. Any member of the National AARP or NRTA may join a chapter and is welcome at the meeting.

Alzheimer's support group

Wednesday April 27 at 7:30 p.m. at Thaxter Community Center, 30 Thaxter St., Hingham, Duncan MacEachern, director of the Long Term Care Office in Taunton, will speak on Medicaid and its impact on financial planning for nursing home care.

Mr. MacEachern and his staff will provide thorough explanations of all facets of Medicaid including qualifying requirements for Medicaid eligibility, how application is made, required financial records, countable and non-countable assets, and how Medicaid eligibility changes after a patient has been in a nursing home. It is Mr. MacEachern's office that processes all Medicaid applications for the South Shore area.

There will be time for questions after the presentation and application forms will be available.

The meeting is open to anyone wanting to learn more about the topic. For information call 749-5417.

Spend a day in school

The faculty Senate of Cohasset High School has invited citizens of Cohasset to participate in the "A Day with an Educator" program, which will take place April 28. Instead of basing their opinions upon the highly generalized accounts in Boston newspapers and the even more highly generalized articles in national magazines, the citizens of Cohasset will be afforded the opportunity to view the specifics of education at Cohasset High School.

The Faculty Senate feels there is no better way to gain a clear understanding of what CHS education in the middle of a new decade is all about than to experience the school environment first-hand. That is what "A Day with an Educator" is all about - bringing Cohasset citizens into the school April 28 and having them experience the real-life, everyday educational environment.

The program will allow individuals from the community to experience an entire school day with a member of the CHS staff. They will share in all of the activities the staff member performs. In the case of a classroom teacher, for example, the participant will be with the cooperating teacher while he or she teaches class, does lunch or corridor duty, supervises study hall, corrects homework or tests, attends meetings, covers detention, and performs extra-duty assignments

Those citizens spending "A Day with an Educator" will choose the discipline or area in which they wish to participate; however, because of scheduling problems, they will not be able to choose a specific staff member to visit. This will be done via a lottery system. For more information about this unique program call the high school at 383-6100.

Vacation change sought

The school committee is seeking public input on proposed changes to the school calendar. At its March 24 meeting, the Cohasset school committee discussed the 1994/95 school calendar and the possibility of making changes in next year's vacation schedule.

These changes would involve eliminating February and April vacations and substituting one week in March. The schedule would result in a net gain of three school days, setting the last day of school for June 14. These changes would allow more continuity of instructional time and would give the system some flexibility of scheduling in the event of an unusually high number of snow days next year, the school committee said.

Comments should be directed prior to the committee's April 25 meeting to Supt. Stephen Hart (383-6111), School Committee Chairman Nancy Sandell (383-0486); or PSO president Maureen Jerz (383-6592).

Board meeting changed

The school board will meet at 8 p.m., Monday April 25 instead of April 28 as previously announced. The board meets in the classroom at Cohasset High School next to the Supt. Stephen Hart's office. For more information, please call 383-6111.

Deer Hill parents to meet

The PSO will sponsor a meeting for Deer Hill parents at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday April 27 in the school cafeteria.

Deer Hill Principal, Mr. Ekberg, will be available to respond to ideas raised at the March 7 parents meeting and answer possible questions regarding the restructuring of grades 4, 5 and 6 necessitated by the large class size of the incoming 5th grade.

These changes will be outlined in a letter sent to parents prior this week.

Parenting workshops set

The elementary school adjustment counselors are offering a series of four parenting workshops from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Thursdays in the "living room" at First Parish House, Main St.

April 28 — Looking at Your Parenting Style

May 5 — Summary of Lee Canter's "Assertive Discipline for Parents"

May 12 — Self-esteem...What Can a Parent Do?

May 19 — Teaching Responsibility and Respect to Children

The workshops are open to any Cohassset parent and will be led by Ed Leonard and Frank Fitzgerald who have extensive experience consulting with parents. The success and appeal of the workshops offered earlier in the year has prompted this four-part series that will include parts of Canter's "Assertive Discipline" as well as information from the "STEP Parenting" and "How to Talk so Children Will Listen (And Listen so Children Will Talk)" programs.

Even if you attended the earlier workshops, the series will offer much more as well as a refresher. Attend any or all of the dates. Call Ed or Frank at 383-6115 or 383-6117 for information.

Osgood 'Mock Trial' teaches real-life legal lesson

By Judith Brennan
Mariner correspondent

Thursday, April 7, as part of the theme approach to teaching, Marie Price's kindergarten class at the Joseph Osgood School in Cohasset participated in a mock trial with four students from Dorothy Wondowlowski's Street Law Class for seniors.

The four seniors, Ryan Sawchuck, Bethany Marciel, Charles Endris, and La Keitha Smith, played the parts of police officer, judge, prosecuting attorney, and defense attorney.

Third graders Ross Leib-Lappen and Nathanial Wilcox acted as the defendants.

As the jury the kindergarten had to decide, after hearing all the evidence and the defense presentation, if the accused were guilty of stealing all of the candy from Judy's Candyland.

As the process of debate amongst the children unfolded, and by the time the final verdict of guilty or not guilty was returned, teachers, players, and observers were completely engrossed. The script for this short dramatic play was developed by the teachers and older students for the younger children's level of understanding to help them in learning the language of the law, and with more practical aspects in mind such as what happens when someone is arrested and goes to court.

Mrs. Price explained that at this level of a child's development it is important to involve them in concrete learning. Participating in the role of jurors required them to use critical thinking and to draw on their own experiences.

For example, one child thought the accused were guilty and the reason no candy was found was because they had eaten it all. But another child insisted they were innocent because if they had eaten all that candy, they would have gotten very sick.

And one little girl who had participated in an earlier play insisted, "Everyone knows that children are taught not to steal, so they couldn't have done it and they're not guilty."

The selection of a theme to focus on helps facilitate this concrete learning while adding to the experiential process.

On their journey into the area of law enforcement the class has visited the police station, and two local officers have gone to the school and spoken to the group.

Dayle Dickenson, instructional aide, pointed out the little police station the class built, their walkie-talkies, and the board with law related words on it.

"They have such fun learning this way, and as they acquire such practical skills as reading, they are building self-esteem," she explained.

Joan Coleman, also an instructional aide, had the fun task of fingerprinting a group of thoroughly delighted children who could hardly wait to see the outcome.

The next community theme will be hospitals. The teacher has arranged for an EMT to speak to the group.

As part of an earlier environmental theme they focused on supermarkets. Stop and Shop gave Mrs. Price's class the grand tour, and you can still view their mural hanging on the wall as you go in the main doors.

A final journey theme will take the class on a visit to Egypt.

As with the other themes — Home, Supermarkets, The Law, and Hospitals — the children will build on what they have already learned as they develop more skills and creative thinking related to their interests. At a time when our world is rapidly changing and there is such an increase of information, it is heartening to see how our teachers are using their creativity to make learning a positive and fun experience.

Snow removal overspent

Highway Supt. Harold Litchfield told selectmen that as of April 7, the snow removal account has been overspent by $104,031.14. Town meeting voters two weeks ago approved using free cash to cover the deficit.

CHARITABLE FUNDS AVAILABLE

The George E. Curtis Charitable Trust is accepting applications from charitable organizations which provide nursing care, day care, respite care or home care for low income adults who are handicapped, disabled or infirm. To be eligible for the grant award the charitable organization must be exempt from taxation and must be able to use the funds in Plymouth County and contiguous towns. Priority will be given to those programs which offer direct aid to eligible individuals in their homes by maintaining such individuals in his or her home so as to improve the quality of home life.

Funds are also available to assist in the design, construction and equipment of facilities for use by low income adults who are handicapped, disabled or infirm so as to improve the quality of their living arrangements. Individuals are not eligible for funding. The deadline for submitting a completed application is June 30, 1994.

Applications are available by sending a written request to:

Guilty or innocent?

Kindergartners have day in court in Mock Trial program

Left, Judge Bethany Maciel, a Cohasset High senior, with gavel in hand keeps the proceedings in order during the "Mock Trial" program at Osgood School last week. Seniors played the parts of police officer, judge, prosecuting attorney and defense attorney.

Right, the accused Nate Wilcox and Ross Lieblappen are sworn in to tell the truth. The program was developed to help children understand the language of the law and to see what happens when someone is arrested and goes to court.

Members of the jury, kindergartners Joanna Hamilton, Emily Morsh, Carrie Muir, Vennesa Plante, and Laura Friedman listen to the prosecuting attorney as they try to determine if the accused are guilty of stealing candy from Judy's Candyland.

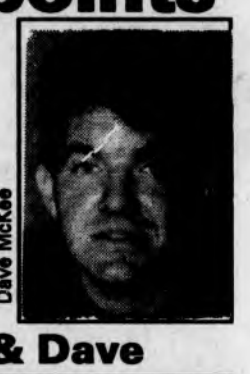
Joe Reardon



Dave McKee

by Joe & Dave

By now most people have seen the television bit of Saints' quarterback Jim Everett retaliate to ESPN 2 talk show host Jim Rome's calling him "Chris Everett" after the football player warned him he had had enough of Rome's two-year game of referring to him using the wrong name.

The public's general opinion is that Everett was provoked and his actions were normal, particularly after he warned Rome not to call him "Chris" one more time.

Well Rome didn't heed Everett's wise advice and ended up an inch away from Everett activating his dental plan.

Save for not knocking Rome halfway to next week, I condone Everett's actions. Reporters often irritate athletes and coaches with their questions. How angry the coach or athlete gets often depends on the situation; was it following a tough loss, did he already say he didn't want to comment on the question, or is he just a jerk to begin with.

Reporters realize some questions they have to ask aren't going to sit to well with certain players or coaches, but for a reporter to ridicule an athlete by purposely calling him the wrong name, or for any other reason, is unprofessional and classless.

Everett should be given credit for not pummelling Rome to a pulp, despite the fact that it would have livened up Bob Lobel's "Sport Spotlight" all the more.

—Joe Reardon

Spring time is golf time.

Over the weekend, viewers across the country were riveted to the TV to watch the first major of the season, The Masters.

(By the way, when you are talking about The Masters, you have to capitalize The or else serious golfers everywhere will snicker at you.)

Golf is a great sport, unless your like me and you can't play.

I only have two problems when I golf.

One, I don't know how to swing. And two, I don't know where the ball is going when I hit it.

Many golfers have told me this is a problem.

Golf is so frustrating because I am 6'3", 220 pounds and lift weights but the longest I've ever hit a ball in my life is 250 yards.

I see pros on TV like former Masters champion Ian Woosnam, who stands 5'4" and weighs 150 pounds, whacking the ball 300-plus yards and it bums me out.

So then I go down to a driving range like Starland in Hanover and try to hit the ball so hard that it explodes.

The ball usually goes straight for 100 yards before it makes a hard right. (I think this is a slice. Or maybe a hook. Or possibly a fade.)

Anyway, after hitting a few crummy shots, I start changing my grip, my stance and my hairstyle and nothing helps.

It is even worse on actual golf courses.

Let's set the scene. I meet a few friends late Friday afternoon or Saturday morning at Ridders or Green Harbor. After a few putts on the practice green, I step up

Two out of three ain't bad

Lacrosse team off to 2-1 start

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

The "bad" news surrounding the Cohasset lacrosse camp is that with one loss already on the season, an 11-8 affair againt B.C. High, the Skippers will be hard-pressed to improve on last spring's 15-2 record.

Head coach Ken Ekberg is quite aware a duplication of the overall record would be a monumental feat. But on the other hand, how many teams in the state finished with better records last year? Particularly schools the size of Cohasset.

The Skippers were the smallest lacrosse team in the state, enrollment-wise, to qualify for the postseason tournament. And although they may not wind up with the scintillating record of '93, that by no means Cohasset won't be among the group of tournament teams that advance when the regular season ends.

With several key players back, Ekberg is looking forward to a strong, well-balanced attack. "There is a fair amount of balance around," he said of the Skippers' starting lineup. I'd certainly look forward to a winning season to say the least."

Cohasset opened its season on a high note, taking a 7-6 lead into the half against Sandwich, before exploding for 11 goals in the second.

Seeing that it was only the Skippers' second day on grass after being forced to practice in a church parking lot because of soggy field conditions, the offense output makes one think what the team is going to do when it switches to full throttle.

Tri-captain Dave Leahy had a strong afternoon with the stick, whipping home four goals as the balance between the attackers and midfielders was too much for Sandwich.

Chris Adams got off to a good start running the offense and tri-captain Charlie Endris contributed in the goal scoring as well.

Cohasset then went out and dropped Wellesley, 10-4, on Monday.

The Skippers, however, have already been hit with a couple of injuries to two impact players. Last year's 50-goal scorer Chris Goodman had Magnetic Image Resonance testing done on his leg after it became numb and he lost feeling in it. Meanwhile, tri-captain goaltender Brandon DeVoe had a knee scope done to see what has been causing his pain.

DeVoe, who Ekberg calls the team's "take-charge guy on defense," was able to play in the B.C. High game. He entered the contest with the Skippers trailing 5-1 and proceeded to keep the Eagles from running away with a lopsided victory.

Cohasset came back to take an 8-6 lead, but it was B.C. High who scored the final three goals to come away with the victory.

Ekberg seemed far from displeased to the first tee with my group.

This is when the horror starts.

I bring the club back and whap!

A slice into the woods. Or worse, I skull it about 30 yards. Only once in my life have I hit my first tee shot straight and longer than 150 yards.

A bad first tee shot works on your mind and it takes about three holes before you finally feel comfortable.

And don't get me started about my short game. I chip and putt with the touch of a lumberjack. I skip chip shots over the green and run putts ten feet past the hole. I've two-putted only a few times in my life.

My best score on nine holes is around 50. One time I even got two pars and a birdie in nine.

However, there are old guys and pimply 12-year-olds who could beat me like a drum on the course and there's nothing I could do about it.

The point I'm making is golf is the most frustrating sport because it looks so easy. You see these nerdy little guys on TV with names like "Fuzzy" or "Chip" hitting the ball as smooth as silk and it makes you think anyone can do it.

Believe me, golf is pretty tough. It's not as tough as hitting a baseball, but it is a close second.

However, I will one day learn what I am doing and possibly break par on nine holes.

I will also win a Pulitzer Prize for sports column writing and publish several best-sellers that get made into movies.

You have to aim high. A golfer told me that once.

I received a letter last week from the father of the under-14 division winner of the Cohasset Roadrace-By-the-Sea who said I should "check some facts," about the kids who run road races. He also wrote "I sure hope you're a runner yourself."

To answer your question, yes, I have been running for the past 15 years. It's easy to remember because one of my first road races was the Saint Colleta's 10K Road Race in Braintree, which happens to be the same distance as the Cohasset race. I wound up third in my age group with a time of 36:06. Unfortunately, it turned out to be my last race for three months, thanks to a sore knee that progressively became worse over the next three days. Whether or not the race was the reason for the injury I'm not completely sure, but I know the hard 6.2-miles didn't help my knee any.

And yes, I have read facts about children running and how their bones and muscles are still developing at the age of 13. I'm sure you don't push your son to run, but I still believe you should discourage him from running anything longer than 5K — at least for a couple of years. Let him develop his speed and even more confidence in a race he'll recover from quicker.

To answer your question "what do you do with a son who runs a 43:07 10K and places 64th out of 488 official runners?" Encourage him to run the shorter distances and age-group track meets.

If your son continues running the 10Ks, no matter how much he enjoys them, the odds of him developing an injury are great.

How great a runner is is judge by consistency over a whole career, not by one race, albeit, a very impressive one on a course no runner I know has ever claimed to be easy. To have a successful career, it's essential to avoid major ones and minimize the minor roadblocks that all runners inevitably get.

with the loss. He instead focused on the effort the Skippers put forth to edge their way into the lead. "To be competitive and get back into the ball game is a good testimony to the kids," Ekberg said.

Ben Redfield and Chris McKenna are two other players Ekberg believes will play a large part in the team's success. "I'm really optimistic about what he can do for us," he said.

Ekberg has a crew of freshmen players on the squad this season. Doug Cameron, Matt Belson, John Lachs and Eli Cohn should gain worlds of experience after playing at the seventh- and eighth-grade level.

He did say, however, "there is an obvious difference," in the pace and intensity of the game the varsity team plays.

"The acclimation period for them is very rapid," Ekberg said. "The experience they're able to get this year will keep the program strong for the future."

But for now, Ekberg is concentrating on the immediate future of the regular season. The Skippers do have a tournament to qualify for after all.

Safe boating course

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 1208, and the Cohasset Recreation Department will sponsor a spring, six session, Safe Boating Course, offering certification by both the Coast Guard and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The course will be offered to both youth and adults, however, certification in this course is mandatory for 16 years old and under, who wish to operate a craft powered by 25 horsepower or more. U.S.C.G.A., Flotilla 1208 instructors will teach the six session course, scheduled to begin Tuesday, May 17, at Cohasset High School, Room 206. Class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday evening, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. from May 17 through June 2.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791, as soon as possible, as class will be limited in size, and participants will be enrolled on a first call basis. There will be a $15 per person fee for this program, that covers the cost of the text book and class materials. Checks for payment must be made out to U.S.C.G.A. Flotilla 1208. While the class is designed for children/youth and adults, it is suggested that children aged 12 and under be accompanied by a participating adult.

Certification cards will be issued, and both the Coast Guard and State recognize the Safe Boating certificate. Further, for those who may be interested, certification for this course will allow you a discount on your boat insurance premium of 5 to 10 percent, depending upon your insurance carrier.

Fire at New England Wildlife Center under investigation

By Charlene Vandini
Mariner staff

Officials believe a fire at the New England Wildlife Center in Hingham on April 7 was deliberately set.

Director Greg Mertz said this week that Hingham fire department officials investigating the early evening blaze found several bales of hay in at least four areas of a large building used by the Wildlife Center for educational and medical treatment purposes.

The hay bales are used as bedding for animals treated at the center and are stored away from the areas where charred remnants were found.

Among the items destroyed by the fire, smoke or water damage, the Wildlife Center lost approximately $30,000 in equipment and supplies, including medicines and sterile dressings used to treat injured animals, and food.

Mertz said three raccoons housed in the building either escaped or were set free when the fire started. He assured the public that these particular animals, close to being released into their natural environment, are healthy, and pose no threat of rabies, which is currently a concern.

The Wildlife Center also lost a large above-ground swimming pool set up inside the building for use in the rehabilitation of injured turtles and aquatic birds.

The dollar estimate of damage to the building is uncertain, he said, but he noted that in 1987 and 1988, one foundation contributed $53,000 towards renovations and donations were received from other groups. In addition, 200 volunteers put in 15,000 hours of work on the building's renovations.

As a result of the fire, the building inspector has condemned the 50-year-old structure, originally built by the federal government as part of the Naval Ammunition Depot. This is one of five buildings at the former ammo depot off Fort Hill Street used by the Wildlife Center for treatment and rehabilitation for animals, as well as the center's on-going educational programs.

Mertz said the medical and food supplies are frequently donated, or purchased in bulk at discounted prices. With these items destroyed, the center must, at least temporarily, replace them at a higher cost, and using funds from its budget.

The loss of this building reduces the areas available for caging animals under treatment, he added. The loss of the pool will limit the treatment of aquatic birds, since they need frequent time in the water to maintain their production of oils that keep them buoyant. Two similar buildings are used as aviaries for birds undergoing treatment, prior to being released.

The Wildlife Center is in the process of moving its hospital, including veterinary intensive care unit to another building.

One Hingham firefighter was injured when a ceiling light fixture fell on this head. Lt. Francis Kraus was treated and released from South Shore Hospital, suffering a mild concussion.

The fire was discovered by Hingham patrolman Frank Allegra, who observed a haze over the ammo depot while on routine patrol in the Fort Hill Street area. While driving into the depot, he smelled smoke and traced it to the Wildlife Center's building where it was visible coming through the building's roof. Allegra said he observed no one in the area when he ar[illegible]

In 1972, the federal government deeded the 6[illegible] ammo depot to the town, with a stipulation tha[illegible] used for educational purposes. At present, the scho[illegible] department uses a number of buildings, including the school bus garage; the sewer and highway departments also occupy buildings. The Bare Cove Fire Museum and a model railway museum are also located within the property.

Rail advisors wrap up final session

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

The 23 member Citizen's Advisory Committee established to review proposed plans to re-establish commuter rail service to the South Shore met Thursday, March 31, and signed a five-page letter endorsing the construction of a tunnel through Hingham center and generally supporting the return of rail service to the South Shore.

The committee is comprised of representatives from various groups in the South Shore towns that will be part of the commuter service to be offered by the Old Colony Railroad Rehabilitation Project of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

The five-page letter was sent to State Environmental Affairs Secretary Trudy Coxe early last week. The letter will be included as part of the final environmental review of the project and will become a public document.

The committee addressed the concerns of the Hingham Historical Society by endorsing alternative 6A, which calls for running the service underground through Hingham Square. Original plans to run the service at grade through Hingham Square had raised issues of safety and had been expected to prompt litigation by the Hingham Historical Commission.

According to committee members, the tunnel will be a type known as a cut and cover, which is a more cost effective alternative to a deep bore tunnel. The cut and cover alternative involves excavating from ground level and covering the tunnel back over upon completion of construction.

The committee's meeting, which was held at the Braintree Town Hall, was sparsely attended but the few people in attendance raised issues of safety and expense.

According to Connor, the Department of Environmental Affairs will prepare a Public Draft Environmental Impact Report, containing the CAC recommendations. This report will then be subject to a 45-day comment period through mid-June. In late-May, a public hearing will be held in order to give citizens the opportunity to comment on the final report.

When the MBTA receives the final report, it will reach a decision on which alternatives to follow in implementing the commuter rail service to the South Shore towns.

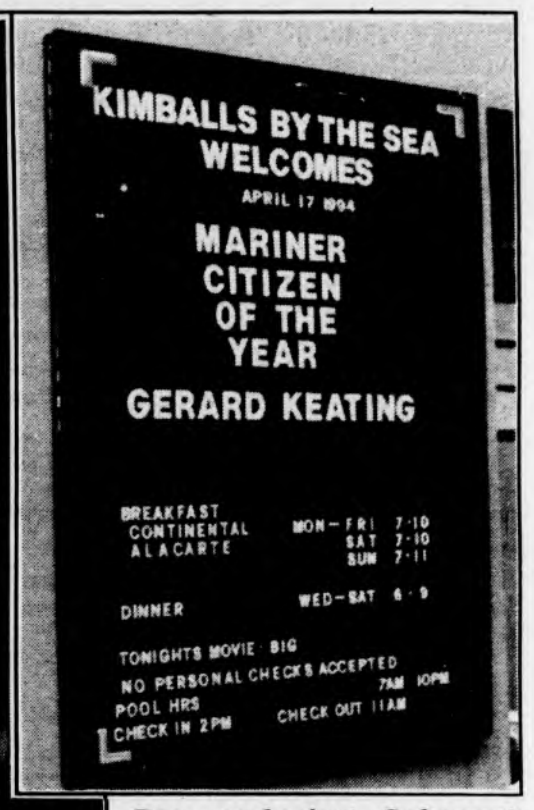
Cohasset Mariner

Vol. XVI, No.25 | Thursday, April 21, 1994 | 1-800-649-6661 | 50 cents



Two enduring Cohasset institutions: 1993 Citizen of the Year, Gerard Keating, and state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray share anecdotes during Murray's presentation of a Proclamation from the State Legislature honoring Keating's 60 years of volunteer service to the town. The festivities were held at Kimball's By The Sea, Sunday. For more photos, see page 11. (Staff photo/J. Paul MacDonald)

Greenbush Rail may make a comeback in 1997

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

After 18 months of study, the Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) has unanimously supported restoration of the Old Colony Railroad Greenbush Line.

The 17-member citizens group representing all towns along the Greenbush corridor gave the project the green light earlier this month in a five-page letter to Secretary Trudy Coxe of the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA).

The CAC was created to assist in the preparation of the Supplemental Draft Impact Report/Statement (SDEIR/S), a federally-ordered feasibility study focusing on environmental impacts of transportation alternatives.

'Now people that live along the line should work on the assumption that the train is coming.'

— Joseph Norton, chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee.

While the the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) will make the final decision on which of the six transportation alternatives will get the go ahead — CAC Chairman Joseph Norton, who is also a Scituate selectman, said he is optimistic the train will return.

"Now people that live along the line should work on the assumption that the train is coming," Norton said.

The CAC suggests the MBTA support alternative 6a which is diesel-powered commuter rail to Scituate with a tunnel under Hingham Square. The tunnel alterative supported is the shortest and least expensive of four tunnels studied; it would run 5,600 linear feet along the Old Colony right of way — 3,600 of which would be completely underground and would avoid adversely

Driscoll used local hills to tackle 'Heartbreak'

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Women's world record-holder in the wheelchair marathon, Jean Driscoll, analyzed her chances for a fifth consecutive win in the Patriot's Day, Boston Marathon. The scenario the 27-year-old from Champaign, Illinois envision turned out to be so accurate, the result was merely a foregone conclusion.

"If the weather is good and there is a tailwind, it's (the course) conducive to fast time," said the personable Driscoll on Friday, following a 10K time trial through Hingham's Wampatuck State Park.

"I'm looking for a win again, obviously," she said. "I feel stronger this year than last year. All my imagery is winning."

Rabies threat inches closer to Cohasset

By Andrew MacLellan
Mariner staff

The northward march of the deadly raccoon rabies virus has finally beaten a path to Cohasset's door according to animal control officer William Quigley, who said the scourge could begin appearing in town this summer.

"Rabies in Cohasset is just a matter of time," he said.

Quigley said pet owners should vaccinate their animals and warned homeowners to keep their garbage in the garage or basement. He noted that the winter has been hard on raccoons, who are adept at opening trash cans, and other small animals who are now out rummaging for food.

The virus began spreading 20 years ago from West Virginia and today can be found in 208 of the the 351 cities and towns in Massachusetts. The first contact points in the state were Berkshire County, on the Connecticut border and Fitchburg which was introduced to the virus when an infected raccoon hitched a ride on an out-of-state garbage truck.

The latest communities to report rabies are Avon, Holbrook, Randolph and Brockton. The animals most susceptible to this strain of rabies are raccoons, skunks and fox. In Billerica there was even a report of a rabid coyote. Bats also are easily infected but they carry another, more rare strain, public health officals said.

The raccoon population on the South Shore was thinned in 1991 and 1992 by an epidemic of distemper.

However, communities, like Canton which has had the virus for some months, now are destroying three to five rabid raccoons daily.

The animal control officer in Marshfield is catching and destroying feral cats in that town. Statewide, a dozen cats have contracted the virus so far. The last reported case of a rabid dog in Massachusetts was in 1935.

Smaller animals, like squirrels and chipmunks, may

Beautification is supported

The Conservation Commission whole-heartedly supports landscaping a traffic island near Sandy Beach. The work which will include removing the rock and rubble and debris, having the internal bed mounded; planting with Rugosa and beach grass; and removing an old bush has been proposed by Ron Rawson and Mary Hagerty.

In a letter to Jeffrey Waal, chairman of the Conservation Commission, Rawson said Kelly Landscape of North Scituate would provide the labor for free. Rawson and Hagerty would pay for the materials. Kelly Landscape would establish a company sign at the sign indicating who is doing the work while the job is in progress, Rawson said.

Waal said the commission "feels that landscaping the island is a wonderful idea and a project that everyone will enjoy."

He explained that no formal applications or approvals from the commission were necessary.

"Good luck. We look forward to seeing a more pleasing piece of land very shortly," Waal said.

ABCC approves license

The Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) has signed off on the application of the South Shore Playhouse Associations doing business as the South Shore Music Circus for a wine and malt beverages license granted by selectmen Feb. 8.

The George E. Curtis Charitable Trust is accepting applications from charitable organizations which provide nursing care, day care, respite care or home care for low income adults who are handicapped, disabled or infirm. To be eligible for the grant award the charitable organization must be exempt from taxation and must be able to use the funds in Plymouth County and contiguous towns. Priority will be given to those programs which offer direct aid to eligible individuals in their homes by maintaining such individuals in his or her home so as to improve the quality of home life.

Funds are also available to assist in the design, construction and equipment of facilities for use by low income adults who are handicapped, disabled or infirm so as to improve the quality of their living arrangements. Individuals are not eligible for funding. The deadline for submitting a completed application is June 30, 1994.

Applications are available by sending a written request to:

Cohasset's week

Home break investigated

An early morning April 18 home break on Jerusalem Road is still under investigation, police said.

A 71-year-old woman was home alone when the parties broke the window on the front door and entered the house. The woman was not injured and did not discover the break until the thieves had fled, police said.

The thieves stole two bottles of liquor from the house and the woman's 1994 Ford Taurus which was later recovered on Sea Street in Quincy.

Sgt. Robert Jackson said the Bureau of Criminal Investigation (B.C.I.) came down and processed the scene taking fingerprints, samples of blood found on the floor, and took pictures.

The next day another stolen motor vehicle was discovered on Howe Road in Hull. Police think the thieves drove to Hull in that vehicle, parked it, and slipped through the woods to the Cohasset woman's house.

Earlier that day, there was an attempted theft around the corner from the Cohasset home on Atlantic Avenue in Hull which may be related, Jackson said.

Town boards reorganize

The following boards announced their reorganization:

• Sewer commission — Edward M. Guild, chairman; R. Gary Vanderweil, vice-chairman; and Henry A. Rattenbury, clerk.

• Assessors — James W. Lagrotteria, chairman; Michael C. Patrolia, vice chairman; and Ross W. Rosano, clerk.

• Health board — William E. Baird, chairman; Thomas C. Cook, clerk; Alix White will serve as third member.

Join Harborfest parade

Organizers warn that Harborfest is only eight short weeks away. The annual celebration of and for Cohasset is capped off with and old fashioned "down home" New England parade. Individuals, organizations, or companies are invited to sign up. Please call Keith Knowles, 383-1331, for more information.

Hingham Civic Theatre's Annie will steal your heart

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Miss Hannigan (Jennifer Honen), Rooster Hannigan (Geoffrey C. Campbell), Lilly St. Regis (Susan Carr) dance and sing to 'Easy Street' in Hingham Civic Music Theatre's production of "Annie." (Staff photo/Alan Chapman)

A dozen little girls and a very mellow dog named Sandy walked away with the "Annie" which continues this weekend at Hingham High School.

The well-cast Hingham Civic Music Theater production of the Broadway hit musical based on the comic strip "Little Orphan Annie" sang and danced its way into the hearts of Saturday's opening night audience.

Although only in the fourth grade, Duxbury's Emma Stanton who portrays "Annie" is an experienced performer with two prior musicals under her belt and it shows.

Emma is perfectly charming as the little orphan who wins over the big hearted, very rich and very well-connected Oliver Warbucks, played by Douglas Forbes. It's no wonder that Forbes, a stage veteran with 30 years experience, wears the role of the generous billionaire like a glove — this is his fifth "Annie" production.

The curtain rises on the orphanage run my the comical Miss Hannigan played by newcomer Jennifer Honen, who does a super job in the role Carol Burnett made famous in the movie based on the Broadway smash.

Annie's dream is to find her parents who left her on the doorstep of the 'Hard Knock Life' orphanage 11 years ago.

After an escape attempt from the orphanage fails, Annie's luck changes. Warbucks lovely secretary Grace Farrell (played by Brenda McColgan) arrives on the scene to "borrow" an orphan for Christmas. Warbucks wants a boy to visit but Grace is enchanted with Annie and brings her home instead.

It doesn't take Annie long to win over Warbucks and his entire staff of maids, footmen, and butlers. Soon Warbucks wants to adopt Annie but when he learns of her passion to find her parents he pulls out all the stops to help her. Warbucks offers a $50K reward. G-men are put on the case and even President Franklin D. Roosevelt helps out. Annie's story captivates F.D.R., played by John Sawyer, and his entire cabinet . And it's no surprise that Annie effortlessly lifts them out of the Depression doldrums with a rendition of "Tomorrow."

What Annie and Warbucks don't know is that Miss Hannigan has a conniving, deceitful brother Rooster (played by Geoffrey C. Campbell) with a trashy girlfriend Lilly St. Regis (Susan Carr) who come up with a plan to pose as Annie's long-lost parents and claim the reward.

But Rooster, Lilly and Miss Hannigan are no match for the F.B.I. which successfully traces the steps of Annie's real parents and just in the nick of time.

Sadly Annie whose parents are deceased is truly an orphan -- but not to worry. She lives happily ever after with Warbucks and Grace. And as for the other orphans, they are all invited over to the mansion for Christmas as well. And with a heart as big as Warbucks has — they probably get to move into the mansion too.

"Annie" is delightful fantasy for the entire family. The show is well-acted, the costumes are splendid, the sets are well-designed, and the good score keeps you humming.

Tickets are $12; students and senior citizens $10 and are available at Nobles Camera Shop in Hingham Square; Hingham Travel; Hingham Public Library; and in South Weymouth at Olden's Pharmacy or by calling 749-0857. Group rates are available. Hingham High School auditorium is handicapped-accessible.

'Prisoner of Second Avenue'

Mother-daughter team up for fun in 'Annie!'

Susan Carr and her daughter, Caroline, have been pretty busy these days! They're both lucky enough to have been cast in Hingham Civic Music Theater's spring production of "Annie."

Susan plays Miss Lilly St. Regis, the bubble-head blonde accomplice of con-artist, Rooster Hannigan. Together, they impersonate Annie's real parents in the hope of collecting a $50,000 cash reward, or should we say "$50,000 smackers."

Susan began singing, dancing and acting at age six for a Newton YMCA musical theater group. From there she became a member of Boston Children's Theater and studied dance with Paulette Harwood of Newton. Susan continued her interest in musical theater throughout the years and has played several leading roles in high school, college and community theater productions. After playing the title role of Charity in Newton County Players production of "Sweet Charity," she left the theater and became busy raising a family and doing school and community volunteer activities. It was her daughter Caroline's desire to try out for "Annie" that prompted Susan's return to the musical theater. She decided to try out too and won the part of "Miss Lilly."

Caroline, who is nine, plays Annie's best friend, Molly, in the show. She began her stage career at age three as a reindeer in "Rudolph's Shiny New Year" with Diane Purdy's drama school in Quincy. Caroline has played Anansi in "Anansi the Spider" and the Cheshire Cat in "Alice in Wonderland," both performed by the Cohasset Recreation Department. Caroline continues the family tradition by studying ballet and jazz with Paulette Harwood's daughter, Paulette Jr., a local resident of Norwell. Caroline is also a member of the Cohasset Gymnastics Team.

The remaining performances will be held at Hingham High School this Saturday, April 23, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, April 24, at 2 p.m.For tickets please call Susan Carr at 383-0331.

Cohasset's Susan Carr, and her daughter Caroline take a break from rehearsals of 'Annie' on stage this weekend at Hingham High School.

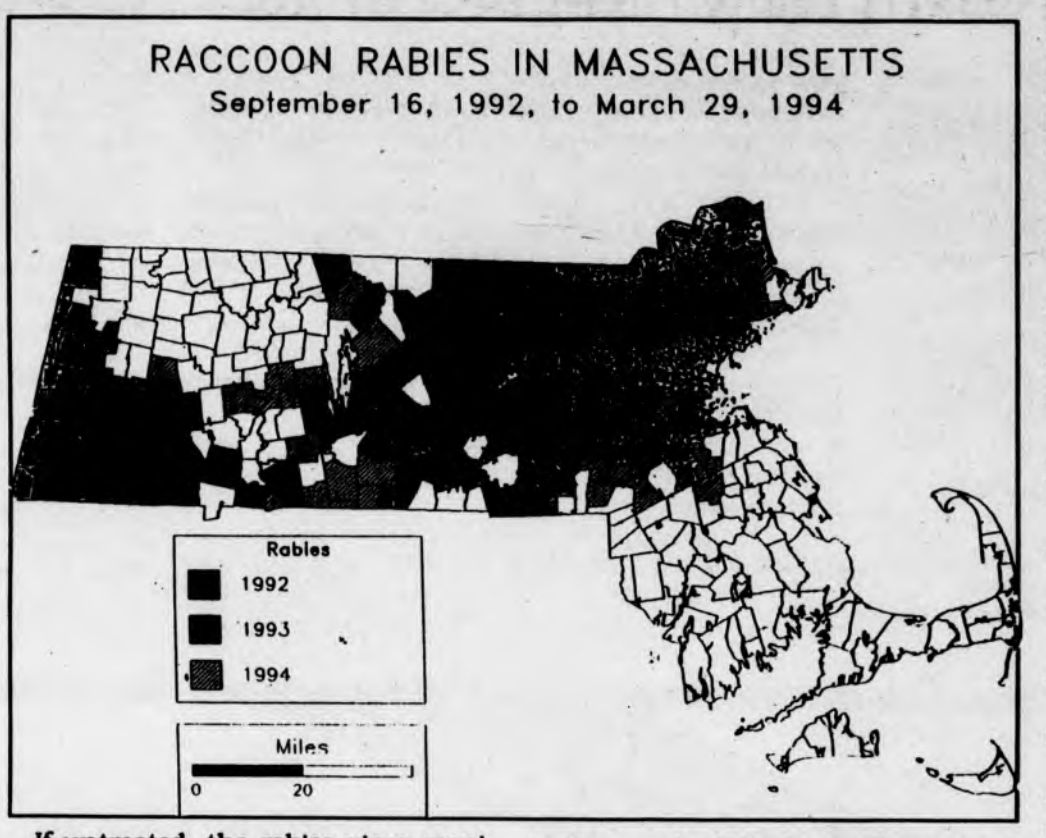
also contract the virus but die too quickly to pose a danger to humans or other animals. Only mammals are in danger of contracting rabies.

The state recently passed a mandatory vaccination law, which states pet owners must innoculate all animals over six months old for rabies or face a $50 fine. Warning signs of infection in pets include unexplained aggression, impaired locomotion, varying degrees of paralysis, foaming at the mouth and extreme depression or viciousness.

Dr. Todd Forman, a Marshfield resident who has a practice in Pembroke, said rabies is known clinically as hydrophobia. He explained that after infecting the area around the wound, the virus travels through the nervous system and becomes lodged in the brain stem. After contracting rabies, a person who refuses treatment will live an average of four days. Forman said there is both a pre- and post-infection antidote which is far less painful than the once notorious injections many still associate with rabies. Forman said only people likely to handle wild animals, such veterinarians, police or fire personnel should feel the need to take the pre-exposure vaccine.



If untreated, the rabies virus manifests itself in humans in three main stages.

Initial symptoms which may follow an animal bite or scratch include dryness in the mouth, difficulty swallowing and fever. If allowed to persist, symptoms after one to two days include muscle aches, tiredness, high fever, sore throat, cough and numbness at the wound.

As the virus takes hold, it will produce acute encephalitis, excitation, seizures, sensitivity to light, touch and loud noises and dementia and bizarre hallucinations interspersed with lucid periods.

Before slipping into a coma and death, victims may experience facial paralysis, double vision, trouble swallowing and excessive salivation — which creates the fabled foaming mouth — painful, involuntary contractions of the neck muscles and dysfunction of the brain stem.

If bitten by an animal that is suspected of having rabies, Forman urged people to immediately wash the bite or scratch with soap and water and see a doctor. If it is at all possible try to capture the animal.

The state projects a peak of between 700 and 800 confirmed cases of rabies for each of the next two to three years.

An encouraging sign locally that people are taking precautions was the good turnout at the rabies clinic last weekend where 69 animals — mostly cats — were innoculated, Quigley said.

For safety's sake, officials say people can begin adjusting their habits by following a few simple steps:

- Be sure pet is inoculated for rabies every year.
- Keep pets in at night. If your pet has to go out, accompany it.
- Never feed pets out of doors and never feed wild animals.
- Secure trash and avoid leaving trash out overnight.
- Secure the home from raccoons by capping chimneys and sealing crawl spaces that may have outside access.
- If pet comes into contact of any kind with a wild animal be careful not to handle your pet unless wearing rubber gloves. Take pet immediately to the vet for an examination for possible exposure or bite wounds.
- If you spot a raccoon during the day or acting abnormally contact the animal control officer. Avoid the animal at all costs but do not panic.
- If bitten wash with soap and water and call your doctor immediately.
- Report any bites to the local board of health
- Anyone adopting or getting a new pet from a shelter or private party should take the pet immediately to the vet to be checked and inoculated.

impacting Hingham Square which is a National Register protected district. In 1994 dollars, the short tunnel would add 40 percent or $78 million to the cost of the Greenbush Line and would add about 10 percent to the price tag of the entire Old Colony Project of which Greenbush is Phase III.

These figures do not include cost offsets with the tunnel option such as savings in possible legal costs if Hingham decided to fight surface rail through its square in court; paying for mitigation measures for noise and vibration in the square; and the need for fewer gates and lights.

The public will have 45 days to comment on the report following its filing with the EOEA which is expected by mid-May. There will be also be a public hearing mid-way through the comment period. After Coxe reviews the report and considers public comment and is satisfied with the environmental study, the MBTA can move ahead with the Final Environmental Impact Report, which will focus on a preferred alternative. The process moves forward from there to design and construction phases. Best estimates are that the Greenbush Line could be rolling sometime in 1997.

Because federal money will be used for the project—federal law requires the MBTA to pick a "prudent and feasible" alternative that meets the transportation needs if a nationally protected resource could be adversely affected. A prior study on Greenbush did not look at adverse impacts and the federal government would not agree to fund surface rail without an environmental study—this delayed the project and set the stage for the environmental report the CAC just commented on.

Alexander Macmillan, who is one of Hingham's representatives on the CAC and is chairman of Hingham's Historical Commission, contends that the short tunnel while adding 10 percent to the total cost of the Old Colony Project is both prudent and feasible because it meets the transportation needs and the expense does not rise to "extraordinary magnitude" a requirement in the federal statute.

"The CAC came to understand that rail to the South Shore has to include some measure of protection to Hingham Square," Macmillan said.

Norton said the CAC reached a compromise by suggesting the MBTA go with the short tunnel.

"The train would never get off a stale mate unless a compromise was realized," he said. "The biggest problem along the entire line was upsetting Hingham's historic district.

"This tunnel takes care of that concern."

Norton said six months ago he would have given restoration of the Greenbush Line a 50/50 chance. But he feels the consensus reached by the CAC is significant.

"I think the consensus went a along way to seeing it built," he said. "Without that consensus, we'd be facing delays whether they be litigation or further studies."

Macmillan agrees.

"The CAC represents people in all affected communities. These people studied all the data prepared by the MBTA with respect to all the alternatives no matter what preconceptions they had starting out."

Besides alternative 6a (rail with a short tunnel), other alternatives considered in the study included no build; at-grade diesel-powered commuter rail service to Scituate; commuter boat with expanded Hingham terminal and new terminal at Nantasket and/or Quincy and feeder bus service; and expanded bus service and park/ride lots.

In the letter to Coxe, the CAC acknowledged that the Greenbush corridor has serious transportation problems.

"The local and regional highways are heavily congested and will not improve until such time as a comprehensive, multi-modal transportation plan is in place," the CAC letter states.

"The region clearly needs more extensive mass transit service."

Joseph Connor, project manager with the MBTA, said that studies show the Greenbush Line would attract 3,000-3,500 riders each way. Five or six trains would make the run giving the line a capacity of 4,500-5,400. The trip length from Greenbush to Boston would be 58 minutes.

Construction has already begun on the Middleboro and Plymouth Lines of the Old Colony Project.

William H. Becker, Commander U.S.N. (Ret.) had the distinct honor of commissioning his son Karl. Bill, his wife Sherry (who served on the Board of Health for Cohasset) and Karl lived on North Main St.

The Beckers are now living at Spruce Creek, Daytona Beach, Fla. See what our neighborhood produced? We are very proud of you, Karl!

Erin Lennon, the daughter of John and Joanne Lennon, was one of 19 students recently honored by Hobart and William Smith Colleges (located in Geneva, N.Y.) for outstanding service to the community.

Karl W. Becker (far right) was commissioned Ensign in the U.S. Navy Feb. 11 at a ceremony in Pensacola, Fla., after graduating from Aviation Officer Candidate School. He's shown here with his parents and transplanted Cohasseters William and Sharon who now live in Daytona Beach.

Erin received a National Youth Service Award, a national award recognizing volunteer service to local agencies. The director of co-curricular programs for the colleges said, "She exemplifies the highest ideals of citizenship and commitment to others, which is central to a Hobart and William Smith education."

Speaking of outstanding college students from our town, how about those Pozatek students at Middlebury? Steve and Krissy that is!

The children of Ziggy and Ellie Pozatek, they are doing an outstanding job.

Steve, who is a junior there, and is making tennis history, is number one on the singles tennis and doubles team and is undefeated to date. Steve beat number one Amherst and Williams College, guys. And, Middlebury is ranked number One East among Division 3 Schools.

Krissy, a sophomore, is doing a great job pursuing her favorite sport, skiing. She is racing on the ski team, Division I Alpine Ski Team (women's) to be exact. She is doing a great job. On top of all of that, they are great scholastically.

Boston University also sent us good news about another great Cohasset student, Douglas Moe. Douglas is the son of Douglas Moe and Diana Dunphy and a junior majoring in film at B.U. He is a 1991 graduate of CHS, and another student to give credit to good schooling! Douglas has been inducted into the Golden Key National Honor Society, which means he ranks in the top 15 percent of the junior class!

That is awesome, Douglas, we are sure to hear about you in the future!

Everyone has to remember Allison E. Ludlow, she is a superstar. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Ludlow and she has made yet another "All-Star" rating, this time she has made the Dean's List at Keene State College (located in Keene, N. H.). That means that she achieved a 3.5 or higher grade point average, and that is a superior effort that should be recognized. Next time you see Allison, tell her so.

And, wish her good luck and "God's speed" as she tries out for the softball team — she will do it, if her knees are OK.

There are two birthdays to report — April 19, Ruth Wheelwright celebrated her 98th birthday (hope to get a report on the festivities), and April 24, Vi Tuthill will be 90. Isn't that grand. They are two special ladies and we send them the very best.

Finally, our town will certainly miss Priscilla Tebbetts; she was one wonderful lady. She was so kind, so knowledgeable and so good. Our hearts go out to her family, and let it be known that she was everyone's friend. It is hard to believe Cohasset without her!

That's the news for this week, keep me informed of your latest feat. Did you run in the Boston Marathon?

obituary

Yolanda I. Baccari

Yolanda I. Baccari

Yolanda I. Baccari, LPN, 70, of Cohasset, an active community volunteer, died April 16 at Massachusetts General Hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Baccari was active in the Cohasset Council on Aging as a counselor in the SHINE program; a board member and secretary for the Social Services League; a Eucharistic Minister and student at the Glastonbury Abbey in Hingham and a member of the Guild of Catholic Charities. She was active in the League of Women Voters for many years.

Elected to the board of the Cohasset Housing Authority which was instrumental in bringing housing for the elderly to 60 Elm St., she continued as secretary to the director until recently. She also served as a hospice volunteer in the South Shore area. Mrs. Baccari was active in the Cub and Brownie Scout programs, serving as chief den mother for many years.

A member of the Cohasset Sailing Club and an accomplished navigator, she enjoyed extensive cruising in the waters off Martha's Vineyard, the Elizabeth Islands and the United States and British Virgin Islands. She also enjoyed traveling to Italy, Britain, California, Florida and numerous remote islands in the Grenadines.

A native of Quincy, she lived in Cohasset for more than 35 years.

She leaves her husband Domenic M. Baccari; two sons, Paul of Quincy and Gregory of Scituate; a daughter, Jean of Cohasset and Brookline; a sister, Marie Johnson of Nashua, N.H.; a brother, Joseph Cincotta of Weymouth; and three grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated April 20 at St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in the Mount Wollaston Cemetery in Quincy.

Contributions in Yolanda's memory may be made to Glastonbury Abbey, 16 Hull St., Hingham 02043, to the Massachusetts General Hospital Cardiac Laboratory, c/o Treasurer's Office, 55 Fruit St., Boston 02114, the American Heart or Cancer Associations, or to a charity of your choice.

Support Alternative 6a

In June 1992, the Mariner Newspapers ran a photo of former U.S. Secretary of Transportation Andrew Card wearing a spiffy engineer's cap, along with a story about Card's announcing federal approval of Old Colony Railroad project.

Card delivered the Federal Transit Administration's record of decision on the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority's (MBTA) Environmental Impact Statement for the Middleboro and Plymouth lines at Holbrook High School in front of hundreds of state officials and area residents.

The approval made the project eligible for federal funding. Construction of the Plymouth and Middleboro Lines is now underway.

But at that time officials said approval of Greenbush, the third spur of the project, was still in the study phase.

Now nearly two years later, federal approval may still be six to nine months away but hope for a green light for the Greenbush Line is brighter than ever thanks to a consensus reached by a group of local citizens appointed to comment on a federally-mandated environmental feasibility study on the project.

In a five-page letter to Trudy Coxe, Secretary of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, the 17-member Citizens Advisory Committee made up of representatives from all towns along the Greenbush corridor wrote it "supports restoration of this passenger rail service on the Greenbush Line as quickly as possible, with a stated preference for Alternative 6a."

"Alternative 6a", which stands for surface rail with a short tunnel under Hingham Square, should become common lingo in the days and months ahead.

The "short tunnel" is actually the shortest and least expensive of four reviewed in the environmental study. It won't be all that short running 5,400 linear feet along the Old Colony right of way — 3,600 of which would be completely underground. And it's not all that inexpensive adding upwards of ten percent to the total cost of the Old Colony Project.

But what Alternative 6a will accomplish can't be measured in linear feet or dollars. By going underground, it avoids Hingham's fragile Lincoln Historic District which is on the National Register and is therefore legally protected from being adversely impacted by a federally-funded project, like Greenbush.

Hingham CAC member William Grimes said he hoped the alternative "would draw not battle lines but lines of communication to diffuse the polarization that has divided the South Shore between those who want the train and those who don't."

Clearly after careful study, CAC feels the short-tunnel is not so expensive as to derail the project.

In a recent resolution, Hingham selectmen supported "restoration of rail service on the Greenbush Line as long as the project incorporates a tunnel to avoid or minimize adverse impacts on our downtown area and National Register Historic District."

It should be noted that the MBTA plans to use slurry wall construction — a method in which a machine excavates and puts in the side walls and cover and later on digs out in between. This process is less disruptive than the older method of driving steel sheets down into the ground.

We think the time for citizens along the Greenbush Corridor to enthusiastically support Alternative 6a. Whether Hingham has a tunnel or not will not affect transportation-starved communities to the south and east of Hingham. It will only affect them if the MBTA decides against a tunnel and the project is tied up for years in further studies or litigation.

We advocate restoration of the Greenbush Line and agree with the CAC members that the tunnel will get the project off the starting blocks.

In the not too distant future, we hope to cover U.S. Transportation Secretary Federico Pena announcing federal approval of Alternative 6a — which is the best answer for all Greenbush towns.

Return of Greenbush rail opposed

To the Editor:

March 10, I went to a meeting of the Coastal Coalition to get more information concerning the train as I really didn't know many of the details. I learned quite a lot that I feel a lot of people in Cohasset haven't considered.

The train will have 11 crossings in Cohasset passing through 24 times, approximately every one-half hour. It will go 35 miles per hour through the Village, taking 700 feet to stop.

One of the crossings will be 40 feet behind the Osgood playground (crossing Shier St.) and near the town pool entrance. The warning horn will blow each time it goes through, I feel, disrupting the Osgood classroom and the safety of the children on the playground.

Another dangerous crossing, in my opinion, would be between the Strawberry Parfait and the Art Center. There are always children riding their bikes or walking in that area either to the barber shop, Art Center, Strawberry Parfait or Community Center.

If you walk the tracks you'll find there are wetlands on both sides almost all the way. Pesticides and insecticides will be sprayed on the tracks to keep vegetation from growing.

We will pay through our real estate taxes to maintain the train and right now Braintree pays the MBTA $936,322 a year for one train station in their town.

Our station would be at the old Cohasset skating rink on Route 3A (near Sesito's Landscaping) with a drop-off on N. Main St.

We only have one fire station in Cohasset which means if there is a fire in the Beechwood area it would take a lot longer to get there if the ambulance and fire trucks were delayed waiting for the train to pass, causing a person a life or a home.

Cohasset has a nice small town atmosphere that we all enjoy, the children ride their bikes and walk freely around our town which I think will all change in a matter of two years if the train goes through.

For more information or to sign a petition, come to a meeting April 27, at 7:30 p.m., VFW Hall, Route 3A, Scituate.

Support is appreciated

To the Editor:

This is an open letter to thank all those who sponsored me on the Good Friday walk.

This event is one of the high points of the year for me. The knowledge that my sponsors are pulling for me keeps me going, especially during those last demanding miles.

I also would like to express my thanks to the support staff who man the rest stops, stamp the cards, do the paper work, and provide care, hugs and sustenance to the walkers. Without them, we could not do this walk.

My warm and prayerful thanks to everyone involved. See you next year!

Casinos would boost state economy

To the Editor:
RE: CASINOS FOR MASS.

Gentlemen, gentlemen! What is all the fuss over Casino Entertainment Complexes (CECs) in our State?

In 1988 I was lucky enough to take a year or so off from my career; enter the Kennedy School at Harvard; and do nothing but economic research and classwork. I was also lucky enough to meet and study with several tribal managers (U.S. Indian tribes) in attendance at the Kennedy School. We studied "Tribal CECs" and ran a number of economic/social/financial models for these entertainment complexes.

The bottom line is that Casino Entertainment Complexes (CECs) are massive economic generators; they create jobs!...lots of jobs. Jobs for engineers, architects, facilities managers, computer operators, electricians, carpenters, window washers, snow plow operators, roof repair folks, elevator fix-it women, entertainment professionals, paper supply saleswomen, carpet representatives, cleaners, bartenders, waiters, cooks, bank executives, mortgage bankers, printing shops and on and on and on.

The CECs also create big (very big) tax-type payments to local cities and towns, states and federal government.

Now the question is...where does the cash come from? Simple. It comes from those folks who spend their entertainment and discretionary dollars at the Casino Entertainment Complexes (CECs). 99.9 percent of all CEC clients choose to be entertained at the CECs in lieu of a trip to the beach or a trip to France or a trip to Disney World; they choose to leave their discretionary and entertainment dollars at the CECs and not in Florida or Paris! And who knows, they might even win a buck or two while having fun.

On the crime issue: just think...if automobiles were not introduced to society, we would not have car theft or chop-shops or insurance fraud! On the 'little guy' being a big loser: what if the 'little guy' invested in stocks and bonds? Such small investments by millions of little guys adds up to billions of bucks thrown into the market; those bucks go to drive our economy forward; they also go to pay big, big salaries to a chosen few (example: millions in annual salaries to some bank presidents and corporate CEOs).

CECs give the 'little guy' a chance to make a big return on a small investment while having a little fun. Let's stop the debate and build a few of these job producing CECs before more jobs and more discretionary and entertainment dollars leave our state for Rhode Island, Paris, Maine and other Disney World-type CECs around the globe.

Fishing industry to benefit if bill passes

Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Third Plymouth District) has co-sponsored legislation to provide assistance to the struggling commercial fishing industry. The bill would provide economic revitalization of fishing port facilities; create incentives for conversion of commercially licensed fishing vessels to enable them to adapt to changing markets; establish a supplemental financing program for seafood processors; expand the marketing of Massachusetts seafood products.

"It pains me to see the region's oldest industry struggle for survival," Murray said. "This bill creates much needed capital to stimulate the fishing industry."

Senator Brian J. McDonald (D-Norfolk and Plymouth Senatorial District) added, "The fishing industry has important economic and historical roots in our community. By creating incentives, freeing-up capital and opening up new markets, this legislation can help revitalize the fishing industry."

The bill has been requested to receive emergency attention due to the seriousness of the problems. Anyone interested is encouraged to call Rep. Murray at 722-2400 and Sen. McDonald at 722-1646 with their opinions and input while the bill awaits a committee hearing.

Home appliances blown out in power surge

About 3,390 customers were without power following a truck/pole accident on Rte. 3A in Scituate near the Cohasset town line Friday afternoon (April 15), Ruth Stetson, spokesperson for Eastern Edison said.

The resulting power surge blew out VCRs, computers and microwaves not connected to surge protectors in the Beechwood area, police said.

Sgt. Robert Jackson said the station received at least a dozen calls from angry residents wondering about what recourse they have to cover the damage.

Stetson said Eastern Edison is not liable for the damage because it was not responsible for the surge. Edison recommends those affected contact their homeowner's insurance company, she said.

She explained the impact of the collision broke the pole 15-feet off the ground causing a 13,800 volt distribution wire to make contact with a 4,000 volt wire causing the surge.

"Fortunately that scenario happens very rarely," she said.

Most customers had power back within 40 minutes once Edison switched them to other lines. But about 190 customers were without power until 8:30 p.m.

The driver of the truck, Carl Schirmer, 45 of Marshfield, was injured in the accident and flown by helicopter to Massachusetts General Hospital. He was still in the hospital Tuesday. The truck he was driving is owned by F. Riley Construction of Hingham, Scituate police said. The accident is still under investigation.

An eye witness said a maroon car pulled out from Henry Turner Bailey Road in front of the truck which then swerved and careened into the pole.

Part of C.J.C. Highway was closed following the accident. Cohasset police helped detour through traffic at Beechwood St.

"Even the dog officer stuck around to help," Jackson said.

Graffiti surfaces on Beacon Rock

The vandalizing of a town landmark for the second time in 18 months has one selectman calling for tougher penalties to offenders.

The town could spend up to $700 to clean a large spill of Kelly green and tan paint off Beacon Rock which is visible from Border Street.

Newly elected Selectman Peter J. Pratt thinks the town should send a strong message by seeing that graffiti artists face more serious criminal penalties. He suggested selectmen consult with police about the matter.

The Government Island Study Committee reported the graffiti to selectmen last week. The committee also said it would like to discuss revitalizing the entire Beacon Rock area with the board.

Government Island, which is eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places, includes Beacon Rock, the Lightkeepers Residence, the templates, and Minot's Light Replica.

Beacon Rock, from which messages were sent to the lighthouse using the semaphore system, needs attention. Shards of broken glass are strewn about the rock which attracts graffiti vandals.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said stiffer penalties aren't the answer because proving who is involved is difficult. He said the town should try to prevent graffiti.

"Most is not vicious, just malicious," he said.

Private donations paid for the last clean up of graffiti from Beacon Rock.

Gifts are accepted

Last week selectmen accepted the offer of repairing & painting and lettering of the Harbormaster's boat by the Cohasset Collision Center and Hassan Wood Carving & Sign Company at their board meeting Monday.

Harbormaster Shawn Kelly said paint alone for the boat, which was damaged recently during cleaning, runs $160.

The board also accepted the offer of providing landscaping for an island near the north end of the Sandy Beach parking lot. Residents Ron Rawson and Mary Hagerty want to pay for landscaping the triangle. Selectmen said the conservation commission would have to okay the plans which include raising the bed using rock, sand and beach stone to give the appearance of dunes. Plant materials proposed include dune grass, beach grass, sea holly, beach plum and beach rose.

Towns put heads together, share recycling schemes

By Lorraine M.K. Palmer
Mariner correspondent

Over the past few years, recycling committee members from various towns have been spying on each other's successes.

Their goal? Gaining new ideas about how to make their town's recycling programs more effective.

Marshfield scouted out Scituate's shop for reusable items to come up with the idea for "The Emporium." Scituate then came forward and admitted they scouted out Cohasset's "Boutique," which it turns out got its inspiration from way out in Sturbridge.

Now, thanks to the first Southeastern Massachusetts Recycling Committee Conference held Wednesday, April 6 at Rockland Town Hall, these spies have come out of the cold. The purpose of last week's conference was for town recycling committee members to share their experiences — both successes and failures — with other towns.

The idea originated with Jack Carson of the Rockland Recycling Committee and Marilyn Dunn of the Marshfield Recycling Committee. They decided an exchange of ideas between all the communities would be a great way of helping one another make recycling a success for all involved.

Representatives from Cohasset, Duxbury, Halifax, Hanson, Marshfield, Pembroke, Rockland, Scituate and Whitman made presentations of their town's recycling history, current efforts and future goals.

Also present was Joseph J. Lambert, a recycling regional planner at the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), who said his agency is dedicated to making recycling work in the communities and suggested the possibility of a regional transfer station. The DEP is looking for an appropriate site.

Among the towns represented, the most successful of them have a strong core of volunteers and an enthusiastic recycling community.

Halifax is a prime example. They call their recycling system the "bag and tag" system. Residents are charged $1 dollar for each filled bag. The money goes to offsetting contractor costs.

"We don't care about making money, we care about recycling," said Beverly Smith.

Marshfield is also successful with their curbside recycling program, with 60 percent of residents participating.

The emphasis in a lot of the towns is on educating the people about recycling, what it means and how it can save the town money by having less waste stream to be hauled off.

Marshfield has focused on educating the children in the schools who in turn convince their parents to recycle.

In Halifax they have a "Kids for Saving Earth" chapter which is part of a national organization that educates kids about the environment with special projects they participate in.

Pembroke is incorporating a four-week course run by the DEP called Recycle Mania next year for fourth- and fifth- graders in hopes of attracting more parent volunteers.

Another way towns are reducing their waste streams is by setting up shops where people can bring items that are of no use to them, but may be useful to somebody else.

Arthur Lehr from Cohasset says that "The Boutique" does very well.

"Most everybody goes in there. It's amazing what people take out," he said.

Marshfield's "Emporium" is also successful.

"The merchandise moves through there regularly. Nothing stays there long. It really serves to divert that small part of our waste stream," said one Marshfield committee member.

In the future, Marshfield hopes to have a place to keep reusable furniture. A beautiful green velvet couch was seen going through the roll off that someone else could have used.

Halifax, Pembroke and Scituate also have these kinds of shops.

Some of the other towns recycling programs are not as successful as others because of not enough volunteers and an apathetic recycling community.

Siobhan Ohmart from Hanson finds getting people to recycle in her town is very frustrating. She attributed the situation to apathy and few volunteers.

"The energy and continuity is not there," she said.

Listening to her fellow recycling advocates, she said she hopes their energy will spread to Hanson.

Rockland, however, has a different reason than apathy hindering recycling efforts. They have a drop-off center and many people in town want curbside recycling. However, the Board of Health doesn't think that would be in the best interest of the landfill.

Carson said his future goal for Rockland recycling is a recycling committee made up of school students.

"Kids see things we don't," he said.

He would also like to see students get school credit for helping out at the drop-off center.

Many other ideas about recycling, where the markets are for certain recycle items, what is being recycled and how to make it easier and less costly, were shared.

Walter Tonaszuck, the public works administer for Duxbury, suggested that someday all the communities get together and hire one contractor to haul everything. That way, he said, they might be able to work out a deal where it wouldn't be as expensive.

"It's good that people know each other," he said of the successful conference.

"Everybody is learning something," said Carson. He said he hopes now that everybody has come together that they will meet at least four times a year to share ideas.

"No single one town can pull this off. Groups need to get together. We needed to hear each other to come to this conclusion," he said.

"I believe in numbers you can make this work," said Liz McDonald of Marshfield.

McDonald said it so very fortunate that so many groups were able to attend.

Tag sale license okay'ed

Residents of the Harborview apartments, 60 Elm St., obtained approval last week to conduct a one-day tag sale where they will sell second-hand items. Selectmen authorized issuing the group a Junk Dealer's license at their board meeting this week.

Young Womanhood Award

Ashley Heilner, a Cohasset High School senior, was presented with the Young Womanhood Recognition Award by Bishop Bill Thurston, leader of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at a program held in her honor at the chapel in Hingham.

The award and its accompanying gold medallion represent six years of dedicated effort in following high moral standards, leadership training, service and the development of talents. Earned by only a few this award is the equivalent of the Eagle Award in scouting. The program is one used by Mormon churches throughout the world.

Remarks by Ashley's mother, Janice Heilner, her sister Brooke and the Young Women president, Diane Mangum, emphasized Ashley's ability to set goals and follow through.

Ashley works presently part-time at the GAP. Her immediate plans are to enter Brigham Young University in the fall with an eye towards business.

Cohasseter to serve with Peace Corps in Gabon

Wendy Morgenstern of Cohasset is leaving in April to begin a two year stint with the Peace Corps. Morgenstern's destination is Gabon, Central Africa, where she will work as a Rural Fish Culture Extension Agent.

"I will assist the Gobonese in developing the aquaculture potential of Gabon," Morgenstern explains. Morgenstern's previous experience includes worked for an experimental fish hatchery at Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science in Miami, Florida.

Morgenstern graduated in 1993 from University of Miami with a bachelors degree in Marine Science Affairs. She decided to join the Peace Corps because she "wants to promote international understanding, help the community accomplish their goals, get field work experience, become involved in another culture and successfully communicate in a foreign language."

In the concept of fish farming, the world possesses a largely unexploited and ecologically-sound potential for the production of low cost, protein rich food. By the end of the century, fish farming could provide animal protein equivalent to more than half of the present world catch — all of it for human consumption.

Peace Corps Volunteers are working to overcome the general unfamiliarity with fish farming. As well as instructing the people in good pond management, stocking, and harvesting practices, they are teaching people how to construct fish ponds and showing them how to maintain existing ones.

Currently, about 6,300 volunteers from all over the United States serve in 90 developing countries. During their two years of service, Peace Corps volunteers receive a living allowance, paid travel and training, complete medical care and a post-readjustment allowance of $5,400 ($200 per month served). Volunteers must be 18 years old (there is no upper age limit), single or married, but applicants with dependent children are rarely accepted. They must be U.S. citizens and have either a college degree or 3 to 5 years' experience in a needed skill area.

For more information on the Peace Corps, please call 1-800-648-8052 X642 or write to Peace Corps, 10 Causeway St., Rm. 450, Box 642, Boston, MA 02222.

Wanted: history buffs with a sense of humor

Hingham's Militia hits the road again on Patriot's Day and is looking for recruits. The Militia also known as "The First Company of Foot, Second Suffolk Regiment 1771" was formed 20 years ago, just in time for the celebrations for the American Revolution's Bicentennial and have been parading all over Massachusetts ever since.

This year's warm up celebration was on Lincoln's Day, Feb. 5 in Hingham, in honor of the births of both President Abraham Lincoln and Major General Benjamin Lincoln who was commander of the regiment from 1772 to 1775. The latter is widely regarded Hingham's most historic resident. As General Washington's Second in Command, it was Benjamin Lincoln who accepted the formal surrender of British forces at Yorktown in 1781.

The Militia is a non-profit, civic, patriotic organization open to persons who have an interest in Hingham's colonial history and desire to participate in parades, ceremonies, "living" history events and educational activities. As always fees received by the Militia for participating in out-of-town events will be used to support local civic organizations and charities, including two food pantries, the Visiting Nurses Association, the Special Olympics and the Hingham 4th of July Parade Committee. According to Events Coordinator Sergeant Fred Hills, the Militia is also donating funds to a Duxbury camp for inner-city kids. He emphasized the Militia's ongoing efforts to give back to the community it represents.

As for requirements for enlistment, Adjutant John Mattos explains, the Militia is open men, women and children 10 years and older, and is particularly in need of an accomplished fife player. In most cases the uniforms, with the exception of the hats, are provided and musket carrying Militia men must obtain a Fire Arms Identification Card from the Police Station. The Militia is scheduled for 14 events this year and according to Mattos, the Militia requires at least 20 members for a parade.

All of the Militia's activities are expertly choreographed by Sergeant Major Jim Jamieson who, by the way, moonlights with a British Militia troop known as the King's First Foot Guard where he is only a Private. Hill stated that when these two groups meet, the Militia gets to do a little Amateur theatrics and the crowds really applaud. For Militia-Woman, Sue Peterson and her son Ken, it's a real family affair and Mattos hopes that Hingham children and their parents will get involved.

"If you're into history and a bit of a ham-bone, it's a lot of fun." Mattos added. Anyone interested should get in touch with Adjutant John Mattos at (617-749-5402).

Alzheimer's support group

Wednesday April 27 at 7:30 p.m. at Thaxter Community Center, 30 Thaxter St., Hingham, Duncan MacEachern, director of the Long Term Care Office in Taunton, will speak on Medicaid and its impact on financial planning for nursing home care.

Mr. MacEachern and his staff will provide thorough explanations of all facets of Medicaid including qualifying requirements for Medicaid eligibility, how application is made, required financial records, countable and non-countable assets, and how Medicaid eligibility changes after a patient has been in a nursing home. It is Mr. MacEachern's office that processes all Medicaid applications for the South Shore area.

There will be time for questions after the presentation and application forms will be available.

The meeting is open to anyone wanting to learn more about the topic. For information call 749-5417.

Shipbuilders banquet set

The annual banquet for all former Quincy and Hingham shipbuilders will be held Thursday April 28 at the Sons of Italy Hall, Rte. 123, Rockland. Call 871-3017 for information.

Talking with teens is focus

South Shore Hospital, in conjunction with the South Shore Coalition of Independent Therapists, is sponsoring a free seminar to help participants improve communication with young adults. The emphasis of the seminar will be what makes teenagers tick and how to talk with them clearly, directly, openly and with respect.

"Talking with Teens," led by clinical social worker Selma Ingber of Cohasset, will be from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Monday April 25 at South Shore Hospital, 55 Fogg Rd., So. Weymouth in the Emerson conference room.

For information and registration call the hospital's education and training department at 340-8349.

'Affirming Diversity'

There will be a public forum in the continuing "Affirming Diversity" series at Old Ship Parish House, 107 Main St., Hingham at 7 p.m. Sunday May 1.

The forum will feature "A Family Outing," a documentary video by Joanne Berman. It is the story of a family's response to the coming out of a family member. Three of the film participants, Lori Bertram and her parents, will be present for the discussion following the video.

The forum is sponsored by the Welcoming Congregation Committee of Old Ship Church, a free church sheltering persons of diverse points of view.

There is a suggested donation of $5.

For information call Elizabeth Torrey a 9-0543.

Alpha Zeta chapter of DKG

Dr. Josephine Loughnane was hostess of the annual spring tea for the Alpha Zeta chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International, an honorary society of key women educators.

Thirty-five members gathered in Dr. Loughnane's Hull home Sunday April 10. President Mary Ellen Curtis of Weymouth introduced former state president Donna Brown, a teacher at Silver Lake Regional High School. Ms. Brown spoke to members about a recent visit by an exchange group from Latvia.

Former past chapter presidents Helen Forsgard of Scituate and Ethel Page of Marshfield poured.

The next Alpha Zeta event will be a trip with the Kappa chapter to the Mayan exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts in May.

AARP to meet

The American Association of Retired Persons, South Shore Chapter #1139, will meet at 1:30 p.m. Thursday April 28 at the Sons of Italy Hall, Rte. 3A, Hingham.

After a short business meeting, Michael LaPensee, outreach manager for NYNEX Center for Individuals with Disabilities and Carolyn McKeon, regional director of public affairs for NYNEX, will discuss services offered by the telephone company and answer questions.

Refreshments will be served. Any member of the National AARP or NRTA may join a chapter and is welcome at the meeting.

Community gardners meet

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will meet at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday April 26 at St. Stephen's Parish. Coffee will be served at 9 a.m.

"Perennials for the Shade," will be the topic. Leo Blanchette, a designer, owner of a nursery specializing in unusual perennials. A writer for "Better Homes and Gardens," he will share information about exciting new cultivars as well as time-tested shade lovers.

Newcomers plan tag sale

The Scituate Cohasset Newcomers Club will have a tag sale from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday May 14 at the Cohasset Community Center, 3 North Main St.

Money raised from this sale will be donated to Scituate and Cohasset community projects.

Newcomers membership information will be available at the sale.

Travelers to meet

The South Shore Travelers Club will meet from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday April 24 at the Hingham Public Library.

Ardys Peterson of Bare Cove Travel will present a free slide presentation of an African Safari.

Call 749-7757 for information.

"Pierson to Person"

Host Wigmore Pierson's guest Thursday April 21 will be Dr. David Spadafora, president of Lake Forest College in Lake Forest, Ill. The state of higher education today, both public and private, soaring tuition costs, changing curriculum trends, multiculturalism and other concerns in the academic world will be discussed.

Dr. Spadafora is a graduate of Williams College and holds a Ph.D from Yale University. Before becoming president of Lake Forest, he was a professor of history and a dean at Yale.

"Pierson to Person" is broadcast live from 8 to 9 p.m. each Thursday from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham and Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset. The public is invited to be part of the studio audience. Those planning to attend should be at the studio on Gannett Road by 7:30 p.m.

For information call Robert Belliveau at 545-2500.

Spend a day in school

The faculty Senate of Cohasset High School has invited citizens of Cohasset to participate in the "A Day with an Educator" program, which will take place April 28. Instead of basing their opinions upon the highly generalized accounts in Boston newspapers and the even more highly generalized articles in national magazines, the citizens of Cohasset will be afforded the opportunity to view the specifics of education at Cohasset High School.

The Faculty Senate feels there is no better way to gain a clear understanding of what CHS education in the middle of a new decade is all about than to experience the school environment first-hand. That is what "A Day with an Educator" is all about - bringing Cohasset citizens into the school April 28 and having them experience the real-life, everyday educational environment.

The program will allow individuals from the community to experience an entire school day with a member of the CHS staff. They will share in all of the activities the staff member performs. In the case of a classroom teacher, for example, the participant will be with the cooperating teacher while he or she teaches class, does lunch or corridor duty, supervises study hall, corrects homework or tests, attends meetings, covers detention, and performs extra-duty assignments .

Those citizens spending "A Day with an Educator" will choose the discipline or area in which they wish to participate; however, because of scheduling problems, they will not be able to choose a specific staff member to visit. This will be done via a lottery system. For more information about this unique program call the high school at 383-6100.

Workshop in homeopathy

Homeopathic educator and consultant Jane Cicchetti, will teach an introductory workshop in acute care homeopathy Saturday and Sunday May 21 and 22.

Cicchetti will discuss the history and principles of the two hundred year old healing system. Participants will learn how to use 14 acute care remedies for treatment of self and others. Health issues to be covered include strains, sprains, wounds, headaches, sunburn, joint injuries, flus, colds and more.

Call John Loupos for information and to register at 383-6822.

Register for boys' night out

The Cohasset Community Center is taking registrations for "Boys Night Out," an evening of bowling, obstacle course, gymnastics and pizza making.

Boys Night Out for ages 5 through 11 will be from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m. Friday May 13.

Pre-registration is required.

Webelo: First Place, David DeVito; Second Place, Matt Ogrodnik; Third Place, David Krueger.

Webelo II: First Place, Brian Krupczak; Second Place, Andrew Dennis; Third Place, Michael Sanchez.

The winner overall is Brian Krupczak.

The Cub Scouts will be crossing over to their next rank on the May 3 Pack Meeting at the Deer Hill School, 7 to 8 p.m.

Walk for hunger

The 25th Anniversary Walk for Hunger is set for Sunday May 1. The walk supports 464 food pantries, soup kitchens and homeless shelter feeding programs in 120 communities in the state. the Cohasset Food Pantry benefits directly from the walk.

Registration for the walk is from 7 to 9 a.m. Sunday May 1 at the Boston Common near Tremont Street. The MBTA is offering all walkers a free ride to the walk between 6 and 9 a.m. on any subway, bus or commuter train. Walkers need only show their Walk for Hunger registration form to any T operator or collector. For walkers who choose to walk fewer than 20 miles, free bus service is available from various points along the route back to Boston Common.

Anyone interested in walking or volunteering at the walk should call Project Bread at 723-5000.

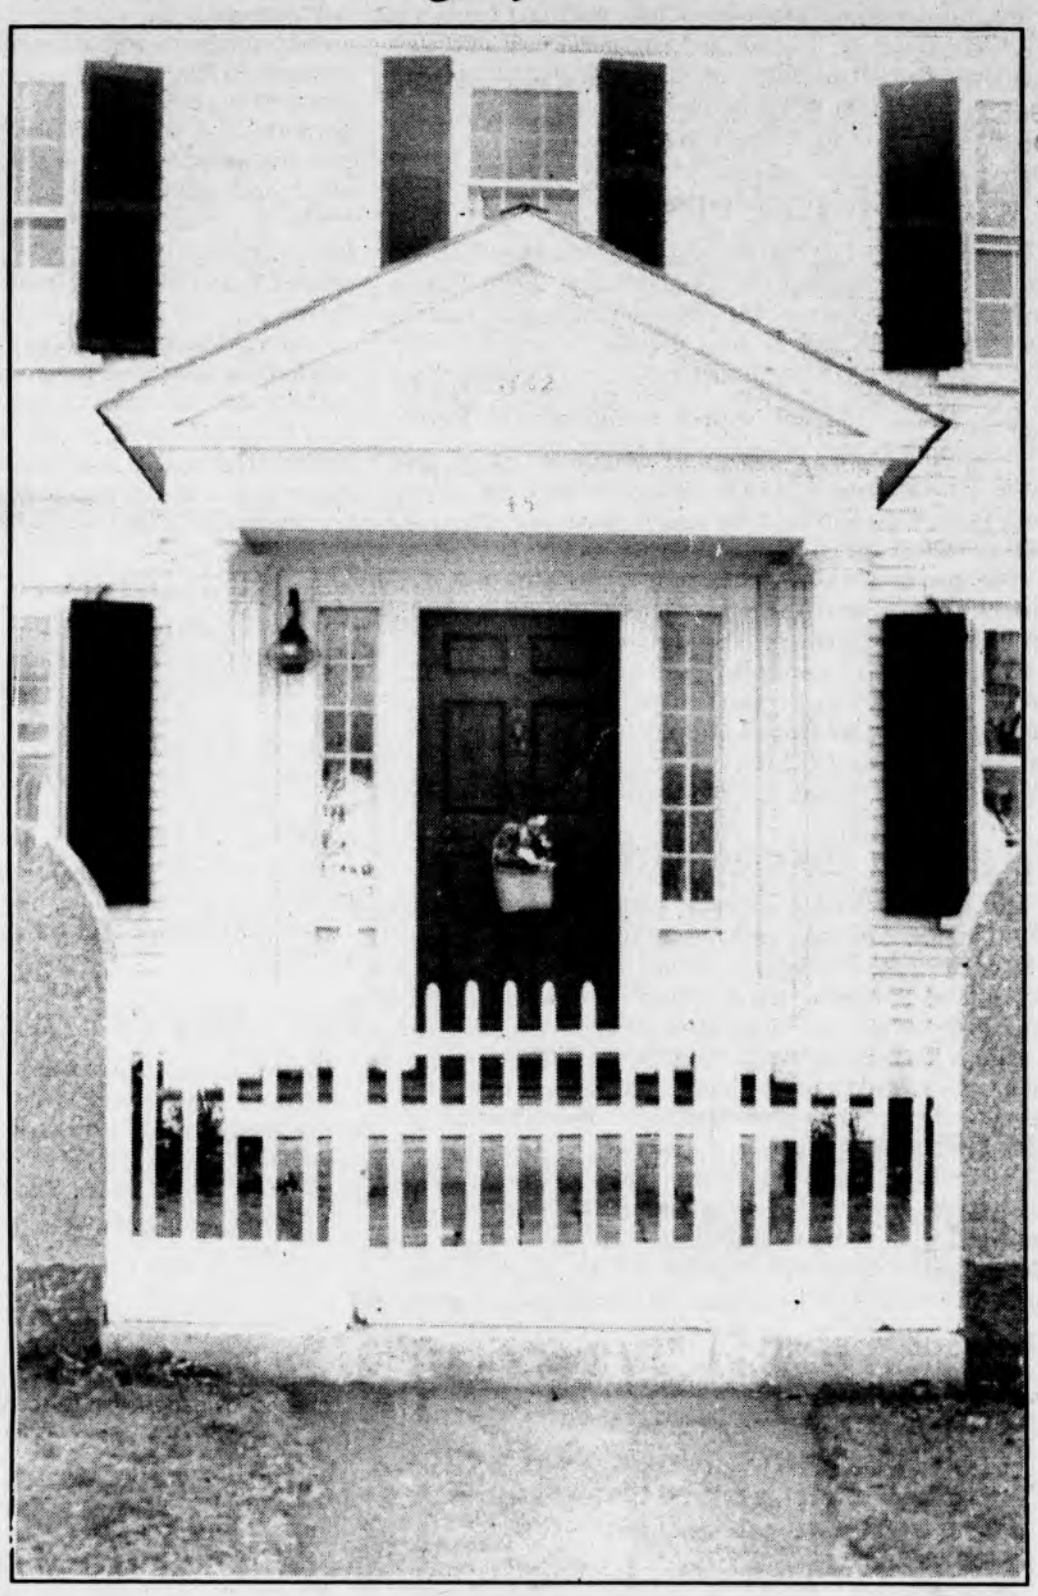
The Grand Tour — with Ginger Ferenz, 383-2863



The home of Carol and John Martin at 45 North Main Street has a basket full of spring flowers greeting visitors to their front door. The white broomstick fence and gate with two granite pillars frames the lovely antique colonial doorway and the rich dark brown door is a lovely complement to the pink roses and daisies in the basket.

Designers in show

Kathleen Fox of The Designing Woman, Black Rock Rd., is participating in the Junior League of Boston's 1994 Decorators' Show House and Garden Tour. The 24th annual Show House is "Millbrook," the former Dutton Estate , 605 Elm St., Rte. 27 in Walpole. The tour opens May 3.

The 1994 Show House features more than 40 decorated areas in addition to landscaped gardens.

Money raised from the tour add to the continued assistance of the more than 25 community service, family and educational projects supported by the Junior League of Boston.

Fire report for March

In his March status report to selectmen, Fire Chief Roger W. Lincoln said there were five structure fires and two brush fires during the month. The fire department responded to three motor vehicle accidents and one motor vehicle fire; went on 47 medical runs, conducted 10 investigations; provided assistance four times; and performed 45 inspections. He noted that the new Panasonic telephone system went into service. The plywood control board necessary for mounting of the equipment was installed by on-duty firefighters, Lincoln said. The same group of firefighters also installed the control board necessary for the future E-911 system.

Firefighters also received the third in a series of three Hepatitis-B vaccinations.

Lincoln also remembered a fellow firefighter.

"On March 27, retired Firefighter Walter C. Wheelwright, Jr. passed away suddenly," Lincoln said. "Firefighter Wheelwright served with honor and distinction for 37 years, first as a call firefighter and then as a permanent firefighter, retiring in 1974."

Permits required?

The state Highway Department wants to be informed of any town activity that "abuts or impacts the state highway" for which the selectmen issue permits. These activities include carnivals, parades, road races, flea markets and fairs.

These activities can cause increased traffic, parking along state highways, traffic congestion and changed traffic patterns. When an application is made to the selectmen for any of these activities, the board should instruct the applicant to contact the District Permit Engineer for a permit from the state highway department.

In a March 29 letter, district highway director Bernard McCourt explained, "This permit will address the applicants' responsibility for maintaining traffic flow and public safety within the state highway layout."

Choral Art concert

Cohasset's Rachel McElroy, a South Shore Conservatory voice student, along with other SSC students, will join the Choral Art Society in song as they perform on Sunday, May 1, 3 p.m., at the First Parish Church in Duxbury.

Under the direction of SSC voice instructor Sarah Moran Smith, the voice students will perform five centuries of animal songs, from amusing onomatopoetic imitations to pastoral depictions.

The talented young singers will perform pieces from Josquin, diLasso, Brahms, Hindemith, Handel, Delson, Pinkham and Copland.

The Choral Art Society, under the direction of Joseph F. Horning III, will be presenting choruses from American operas and musicals which includes selections from "Porgy and Bess," "The Tenderland," "The Music Man" and "Brigadoon."

Admission is $8 for the general public and $5 for students and seniors. Tickets are available at the door or ahead of time by calling 545-6449 in Scituate, 837-1426 in Marshfield or 934-5110 in Duxbury.

Summer art planned

The Children's Summer Creativity Workshops are accepting registration for the summer outdoor art program in Hingham.

This summer, children ages 5-8 will be able to enjoy "The Young Artist Sees Nature." This program has been developed to encourage boys and girls who enjoy the creative process to gain more artistic skills through observations of nature. Ages 9-14 will also work with nature in the garden through weekly drawing, painting and sculpture to gain more visual awareness.

Two new series this summer will be "Folk Arts of Mexico" and "Papier Maché" for ages 9-14. Both sessions are designed for those who enjoy trying new creative experiences and working with a wide range of art materials.

For information call Lynn Rizzotto at 749-2453.

All Paws Rescue to meet

The next meeting of All Paws Rescue will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday May 10 at the Days Inn in Rockland. Members and friends are welcome.

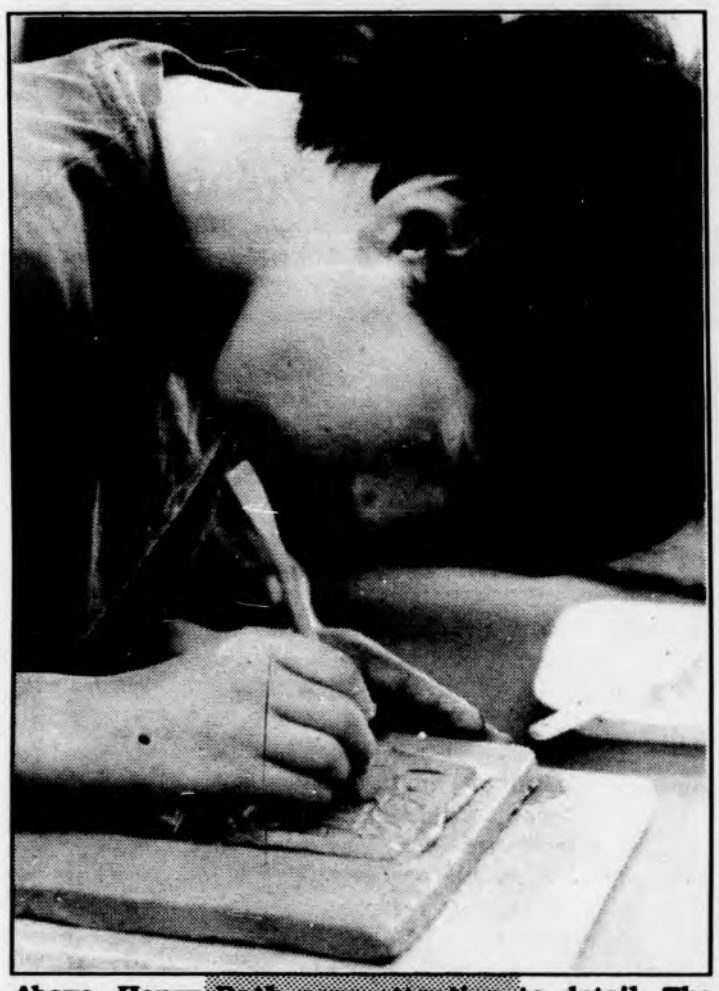
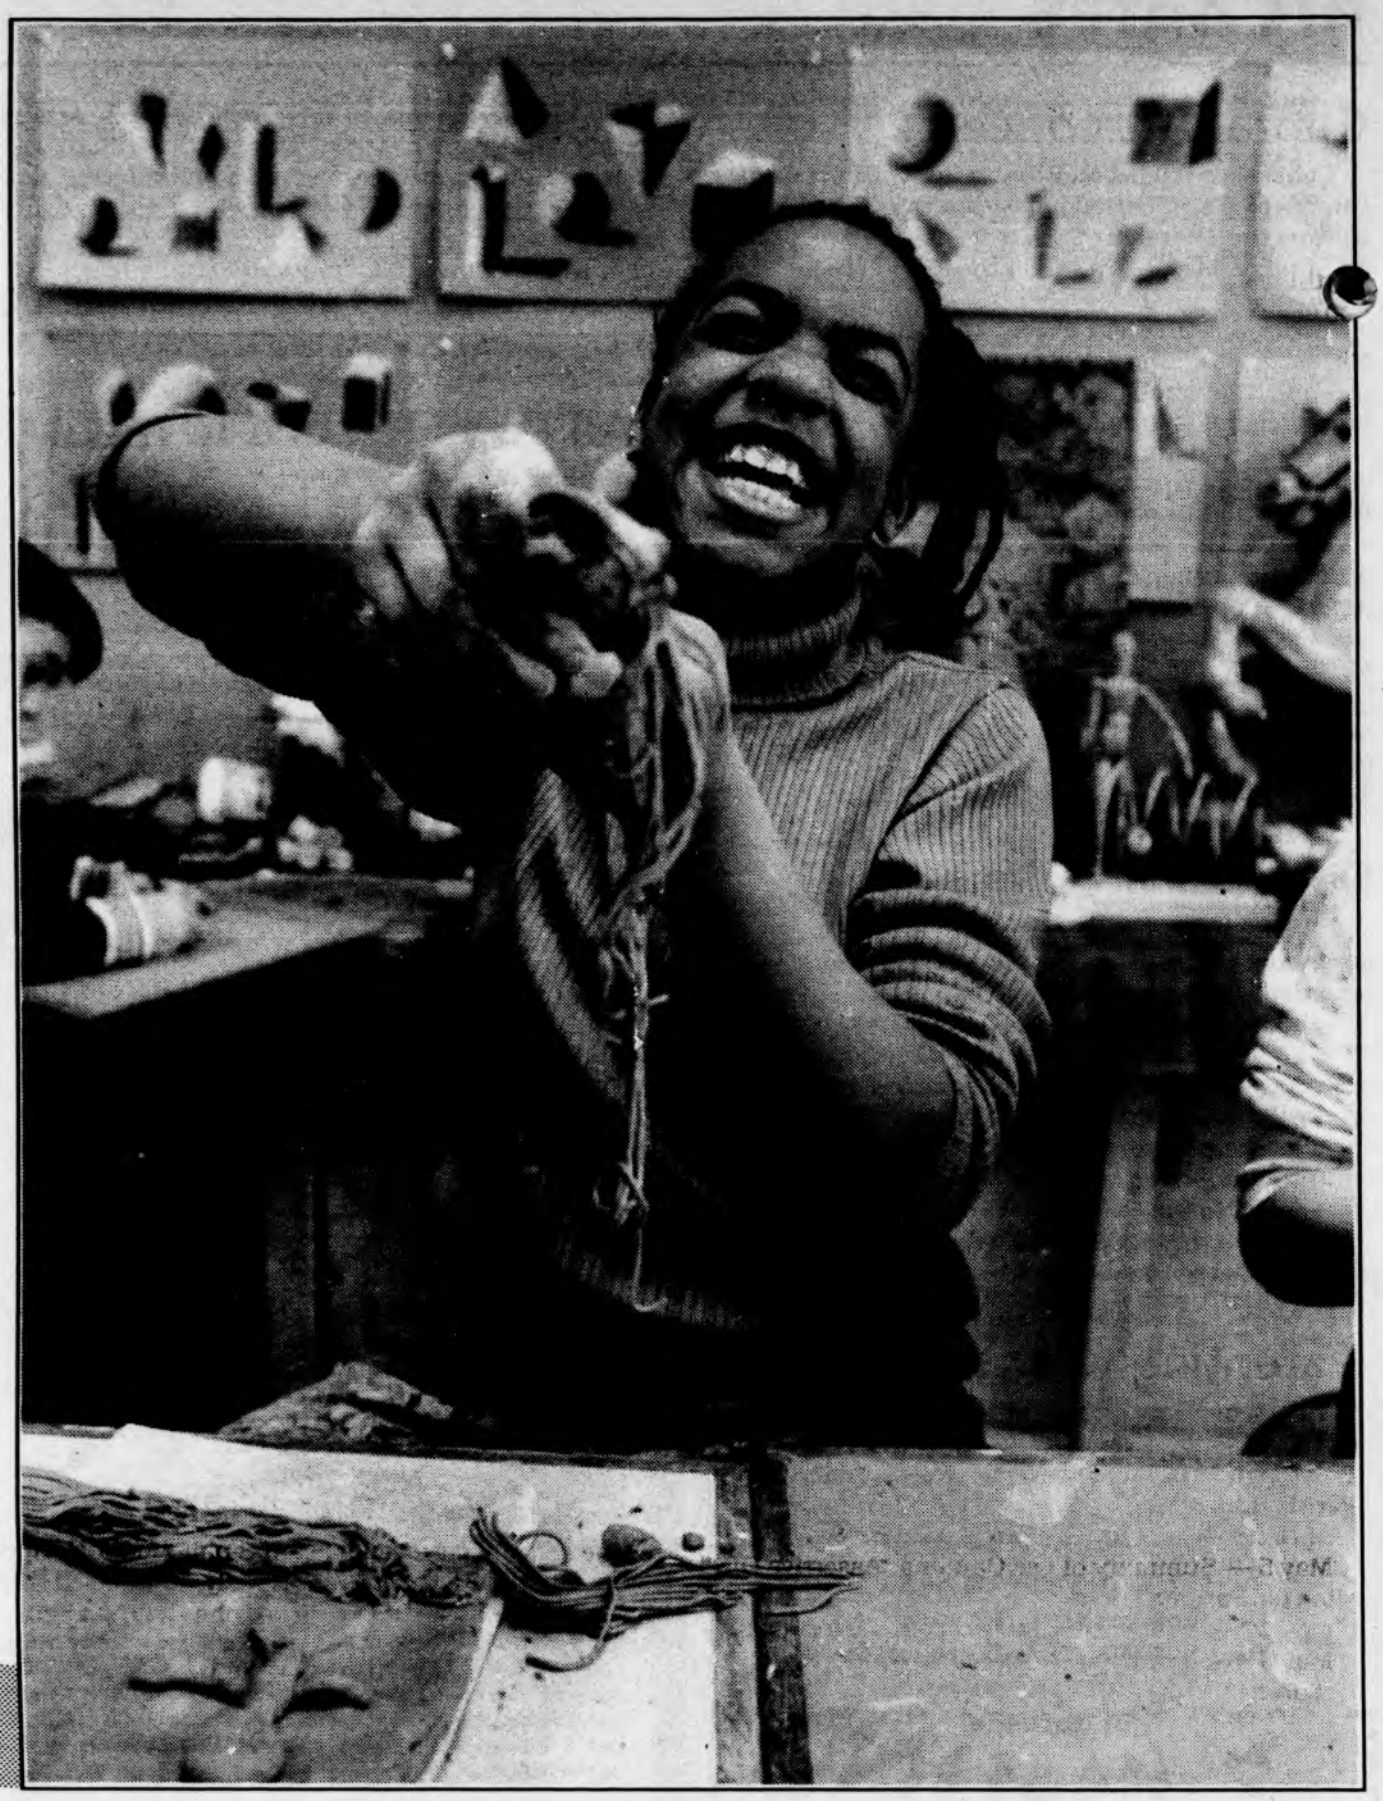
Clay mural takes shape at Deer Hill

Syma is Artist-in-Residence

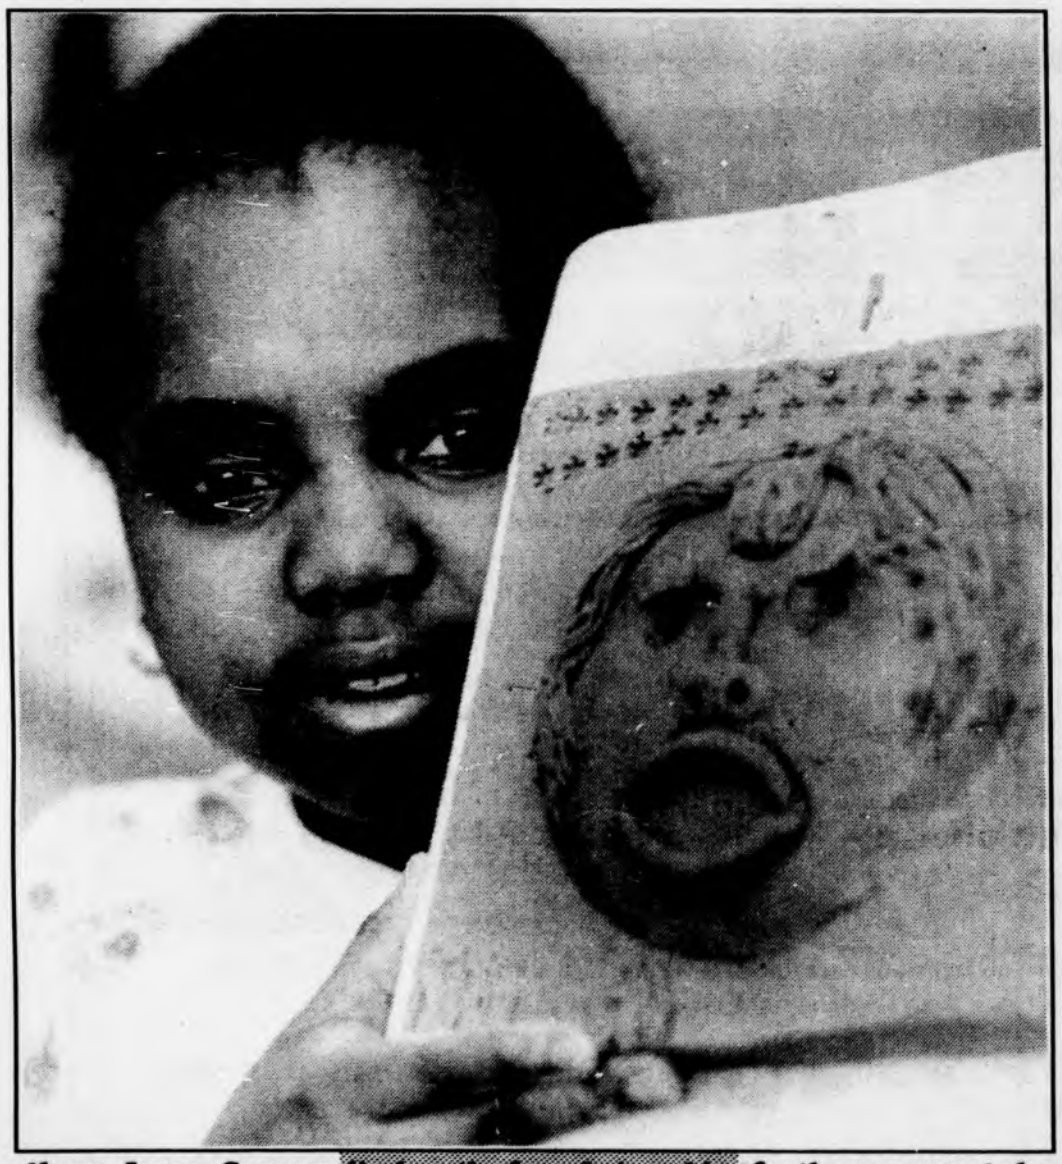
Staff photos/Alan Chapman



Above, Henry Roth pays attention to detail. The Artist-in-Residence program was made possible through a combined effort of funding sources including the Deer Hill PSO, Cohasset Local Lottery Council, the Massachusetts Cultural Council, and an in-house fund-raising effort.



At right, Tyara Martin squeezes out more clay hair. The culmination of this clay project will be a grand unveiling in conjunction with Deer Hill's annual end of the year art show, 'Favorites 1994' next month.



Above, Joanea Spencer displays the face she's making for the permanent clay installation to be exhibited at the school. All Deer Hill students will have a hands-on experience in producing a portion of the mural.

Artist-in-Residence, Syma, works with Amanda Watts on her square. The town will be able to see the finished mural May 11 at Deer Hill's 'Favorites 1994' art show.

National Latin exam winners announced

Cohasset High School has announced the winners of this year's National Latin Examination. Over 80,000 students took the exam. James O'Sullivan and Luke Caldwell earned special certificates in the introduction to Latin exam. Allison DeLorenzo won a cum laude certificate in Latin I. In Latin II, Kathleen Fitzsimmons won a cum laude and Eli Kahn won a silver maxima cum laude medal. Ryan Sawchuck won a cum laude certificate in Latin poetry, level III.

Vacation change sought

The school committee is seeking public input on proposed changes to the school calendar. At its March 24 meeting, the Cohasset school committee discussed the 1994/95 school calendar and the possibility of making changes in next year's vacation schedule.

These changes would involve eliminating February and April vacations and substituting one week in March. The schedule would result in a net gain of three school days, setting the last day of school for June 14. These changes would allow more continuity of instructional time and would give the system some flexibility of scheduling in the event of an unusually high number of snow days next year, the school committee said.

Comments should be directed prior to the committee's April 25 meeting to Supt. Stephen Hart (383-6111), School Committee Chairman Nancy Sandell (383-0486); or PSO president Maureen Jerz (383-6592).

Parenting workshops set

The elementary school adjustment counselors are offering a series of four parenting workshops from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Thursdays in the "living room" at First Parish House, Main St.

April 28 — Looking at Your Parenting Style

May 5 — Summary of Lee Canter's "Assertive Discipline for Parents"

May 12 — Self-esteem...What Can a Parent Do?

May 19 — Teaching Responsibility and Respect to Children

The workshops are open to any Cohassset parent and will be led by Ed Leonard and Frank Fitzgerald who have extensive experience consulting with parents. The success and appeal of the workshops offered earlier in the year has prompted this four-part series that will include parts of Canter's "Assertive Discipline" as well as information from the "STEP Parenting" and "How to Talk so Children Will Listen (And Listen so Children Will Talk)" programs.

Even if you attended the earlier workshops, the series will offer much more as well as a refresher. Attend any or all of the dates. Call Ed or Frank at 383-6115 or 383-6117 for information.

Early dismissal news

Thursday, April 14, was an Early Release Day for the students at the Joseph Osgood and Deer Hill Schools. The teachers at both schools used this time to begin the placement process for the next school year. The staff meets by grade level to assess each student's needs and abilities, then to develop heterogeneous homeroom classes for the following year.

Additionally, parents have received a placement letter along with forms to provide any input they feel would be helpful in this process. Several other meetings and discussion are held before the final placement decisions are made by mid-June.

Watch this space for further updates.

Deer Hill parents to meet

The PSO will sponsor a meeting for Deer Hill parents at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday April 27 in the school cafeteria.

Deer Hill Principal, Mr. Ekberg, will be available to respond to ideas raised at the March 7 parents meeting and answer possible questions regarding the restructuring of grades 4, 5 and 6 necessitated by the large class size of the incoming 5th grade.

These changes will be outlined in a letter sent to parents prior this week.

Board meeting changed

The school board will meet at 8 p.m., Monday April 25 instead of April 28 as previously announced. The board meets in the classroom at Cohasset High School next to the Supt. Stephen Hart's office. For more information, please call 383-6111.

What You Should Know About Hearing Aids

Recently, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) took steps to eliminate unrealistic and occasionally false promises made by some hearing aid manufacturers.

The FDA now requires clinical proof of all claims that relate to the elimination of background noise and the enhancement of hearing ability. Additionally, the FDA now suggests that all hearing aid clients receive a complete hearing evaluation in order to benefit fully from the use of a hearing aid.

At the Braintree Hospital Rehabilitation Network Audiology Division our Licensed audiologists are specifically trained to provide:

- comprehensive hearing evaluations that use the latest and best in diagnostic technology
- customized hearing aid fittings and follow-up services that ensure clients will benefit fully from their hearing aids
- 30-day home trial on all models
- senior citizen discounts

If you have questions about your hearing or your hearing aid, call us, we have a long-standing reputation of excellence.

Offseason work is key to softball's future

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

They're off to an 0-5 start and the faster pitchers of the South Shore League aren't losing sleep at night going over in their mind how to deal with the batters the following day.

But when all is said and done and the softball season is history for another year, Skippers' head coach Mike Gill believes he'll have some positives to look back on.

"I think they'll be competitive in a lot of games," said Gill of his young Cohasset squad. "As long as they stay competitive, they'll have fun."

Despite its blank in the win column, Gill believes the team's best years are in front of it. There are only four seniors on the roster. The rest of the lineup includes freshmen and sophomore, giving Cohasset a light at the end of the SSL tunnel.

Gill, though, doesn't believe the team is going to automatically improve its standing in the league based solely on the players moving up in class over the next few years. He sees work that needs to be done, much of it before the softball season begins to grind into gear.

"We have some good young talent, but we need some kids to work hard in the offseason," Gill said. "If they're going to be good in softball they have to work on their hitting and pitching as well. There are leagues in the offseason."

The overall defense has been Cohasset's strong point so far and makes up much of Gill's practice sessions with the team. The squad's batting has yet to produce runs on a consistent basis, but still has managed to keep the majority of its games fairly close. Cohasset lost to Abington by just one and only four to East Bridgewater.

Norton, one of the top-two teams in the league along with Carver, stymied the Skippers with arguably the best pitcher in the SSL to the tune of 7-0. The loss wasn't all that disappointing to Gill, who called the defeat "a well-played game," on Cohasset's part.

Sophomore catcher Amy Terrio has stood out as the Skippers' best hitter and Kathleen Fitzsimmons' play at first baseman has anchored the infield.

On the mound, freshman Katie Campbell is the player Gill envisions becoming a force in the league in the coming years, provided she puts the work in before the season starts.

That's exactly what he wants to see from everyone.

Driscoll used local hills to tackle 'Heartbreak'

brother and wife, Sam and Tricia Morse, the week leading up to Monday's race, won the women's title for the fifth year in a row and lowered her own world record from 1:34:50 to 1:34:22 in the process.

The race also marked another big payday for Driscoll. She collected $9,000 for first place, $10,000 for a new world record and $7,500 more for breaking her own existing course record. Add that to the $103,500 Driscoll had already earned in the race the last four years and her Boston wins have been as profitable as they've been prestigious.

And although the money is nice, it's not Driscoll's main incentive for victory when she is on the starting line in Hopkinton. "For me, I just want my name on the record," she said. "The money is a nice bonus."

With its hilly terrain and smooth, paved paths, Driscoll found Wampatuck the ideal location for her 80-90 miles per week of training. "You've always got an incline and that's what Boston's like."

Being from the mid-west, Driscoll found Cohasset and its proximity to the ocean especially appealing. The people, too, were extremely supportive of what she was training to accomplish over the marathon distance.

"It's beautiful," she said. "We're so close to the ocean. I've found the people of Cohasset to be very friendly and excited about the marathon. It's fun to be in that environment. There's marathon fever all over the state."

Although she weighs only 112 pounds, Driscoll's "strength to weight ratio," is incredibly high. When she was working on developing mass, Driscoll could bench press 200 pounds. Now she is concentrating more on "sports specific strength," and benching 175 pounds in the process.

With her strong upper body, Driscoll is especially adept on the Boston course because of its major hill sections in Wellesley and Newton.

In past years she has found the incline leading to Wellesley College "the toughest hill," on the course. And that includes the fabled "Heartbreak Hill."

"Heartbreak Hill is longer, but that one (in Wellesley) is steeper," Driscoll said. "When I finish Heartbreak Hill I'm happy most of the hills are behind me. But I know that hill (located in Kenmore Square) is coming up and that always hurts."

Driscoll did have a tough time with the hills last year, but it had more to do with her becoming sick from the heat than a lack of training.

Denmark's Conny Hanson was able to stay with Driscoll and pass her when she decided not to charge over the hill, as in years past, but rather to ease through the inclines to conserve energy. Driscoll had become sick twice on the course and knew she wasn't 100 percent.

"In years past I've always been able to get rid of Conny Hanson on the hills," Driscoll said.

As nauseous as she was, Driscoll eventually caught and passed Hanson to build a 50-second cushion over the last two miles for victory No. 4.

The crowds have been great motivators for Driscoll and one of the reasons Boston is her favorite race. "Boston is the only marathon I've done where there are spectators every mile for the entire 26 miles," Driscoll said.

Born with spina bifida, doctors told Driscoll the only career she could possibly pursue was secretarial because she

It used to be kids bought baseball cards in the hopes of landing their favorite player. When my friends and I thumbed through our freshly opened packs of cards, softening up the rectangular piece of gum that came with every pack, we prayed a Carlton Fisk or Pete Rose would be tucked comfortably between the Bill Plummer and Oscar Zamora.

But not since I started working part-time at my friend's sports cards store in Braintree have I realized just how much has changed in the way today's 12- and 13-year-olds approach their card collecting — or should I say, card wheeling and dealing.

I observed the same scenario every Thursday afternoon: A 12-year-old enters the store wearing the typical garb of most kids his age. He has an oversized "Just Do It" T-Shirt hanging over his loosely fitting blue jeans, along with a sports cap of what I guess is his favorite team. The Colorado Rockies and the manufacturers are making a mean profit, judging from the majority of caps that come through the doors with 13-year-olds under them.

The youngster then asks for four "Upper Deck" packs. After no more than 30 seconds he lets out a yelp of excitement, having come across a Mike Piazza card — last year's National League Rookie of the Year.

So what does he do next? Does he relish the card for the simple fact Piazza is his favorite player with a promising career ahead of him?

Hardly.

The pint-sized Gordon Gekko instantly heads for the stack of Beckett magazines to get the latest on Piazza's current market value.

For this kid, a star player is nothing more than money in his pocket. Piazza represents the chance to sell, buy, and try to come up with a more expensive card. From there, the process repeats itself.

I felt a twinge of sadness. When I was his age a big-name star meant I could trade for a Fisk rookie card. The bigger your collection, the more ammunition you had to draw the interest of your friends hell bent on getting hold of their own idols as well.

All it took to make your day was the acquisition of a Mike Schmidt, Fred Lynn, Steve Carlton, Joe Morgan, Hank Aaron or Reggie Jackson.

I sold my entire collection of cards when I was 15-years-old for $150 — big money for a kid my age back then. When I look in the various glass display cases and see those same cards — now worth $40, $50 and $85 apiece — I let out my own little whimper.

From what I've seen in 1994, when it comes to baseball cards, Randy Newman was right. It's money that matters.

Road runners spend a night in Heaven before marathon

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

It started out 20 years ago as a small, spaghetti dinner get-together among a group of local runners entered in the Boston Marathon.

Since the Marshfield Road Runners' first night of carbo-loading at the home of former New England 50-mile champion Roger Welch, the pre-marathon ritual has taken off in xpopularity. Eventually the pasta-fest had to be moved to a restaurant that could accommodate the runners.

After holding the event at several local restaurants, the club members wound up in Heaven.

Fifty-five club members and their families gathered at Heaven the restaurant on Saturday night for spaghetti, beer and friendly conversation before the big Patriot's Day event.

The MRR includes runners from throughout the South Shore, including Cohasset, Braintree, Scituate, Kingston, Plymouth and Hingham.

"It's a social event for the club," said John Henry, the MRR' vice-president. "We carbo-load for the marathon and give everyone a hard time."

The runners appeared relaxed and in good spirits as they dug into the salad and spaghetti and meatballs, which they hoped would give them that extra push to get them over "Heartbreak Hill" on Monday.

Forty-seven of the club's 108 members were entered in the race and most felt confident they were ready to tackle the 26.2-mile route from Hopkinton to the Prudential Center in Downtown Boston.

Marshfield's Paul McCarthy, 1993's New England TAC champion in the senior division, was running his 15th consecutive Boston. McCarthy's personal best on the course is 2:38:56. He said he was hoping to run "a comfortable race," somewhere around 3-hours.

"If I have a good day I'll be a little bit under," McCarthy said. "If I don't, I'll be a little over."

McCarthy said the spaghetti dinners among running clubs are becoming more and more common and beats hanging around the house, thinking about the race.

"It takes a little bit of the jitters away," said McCarthy. "It's a sociable event for the club. Most clubs do this; have a pre-race pasta party."

Mike Coleman of Marshfield has run 40 marathons in his career. Monday was his 12th Boston. He said he likes the idea of socializing with the club members believes the night out only adds to the excitement of the race.

"I think it's great," Coleman said as he sat with first-time marathoner Wayne Alukonis of Kingston and Plymouth's Bob Hillman. "It gets people in the spirit."

"It's a good time," Alukonis added.

Henry said many of the club members at the dinner weren't entered in the race, but attended to give support to those runners who were competing. And although the club has several older runners who no longer tackle the marathon distance, their past experiences have proved invaluable to those who trained for the race.

"The older members who don't do as many marathons anymore lend all kinds of coaching tips and guidance," said Henry.

As for the spaghetti dinner, let's just say Heaven put its best foot forward.

would be sedentary the majority of the time.

Save for biking during her high-school years, Driscoll "had no opportunity to be involved in sports."

Ironically, it took a biking accident before the world of sports opened for Driscoll.

She dislocated her hip after falling of her bike while taking a turn at the bottom of a steep hill. Driscoll had been able to walk with the aid of below-the-knee braces, but there wasn't enough muscle in her lower body for a hip transplant. The result was a chronic dislocation.

Driscoll learned to walk with crutches and how to use a wheelchair, but her athletic life appeared over. However, a year later while attending the University of Illinois, Driscoll was introduced to wheelchair basketball and recruited to play for the school's team.

At the urging of her coach, Driscoll began entering wheelchair competitions and hesitatingly entered her first marathon. Driscoll had no desire to race that far again, but she qualified for Boston. Driscoll went on to take her first title in '90.

"Even when I was on the starting line I was thinking 'I don't belong in this race,'" Driscoll said.

The wheelchair marathon has been an Olympic exhibition event in '88 and '92, and Driscoll is hoping it will become an official event in '92. She won a silver medal at the Barcelona Games, a feat many people have trouble fathoming.

"People asked how I could go from the marathon to the 800," Driscoll explained. "But when it's the Olympics, you do it."

Driscoll has a her long-term goals mapped out with the Boston and Olympic marathons on the agenda. Driscoll would like to win the race over the next two years — '96 being the race's 100th anniversary.

That summer she wants to do the same at the Olympic Games. Instead of a silver medal placed over her head, Driscoll is aiming for gold.

"Silver's nice but gold goes better with my jewelry and my eyes," Driscoll said with a laugh.

Don't forget the five laurel wreathes — and counting.

stretch without dropping dead.

I have a hard enough time going up a couple flights of stairs without losing my breath.

Actually, the first guy in ancient Greece who ran 20-something miles over several days to inform the people of Marathon about an important military victory kicked the bucket right after he told his news.

In his honor, marathons were born.

However, these days people are running 26.2 miles in a little over two hours and some of them don't even look that tired when they finish.

Is it training, genetics, evolution or a diet high in fiber and low in fat?

Beats me. But if you know, FAX me.

*It's great to feel appreciated.

A high school football player in one of the towns I cover came up to me at a recent track meet to express his dissatisfaction with some of the things I'd written about him earlier in the year.

In an important game, the player fumbled and his team went on to lose the game and miss out on a chance in the postseason.

I wrote about this and he asked me at the track meet if I ever heard of the phrase, "If you don't have anything nice to say, don't say anything at all."

Yes I have. But in sportswriting, you have to write about the good, the bad and sometimes the ugly. (And his fumble was ugly.)

Anyway, the former football player said that everyone in town thought I was a "Bozo" and he questioned my educational training.

Picking fights with high school kids is not my style so I moved on to watch more of the track meet.

But it is nice to know that everyone in the town thinks I'm a "Bozo."

It's make a fellow proud to be a sportswriter.

*Little League baseball and softball should be getting underway all over the South Shore over the next week or so.

And if it is handled right, Little League can be a great experience for everyone involved.

Here's a quick few words of advice.

Coaches: Play everyone on the team and don't get too crazy if someone makes an error or strikes out.

Parents: Relax and enjoy the game. If your son or daughter doesn't play like the next Cal Ripken Jr. don't lose any sleep. There are other things in life more important than hitting a round ball with a round bat.

Players: Play hard but fair and if your coaches or parents get too worked up over your play, call them a "Bozo."

-David McKee

Women's wheelchair marathon world record-holder, Jean Driscoll, was certainly confident Monday's Boston race would end with her crossing the line victorious for a fifth consecutive time.

After interviewing the quick-witted 27-year-old in Cohasset on Friday, I explained to her the Mariner would not be on the stands until Thursday, but I would update how she did in the race for the feature.

"You mean when I win again and lower the record," she said, feigning complete seriousness. Driscoll could only put up the act for a few seconds before breaking into laughter — and giving me an Extra Points bit in the process.

And by the way, Driscoll did exactly what she said she would in copping her fifth straight Boston title.

A member of the Marshfield Road Runners who has seen the Extra Points column asked me Saturday night if I was "Dave or Dan." Puzzled, I said I was neither before he realized he had confused us with the two U.S. decathletes (?) featured in the Reebok commercials prior to the '92 Olympic Games.

At least he didn't mix us up Scott Hamilton and Brian Boitano. Of course, Butch and Sundance wouldn't have been bad.

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 1208, and the Cohasset Recreation Department will sponsor a spring, six session, Safe Boating Course, offering certification by both the Coast Guard and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The course will be offered to both youth and adults, however, certification in this course is mandatory for 16 years old and under, who wish to operate a craft powered by 25 horsepower or more. U.S.C.G.A., Flotilla 1208 instructors will teach the six session course, scheduled to begin Tuesday, May 17, at Cohasset High School, Room 206. Class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday evening, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. from May 17 through June 2.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791, as soon as possible, as class will be limited in size, and participants will be enrolled on a first call basis. There will be a $15 per person fee for this program, that covers the cost of the text book and class materials. Checks for payment must be made out to U.S.C.G.A. Flotilla 1208. While the class is designed for children/youth and adults, it is suggested that children aged 12 and under be accompanied by a participating adult.

Certification cards will be issued, and both the Coast Guard and State recognize the Safe Boating certificate. Further, for those who may be interested, certification for this course will allow you a discount on your boat insurance premium of 5 to 10 percent, depending upon your insurance carrier.

Golf's a 'beach' isn't it?

By Joe Keefe
Special to the Mariner

Well, some have called golf a whole lot more than just that, but getting out of the sand doesn't have to be that difficult. Take this simple approach the next time you find yourself in a sand trap. Remember to (1) take a full swing, and (2) hit the sand.

Good bunker play is a combination of both these principles and performing one without the other will not give you the results you are striving for. For instance, when I say take a full swing I mean just that. Sand is a resisting force. Sand shots properly played are strokes that glide through the sand, with the club having the tendency to decelerate. Without the proper acceleration, our club may stop at the ball, producing a less than adequate result. Remember this. The sand shot is the only shot in golf that we do not hit the ball. A stroke which normally on grass may propel the ball 75 yards will travel all of 20 feet when played out of sand because the club does not make contact with the ball. The sand which gets between the club and ball makes the ball come out extra soft, going just fractions of its potential. A full, aggressive swing with the proper amount of sand taken will insure a better result and a chance to save you par.

You can just imagine our result should we be only 20 feet from the flag and make a full swing and hit the ball. Out of bounds we go, on our way to a 10 on the hole. Think about all the possibilities and you'll see what I mean about the combination of full swing and hit the sand. Put these two principles to use in your sand game and I believe you'll play better golf.

AAU aerobics competition set

New England's first AAU sports aerobics competition and exhibition will come to Pembroke to U.S.A. Health & Fitness Center on Oak Street in Pembroke, Saturday, May 21, at noon. The exhibition is open to competitors from all ages, youth through seniors. Competitors from throughout New England will exhibit sport aerobics, step and hip hop/funk styles. Winners of the categories will proceed to the nationals in Washington, D.C. in the summer of '94. The World Championship will take place in October 1994 in South Africa.

Pepper Von, TV star of ESPN's Fitness Pros, will appear in person beginning at 10 a.m. Von will present the welcome address to the AAU's sport aerobics competition. Aerobics champion and National Reebok Trainer John Jay Wooldridge will host this exciting event. All are invited to this open house to meet TV star Pepper Von and John Jay Wooldridge. The day will include many refreshments and family oriented activities.

The Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) is the largest not-for-profit volunteer organization in the United States dedicated solely to the development of amateur sports and physical fitness programs. All ages are encouraged to participate in this exhibition on a basis of individual, doubles, triples and team efforts. Teams consist of four people (quad) or 6 to 12 people (full team). If you are interested in participating in any of these categories or joining a team call Nancy Bell of the AAU at 834-7850 or Debbie Burns of U.S.A. Health and Fitness Center at 826-6746 or 294-1526. Fitness facilities, schools, colleges, and dance schools are all invited to send representation and participate.

Jewel M. Seaton, Certified Hypnotherapist, gave a demonstrational speech at the South Shore Country Club recently to members of the Hingham Rotary Club.

In her talk, she dispelled popular myths of hypnosis, as well as citing many beneficial uses for overcoming stress-related issues such as overeating, smoking, insomnia, chronic anxiety and tension.

Seaton teaches self-hypnosis and weight-loss techniques to help eliminate the cycle of anxiety, stress and dieting.

A Cohasset resident, Seaton's office is at The Queen Executive Center, 167A Washington St., Route 53, Norwell. For information, please call 871-7727.

Thomas Koncius of Cohasset has been named a partner in Pemberton Appraisal Co. Inc., a Boston based real estate appraisal and consulting company. Koncius will oversee staff performing appraisals at a new South Shore office at 760 C.J. Cushing Way. This new office will cover an expanded territory including Cape Cod, Nantucket, Marthas Vineyard and the South Shore.

Jewel M. Seaton

Cohasset Mobil dealer Paul Vercollone, whose station is at Rte.3A and Sohier St., received Mobil's "Commitment" honor for providing outstanding service to area motorists. The recognition award and plaques were presented to Vercollone and his team of employees by district manager Tony Turchi.

Stephen Lucitt of Cohasset has been appointed assistant vice president, commercial loan officer responsible for lending to small businesses on the South Shore by The Bank of Braintree.

Lucitt has more than nine years of banking and real estate experience. Before joining The Bank of Braintree he worked for Shawmut where he was responsible for managing the portfolio of real estate loans and small busine loans throughout the South Shore.

He has a B.S. degree in business a ministration from the University o Southern California and a J.D. degree from New York University. He is presently completing an MBA degree at Suffolk University.

Some behold beauty in rusting Hagerty building

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Fearing they might do something they'd later regret, selectmen opted not to demolish the old cutting room building at the Hagerty Property just yet.

The board also held off deciding the fate of the antique boat house which some local historians feel belongs back on Government Island where it originally stood.

'We went into this as a multi-purpose project so people could go there, rather than have boats this and boats that. Everything's boats and it should be multi-purpose.'
— Richard Barrow

Selectmen want more definitive plans on possibilities for recreational use at the harbor-front site before moving the boat house or razing the rusting metal structure which is the last of a hodgepodge of old factory buildings on the two-acre parcel the town bought a year ago.

It was standing room only in the selectmen's office Monday as Hagerty Committee members and other interested citizens debated keeping the metal building — which is an eyesore but functional — or tearing it down immediately to create more open space.

Harbormaster Shawn Kelly said he was able to get a lot of work done in there on his boat this winter.

Tagging tourists could be summer sport

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

There's no place for tourists to park on Government Island without risk of getting ticketed.

Although the former U.S. Government reservation — which includes the Minot Light's Replica, templates, lightkeeper's residence, and historic Beacon Rock — is eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places and may start attracting more out-of-town visitors, selectmen are not enthusiastic about the idea of issuing temporary parking stickers.

Hamilton Tewksbury raised the issue at the selectmen's meeting this week following a discussion by the recreation commission about new rules now covering non-residential permits for harbor employees, commercial mooring holders, and user-fee payers to the town, like those who use the yacht or sailing clubs.

For residents the Sandy Beach parking permit covers parking at the beach, Government Island, and the Hagerty Property on Parker Ave. Non-resident employees, like swimming instructors, are issued temporary permits, Recreation Director Jack Worley explained.

Tewksbury, a member of the Hagerty Property Committee studying recreational uses for that site which is adjacent to Government Island, noted that that visitors to town could get tagged after stopping and walking around for 1/2 an hour or so.

He suggested David Wadsworth of the Cohasset Historical Commission issue temporary stickers for tourists.

But Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan didn't think tourists would know where to find Wadsworth.

Selectman Jane Goedecke didn't think visitor spaces were the answer because their use is often abused like handicapped spaces.

Gulf River group helps fish climb ladder of success

By Joyce Bain
Mariner correspondent

The Gulf River, running between Scituate and Cohasset, has been a favorite spot for summer recreation for many years.

Every spring and summer, people congregate at the river to kayak, canoe, row or simply swim along its length, enjoying the relaxing atmosphere and beautiful scenery it provides. However, while many are familiar with the surface traits of the historical river, few are familiar with the activities that take place beneath its surface.

The Gulf Association, a nonprofit group which cares for and maintains the river throughout the year, sponsored a program last Wednesday evening (April 20) which presented a look into the world under the river. The talk specifically focused on river breeding fish which make their seasonal journey against the flow of the river to the estuaries and tributaries where they were born so that they may lay their eggs in the same location.

Kenneth Reback, a marine biologist working with the state in the Division of Marine Fisheries, was the guest speaker at the meeting and presented a slide show and video which greatly explained the mysteries of the unusual behavior of these fish.

Herring, sea-run trout, smelt and eels are the best-known salt water fish which return to fresh water rivers. The fish sense the position of the moon and stars to navigate their way to the exact river where they were born, some journeying from as far as New Foundland. Once they are in the river, they rely on their

Laxmen face biggest test

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

The lacrosse team is off to its typical solid start this season, but even with its 5-2 record head coach Ken Ekberg sees the Skippers' real test of just how far the squad can go this spring when they face the Green Dragons of Duxbury.

Cohasset has to come up with a strong performance against another proven squad. Duxbury is that team.

"They've beaten a couple of good teams also," said Ekberg.

The Skippers hardly got the test they need in Tuesday's 15-4 thrashing of Bedford. Cohasset's offensive speed was superior to any defense Bedford could muster, leaving the Skippers free to

Well testing payment ok'ed

Selectmen approved payment of $1,430.38 this week to Donald E. Reed for well testing at the proposed public works garage site behind the Little League Fields off N. Main St.

The money came from an appropriation made by the 1993 town meeting for feasibility studies on a town public works garage. But the proposed garage site was ruled out following the first session of town meeting last month because as it turns out the entire site lies in a water resources protected district.

Blake on garage study

Selectmen appointed Benjamin S. Blake, 143 Atlantic Ave., to the public works garage study committee to fill the seat recently vacated by Austin Ahearn who stepped down. Blake is a retired architect.

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby said Blake "is an excellent appointment."

Recycling grant awarded

Cohasset has been selected to receive a Solid Waste Recycling Equipment Grant Award from the Department of Environmental Protection. As part of the FY'94 grant program, DEP will award Cohasset one roll-off container valued at $3,385.

Cohasset was selected because its program clearly demonstrates a commitment and an ability to enhance recycling in both Cohasset and the state, the DEP said.

The strange saga of the fog bell. . .

By David H. Wadsworth
Senior curator
Cohasset Historical Society

One of the most tragic mishaps in the history of lighthouses in the United States was the collapse, during a great storm in 1851, of the first Minot's Ledge Lighthouse just off Cohasset's shores.

Originally constructed to warn mariners away from the dangerous "Cohasset Rocks," the first Minot's was a structure some 70 feet in height, having its keepers' quarters and its great oil lanterns supported by nine tall iron legs called "piles".

The lighthouse first showed its powerful beacon Jan. 1, 1850. Its keeper was Isaac Dunham, a veteran of the lighthouse service. Keeper Dunham, however, was to remain at Minot's for only a short time. A few months later he submitted his resignation from duty at the light. Dunham had become convinced that the new structure was not strong enough to withstand fierce Atlantic storms that sweep the low-lying ledge, and that the tower was destined to be destroyed by the sea. The keeper feared for his life at Minot's Ledge Light.

Dunham's successor, Capt. William Bennett, was on shore in mid-April of 1851 when a great storm, now called "The Lighthouse Gale", struck the New England coast. At the lighthouse were two assistant keepers, Joseph Antoine and Joseph Wilson of Cohasset.

During the days of April 15 and 16 the storm worsened, driving high winds and mountainous seas against the entire coastline. It was the most severe storm seen in many years, and watchers ashore, including head keeper Bennett, began to fear for the safety of the two men isolated at Minot's Ledge lighthouse some two-and-one-half miles at sea.

By nightfall of the 16th watchers ashore observed that the lighthouse appeared to have developed a pronounced tilt to one side, then darkness obscured the view. Suddenly, at about 1 a.m. of the 17th, Minot's great fog bell has heard "clanging furiously, then no more." Morning presented a grim scene to the watchers, for no trace of the lighthouse was to be seen. Minot's Ledge was bare, washed by the raging sea. During that night the lighthouse had been swept into the ocean, and its two keepers had perished while trying to swim ashore.

Strangely, the tragic collapse of Minot's Light set in motion a chain of events which leads modern historians to the small village of Bryant Pond, Maine.

For there, in the bell tower of a small white-painted New England church building, today hangs the same bell that fell into the sea on that stormy night in 1851, off Cohasset's shore.

Soon after the appalling disaster at Minot's Ledge, sea divers, under the command of one Peter Fox, a professional diver described only as being "a Scandinavian", raised the wreckage of the lighthouse from the bottom of the sea. It may have been Fox's crew that salvaged the sunken bell and took it ashore, where it was to be sold at a government auction.

That first fog bell at Minot's Ledge had been placed in service only six months earlier, in October of 1850, and its weight was recorded as being 639 pounds. The announcement of installation of the bell appeared in a "Notice To Mariners" dated Oct. 26 of that year. Old accounts of the lighthouse establishment give the cost of the bell as $172.53, and of its installation as $77.25.

At a government auction held in Boston, the bell from Minot's Ledge was purchased by a Mr. Dwight Francis Faulkner of Turner, Maine, prominent owner of a large wool mill. Faulkner placed the old lighthouse bell in the bell-tower of his mill in Turner, where for half a century it rang to call mill workers to their job each morning.

By 1905 ownership of the Faulkner mill had passed to Dwight Faulkner's son, Francis T. Faulkner. On Sunday morning, Sept. 3, 1905, the Faulkner wool mill was totally destroyed in a disastrous fire which left the small Maine community without its sole important industry. Millowner Francis Faulkner himself discovered the fire and rang the bell from Minot's to summon the help of townspeople.

. . .from Minot's light

Soon after, Faulkner became trapped by flames and perished while fighting the spreading conflagration. At its height the fire reached the mill's bell tower and the old lighthouse bell fell to the ground for a second time. In its fall from the mill's tower, the bell itself was severely damaged, its top broken apart.

Following the fire, the fog bell was salvaged, this time by Francis Faulkner's daughter, Mrs. Anna Faulkner Chase. The bell that had "tolled for two tragedies," first at Minot's Ledge, then at Faulkner's mill, soon was restored to its original size and shape, ready to ring again.

In about 1907 Mrs. Anna F. Chase presented the bell to the Baptist Church in the nearby village of Bryant Pond, Maine, in memory of her father who had died during the fire at the mill. Inscribed on the bell was a brief history indicating its origin at Minot and its use at Faulkner's mill. The old fog bell now called parishioners to services each week, ringing from the belfry of the church building.

As an ironic postscript to the air of tragedy which seemed to accompany those associated with the bell in its early years, not long after its presentation, another member of the Faulkner family met an untimely demise. In May 1912, Francis T. Faulkner's son, Osborne Faulkner, a prominent Lewiston, Maine sports writer, drowned

Steve Contos of Contos Signs and Graphics in Scituate puts finishing touches on the Minot's Light bell which will be installed at the side of the replica on Government Island. Although not the original bell featured in David Wadsworth's story, this bell hung on the second Minot's Light for many years and helped fishermen get their bearings in thick fog. Cohasset's Herbert Jason helped refurbish the bell at New England Steel Tank in Quincy at no cost to the town. Once installed a rod attached to the bell's clapper will extend through a hold in replica wall so the bell can be rung from inside the structure.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

HESITATION CAN BE COSTLY

QUESTION: I've just put my home up for sale. The very first prospect offered to buy it at the asking price. Should I raise the price or accept his offer?

ANSWER: Once you put your house on the market, you have to make up your mind to sell when the right offer comes. The right offer may be your FIRST offer. If you turn it down, you may never get another as good. The best prospects usually show up early.

However, the offer should be a written one – the only kind that has any real significance and be accompanied by "earnest" money. Never take your property off the market on a verbal promise.

Some behold beauty in rusting building

"There's a lot of space in there," he said. "But it is true it is an eyesore now that everything else is gone."

But Veneta Roebuck likened the structure to a garage.

"It's a unique site, we paid a good sum of money for and it's just not very intelligent to have a building there for dead storage," said Roebuck, adding it would cost about $12,000 to add siding to the structure.

Robert Martin was in Roebuck's corner.

"Tear it down," he said. "You can't evaluate the site with that there."

Selectmen were under pressure to make a decision about the cutting room this week because the demolition of the old Hagerty buildings has to be completed by April 30 per an order of conditions issued by the Conservation Commission. The contractor offered to tear the structure down while his equipment is at the site for $2,500 which is less than half of what he quoted if done later, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby supported razing the building down and did not want the boat house moved.

"The money town meeting authorized was to raze everything except the office and make it into a park. I can't support leaving the cutting room up and I can't support moving the boat house," she said.

Selectman Jane Goedecke offered assurances that the metal building would not become a highway garage.

"This is a water dependant use property only," she said. "It will be used for boats and boating-related activities only if it stays."

Richard Barrow warned that the town bought the property so it would be available to everyone.

"We went into this as a multi-purpose project so people could go there, rather than have boats this and boats that. Everything's boats and it should be multi-purpose."

Goedecke clarified her statement: "We mean enjoying water."

There was some concern the boat house was vulnerable now that it is no longer protected by the other structures. David Wadsworth of the historical commission proposed moving the antique structure back to Government Island.

Other thoughts on both structures were aired by Russ Bonetti, Richard Grinnell, Hamilton Tewksbury, Herbert Jason, Richard Grinnell, Robert V. Davenport and Maxwell Pounder.

Selectman Peter Pratt said it was important that the Hagerty Property and Government Island fit into a similar plan. He suggested the town look into the possibility hiring a professional consultant to help with planning.

Selectmen Michael Sullivan and Merle Brown, joined Goedecke and Pratt voted to hold off any action for the time being with Gjesteby dissenting.

The Hagerty Property was formerly the site of Cohasset Colonials, a furniture kit company, which has since moved to Hingham. The Victorian House, which was the furniture showroom, was originally on Rowe's Wharf in Boston and was moved to Parker Avenue in the early part of this century. The boat house was once used for lifeboats launched from Government Island.

Gulf River group helps fish climb ladder of success

olfactory sense to find the very stream or even tributary or rivulet they had left years before.

This journey is not always an easy one for the fish, however, with many not making it up the rivers at all. No matter how driven they are to reach their goal, when they discover a blockage in their path there is nothing the fish can do about it.

To help them pass through both natural and the now increasing man-made obstructions in the rivers, biologists have engineered several different types of devises. Some are extremely complex, like the elevator lifts employed on the Connecticut River, or as simple as granite blocks placed in the stream to create pools the fish can jump between.

Each "ladder" needs to be monitored on a regular basis to assure too much water is not flowing down, making the flow too difficult for the fish to swim through. Likewise, too little water would make the pools too small for the fish to use. With 100 fish runs and 200 "ladders" in the state, it is difficult to get enough personnel to maintain them.

A Fish Way Stewardship Program has been created to help with that problem. The Stewardship Program, similar to an Adopt-a-Stream program, has small organizations adopt and maintain local fish runs, greatly relieving the load placed on the state. The Gulf Association has been accepted as a steward and currently has two people who regulate the ladders in the Gulf River each day during the migratory season, between mid-March and mid-May.

"It's encouraging to see all the support we've had from smaller groups," says Reback. "We don't have the manpower to regulate all of the smaller tracks, but with this program we expect to see results in a short time."

Despite all the regulating, the population of some "running" fish has been dwindling. These fish are an important part in the sea food chain, providing food for larger ocean fish which maintain the fisheries in the area as well as sport fishing, all of which improve local economies.

As a result, the state is taking action to stop the population from dropping any further. Environmentalists have been stocking the rivers with fish from other sources, hoping they lay eggs there and, thus, those children will return to the new stream when it comes time for them to mate. They hope that with the stocking of streams and the regulating of the fish "ladders" the running of the fish will be an event which will fascinate generations to come.

office is on Government Island, offered to keep four or five temporary parking passes that could be laminated paper so the date and time could be written on them and then rubbed off to be used again.

While Goedecke said Kelly's suggestion was "a generous offer", no formal action on the matter was taken.

The board noted there are a few parking spaces along Border Street available for out-of-towners.

But Recreation Commission Chairman Richard Barrows warned that those are often taken by kayakers.

Earlier this spring, selectmen did give permission for coaches with tourists to park at Government Island, which is included in a local brochure highlighting area places of interest.

Water committee appointed

James C. Kinch, 77 Forest Ave.; Mark Bell, 460 King St.; John K. McNabb Jr., 53 Pond St.; and Dean Rizzo, 56 Spring St. are the citizens-at-large on the new Water Resources Protection Committee. They will serve along with representatives from each of the following: water commissioners, health board, planning board, conservation commission and drainage advisory committee.

Town meeting voters last month established the committee and directed it to complete an inventory and investigation of any and all sources that pollute or tend to pollute the sources of public water supply and to study the feasibility of creating a drinking water protection district that will include Cohasset, Hingham and Norwell.

Road to be closed

Howard B. Long Road will be closed from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., May 5 to accommodate the Hearing Van from the Guild for Hard of Hearing during the annual town Health Fair.

Saga of the fog bell

while "shooting the rapids" during a sporting trip on the Androscoggin River at Turner Center Bridge.

Since that time, however, the much-traveled bell appears to have settled into a more placid existence in its Bryant Pond belfry, where it hangs today. The citizens of that small community know the story of their church bell, and have recorded its history.

Some years ago the bell's story became known to a Cohasset resident, the late Dr. Theodore Badger, whose grandfather, Erastus B. Badger, had been the coppersmith for the construction of the second lighthouse at Minot's Ledge during the latter 1850's. It was Dr. Badger who gathered much of the information presented herein.

More recently several Cohasset residents have visited Bryant Pond to view and to ring the historic fog bell that began its long service nearly 140 years ago at storm-buffeted Minot's Ledge just off Cohasset's shore.

Keno gambling debated

Selectman Martha Gjesteby suggested the town write to the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission with a copy sent to the town's state legislators to lobby for local licensing control over Keno, a new lottery game.

But Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon cautioned that the town has very limited grounds to contest a proposed Keno license.

"Lottery commission verifies criminal background and wants to know if the applicant has paid its state taxes. They will notify the town of any applications for Keno and we can request a hearing," he said. "However, the burden of proof is on us."

Under a new state statute passed as an outside section of the 1994 budget, the state lottery has begun licensing sales agents to sell the game of Keno at various locations across the state including bars, restaurants, and clubs. Selection and supervision of which businesses receive lottery sales agent license is strictly up to the Lottery, the ABCC said.

But the ABCC said it would welcome comments from selectmen because it wants to work cooperatively to ensure that businesses that become licensed for keno are "of the highest integrity and quality."

Selectman Peter Pratt agreed that the board should contact the town's legislative delegation about the erosion of local control.

Selectman Jane Goedecke warned that if the town had control, it would have to be fair to local businesses.

"It is a difficult thing to take a stand against a profit-making business in this town when (Keno) may be available in other towns," she said.

Cohasset gets a dividend

The town received some good news from the Massachusetts Interlocal Insurance Association (MIIA).

Cohasset's share of a $2 million total dividend, $1.4 million of which is available for distribution this year is $11,020 which will be credited towards the town's FY'95 premium for the MIIA Workers' Compensation Group.

The MIIA said the dividend is "a positive reflection on your community's efforts to minimize losses and on the MIIA program which makes large savings and dividends available."

The MIIA is an agency of the Massachusetts Municipal Association of which Cohasset is a member.

We will surely miss Stuart and Esther Pratt as they make their move to Montgomery, Vermont. They have both done so much for our town, they are super people, and they are sure to have a happy life no matter where they are!

The good news is that we know they will visit Cohasset a lot, all of the family lives here — and they certainly are family oriented. We wish you the best, Stuart and Esther. And hope you each have a huge shovel, it isn't over yet up in "them thar woods".

There are two birthdays to report — April 19, Ruth Wheelwright celebrated her 98th birthday (hope to get a report on the festivities), and April 24, Vi Tuthill turned 90. Isn't that grand. They are two special ladies and we send them the very best.

Did you know that David Brega's "The Yankee Paintings", are on exhibit through April 30 at the Artist's Son Gallery (located at 130 King Street, Route 3A). It is absolutely super, be sure to stop in before you get your pizza. You will be glad that you did.

Had news from London last week, where Polly Logan met her daughter Martha and had a ball. Martha arrived from a week in China with investment bankers, they spent all of their time devouring the history, the architecture, spring flowers and the theatre.

Son Malcolm acquired tickets to the recently opened "Sunset Boulevard" and "A Month in the Country" as well as old standbys, "Les Miserables" and "Phantom of the Opera." He couldn't resist tickets to "An Absolute Turkey," Feydeau's masterpiece, and "Les Parents Terrible." Theatre is the best in the world.

They stayed at a club which is an affiliate of the Harvard Club and is near Piccadilly, Whitehall, Westminster Abbey, National Gallery and Covent Gardens. They loved the pubs, and Picasso, Goya, and Fabergé. Their only disappointment was that they had to miss the Chelsea Flower Show, but they are back now and that isn't until next month. Polly reports the weather was cold, cold, but the flowers were in bloom. And, she came back to Cohasset just in time to see all of our flowers in bloom, that's nice!

Sure sounds like a great trip, if you ever tire of politics (we doubt it), why not be a tour director or travel agent? You know how to do it right, no matter what you do.

That is all there is to write for this week, hopefully you will call me so that there is more news for next.

Richard J. Sargent

Richard J. Sargent Sr., 66, of Cohasset, a mechanic for Pearl Street Motors in Braintree for 33 years, died at home April 24 after a long illness.

He also worked for Norfolk Conveyor Co. ten years before retiring three years ago.

Mr. Sargent was born and raised in Cohasset and graduated from Cohasset High School. He was a lifelong resident of the town.

He leaves his wife, Pat (Templeton) Sargent; five sons, Richard J. Sargent Jr. and Kevin M. Sargent, both of Cohasset, Robert F. Sargent and William D. Sargent, both of Ohio and Dennis J. Sargent of Pembroke; a daughter, Sharon M. Sargent of Cohasset; a sister, Elsie M. Cohen of Scituate; and 14 grandchildren.

A funeral service was held at McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home by the Rev. Wallace Cedarleaf, interim pastor of Beechwood Congregational Church. Burial was in Beechwood Cemetery.

Donations in his memory may be made to the Hospice of the South Shore, 10 Bay State Dr., Braintree 02184.

Roberta Grassie

Roberta V. Grassie, 49, of Cohasset, a secretary for Arthur D. Little, Cambridge for several years, died April 22 in Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, after a long illness.

Mrs. Grassie was born and raised in Cambridge where she graduated from high school and lived in Scituate 20 years before moving to Cohasset several years ago.

She was an alumna of Hickox Secretarial School.

She leaves a daughter, Nicole Grassie of Cohasset; her mother, Victoria (Peters) Green, and a sister, Carol J. Green, both of Medford. She was the daughter of the late Robert Green.

A funeral Mass was celebrated April 26 in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity your choice.

Make polluter pay

(Guest editorial by Cong. Gerry E. Studds.)

The steamroller of "unfunded mandates" is revving up, poised to flatten Congressional reauthorization of the federal Clean Water Act. It doesn't have to happen.

We can maintain high federal standards for clean water without digging deeper into the federal treasury and without further stretching state, local and household budgets. We can stop the unfunded mandates steamroller — the intense opposition to strict federal requirements for environmental cleanup with no increase in federal money to pay for them. There is a common sense (and therefore distinctly "outside the Beltway" solution: make those responsible for fouling our waterways equally responsible for cleaning them up.

Make the polluter pay.

Clearly, local communities and ratepayers can no longer bear the burden of cleaning up our nation's water. The cleanup of Boston Harbor will cost 2.5 million local ratepayers about $5 billion. Many of these households are facing water and sewer bills that are threatening to outstrip their local property taxes. Right here on the South Shore, many homeowners in the town of Weymouth must pay more than $600 per year. And those rates are projected to double within the next five years'.

The drastic increases have led, understandably, to ratepayer rebellion. MWRA communities have said loud and clear: we cannot continue to pay more than 90 per cent of the cost to clean up Boston Harbor. Unless we deal squarely with the issue of funding, we risk an unraveling of our commitment to the harbor cleanup project.

Other clean water projects around the country are also in jeopardy, because the Boston area is not alone in paying high weather and sewer bills. Federal, state and local governments, industry and individual ratepayers now spend approximately $62 billion each year in the struggle to keep our rivers and streams fishable, swimmable and drinkable. But it is not enough.

Imperiled not only by inadequately-funded sewage treatment, but also by toxic discharges and polluted runoff, water quality continues to decline and cleanup costs continue to rise. The question is: How are we going to pay for the water quality we all expect and deserve.

The answer, I believe, is to require those whose actions degrade water quality to contribute more to the financial burden of cleanup.

H.R. 2199, the Polluter Pays Clean Water Funding Act, would assess major water polluters $4 billion annually. These charges would be levied on those who discharge industrial toxic was ($2 billion), industrial water users ($1 billion) and the manufacturers of fertilizers ($250 million), pesticides ($500 million) and animal feed ($250 million), with all revenues dedicated exclusively to water pollution control.

Putting a price on water pollution spreads the price of cleaning it up more fairly. In addition, it doesn't take an Adam Smith to realize that when pollution starts to show up as a cost on a company's bottom line, there will be less of it. Less pollution means lower taxes and better water quality, which in turn means a decreases need for treatment and lower cleanup costs. We all win.

We must not abandon the progress made in improving our nation's water quality in the 22 years since the Federal Water Pollution Control Act was enacted. Now can we abandon those, like the ratepayers from the South Shore who came to Washington in February, who rightfully tell Congress that, no matter how honorable the goal, they can pay no more to achieve it.

Our federal governor should continue to mandate high standards of water quality for all Americans. But we must realize that these standards are costly to attain and that we have a responsibility to put our money where our mandates are.

Single-payer health care supported

To the Editor:

The Republicans are right; there is no health care crisis. No one in this country goes without health care if they want it. The crisis is who pays for health care.

It is no secret that eventually the taxpayers and consumers have to pay for everything. When we pay our health insurance part of our premium goes to pay for the free care of others. Some of our taxes pay for Medicaid. When employers pick up the tab for health benefits we pay by paying higher prices and earnings are reduced to pay for the premiums.

So why kid ourselves by saying you do not want to be taxed to pay for health care when we are paying for it right now but not calling it a tax.

We do not need all the paperwork. There is no room for insurance companies. Let's go with a single payer system that includes everyone and also long-term care.

Maybe we are afraid of the federal government messing things up. Look at Social Security and Medicare. These programs work. Sure there are problems but we do not need to throw out the baby with the water. Fine-tune Medicare, then include all citizens for 100 percent coverage.

Stop kidding ourselves. Take the money we are paying to insurance companies for health care and pay it to a single payer health care fund. Call the payment taxes or premiums; what's the difference?

Return of Greenbush line opposed

To the Editor:

There have been all the reasons why there should be no railroad — there is one more, the environmental issue. The wetland and habitat here in Cohasset, Pleasant St. going south to Spring St. continuing south to North Scituate. The wetland from Pleasant St. south to Spring St. known as Elms Meadow is owned by the Cohasset Water Company. It also contains wells at James Lane bordering the meadow.

It is a haven for wildlife, many species of birds — song and water birds. Ducks — blue-winged teal, which have now come for the last six years — swans, Canadian geese in early spring and fall on migratory routes over Cohasset, mallards. Also there are many species of turtles — box, painted, spotted (on the special concern environmental list) snapping, etc.

My son, Robert Butman, and wife, Jody, 17 Spring St., Cohasset, next door, have on video tape the turtles crossing the railroad bed and laying eggs on it and continuing to the back of our houses to ledge pockets and piles of dirt to lay eggs. My husband's and my house borders the railroad bed and adjoining land up back at 17A Spring St. and 17 Spring St.

The railroad bed is a haven for walkers and horseback riders — some of whom practice dressage. It is most enjoyable to walk — wildlife — birds, ducks, turtles and wildflowers. There are a great many streets with no sidewalks.

We now have a great many more grade crossings to account for than when I moved to this address in 1949 — 45 years ago. My husband, Charles Edson Butman Jr. — age 68 and his family have been here for over six generations — before the town of Cohasset was incorporated.

Mr. Joseph Edson Butman (grandfather to Charles Jr.) after the Civil War was an engineer on the Old Colony railroad as well as Robert Bates, Daniel S. Campbell's (local jeweler) father — engineer or fireman — Charles Stoddard fireman for Joseph Butman and many more.

One deadly accident a year plus non fatal accidents, people, horses, automobiles, many dogs and cats. In Braintree where I lived from age 10 to 20, there was at least one accident a week.

I do not want it back — my children grew up with it — now have six grandchildren and pets plus many good friends with small children and pets.

The children today do not have railroad sense when it comes to crossings and walking the tracks with pets as you know they will. We have been free of the railroad since the early 1950s.

Mrs. Lois J. Butman
17A Spring St.

Coach Ford is appreciated

(Ed's note: the following is a copy of a letter sent by the PSO to Cohasset High School coach Ron Ford.)

Dear Coach Ford:

We are writing on behalf of the Cohasset PSO to thank you for the outstanding athletic coaching you have given the students of Cohasset High School.

We would especially like to commend you for your emphasis on good sportsmanship and strong academics. As parents we know these are valuable lessons that will serve the students well their entire lives...long after the sweetness of victory or the disappointment of defeat have faded from memory.

Your leadership qualities and the role model you have provided as coach are appreciated not only by the students but by the parents as well.

Connie Afshar and Terese D'Urso
Cohasset High School PSO Reps.

Forsythia is lovely!

To the Editor:

How lucky we are this spring to have such unusually beautiful forsythia. A result of all that snow?

The bushes that are not pruned but are allowed to grow naturally are especially lovely. And the people that plant bulbs along the curbs deserve special thanks.

Appalachia Service Project support is needed

By Ami Argus
Special to the Mariner

In a little over two months, 84 students and adults will leave Cohasset for the Appalachian region of Virginia for a home repair work week. This will be the seventh year that the Rev. Gary Ritts and his wife Judy have led groups from Cohasset to this region with the Appalachia Service Project.

It has grown from a single work crew of seven people to an unprecedented total of 60 students and 24 adult advisors. This is a tremendous opportunity for everyone involved to work with and become friends with people from a very different cultural background; a wonderful learning experience for young and old alike.

Following is the list of all participants in the 1994 Appalachia Service Project trip:

Chris Adams, Marilyn Adams, Jemilah Afshar, Ami Argus, Dan Baird, Peter Bishop, Ryan Bishop, Katie Brennock, Catie Campbell, Mary Ann Chase, Mindy Cheel, Kate Cibelli, David Clinton, Andrew Collins, Gail Collins, Caitlin Connolly, Paris Cook, Ann Dane, Penelope Dane, Pam DeLorenzo, Mamie DeMichele.

WAYS TO HELP

Stock Forms: Students and their parents along with advisors are currently selling stock certificates to help fund this trip. If you are interested in supporting us, please call anyone from the above list or call the Second Congregational Church at 383-0345 to obtain a stock form. Shares are $20 each and can be credited to anyone on the list.

Tag Sale: There will be a tag sale at the Second Congregational Church (next to Town Hall) Saturday, May 14, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. If you have any items that you would like to donate, we will be accepting items the week prior to May 14, or if you need us to pick up your donations, please leave a message at the Second Congregational Church at 383-0345.

Dance-a-thon: There will be an opportunity to sponsor any of the participants in a Dance-a-thon coming in May. More details will be available next week.

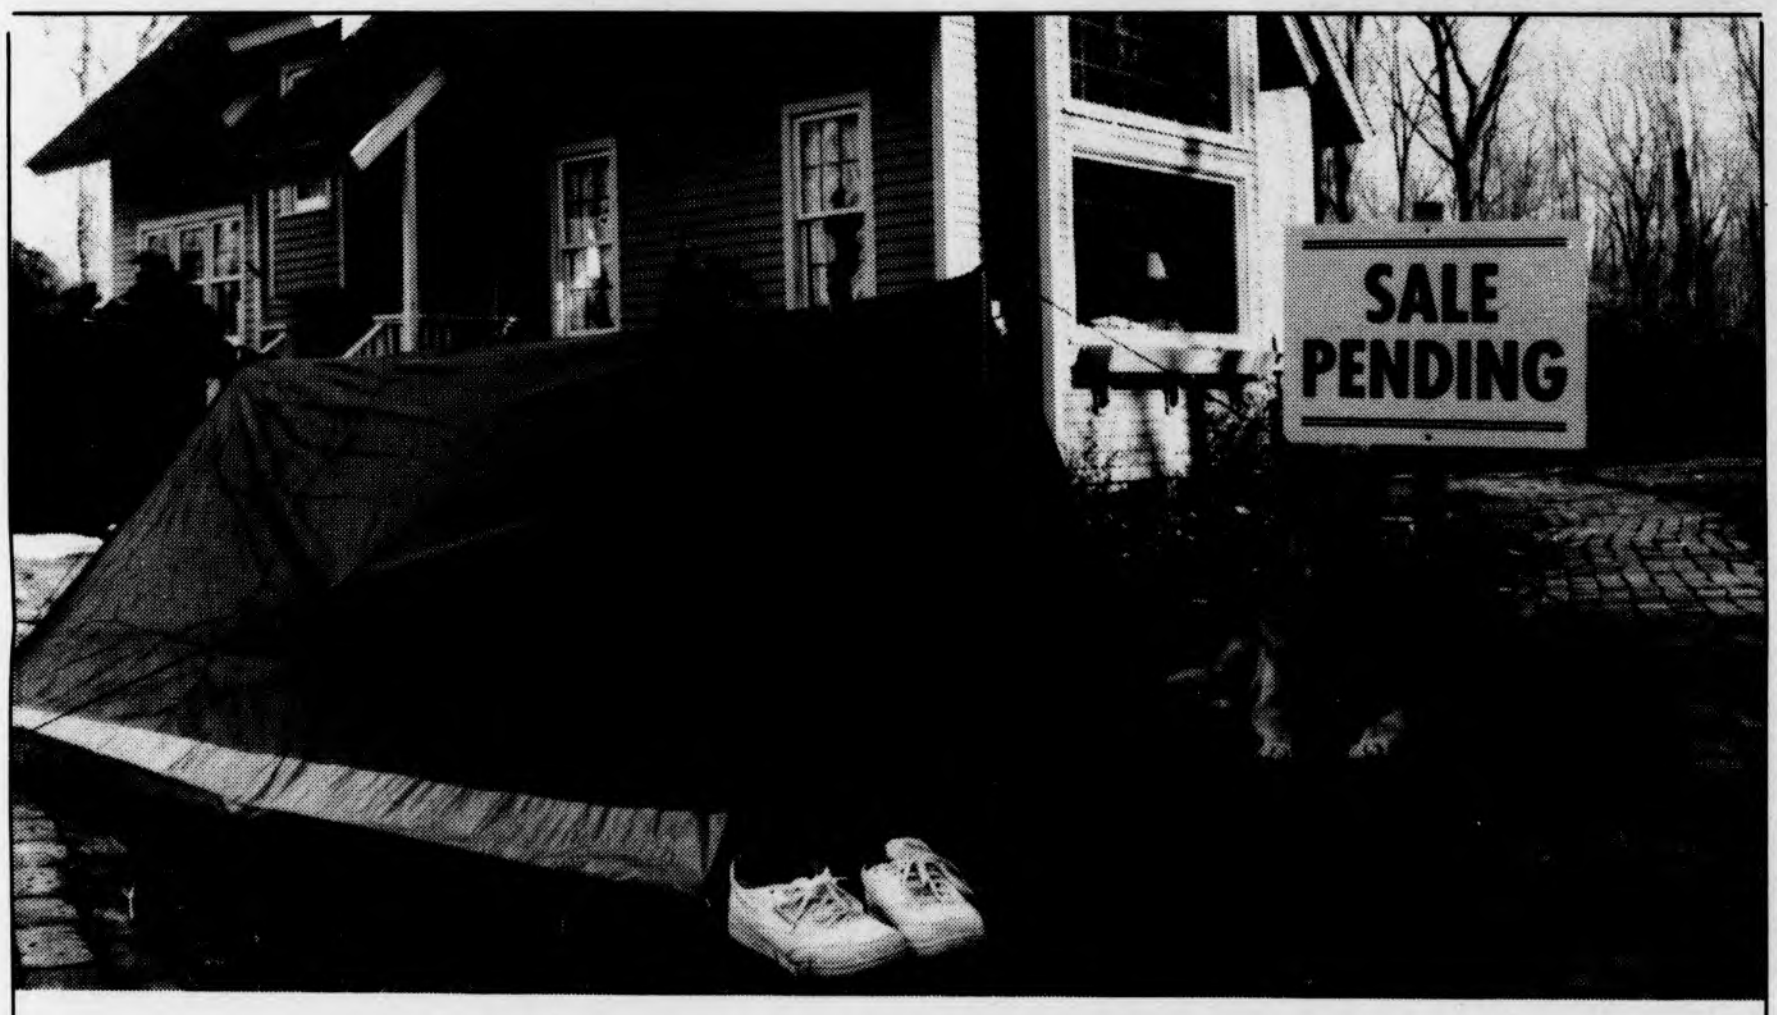
Plant sale at Glastonbury Abbey

A large selection of plants will be on sale at Glastonbury Abbey, 16 Hull St., Rte. 228, Hingham from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday May 7.

Perennials, ground cover, herbs, house plants, annuals, fruit and vegetable plants as well as some bushes will be on sale. Plants are all being donated from local private gardens in the Hingham/Cohasset area.

Many plants will be divisions of specimens grown in the Abbey gardens. Seedlings to mature plant divisions will be available.

Money raised will be donated to the Benedictine Monks of Glastonbury Abbey.



Local designer in show

Kathleen Fox of The Designing Woman, Black Rock Rd., is participating in the Junior League of Boston's 1994 Decorators' Show House and Garden Tour. The 24th annual Show House is "Millbrook," the former Dutton Estate , 605 Elm St., Rte. 27 in Walpole. The tour opens May 3.

The 1994 Show House features more than 40 decorated areas in addition to landscaped gardens.

Money raised from the tour add to the continued assistance of the more than 25 community service, family and educational projects supported by the Junior League of Boston.

Mother's Day geranium sale

The high school youth group at First Parish Church will be selling geraniums at 11:30 a.m. on Mother's Day, Sunday May 8 at the Parish House. Pre-orders will be taken after services on Sunday May 1.

Money raised from the sale will benefit youth group activities.

Join Harborfest parade

Organizers warn that Harborfest is only eight short weeks away. The annual celebration of and for Cohasset is capped off with and old fashioned "down home" New England parade. Individuals, organizations, or companies are invited to sign up. Please call Keith Knowles, 383-1331, for more information.

health notes

Cohasset annual town health fair is May 5

The annual health fair, sponsored by the Social Service League, the board of health, and the Council on Aging, will be held on Thursday, May 5, at the Second Congregational Church. The fair hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., and 5 to 7 p.m., for the convenience of the workers.

Free screenings will be conducted for cataracts, diabetes, blood pressure glaucoma, hearing problems and cholesterol levels.

Physicians will be available for consultation in the following areas:

* Podiatry — Throughout the fair.
* Dermatology — from noon to 12:45 p.m.
* Opthamology — Throughout the fair.
* Oral Cancer Sereening — 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5 to 7 p.m.
* Chiropractic care — Throughout the fair.

An oncology nurse will be present to teach thorough breast self-examination on a one-to-one basis. She will be available from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. During those same hours, appointments may be made for the mammography van, which will be in the town hall parking lot Saturday, June 4.

Pharmacists will be available to advise those who bring their prescriptions on interactions between drugs.

A licensed acupuncturist will discuss alternative health choices.

Representatives from nutrition counseling services, domestic violence support services, prostate cancer support group, American Heart Association American Cancer Society, Hospice of the South Shore and the Visiting Nurses Association will be present.

The local SHINE representative will be on hand as well as the fire department's emergency medical technicians. Fairgoers will also be able to check out health-care books provided by the Paul Pratt Library.

A basket will be provided for used eyeglasses to be recycled by the Lions Club.

The cost of the cholesterol screenings is being underwritten by the Cohasset Savings Bank. The cost of the hearing van is provided by the Pilgrim Cooperative Bank.

Healthful snacks and drinks have been donated by the Stop and Shop, Sea 'n Cheese and Dunkin Donuts and will be served all day.

Cohasset High School will be the site of the "Convincer" from the office of the Governor's council on Safety. The Convincer is a slant board apparatus that illustrates the value of seat belts upon impact. The Cohasset Police will conduct breath-analyzer demonstrations, and representatives of Cohasset's drug and alcohol committee will be present, as well as representatives of the Board of Health and the South Shore Collaborative discussing the effects of tobacco and second-hand smoke.

Cancer resources open house, May 16

A comprehensive presentation of the many resources offered to South Shore cancer patients and their families through the Service Committee of the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society will highlight a Cancer Resources Open House to be held at the Hersey House, 229 North St., Hingham, Monday, May 16, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Light refreshments will be served and all are welcome.

"We're here to help," Susan McVeigh of Cohasset, chair of the Service Committee, says. "If you, or a family member or a friend, are having a brush with cancer, you owe it to yourself to learn what is available. Many of the volunteers have themselves had an experience with cancer and know the anxieties and needs."

An office in the Hersey House with a "hotline", 749-2535, is the focal point of activities of volunteers who dedicate a few hours regularly to serve cancer patients and their families. The "hotline" is staffed each week-day from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. answering requests for information and services.

The office is prepared to offer the Cancer Society's RIG — Resource, Information and Guidance — services to callers, advising them of the sources of information and assistance that the Society has available.

One of the important services organized by the Service Committee office is the Road to Recovery program involving free transportation of cancer patients to hospitals for treatment or check-ups. Many patients must undergo a program of radiation that involves daily treatments over a period of seven weeks, imposing a burden on families or those without transportation themselves. A corps of volunteer drivers, pledged to one trip a month, are assigned to patients at the driver's convenience.

"At times we have provided free transportation to as many as 10 patients a day," Mrs. McVeigh notes, "and drivers report that the patients are unanimously grateful for this kind of help."

The Service Committee is also able to provide limited financial assistance in cases where this is appropriate.

An explanation of the organization and operating procedure of the Hersey House office will be given at the Open House, as well as a review of the information and services available from the state and national resources of the Cancer Society. For further information and directions to the Hersey House, call 749-2535 between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

South Shore greets spring with daffodils

Scores of volunteers, businesses, hospitals, schools and professionals in nine South Shore communities teamed up again to brighten the start of spring with nearly 120,000 golden daffodils and add $61,500 in support of the American Cancer Society's extensive program of information, education and service in this area.

The highly successful effort was again under the leadership of Pauline and Dennis Sweeney of Quincy who headed a corps of volunteers taking advance orders and selling the blooms at high-traffic areas on the first days of spring. The South Shore Unit serves the communities of Braintree, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth.

"People were clearly ready for some cheery color in their weather as well as wanting to help in the fight against cancer, and we are very grateful to all who participated," Mrs. Sweeney said in announcing the results.

The volunteer sales force merchandised 236 boxes, each containing 50 bouquets of 10 blooms. The flowers are grown on the West Coast, flown here in bud form for delivery on the first day of spring. Overnight in water, the buds burst forth into the familiar yellow blossoms.

Rose DiPietro of Home & Health Resources, Braintree, is present of the South Shore Unit, heading a board of directors representing the nine communities. The Cancer Society maintains an area office at 294 Pleasant St., Stoughton, 02072, (617) 341-4210, which can provide information on cancer, service to patients and volunteer opportunities.

Cohasset volunteers, residents and businesses helped the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society greet spring with a host of golden daffodils and raised $61,500 during the recent Daffodil Days pro-am in support of the Society's program of information, education and service in nine South Shore communities.

Cohasset turned in receipts of $1,805 from the sale of bouquets of the "first flower of spring" in that town. Overall, nearly 120,000 individual blooms and 509 matching vases were sold by volunteers in the nine communities.

"People were clearly ready for some cheery color in their weather, as well as wanting to help in the fight against cancer, and we are very grateful to all who participated," Mrs. Pauline Sweeney, co-chair of the Daffodil Days committee, said in announcing the results.

Flag Day at State House

Selectmen Merle Brown and Martha Gjesteby plan to attend the grand dedication of the Hall of City Flags at the State House, on Flag Day, June 14.

Cohasset has sent a 4x6-ft. town flag to hang in the new Hall of City Flags. During the dedication, flags will be ceremoniously marched into the Hall, in the order that the towns were settled and presented one by one to the Governor or his representative.

Organizers hope that all 351 cities and towns will participate.

Emergency week noted

May 8-15 is Emergency Management Week recognizing those who have contributed and continue to contribute to the well-being and safety of their fellow citizens like paramedics, emergency medical and public safety personnel, National Guard on state active duty, disaster assistance volunteers and emergency management personnel who gave their lives in the line of duty.

Selectmen authorized Cohasset to join in this effort supported by Gov. William Weld and the state legislature.

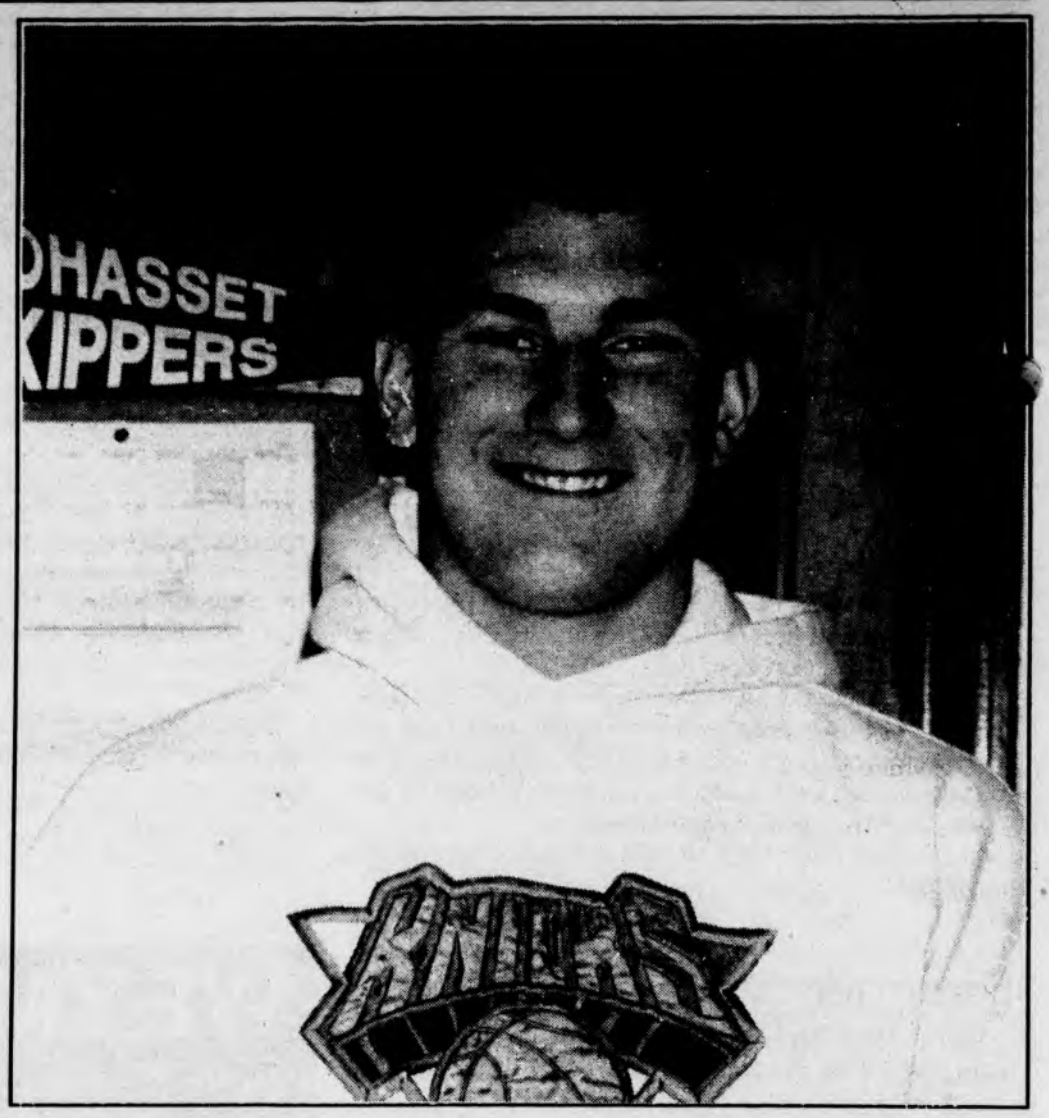
Student of the Month

Brian Pattison



Brian has been a leader as a student athlete in football, basketball and baseball. Coming off a season in which he played injured as a co-captain of our South Shore League Champion Basketball Team, Brian is now volunteering his time as a manager/assistant coach of the baseball team. He is unable to play this season due to a shoulder injury. I feel there is no better example of senior leadership in our school community.

What You Should Know About Hearing Aids

Recently, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) took steps to eliminate unrealistic and occasionally false promises made by some hearing aid manufacturers.

The FDA now requires clinical proof of all claims that relate to the elimination of background noise and the enhancement of hearing ability. Additionally, the FDA now suggests that all hearing aid clients receive a complete hearing evaluation in order to benefit fully from the use of a hearing aid.

At the Braintree Hospital Rehabilitation Network Audiology Division our licensed audiologists are specifically trained to provide:

- comprehensive hearing evaluations that use the latest and best in diagnostic technology
- customized hearing aid fittings and follow-up services that ensure clients will benefit fully from their hearing aids
- 30-day home trial on all models
- senior citizen discounts

If you have questions about your hearing or your hearing aid, call us, we have a long-standing reputation of excellence.

Free Screening for children with learning problems

Norwell A free screening will determine if the cause of your childs learning problems is due to poor visual processing. Some of the many symptoms displayed by children with learning disabilities often include:

- clumsiness
- doing work slowly
- avoidance of reading
- concentration
- trouble copying
- inability to sit still
- letter reversals
- careless errors
- poor hand-eye coordination
- forgetting what has just been read

HELP IS AVAILABLE
Now a team of professionals in the fields of vision, psychology, and education has developed a remarkable therapy program called VIP. This intense, one-on-one program attacks the causes of these problems and dramatically improves a child's ability to learn and the speed at which he learns. This unique program is now available by Dr. Han Dong, a practicing optometrist for 25 years.

FREE EVALUATION
There is a free screening for children between the ages of six and 16. It includes a series of 18 tests that measure concentration, visual memory, letter reversals, eye-hand coordination, visual teaming, focusing, and sensory integration. After the screening is completed, you receive results and recommendations.

THE TIME TO ACT IS NOW
If your child is between six and 16 years of age, call us today at (617) 659-1444 to set up an appointment for a free screening. Can you afford to pass up the possible explanation for your child's baffling lack of success in school? This therapy is covered by most major insurance policies.
Call (617) 659-1444 to schedule screening.

School council elections

Anyone who has not received a school council election ballot by Monday May 2 should call Ruth Wilcox at 383-1827. Ballots for each school's election are being mailed directly to parents.

Ballots must be returned to the specific school office by 4 p.m. Friday May 6. There is a box in each school office for ballots.

Candidates will be contacted with results as soon as the ballots are counted and verified. Results will be announced at the PSO general meting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday May 18 in the high school cafeteria.

Parenting workshops set

The elementary school adjustment counselors are offering a series of four parenting workshops from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Thursdays in the "living room" at First Parish House, Main St.

April 28 — Looking at Your Parenting Style

May 5 — Summary of Lee Canter's "Assertive Discipline for Parents"

May 12 — Self-esteem...What Can a Parent Do?

May 19 — Teaching Responsibility and Respect to Children

The workshops are open to any Cohassset parent and will be led by Ed Leonard and Frank Fitzgerald who have extensive experience consulting with parents. The success and appeal of the workshops offered earlier in the year has prompted this four-part series that will include parts of Canter's "Assertive Discipline" as well as information from the "STEP Parenting" and "How to Talk so Children Will Listen (And Listen so Children Will Talk)" programs.

Even if you attended the earlier workshops, the series will offer much more as well as a refresher. Attend any or all of the dates. Call Ed or Frank at 383-6115 or 383-6117 for information.

Award recipients named

Michael Baird, James Bigley, Lucius Caldwell, Susana Candia, Benjamin Littauer, James O'Sullivan, Alexander Sckwerin, Benjamin Smoot, all seventh graders at Cohasset Junior/Senior High School, have been selected to receive awards for their achievement in the Talent Search Program sponsored by Johns Hopkins University.

Cohasset High School has participated in the CTY Talent Search for the past 11 years. Talent Search is a program sponsored by Johns Hopkins University's Center for the Advancement of Academically Talented Youth. The goal of the program is to identify the most academically talented seventh graders, offer those students summer educational programs, and provide them with recognition at state and regional ceremonies. Each year for the past 11 years the Cohasset Public Schools has received a Johns Hopkins Certificate for Distinction in this competition.

Initially, students are selected based on their scores on the ERH tests administered each year. Students scoring at the 97th percentile or higher on those tests in the sixth grade are encouraged to participate in the program. If they wish to enter, they take the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Board in December or January of the seventh grade. If their scores approximate the averages of eleventh and twelfth graders taking the test, they are singled out for distinction or to receive awards at state or regional ceremonies.

The state regional awards will be presented to qualifying students at a ceremony to be held Sunday, June 5, at Boston University.

Women: don't feel guilty about happiness, columnist says

By Lynne Layman & Pat Carleton
Special to the Mariner

April 14, on a beautiful spring morning at the Chart House on Cohasset Harbor, more than 100 gathered to hear Linda Weltner address the topic of "The Courage to Nurture" — the role of altruism for the Woman of the '90s and how to avoid burnout.

The talk was sponsored by the Social Service League of Cohasset, which for more than 80 years has provided health maintenance and education and social services to Cohasset, as well as to the four neighboring towns of Hingham, Hull, Norwell and Scituate. It is primarily funded through the proceeds of the Consignment Shop at Cushing Plaza.

As she does in her column, "Ever So Humble," which for the past 13 years has appeared in the At Home section of The Boston Globe, Weltner hoped that others could see more deeply into themselves by her sharing insights about her own family and feelings. Her candor and self-revelations were warmly received.

She noted one reason that mothers are under such attack in our culture is that society has so changed that mothers are the only consistent source for people to turn to for nurturing. Similarly, it's been tracked that in general, 85 percent of what people say to each other is negative.

To avoid such generalized negativity, she suggests using meditative states to say something positive to your subconscious. One which is particularly helpful to her, includes the affirmation, "We have everything we need to enjoy the here and now — you have lots of time to be miserable later." She encourages people to make their own happiness their goal, to feel whole and unharmed. Rather than being a selfish goal, a happy person only does good.

Barbara Donahue, Judy Karpinski, Boston Globe Columnist Linda Weltner, Liz Farquhar, and Pat Carleton take a break following Weltner's talk sponsored by the Social Service League.

She shared anecdotes to show how she has resolved some interpersonal relationships and stresses. A generalized chuckle was heard as she shared stories of her own "mother-in-law-from-hell." She realized that her 30 years of anger towards this woman had made her bitter and unhappy. Through the Option Institute, a forum for which she credits much of her own gains in inner peace, she truly "got it" that other people do not cause our feelings. We choose our reaction to someone else's actions. Instead of happiness, the booby prize goes to the one who holds onto their view of the world, with the need to be right at all cost.

Baseball team better than its one-win record

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Ron Ford has his varsity baseball team out six days a week going through the fundamentals he hopes will strengthen the Skippers' program this season and in the seasons to come.

Bunting, infield, outfield, hit and run, base running and individual batting are all covered during the team's practice sessions. Ford, Cohasset's first-year coach, has vowed not to leave a stone unturned as he whips his Skipper squad into an all-around club.

So far, the hitting and pitching have emerged as Cohasset's definite strengths, seven games into the season. Unfortunately, the problems begin when the batters reach base safely and are transformed into base runners.

The same holds true for the Skippers' defense. Ford expected the infield and outfield play to be a strong point, but that has yet to materialize.

The result is a deceiving 1-6 start for Cohasset. The Skippers are not nearly as bad as their record would supposedly indicate. But playing in the South Shore League, arguably one of the best baseball leagues in the state, is hardly the proper surroundings for a squad trying to get on an even keel.

"In baseball, this is an absolute monster of a league," said Ford. "It's going to take a while to really compete in it."

The Skippers have definite potential with what Ford calls "kind of a big mix" of youth and seasoned veterans in the lineup. He is confident it is just a matter of time before Cohasset begins to sneak up and surprise some of the league's tougher clubs.

"I think we're on the edge of doing something," Ford said. "If our defense could support our pitching we'd be more more competitive. No pitcher has overpowered us. We have a 1-6 record, but we're not that far off."

Ford is particularly pleased with the outings put forth by his pitching staff. Nick Welz and Scott Theriault have been exceptionally strong on the mound, and sophomore Greg Stevens and Joe Magner, a freshman, can get the job done in supporting roles.

The team's best player has hardly surprised Ford. Catcher Chris Rolandelli is the Skippers' most consistent hitter and all-around player. Not only does Rolandelli provide much of Cohasset's muscle with the bat, but he is also the backbone of the squad when it is in the field.

"Chris is a solid catcher and leader," Ford said.

Rolandelli got off to a strong season at the plate but has leveled off recently. However, Ford isn't losing sleep wondering if his star player is going to shake the mini slump. He believes it is just a matter of time before Rolandelli finds his rhythm at the plate once more.

Freshman Kevin McKenna contributed in a huge way to the Skippers' lone victory of the season when he drove home the game-winning RBI to give Cohasset a 6-3 decision over non-league Chatham.

The Skippers haven't exactly been blown off the field by the rest of the SSL. Sloppy defense proved to be Cohasset's demise in 3-1 losses to Norton and Carver.

"Our base running and defense have killed us," said Ford.

Cohasset isn't the only team having its problems in the SSL. Scituate, who beat the Skippers, 13-4, on Wednesday are also a better squad than their record would indicate.

"Scituate has only one league win," Ford pointed out, "and they're not a bad team."

With a good JV team and youngsters like Magner, Stevens, McKenna, Grant Emde and Rob Buckley still developing and learning from the veteran players, Ford can only see good things on the diamond for Cohasset.

"In the future, I think this is going to be a good team," he said.

The Cohasset Junior/ Senior High School gymnastics team received its first-place finish banner during a recent banquet at Kimball's by the Sea. Athletic director Clark Chatterton presented the award to the squad.

shoot at will from the outside.

The offensive explosion resulted in eight different players scoring for Cohasset. Ken Leahy led the way with three goals and three more assists, giving the sophomore 12 goals and four assists on the season.

Brett McQuarrie also tallied home three goals, while Ben Redfield, Chris McKenna and Andy Collins found the back of the net two times apiece.

Chris Adams, who leads the team in goals (14) and total points (26), Charlie Endris and Kevin Smith all had one goal each. Adams and Endris each had a pair of assists. Endris is just one point behind Adams in overall team points with 25 (13 goals, 12 assists).

Despite the lopsided score, or perhaps because of it, Cohasset was called on a number of "mental mistakes" against Bedford. Ekberg said he was disappointed with the sloppy penalties, some of which included a stick and mouth piece violation and procedural calls. But he said the lack of a close contest could have contributed to the penalties.

Ekberg certainly hopes that was the case because the violations won't sit too well with him if they pop up during the course of one or two-goal game. "Midway through the season we can't make mistakes like that," Ekberg said. "We have to improve in that area.

"(The Bedford game) illuminated a number of areas where we have to get better at."

The Skippers are still waiting to hear whether or not last year's 50-goal scorer Chris Goodman will be able to play this season. Goodman, a league and Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic in '93, is still a question mark because of a circulatory problem in his leg.

Ekberg said Goodman has been "seeing a battery of doctors" have yet to determine the exact cause of the problem.

"He's feeling pretty good right now," Ekberg said. "But at the same time, he doesn't know what the problem is.

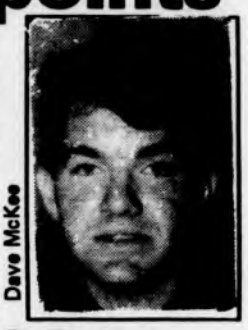
"He's certainly missed. Where that's going to end up, I don't know. Taking a 50-goal scorer out of the lineup is going to make an impact."

Cohasset will just have to hope an impact can be made against Duxbury if it turns out Goodman doesn't return.

'Boys Night' registrations being taken

Registration is now being taken for "Boys Night Out" at the Cohasset Community Center. Boys ages 5-11 are invited to attend. The evening consists of obstacle course, gymnastics, bowling, make your own pizza. Cost is $15 for non-members and $13 for members. No drop-ins! Friday, May 13, from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m. Call the center today at 383-0088.

extra points



by Joe & Dave

It is time to stop the insanity.

The warm weather is upon us and before you know it, everyone will be wearing shorts and tank tops.

Are you in shape?

Well if you are, congratulations and move on to the "Around Town" or police blotter section of the paper. This column is not for you.

However, if you're not certain, there are five simple ways to tell if you're out of shape.

1. When you walk do your thighs rub together and cause enough heat to warm up an Egg McMuffin?

2. Have you been banned from 'All you can eat Rib night'?

3. Did the owner of the local Dairy Queen send you a letter of congratulations for helping put his kid through college?

4. Do you have the Domino's Pizza Delivery number on automatic speed dial on your phone?

5. Do people stop you on the street and ask to rub your belly for good luck?

If you answered yes to any of these questions it is time to shape up.

And being one of the nation's top fitness and health experts, I will offer (free of charge) a plan for everyone to get lean and mean for the summer months.

While I am not a doctor, I've seen just about every M*A*S*H episode and Doc was my favorite of the Seven Dwarfs.

Nutrition

Forget about beer, cheeseburgers, pizza and nachos. It is time for spring water, pine cones and brown rice.

Here's a simple motto: If it doesn't grow in the ground or get plucked off a tree, it doesn't go in your mouth.

Eat a carrot, munch on some celery or eat a handful of tree bark. These products are high in fiber, have no fat and can be easily found in the forest.

(By the way, have you ever seen a fat bunny? I rest my case.)

For a quick protein fix, eat Junebugs (very high in protein, almost no fat and they are easy to pick off your screen door at night if you leave a light on.)

And to wash down all these goodies, drink water, grapefruit juice or diet Tang.

After a few days of this eating plan, the fat will start to melt off your body.

Of course, you may get searing headaches from a lack of proper nutrition, but you can't make an omelette without breaking a few eggs.

Exercise

Without proper exercise, your muscles will wilt and tank tops will hang off your shoulders like they're on a coat hanger.

Running is a great exercise to lose weight. Run 30 minutes four or five times a week.

Running bounces all that flab off your body and will make your calves as tight as piano wire.

If you want to increase the intensity of your running workout, wear three to four heavy sweat shirts and put weights on your wrists.

You'll feel like you're running into a hurricane and you'll sweat like a pig but the pounds will fall away.

Call the center today at 383-0088 for more information.

Sectional qualifiers

Maggie Goedecke and Corey Sullivan qualified for the Level 5 compulsory gymnastic sectional that was held at Merrimack Valley in Methuen.

Maggie received a second place finish in the vault (8.55) and balance beam (8.15).

Corey Sullivan received a fourth place finish on balance beam (8.55) and showed great improvement on the vault.

Maggie Goedecke and Corey Sullivan train at the Cohasset Community Center Gymnast In Motion Program.

Melanie Suddath will be competing in the Level 5 states along with teammate Caitlin Flint who will be competing in Level 6.

Good luck in the states!

Join the sailing club

Applications are now available to Cohasset residents for 1994 membership in the Cohasset Sailing Club. Family and senior citizen memberships are available. The Sailing Club offers junior and adult training on its fleet of ten 15-foot Cape Cod Mercuries and seven Turnabouts. Membership applications were mailed to every residence in Cohasset the week of April 18.

Applicants for junior training need not have any prior sailing experience but must have completed fourth grade or be at least ten years old by August 28, and must be able to swim 75 yards. Junior Training spans five levels, from basic to the more advanced, including Sailor, Mate, Skipper, Captain, and Sailing Master. The learning process includes a combination of classroom instruction and sailing. At the junior level, two-hour classes are given three days a week. Junior classes start Monday, June 27. Adult Training includes two levels: Basic and Intermediate Sailing; Basic on Saturday morning and Intermediate on Sunday morning, both for three hours, starting July 2.

The Club's fleet is available for open sailing to any member who has the necessary sailing knowledge. Open sailing is 5 p.m. to sunset Monday through Thursday, 3 p.m. to sunset Friday, and 12 p.m. to sunset on weekends.

Dock spaces are available at the Sailing Club for individuals who would like to tie up their dinghies. Boats up to 12 feet in length and up to 5 feet in beam can be accommodated. There are also some float berths for board boats.

This year's calendar of special events includes a Hot Dog Jamboree to get acquainted Tuesday, June 28, a Lobster Festival Saturday, August 6, and the Awards Ceremonies with clam chowder Sunday, August 28. A Kids Fun Day will be held in July with date and time to be announced.

Volunteers are also needed. All members are asked to help with at least one of the following areas: float maintenance and set up, publicity, membership management, building and grounds, dock space management, boat maintenance, social activities and adult training.

If you have any questions on the program, call Bob Davenport at 383-1932 or Larry Mitchell at 383-9888.

If you did not receive an application, one can be picked up at the Cohasset Library, the Recreation Department office at Town Hall, or by calling Kevin O'Connor at 383-1290.

Membership applications should be mailed to: Cohasset Sailing Club, Inc., P.O. Box 111, Cohasset, MA 02025. Applications are due no later than May 15. Please note this application deadline is earlier than in past years.

Girls softball forming for grades 7-9

Anyone interested in registering for the Girls Softball League can still do so by stopping by the Deer Hill School office, Jr./Sr. High School office or by calling Rose Collins at 383-0760 for a registration form. Registration forms will also be available during the evaluation session Saturday, April 30, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The Division 2 Girls Softball Season, grades 7 to 9, will commence after the jv and varsity high school seasons end so as to avoid any conflict of schedule or commitment. Division 2 teams will play against each other as well as teams from Norwell and Scituate. Games will be played Tuesdays and Thursdays at either the Barnes Field or Beechwood Ballpark.

Registering climbing classes

Adult — Introduction to Climbing

An introduction to climbing in a supportive group atmosphere and safe environment of the CHS Ropes course.

There are two essential goals in this course. First, all climbers will learn safe and proper use of equipment, climbing knots, how to belay another climber and how to rappel. In addition, you will learn ropes course safety procedures. Secondly, the individual will experience the joy of learning new skills and the rewards of challenging oneself in the context of a group relationship.

One five-week session, Wednesdays, 6 to 8 p.m.; $50 includes use of all equipment and staff to operate climbing facility. The maximum enrollment is 12.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791. You can enroll as a group or individual.

Softball evaluation session April 30

The Girls Softball League will be holding an evaluation session Saturday, April 30, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Cohasset High School. Girls planning to play softball in the Girls Softball League are urged to attend this meeting. Fourth-grade participants will meet at the back field while grades 5 to 9 will meet at the front field. If you have not yet registered it is not too late. Registration forms will be available during the evaluation session.

The purpose of this meeting is to assess participants strengths and weaknesses in order to form balanced teams. Please bring your glove. For additional information, please call Rose Collins at 383-0760.

Another great exercise for weight loss is bicycling.

Of course safety comes first, so always wear a helmet, pedal with the traffic and watch out for those pot holes.

I recommend 45 minutes of pedalling at top speed four or five times a week.

Keep your head down and never dip below 10th gear.

Nice and quiet pedals through scenic countrysides are not for the serious trainer.

Pedal like you have pit bull nipping at your heels.

To tone up that upper body, either lift weights or volunteer several days a week on a highway road gang.

Handling a jack hammer for six hours straight will make those biceps, triceps and shoulders bulge.

As for weights, do curls and presses and make sure to grunt loudly. This will make you sound cool.

Results

If this total plan is followed, you can lose 10 pounds a week, guaranteed. Forget about Richard Simmons and all his deal-a-meal nonsense.

By the time July rolls around, your stomach will look like a washboard, your arms will be ripping with muscles and you will be able to run like the wind.

But once you get into shape, temptation will arise and you will have the urge to order a large pie with everything on it.

This will ruin everything and you'll end up putting back that 35 pounds you lost in one hideous feast.

Just say no and go get a healthy snack.

They may be dry and not as fulfilling as a pizza, but just remember all those long embarrassing hours shopping in the big and tall sections.

(Remember that time when you asked that sales guy, "Do you have this in triple extra-large?)

I know, things can get tough.

But remember, when the going gets tough, the tough eat a carrot stick.

Two years ago the world was stunned when Los Angeles Lakers great, Magic Johnson, announced during a press conference his test for HIV, the infection that leads to AIDS, proved positive.

Johnson immediately retired from professional basketball because of the seriousness of his condition.

But that was hardly the last we've heard from Magic. In fact, he has been in the news so much in the last couple of years, you would think Roseanne and Tom are his new agents.

And check out the resume. Magic has been one busy dude since he hung up his Converse in the revolving closet.

Welcome to the "Magic Mystery Tour."

After an overblown retirement ceremony at the Forum, Magic came back. Magic then played one game and called it quits for a second time. Magic toured Europe with an exhibition basketball squad. Magic became head coach of the Lakers. Magic decided he wouldn't return as head coach next season. Magic has hinted at another comeback. Before you know it, Magic will take over for Arsenio Hall, while at the same time serving as Howard Stern's running mate in his bid to become the new governor of New York.

I've always liked Magic's personality and love for the game. And I'll still take a highlight film of his picture-perfect passes over Michael Jordan's tonque-waggling dunks anytime.

Unfortunately, Magic has one huge character flaw. He is an egomaniac. Unlike Larry Bird, who never craved media attention, Magic cannot stand not being a part of things anymore. He simply has to be in the news. He has to be the news, no matter what the topic.

All this is a shame too because he could have been remembered solely for his extraordinary talent on the basketball court, and not for the antics that have transpired since his "retirement."

Besides, why do Bostonians need to read about "Little Magic Everything" when we have Ray Flynn's "maybe I will, maybe I won't" foolishness to keep us "riveted" to the newspaper.

The fact is basketball no longer needs Magic. With Shaquille O'Neal, Chris Webber, Alonzo Mourning, J.R. Rider and Harold Miner just a few of the bright stars of the future, the sport is alive and well. Veterans Hakeem Olajuwon, Patrick Ewing, Chris Mullin and Scottie Pippen still have some good years left as well.

Charles Barkley, another NBA star who has always been popular with the media, will be glad to hear that the league won't fold if he retires. Barley has also become tiresome in his talk of this being his final season. He has more important things to do. Barkley plans to become involved in politics.

Bruins' coach Brian Sutter was right on the mark when he said the Canadiens couldn't match his squad. Of course Montreal is still going to win the series because they have, far and away the best goaltender in the N.H.L. with Patrick Roy and his appendicitis.

Montreal managed only 15 shots on the Bruins in their 5-2 victory in Game 4. Boston pelted Roy with 41 of their own but "Saint Patrick" was more than ready for the challenge. John Casey wasn't nearly as sharp with just 10 saves.

The Bruins can't play much better than they did in their last two games. The only difference was Roy. He usually is when Montreal plays Boston or any other top team.

—J.R.

Interestingly enough, the one "perk" women's wheelchair marathon world record-holder Jean Driscoll wasn't particularly looking forward to this year after winning her fifth consecutive Boston Marathon was the traditional jog with the President, two days later.

During last year's run with President Clinton, a van brimming with media personalities rode alongside the Boston winners. Instead of asking about his comments on the race, the reporters were picking the President's brain on topics ranging from the economy to foreign affairs.

Driscoll also said she is not a particular fan of Clinton's, although she had been in the past.

Driscoll was probably more concerned this year with what she was going to put on the President's tab when they came across the first McDonalds, always a prerequisite on Clinton's stomping grounds.

SUPPORT GROUP FOR CAREGIVERS

The Hingham VNA and the Cohasset CoA co-sponsor a support group for caregivers. Meetings are held the second Friday of the month at the Community Center from 10 a.m. to noon. If you or someone you know is providing care for a family member, friend or neighbor and have issues of concern you would like to discuss, join us. You can call the CoA at 383-9112.

The Affiliated Visiting Nurse Associations serving 21 South Shore towns have developed a home health Alzheimer's Disease/Dementia program for the benefit of patients and family members affected by Alzheimer's Disease and related disorders. The program will provide assessment, teaching, management and care services. Patients' health insurance benefits, (Medicare, Medicaid, BC/BS HMO) will be utilized whenever possible. You may call the Hingham VNA at 749-1160 for further information.

South Shore Elder Services has developed a program called "Wings" — Where Intergenerations Network to Give and Share. This program was developed to bring generations together to help meet some of the needs of the community. Volunteers are recruited through the schools and CoA to offer free services to both the young and old. Services range from shoveling or raking to being a mentor for a student. To find out more about the program, call Christine Bowden at 848-3910.

Jewelers sales benefit DOVE

The King women at King Jewelers in Cohasset have long been sponsors of Domestic Violence Ended on both a personal and professional basis. Valerie King and her family support a DOVE family every Christmas.

"Traditionally, a DOVE mother makes a list of toys her children would enjoy. She usually never asks anything for herself. Over the years, I have always sent along something extra...a piece of jewelry, a sweater," Valerie said.

When DOVE called to ask if King Jewelers could assist in fund-raising for a new area shelter, Valerie, her mother and sister, June and Vicky King, agreed they wanted to help.

Customers will be offered a 10 percent discount off all purchases the three days before Mother's Day, May 5, 6 and 7. Ten percent of the gross sales will directly benefit DOVE.

DOVE is a Quincy-based organization providing shelter and counseling for as many as 500 women and their families who have been victims of domestic violence.

Celebration is planned

The Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation plans a ribbon cutting from noon to 3 p.m., Sunday, May 15 as a celebration recognizing the official opening of the Minot Ledge Lighthouse Keepers' Residence.

Highlights include: United States Coast Guard Navigational Aids Display, open house aboard the USCG 46' boat, South Shore Concert Band, Cohasset Historical Society period costumes, Minot Ledge Lighthouse Historical Display, and dedication of Bancroft Hall, with honored guest Jane Bancroft Cook.

"Pierson to Person"

Host Wigmore Pierson's guests Thursday April 28 will be six Westwood High School students. They will discuss dating, athletics, violence in schools, academics and problems of adolescents growing up in the 1990s.

"Pierson to Person" is broadcast live from 8 to 9 p.m. each Thursday from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham and Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset. The public is invited to be part of the studio audience. Those planning to attend should be at the studio on Gannett Road by 7:30 p.m.

For information call Robert Belliveau at 545-2500.

Register for boys' night out

The Cohasset Community Center is taking registrations for "Boys Night Out," an evening of bowling, obstacle course, gymnastics and pizza making.

Boys Night Out for ages 5 through 11 will be from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m. Friday May 13.

Pre-registration is required.

Beach cleanup May 7

There will be a beach cleanup day at Black Rock Beach from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday May 7. This is an annual effort of volunteers to make the beach a more pleasant place for everyone.

Call Lori Merliss at 383-0232 for information.

'Prisoner of Second Avenue'

Neil Simon's "Prisoner of Second Avenue" will be presented by the Cohasset Dramatic Club. Active member, Stephanie Pedigo is undergoing her first directing experience. Paula Cianciarula is producer. Members of the cast are Bernie McNaulty, Marshfield, as the leading man, Mel Edison; Cohasset's Angi Walsh plays his wife, Edna; Debbie Fitzpatrick from Scituate is cast as Mel's sister, Pearl; Roberta Raffa of Cohasset plays a second sister, Pauline; and Hull's Ray Herzberg is Mel's brother, Harry. Special "Voices" will be heard from Carolyn Keys and Skip Keith. Credits for set design go to Dwight Dibona, assisted by Roger Hill and Skip Keith. Tom Finnegan is in charge of lighting and Carolyn Keys, sound.

Performances are Friday, April 29; Saturday, April 30; Friday, May 6; and Saturday, May 7 at 8 p.m. Tickets at door $6 for senior citizens and $8 for general admission. For further information call Stephanie at 925-3648.

Entries for art festival

The South Shore Art Center is encouraging artists and photographers to submit entries into two juried exhibitions to be featured in the 39th Art Festival at the "Festival on the Common," in Cohasset June 17 through 19. Interested artists should deliver their entries to the art center at 119 Ripley Rd., Cohasset from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday May 20 or from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday May 21.

The juried art exhibition includes oil & acrylics, drawing & pastels, watercolor, graphics, mixed media and three-dimensional work. Artists may submit up to three pieces with a non-refundable fee of $8 per entry. Judges for the exhibition are Marilyn Pappas, an award-winning Boston artist who is a professor of art at Mass. College of Art; Audrey Pepper, owner of Pepper Gallery on Newbury Street in Boston; and Charles Stigliano, an associate professor of sculpture at Mass. College of Art whose work has been commissioned throughout the Northeast.

An awards ceremony will be held at 6 p.m. Friday June 17 under the main art tent on Cohasset Common. The exhibitions will be on display throughout festival weekend from 1 to 8 p.m. Friday June 17, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday June 18 and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday June 19.

For an entry form and information call 383-9548.

'Affirming Diversity'

There will be a public forum in the continuing "Affirming Diversity" series at Old Ship Parish House, 107 Main St., Hingham at 7 p.m. Sunday May 1.

The forum will feature "A Family Outing," a documentary video by Joanne Berman. It is the story of a family's response to the coming out of a family member. Three of the film participants, Lori Bertram and her parents, will be present for the discussion following the video.

The forum is sponsored by the Welcoming Congregation Committee of Old Ship Church, a free church sheltering persons of diverse points of view.

There is a suggested donation of $5.

For information call Elizabeth Torrey at 749-0543.

Planning for college

Bonnie Hepburn, CFP will discuss planning for a college education from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday May 11 at the Hingham Community Center.

Hepburn will give an overview of the financial aid process and show participants how to estimate aid eligibility. The remainder of the class examines different types of investments, including money market funds, CDs, savings bonds, mutual funds, life insurance, retirement vehicles and tax-credit programs. Investments are evaluated on how they meet criteria for college funding.

Call 749-9786 for information.

Junior Voices return from West Coast concert tour

By Judith Brennan
Mariner correspondent

Local youth just returned Sunday from a triumphant concert tour in Seattle, Washington.

It truly was "sea to shining sea" when the Mercer Island Children's Choir invited the South Shore Junior Voices to be its guest for four days of local performances and to participate in their annual music festival. Seven groups in all sang at the festival on Friday night, five from the Seattle area, one from Colorado, and the Junior Voices (J.V.'s). The children sang for each other in a beautiful contemporary church with a glass wall as a backdrop.

"It was quite dramatic to see the sun fading and night settling as the children sang," said Margo Euler, the group's music director.

More than 200 children performed at the annual event, sharing their talent and enthusiasm for music. The culminating event came Saturday night when the J.V.'s, with their host group, sang "Rhythm of Life", a complicated three-part singing performance accompanied by synchronized motions (choralography) which they had only one day to learn.

Eleven Mercer Island families made it all possible when they played host to the 22 South Shore children and their ten chaperones, including Euler, a Hingham resident. Due to the creative travel arrangements of one of the children's mothers, and because of the extraordinary generosity and support of the Mercer Island families, not one child who wished to perform was left behind because of financial problems.

In all, there are 44 children who belong to the Junior Voices choir, ranging from grades four through six.

How this exciting concert tour came about is most unusual. Cailen Summer and Jessica Tooker came to this country as Korean orphan babies. Coincidentally, they landed with their chaperone in Seattle and then traveled on to Boston where their new families awaited them.

The two families, the Summers and the Tookers, formed a lasting friendship. When Cailen's family moved to Mercer Island they kept up the friendship. Last summer while Cailen was here visiting Jessica she saw a tape of the J. V.'s performance they had done for a local cable channel. She suggested to her mother that maybe they could invite the Junior Voices out to Mercer Island to perform with her choir. Thus as the result of a lifelong friendship between two children and the hard work of two very supportive mothers, this extraordinary tour came about.

Euler, who also directs the Bare Cove Chorale and the Unicorn Singers, is proud of these young singers.

"It's quite an accomplishment to be in such a group of gifted young people. We need to inspire this kind of hard work in children where the results are so positive.

"They really outshone themselves, not just in voice, but in maturity. They were inspired by the warmth and friendliness of the host group," Euler said.

The group, which is made up of children from Scituate, Cohasset, Hingham, and Norwell, will hold a joint spring concert with the Broad Cove Chorale at 7:30 p.m. May 6 at the Congregational Church on Cohasset Common.

All are welcome to this gala event. A preview c[oncert] for seniors will be held on May 3 from 4 to 5:30 p.[m.] ticket information call Noble's Camera in Hin[gham] Square at 749-6561.

Parents who are interested in their children becoming part of this unique singing group may contact Margo Euler by calling 749-7890.

Cohasseters go on tour

Two young singers from Cohasset have just returned from an unforgettable experience: they spent four days during spring vacation traveling to and around Mercer Island and Seattle, Wash., as members of Junior Voices.

Kelsey Henderson and Mareth Collins-Wooley were among the 22 children, grades 4-6, who made the long trip to the west coast to accept the invitation of the Mercer Island Children's Choir to visit and sing with them. A busy schedule of sight-seeing in Seattle, concerts during the day (while the host children were in school), rehearsing with the host choir and performing in two major evening concerts, plus happy visits with host families (all of whom received five-star ratings from the South Shore children!) were the main events. "My host family was hospitable and kind; staying with them was fun," said Mareth.

Decision due on harbor boat yard fate

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

A district court judge should have a decision within a week if a local boat yard can stay at its current location in Cohasset harbor.

Frank Carey, owner of the Mill River Marine Railway, Inc., who has operated the boat yard for more than 2-1/2 decades, faces possible eviction.

Selectmen Chairman Michael H. Sullivan said nothing further had been done that he was aware of.

The 16,000 square-foot harbor-front parcel, which includes the boat yard, sold about a year ago for $350,000 to William Hanney who reportedly wants to build a residence at the harbor site.

Hanney, who bought the property from Peoples Bank of Brockton which had foreclosed on the prior owner, is trying to evict the boat yard business.

Shaw's plans for Cushing Plaza advance

By Marilyn Jackson
Mariner staff

Within a year, Cohasset's Cushing Plaza should have a new look with a Shaw's supermarket and some additional retail space.

Plans call for razing the three existing buildings situated in the 9.7-acre plaza at the intersection of Route 3A and Beechwood Street and construct a 71,650-square-foot linear building or strip.

Cost of the rehabilitation project is estimated to be about $2 million. Construction would take about six months. If all permits are secured quickly, work could begin as early as late fall.

Meanwhile, negotiations are currently under way to acquire an additional 17.8 acres of land adjacent to the plaza to accommodate an innovative, on-site septic system.

Presently, 2.6 acres belong to Bergson Ice Cream; 10 acres belong to Ralph Tedeschi and 2.5 acres belong to Ledgemere Realty Trust. Another 2.7 acres are part of a lot on Beechwood Street which are owned by Osborne Ingram.

According to the proposed site plan, the supermarket would occupy 46,000 square feet, while 9,750 square feet of attached retail space would be on the

Hagerty committee volunteers are sought

Selectmen are looking for two more volunteers to serve on the Hagerty Committee which is studying possible public uses for the two-acre site off Parker Avenue.

Interested citizens should send a written note stating they would like to serve to the selectmen's office. For more information call the selectmen's office at 383-9900 or contact Selectman Merle S. Brown.

The committee is hard at work trying to determine how best to develop the site for recreational use for all town citizens. Demolition of the hodgepodge of metal factory buildings which formerly housed work rooms for Cohasset Colonials, a furniture kit manufacturer, should be completed this week.

The Victorian house, which contained the show room for the furniture; a metal cutting room that is an eyesore but is functional and is in good shape; and an antique boat house will remain at the site for the time being. In the coming months, the committee will determine whether to move the boat house to its original location on Government Island and if the metal cutting room should be torn down or remain to be used for water-related activities.

The town purchased the harbor-front site from Mary Hagerty last year.

Absentee ballots available

Absentee ballots are available at the town clerk's office for the special town election Saturday May 14. Voters may apply for absentee ballots if they will be out of town, have a physical disability or because of religious beliefs.

Absentee voting may be done in the office of the town clerk during regular business hours until noon Friday May 13.

A written signed request for a ballot may be sent to the clerk and one will be mailed out. Included on the application should be your name as registered, your registration address, precinct, the address to which you wish the ballot sent and your signature. Applications may also be picked up at the office.

The clerk's office will be closed at noon Friday May 13 in preparation for the election.

For information call the clerk's office at 383-9900 ext. 105, 106 or 107.

Animal shelter open house

The Friends of the Scituate Animal Shelter is hosting an open house this Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at the shelter on the Driftway. A plaque will be presented to Lorette Darian, a founder and volunteer of the shelter.

The animal shelter serves Cohasset.

Director Susan Phippen reported 110 animal adoptions last year. Through adoption fees, as well as private boarding and leash levies, the shelter collected $14,000.

On-line computer service

Norfolk County Register of Deeds Barry T. Hannon said the Registry of Deeds "Norfolk Compu-Search" System is now available. This is an on-line computer service allowing off site access to the indices and other information compiled at the Registry of Deeds in Dedham.

"We have 20 years of recorded information available — information from January 1974 through yesterday," Hannon said.

"I expect that attorneys, banks and real estate offices will be our principal users; however, we have already had inquiries from as far away as California regarding our services."

The information will be available through a computer modem-telephone line. There will be a minimal charge for the on-line service which will help defray the cost of the computerization and modernization at the Registry of Deeds. "This system will be a great convenience and will save time and money for those using our services."

The Registry of Deeds maintains records of all real estate transactions in the 28 communities (27 towns and the City of Quincy) that comprise Norfolk County.

Those wishing to apply for the service may write to: Registry of Deeds, Barry T. Hannon, P.O. Box 69, Dedham, MA 02027.

Licenses are renewed

Selectmen this week renewed South Shore Music Circus licenses for public entertainment and food on Sunday and weekdays and to run a limousine service to pick up artists at the airport. License fees paid by South Shore Playhouse Associates doing business as the Music Circus amounted to $335 to the town and $80 to the state.

Satisfied that the restaurant had solved its problems regarding staying within the wastewater limits set by the sewer commission, selectmen also renewed the food license for the Olde Salt House in Cohasset Harbor this week.

south side of the building and, on the north side, some 13,500 square feet of retail space.

In addition, a 2,400-square-foot building is proposed south of Bergson's.

Bergson's, a 90-seat restaurant, will remain.

Parking would be provided for 443 vehicles, compared to the present 363 spaces, but there will be room for an additional 200 spaces in the future near the Pine Ridge Road boundary, behind Bergson's, behind the proposed stand-alone building and along Beechwood Street.

The design also calls for getting rid of the eight existing driveways into the plaza — three on Beechwood Street and the others on the highway.

Instead, there would be one entrance at Bergson's on Route 3A and one on Beechwood Street, and traffic would be routed through the plaza.

Traffic on both roads would increase from an estimated 6,259 daily trips now to 8,435 daily trips.

The wastewater disposal system would have an 8,555-gallon-per-day capacity, said Jack Mettee of Appledore Engineering Inc. of Newmarket, N.H., which is doing the engineering design for the project.

Presently, the wastewater flow estimate at Cushing Plaza totals 13,827 gallons per day, but with fewer businesses in the plaza, the water usage would be reduced considerably.

The septic system has been designed so that the various leaching fields would be used alternately, so that one of the fields would be at rest for up to six months, according to the environmental notification form filed with the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs last month by Appledore for review.

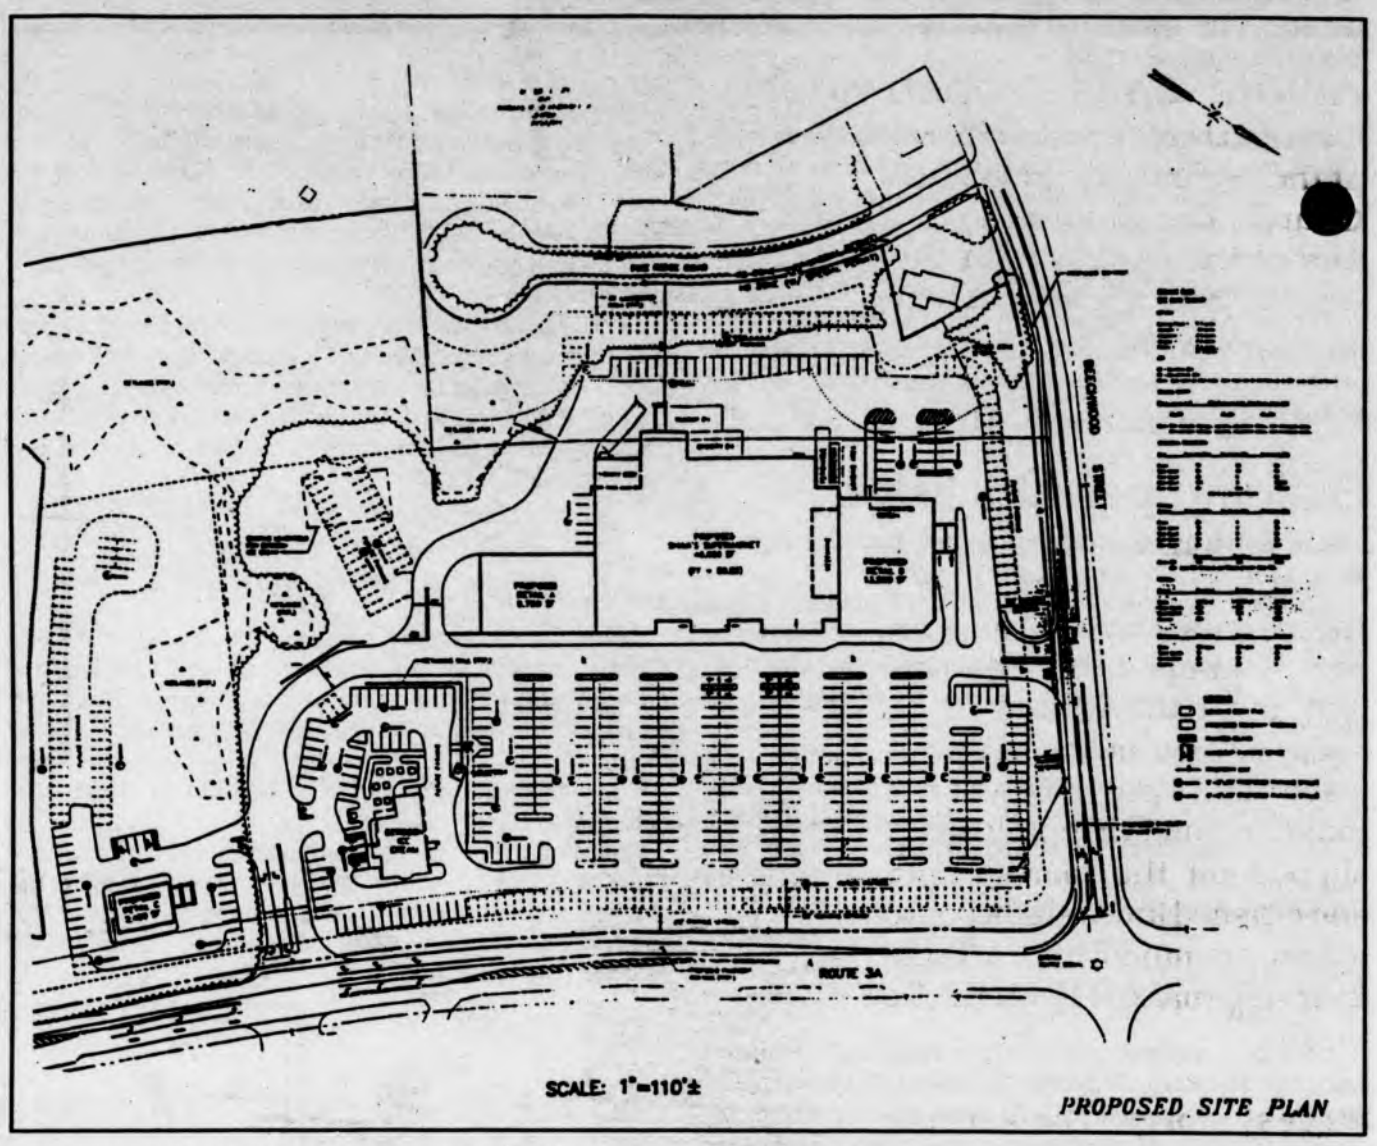
Public comment on the proposal is due May 16. An earlier notification form, filed last September, was withdrawn.

Formal hearings before the conservation commission, health and planning boards have not yet been scheduled, but last March, project proponents presented preliminary plans to the town boards and received favorable comments.

Most welcome was the idea that the redevelopment of Cushing Plaza would solve the septic problems on the site.

According to Mettee, there are nine on-site subsurface sewage disposal systems, but three main wastewater disposal systems.

The one behind Bergson's has had no known difficulties, but the two leachfields at the center of the plaza and the one in front of Walgreens are beset with problems. They are manually pumped daily by C. Spirito Inc., a local septage hauler.



PROPOSED SITE PLAN

For some time, Shaw's, headquartered in East Bridgewater, had been eyeing the Scituate-Cohasset area to build a new supermarket.

Last year, a proposal to rezone some 11 acres of residentially zoned land in Scituate at the intersection of Route 3A and Henry Turner Bailey Road, about a mile south of Cushing Plaza, was withdrawn during the annual town meeting as a groundswell of opposition materialized, not only by abutters but by some members of the business community, although the Scituate Chamber of Commerce, selectmen and planning board members supported the rezoning proposal.

Forty-four years ago, Cushing Plaza was undeveloped woodland, and in 1957, Walgreens was built as an A & P supermarket.

During the 1960s, the plaza was expanded to include additional stores and parking. Ten years ago, Bergson's was built.

Decision due on harbor boat yard fate

Following a trial last Thursday in Quincy District Court, Judge Thomas Brownell asked attorneys representing both sides to submit briefs this week.

According to Carey's attorney Peter Eleey of Quincy, the judge said he would render a decision on the matter after reviewing the documents.

David Kaiser, who represents William Hanney the new owner of the property, explained the issue surrounds whether or not Mill River has a written lease that entitles the business to stay or if the boat yard is a tenant-at-will.

If the decision goes against Carey, Kaiser said that attorneys for both sides expect Carey will appeal to superior court which could add six months or more to the process.

Another issue, which is not related to the eviction proceedings, is whether Hanney can build a residence at the site.

Building Inspector Robert M. Egan said the site is zoned for waterfront business and it would take a variance or zoning change for a home to be built there. Permits would have to be obtained from the local planning and zoning boards and the sewer and conservation commissions and possibly from the state and Army Corps of Engineers.

Under pressure to act from fishermen, who see their livelihoods threatened if the boat yard closes, and residents, who want the aesthetic aspects of the site preserved, selectmen agreed last October to speak and write in opposition to the issuance of permits and variances on economic grounds. They also formed a subcommittee to focus on the issue and pursue having Cohasset harbor declared a protected port by the state.

Reached by telephone Tuesday, Selectmen Chairman Michael H. Sullivan said nothing further had been done that he was aware of. The town's legislators had been contacted but had not been able to come up with anything, he said.

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray said she would personally not like to see the boat yard closed. She said she has not heard from the Secretary of State's office which she asked to look into the matter.

Last October Jeffrey Donzé of Parker Avenue presented selectmen with a petition with 150 signatures asking that the town do all it can to preserve the boat yard in October. Donzé said this week he planned to continue to get signatures to keep the issue alive.

In the meantime, Carey continues to operate his boat yard.

"It's business as usual," he said.

Change in school calendar considered

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

The newly reorganized Cohasset School Committee held its first meeting Monday, April 25, and discussed, among other things, changing the vacation schedule for the school year. Newly elected members Jim Kirk and Joanne Chittick joined with Nancy Sandell, Ken Wilcox and Ralph Kidder in approving the committee's intention to consider the change for the 1995-96 school year.

The change would involve replacing the current February and April vacations with one week-long vacation in March. The committee cited such reasons as educational continuity and the extended school year resulting from snow days as support for its intention to make the change.

"We do not, however, forget the practical concerns resulting from this," Sandell said.

One such practical concern is that many parents have already made travel plans for next year. It is for this reason that the committee rejected the schedule change for the 1994-95 school year.

Another concern is that the reduction in vacation time may result in the loss of family time. The committee believes that the change from two weeks to one week is a bit deceptive in that the students will still get two holidays off that were part of the February and April vacations.

The committee was unequivocal in its support for the change but hopes that other towns in the area will consider making the same change as well. Committee members believe that many area towns are considering the move but are waiting for others to make the move first.

Committee Chairman Sandell indicated that she

Stockholders vote June 2 on Cohasset bank merger

Donald E. Bates

Stockholders of the Cohasset Savings Bank will vote June 2 whether to approve the proposed merger with Shawmut National Corporation of Boston and Hartford.

The stockholders will hold their annual meeting at the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset.

A definitive agreement was signed two months ago for Shawmut to acquire the 148-year-old savings bank for $16.9 million in cash. The agreement is subject to regulatory approval and is expected to be completed by Sept. 30.

It will be another three to four months, 120 to 150 days, before the bank, with its branches in Cohasset Village and North Scituate, will become part of Shawmut Bank, N.A.

Under the agreement, Shawmut will pay $16 per fully diluted Cohasset share. Savings Bank president and chief executive officer Donald E. Bates, said the acquisition makes sense. "It's a new environment in banking.

"First of all, there are more banks than are really needed, which is not cost-efficient.

"But the straw that broke the camel's back is the tremendous surge in regulations — both federal and state," said Bates.

In addition to dealing with safety and soundness issues banks must abide by the latest in Community Reinvestment Act (CRA)regulations and resultant examinations, he explained.

On the one hand, CRA is pushing banks to make riskier loans to less advantaged individuals while the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation wants to be ensured that banks are not making too risky loans. "It's a very fine line," said Bates.

Fifteen years ago, an annual audit would take a month; now it can as long as four-and-a-half months for all the exams. It's very expensive, and it's very disruptive."

Bates said the bank was examining its various options of how to absorb all the charges for the various examinations when the acquisition offer came.

He said the bank, in an effort to grow, had looked at the possibility of acquiring other financial institutions and had submitted a bid to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to acquire the assets of the failed Landmark Bank.

Interestingly, the winning bidder was the Abington Savings Bank which is in the process of acquiring Hull Cooperative Bank, which holds some 60,000 shares in the Cohasset Savings Bank.

In announcing the agreement in March, Shawmut chairman and chief executive officer Joel B. Alvord said, "This acquisition neatly complements Shawmut's branch network in the attractive South Shore market of Greater Boston.

"Cohasset Savings Bank has the number two and three shares of the deposit market in Cohasset and North Scituate," said Alvord.

Cohasset Savings, which is traded on NASDAQ as CHTB, has assets of $78 million.

In its first quarter report, the bank reported net income of $88,000 or $.09 per share, compared to net income for the first quarter of 1993 of $184,000 or $.18 per share.

First quarter results were adversely affected by the decline in the stock market, which resulted in a loss in the bank's securities trading account, Bates explained.

"We also had additional expenses in connection with our agreement and plan of merger," said Bates. Losses in securities totaled $69,000, and merger and acquisition expenses totaled $161,000, Bates reported.

Net interest income, after provision for loan losses for the first quarter was $849,000, an increase from $766,000 for the comparable 1993 quarter but offset by the net losses.

Bates noted that deposits had increased slightly during the first quarter from $63.772 million at year's end to $64.581 million. Loans declined slightly from $44.039 million to $43,480 at March 31, 1994.

Shawmut National is a $27 billion holding company with dual headquarters in Boston and Hartford, with a network of more than 275 branches in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Shawmut is publicly traded on the New York Stock Exchange as SNC.

Ironically, Bates began his banking career in 1954 as a Northeastern University co-op student in Shawmut's consumer loan department in Kenmore Square in Boston. He joined the Cohasset Savings Bank July 9, 1962.

This was a great winter to miss.

We missed it by moving to River Bay Club. We gave up worrying about snow and ice - so our children could give up worrying about us. Instead, we moved into a sunny apartment, took up bridge and billiards, and enjoyed different programs and activities each week.

You should give up winter by moving to River Bay Club. After all, next winter will probably be a good one to miss, too.

around town

by Sallyann Chatterton

We met Warren Bates the other day. A lot of you will remember him as the organist at the Second Congregational Church for a number of years. Warren is 91 years young, and recently returned from a trip to Holland. He is in "tip-top" shape, what a guy.

Warren is on his way to Exeter, N.H., for his new mode of life in a brand new retirement home, and we wish him the best of luck as he begins his new venture. Be sure to come back and visit often, Warren.

Do you know who else was spotted "Around Town" recently? Peter O'Loughlin. And he looks like a million bucks. We can all talk about superb come-backs, he takes the prize. Terrific.

The Eisenstat family couldn't be happier than they are these days, they have a brand new baby girl, Katarina Bridget is her name. Katarina was born March 28, and joins her 14-month-old sister, Cassandra, and her big brother Timmy. Mom reports that is rather a hectic household, but that Katarina is "a wish come true."

Congrats to all of you, enjoy.

The First Parish Church have certainly been a busy bunch. First they had their cabaret in March, then they held a canvas breakfast in April. From all reports both were a huge success, thanks to a lot of hard working people and a lot of fun!

Hats off to Mary Jeanette Murray, our very own representative, who has co-sponsored legislation that would give much-needed assistance to the region's struggling commercial fishing industry. It is a good bill, and one that needs to be acknowledged. We have a lot of wonderful fishermen in this fine town, and she is trying to protect them. Send her a letter or speak to her, just to say thanks.

Did you happen to see the front page of The Boston Globe the week before last? Cohasset's own Adam Barker was in the picture, as a "maybe" recruit for the U.S. Military service. Sgt. Robert Grooms was speaking directly to him in the photo, wonder what Adam decided? Perhaps he will let us know.

Ken and Pat Leisher have been in our town recently, for the first time in five years. They look wonderful. Ken has returned home to Virginia, but Pat is still here, working hard. Ken fell off the ladder trying to get all of the painting done before he left, but all is well and he drove back in great shape.

Hopefully he will be running again soon, his leg was what bothered him as he got up from his fall, and he is a runner.

Don't forget, organizers are giving you the word. In seven weeks, the annual celebration of and for Cohasset will have an old-fashioned "down home" parade, New England style. Individuals, organizations, or companies are urged to sign up, call Keith Knowles for more information. We bet that even a "contingent" of little ones (with helmets) on decorated bikes would be a wonderful sight. Remember when crepe paper around the wheels was so pretty and such fun to do? Get together, "bikers", then call Keith at 383-1331, for all of the info that you need.

We hear that Susan Carr and her daughter Caroline were spectacular in the Hingham Civic Music Theatre's production of "Annie." Caroline is only nine years old, and has a huge list of credits, starting at age three. That must have been a lot of fun for both, as well as performing for a lot of thrilled people. Good job.

Polly Callentine was spotted twice last week at Nantasket Beach sea clamming. Word is out that she is one of the best clammers around. Put that together with the fact that she is even better at clam shucking. Polly, you certainly have come a long way from Columbus, Ohio. Aren't those clams yummy?

This Saturday is a big day in the Parrodian household. Hilary Parrodian, a 1990 Cohasset High School graduate, will be graduating from Radford University, located in Virginia, May 7. Congratulations Hilary, have a wonderful day and good luck as you go into the job market. We know you will do well.

Remember Curt Collins, former head of the Cohasset High School English Department? Well, he is now the principal of Dennis-Yarmouth High School, and has had quite an honor bestowed upon him.

Curt is one of 13 people who have been appointed to a national commission on restructuring high schools. He will take part in meetings at Carnegie Foundation headquarters in Princeton, N.J., that will result in a report on what direction American high schools are going in the future. He's one of eight principals in the whole country on this commission, studying the restructuring of the American High School. Dennis-Yarmouth's school supt. Michael McCaffrey was quoted as saying that "the high School at D-Y has been drastically changed, and I believe improved, by his work over there!"

Any person interested in honoring Mr. Collins Friday, May 13, should call either Clark Chatterton or Jim Franey at Cohasset High School (383-6101). We can only say that Cohasset's loss is certainly Dennis-Yarmouth's gain, we miss Curt!

Anne Lindgren, daughter of Fran and Charlie Lindgren, recently participated in her last S.E.M.S.B.A. Senior Music Festival at Dighton-Rehoboth Regional High School.

Anne and her trombone have represented Cohasset at S.E.M.S.B.A. or District Band Festivals, or both, every year for the past six years. In many cases Anne was the only band member representing Cohasset. In addition to playing at festivals, Anne is also a member of the Konohasset Senior Band, and Jazz Band. Outside of school she plays with the Hingham Civic Orchestra, and the Summer Wind Ensemble at the South Shore Conservatory in Hingham.

That's all that I can print this week, if you call me there will be more next.

Queen For A Day

Once a year mother's everywhere are showered with appreciation for the thousand acts of kindness, selflessness and compassion they show their children whether they want to or not.

Mother's Day is the one day when being a mother is exalted above all other unpaid occupations in the world. The one day when children thank their mothers from the depths of their hearts for the endless devotion of the job, the hours of listening and caring.

Mothers are crowned Queen For A Day and made the center of attention at the backyard barbecue and then, quite unceremoniously, sent back to the car pool, the grocery shopping, the dusting, cooking, floor-mopping, bed-making and laundry.

The list goes on, especially if you're a mom who's working inside the home and outside the home. No rest for the weary. Contrary to propoganda, all moms are working moms.

It's not until children are all grown up and parents themselves that they realize how impossible the job really is, the sheer 'makes you want to break down and cry' enormity of it all.

But by then there's no turning back and all a young parent can do is bumble along and hope for the best.

Books about how to be a good mother (and father) offer some help but certainly don't come close to telling the whole story.

Being a mother is something you have to live through, one day at a time, to really understand and even then, after years of practice, it's still a hit or miss thing whether you're successful or not.

Plus, there's never a shortage of people standing around on the sidelines (relatives, friends, co-workers, husbands and even your traitorous kids themselves) taking stock of your mothering skills and finding them wanting.

Nothing on earth can prepare a young mother for the terror she feels when it hits her for the first time that she's signed on to a 24-hour a day job for the next 20 plus years and beyond for, get this, little or no pay, scant recognition or appreciation, only occasional benefits and no vacation from the responsibilities of the job - ever.

That's why a Happy Mother's Day cake, a hanging plant, or a gift certificate to a fancy department store just doesn't cut it. Do children really believe that such a gift can possibly repay the debt of a lifetime of service?

What any mother who's been on duty for more than a month really needs, ironically, is the very thing she doles out as punishment to her willful charges: "time out", also known as "time alone."

But because mothers are so indispensable to their family's existence, a day, a weekend, or, dream on, a week off, is the one gift a mother will never see, at least until the nest is empty.

So mothers all over the land settle happily for the perfume, the new bathrobe, the potted rose and all the children gathered around to pay homage for the day.

Because in their hearts mothers know that one day, in the not too distant future given the scheme of things, the children will be gone, pursuing lives of their own.

Then all that will be left is the sweet memory of a full house with someone bursting through the kitchen door demanding "Ma, what's for supper?"

Happy Mother's Day.

Support for fields advocated

To the Editor:

This past February, I was asked by Clark Chatterton to participate on a committee to study an upgrading of Cohasset's outdoor sports facilities. I quickly became convinced of the need, given the substandard condition of the track and the overcrowding of the existing fields. The committee developed a proposal for a new all-weather track and game field adjacent to the high school. This proposal was reviewed and recommended by the Board of Selectmen, the Advisory Committee, the Capital Budget Committee, the School Committee and the Recreation Committee. In addition, the siting and layout were designed to respond to the Conservation Commission's concerns and to minimize any environmental impact. At the Town Meeting in April, voters overwhelmingly approved the proposal.

The new track and game field now needs to be approved by the voters in a special Proposition 2 1/2 override election Saturday, May 14. I am encouraging all Cohasset voters to carefully consider this proposal — the benefits it would provide to active residents of all ages and the broad-based support it has received. My "YES" vote reflects my pride in Cohasset. Please don't forget to vote Saturday, May 14.

Day of mourning sent wrong message

To the Editor:

Even after watching and listening to the extraordinary, dignified and stirring memorial service honoring Richard Nixon, I feel compelled to write down these thoughts. The words are separate and totally apart from the memorial service and in no way are intended as a comment on the service.

Richard M. Nixon is the only President of the United States to resign from office. His resignation was the result of the gross abuse of power he exercised as President. Watergate is the name given to a series of events which would have led to an impeachment vote by the House of Representatives and a trial by the Senate. In order to avoid that event he resigned. Any good that he did must be tarnished by the shadow of that disgrace. His wish for respect was destroyed by his own lack of respect for the Constitution.

A national day of mourning was decreed to pay honor to the only man who ever resigned the office. It is estimated that some $26 million in taxpayers' money was spent.

What message does all of this deliver to the young people of this country? How can we say to them that temptation should be resisted, that violence and threats are not the way to go, that we must respect each other and live in such a way to show that our words and acts are in harmony when the man who violated the basic rules of decency is made into a national hero?

As a senior citizen my belief is that there are some things which should not be forgotten and some few things that cannot be forgiven — blatant abuse of power is one of those things.

Train's return longed for

To the Editor:

I want to tell you how much I look forward to the train returning to Cohasset. I long for it. I grew up on North Main Street along the train tracks in the 40's and 50's. There were many many kids in our neighborhood. Our skating ponds were on either side of the tracks and we would often walk along the tracks to get places.

There were no fences to keep us off the tracks. We were cautious. We sort of knew the train schedule and clearly could hear the horn blowing at designated spots announcing itself. I never heard of anyone or anything ever getting hurt by the train. We were all very aware of little boy in our neighborhood who was run over by a car, however.

The sound of the trains rumbling by or blowing their whistles were not disturbing — quite the contrary — it was soothing no matter what time day or night. It was quite an adventure and very convenient to take the train into Boston to shop or visit relatives.

When the train comes back, I will be one of the first to start commuting on it. I can't wait to give up the Southeast Expressway!

Queen For A Day

Once a year mother's everywhere are showered with appreciation for the thousand acts of kindness, selflessness and compassion they show their children whether they want to or not.

Mother's Day is the one day when being a mother is exalted above all other unpaid occupations in the world. The one day when children thank their mothers from the depths of their hearts for the endless devotion of the job, the hours of listening and caring.

Mothers are crowned Queen For A Day and made the center of attention at the backyard barbecue and then, quite unceremoniously, sent back to the car pool, the grocery shopping, the dusting, cooking, floor-mopping, bed-making and laundry.

The list goes on, especially if you're a mom who's working inside the home and outside the home. No rest for the weary. Contrary to propoganda, all moms are working moms.

It's not until children are all grown up and parents themselves that they realize how impossible the job really is, the sheer 'makes you want to break down and cry' enormity of it all.

But by then there's no turning back and all a young parent can do is bumble along and hope for the best.

Books about how to be a good mother (and father) offer some help but certainly don't come close to telling the whole story.

Being a mother is something you have to live through, one day at a time, to really understand and even then, after years of practice, it's still a hit or miss thing whether you're successful or not.

Plus, there's never a shortage of people standing around on the sidelines (relatives, friends, co-workers, husbands and even your traitorous kids themselves) taking stock of your mothering skills and finding them wanting.

Nothing on earth can prepare a young mother for the terror she feels when it hits her for the first time that she's signed on to a 24-hour a day job for the next 20 plus years and beyond for, get this, little or no pay, scant recognition or appreciation, only occasional benefits and no vacation from the responsibilities of the job - ever.

That's why a Happy Mother's Day cake, a hanging plant, or a gift certificate to a fancy department store just doesn't cut it. Do children really believe that such a gift can possibly repay the debt of a lifetime of service?

What any mother who's been on duty for more than a month really needs, ironically, is the very thing she doles out as punishment to her willful charges: "time out", also known as "time alone."

But because mothers are so indispensable to their family's existence, a day, a weekend, or, dream on, a week off, is the one gift a mother will never see, at least until the nest is empty.

So mothers all over the land settle happily for the perfume, the new bathrobe, the potted rose and all the children gathered around to pay homage for the day.

Because in their hearts mothers know that one day, in the not too distant future given the scheme of things, the children will be gone, pursuing lives of their own.

Then all that will be left is the sweet memory of a full house with someone bursting through the kitchen door demanding "Ma, what's for supper?"

Happy Mother's Day.

Support for fields advocated

To the Editor:

This past February, I was asked by Clark Chatterton to participate on a committee to study an upgrading of Cohasset's outdoor sports facilities. I quickly became convinced of the need, given the substandard condition of the track and the overcrowding of the existing fields. The committee developed a proposal for a new all-weather track and game field adjacent to the high school. This proposal was reviewed and recommended by the Board of Selectmen, the Advisory Committee, the Capital Budget Committee, the School Committee and the Recreation Committee. In addition, the siting and layout were designed to respond to the Conservation Commission's concerns and to minimize any environmental impact. At the Town Meeting in April, voters overwhelmingly approved the proposal.

The new track and game field now needs to be approved by the voters in a special Proposition 2 1/2 override election Saturday, May 14. I am encouraging all Cohasset voters to carefully consider this proposal — the benefits it would provide to active residents of all ages and the broad-based support it has received. My "YES" vote reflects my pride in Cohasset. Please don't forget to vote Saturday, May 14.

Day of mourning sent wrong message

To the Editor:

Even after watching and listening to the extraordinary, dignified and stirring memorial service honoring Richard Nixon, I feel compelled to write down these thoughts. The words are separate and totally apart from the memorial service and in no way are intended as a comment on the service.

Richard M. Nixon is the only President of the United States to resign from office. His resignation was the result of the gross abuse of power he exercised as President. Watergate is the name given to a series of events which would have led to an impeachment vote by the House of Representatives and a trial by the Senate. In order to avoid that event he resigned. Any good that he did must be tarnished by the shadow of that disgrace. His wish for respect was destroyed by his own lack of respect for the Constitution.

A national day of mourning was decreed to pay honor to the only man who ever resigned the office. It is estimated that some $26 million in taxpayers' money was spent.

What message does all of this deliver to the young people of this country? How can we say to them that temptation should be resisted, that violence and threats are not the way to go, that we must respect each other and live in such a way to show that our words and acts are in harmony when the man who violated the basic rules of decency is made into a national hero?

As a senior citizen my belief is that there are some things which should not be forgotten and some few things that cannot be forgiven — blatant abuse of power is one of those things.

Train's return longed for

To the Editor:

I want to tell you how much I look forward to the train returning to Cohasset. I long for it. I grew up on North Main Street along the train tracks in the 40's and 50's. There were many many kids in our neighborhood. Our skating ponds were on either side of the tracks and we would often walk along the tracks to get places.

There were no fences to keep us off the tracks. We were cautious. We sort of knew the train schedule and clearly could hear the horn blowing at designated spots announcing itself. I never heard of anyone or anything ever getting hurt by the train. We were all very aware of little boy in our neighborhood who was run over by a car, however.

School council elections

Anyone who has not received a school council election ballot by Monday May 2 should call Ruth Wilcox at 383-1827. Ballots for each school's election are being mailed directly to parents.

Ballots must be returned to the specific school office by 4 p.m. Friday May 6. There is a box in each school office for ballots.

Candidates will be contacted with results as soon as the ballots are counted and verified. Results will be announced at the PSO general meting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday May 18 in the high school cafeteria.

Metco fund-raiser set

The Cohasset Metco Program will have a coffee and donut stand at the high school for farm team baseball games.

The stand will be open from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday May 7, 21 and June 18. Money raised will go to support the Cohasset Metco late bus.

Deer Hill artwork gala

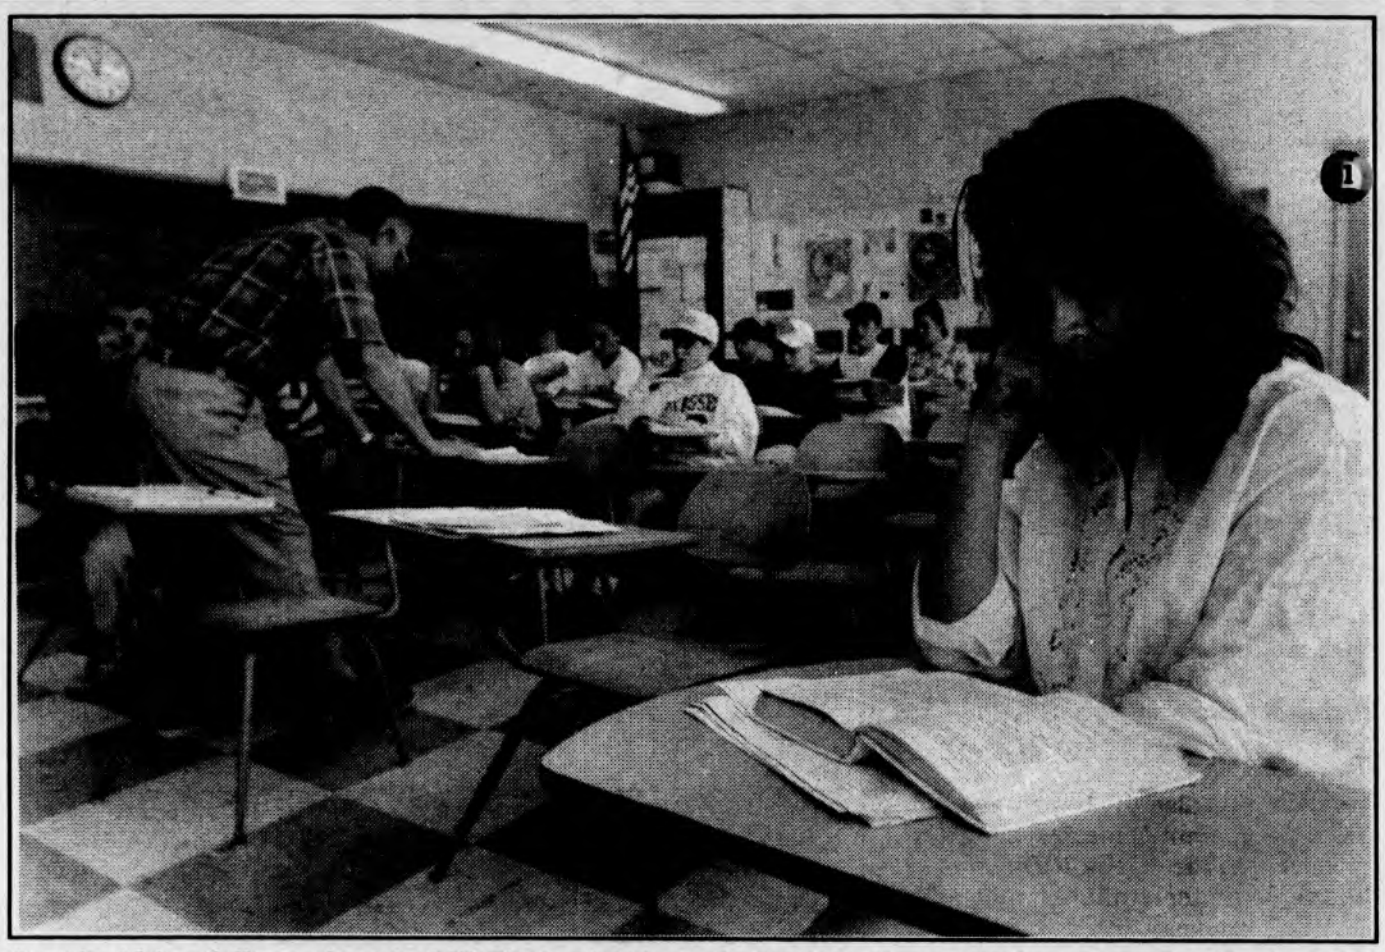
Deer Hill School will be hosting a Gala Art Opening at 7 p.m. Wednesday May 11. The art show, "Favorites 1994," represents the artwork of all Deer Hill students. Each student has chosen their favorite artwork of the year to be included in the exhibit.

Refreshments and music will be provided. All are welcome.

In addition to the annual art show, Deer Hill will be celebrating the grand unveiling of a permanent clay installation created by artist-in-residence Syma and the Deer Hill Students.

Parenting workshops set

The elementary school adjustment counselors are offering a series of four parenting workshops from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Thursdays in the "living room" at First Parish House, Main St.



Connie Afshar follows along in Bill Kite's eighth grade English class at Cohasset Junior/Senior High School last week. Afshar participated in the spend "A Day with an Educator" program, April 28. The special program allowed individuals from the community to spend an entire day with a member of the school staff.

May 12 — Self-esteem...What Can a Parent Do?

May 19 — Teaching Responsibility and Respect to Children

The workshops are open to any Cohassset parent and will be led by Ed Leonard and Frank Fitzgerald who have extensive experience consulting with parents. The success and appeal of the workshops offered earlier in the year has prompted this four-part series that will include parts of Canter's "Assertive Discipline" as well as information from the "STEP Parenting" and "How to Talk so Children Will Listen (And Listen so Children Will Talk)" programs.

Even if you attended the earlier workshops, the series will offer much more as well as a refresher. Attend any or all of the dates. Call Ed or Frank at 383-6115 or 383-6117 for information.

Caitlin Connolly

If you don't know Caitlin she's the s[illegible]omore who can often be seen after school carrying a bag full of cans and bottles destined to be recycled.

Student of the Month

Caitlin was instrumental in forming the Social Awareness Organization here at CHS. While she holds no official title, she is clearly the leader of this socially conscious group. For each meeting she provides a typed agenda. She listens attentively and takes notes on group suggestions. She reports on activities she has had with Ms. Gallagher, Mr. DeLorenzo and Mr. Hart regarding school based issues such as separation of church and state and sexual harassment.

Caitlin was also the impetus behind the establishment of the Recycling Center located in the cafeteria. She has led the group in letter writing campaigns on behalf of Amnesty International. She created and analyzed a school-wide survey on sexual harassment. She solicited suggestions from the faculty in regards to promoting tolerance here at CHS.

For her unselfish dedication to bring about positive change here at CHS, I proudly nominate Caitlin Connolly as March Student of the Month.

Change in 1995-96 Cohasset school calendar considered had received numerous telephone calls from parents, the majority of which were in favor of the change.

The PTO reported a 2-to-1 ratio of favorable to negative responses to the change. Maureen Alcott, President of the Cohasset Teachers Association, indicated that 67 percent of the 70 teachers polled were not in favor of the move, while 27 percent were. Another 2.7 percent of the teachers polled felt that the change would not matter to them.

Based upon the predominantly favorable feedback and the committee discussions, the committee voted in favor of a stated intention to implement the change in the 1995-96 school year. The committee will continue to consider the change and will attempt to sway other area towns to consider the change as well. The change has already occurred in a number of eastern Massachusetts communities. The committee expects to vote on the final 1995-96 school calendar by June of this year.

In other business, the committee elected Sandell to a second term as chairman. Kidder was elected to a second term as vice-chairman. Kirk was elected secretary.

The committee also heard from Paul Narkiewicz, the head of the foreign language department, who presented a review of the changes that have been implemented in the department in response to a curriculum review conducted in June of 1990.

Narkiewicz discussed the exchange trips conducted in conjunction with the Scituate schools and the presence of two AFS teachers as positive responses to the review. Other events have included field trips and a foreign music festival, all of which have expanded the foreign language experience within the system.

Narkiewicz also reported that the department's teachers have become more active in attending seminars and conventions to improve the learning experience for students. Narkiewicz credited Superintendent Stephen Hart and high school Principal Meg Gallagher with encouraging the teachers to attend these seminars.

The school committee will meet again May 5.

Legal payment okay'ed

Although not happy with the lack of detail provided on the bill, selectmen authorized payment of $17,407.70 for 91.6 hours of work to the Boston law firm Warner & Stackpole for professional services provided to the board of health and conservation commission the bulk of which is for legal expenses incurred in connection with Cohasset Heights Landfill.

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby asked that the board write the firm a letter asking for more itemization on bills in the future. She also wants the board to ask Warner & Stackpole to charge the town a lower or "non-profit" rate.

Guard rail bid awarded

At $3,850, Bartlett Consolidated of Plymouth was the low bidder for installing about 275 feet of steel guard rail along Atlantic Avenue near Cunningham's Bridge. Selectmen awarded Bartlett the contract this week.

Tough new by-law

Selectmen will ask Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson to review a proposed new town by-law which would help the town prosecute vandals. The by-law would have to be approved at town meeting.

The proposed by-law suggested by Police Chief Brian W. Noonan states:

'No person shall willfully, intentionally and without right, or wantonly and without cause, destroy, deface or mar or injure any property of the Town of Cohasset.'

The new by-law would make it easier to prosecute vandals, Selectman Peter J. Pratt said. Pratt suggested the town look to tougher penalties for vandals following discussion about graffiti on Beacon Rock, a town landmark.

Traffic mirror coming

Troop 28 committee has permission to purchase and install a 24-in. diameter mirror on an electrical pole on N. Main St. across from Cedar St. The mirror would help people coming out of Cedar St. onto N. Main to better view cars heading South on N. Main.

Art memberships accepted

Professional artists and photographers interested in applying for Gallery Artist Membership at the South Shore Art Center should submit their portfolios to the Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, Friday, May 13, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Judging by a professional selection committee will be conducted Saturday, May 14.

Artist members must be professionals, consistently and currently working in their fields, with a body of work large enough to meet a frequent showing schedule. Membership is open to all media. The portfolio should include five original works, a resume and/or artist statement, and (optional) up to 20 slides. Photographers must submit 20 original works. Framing and pedestals are not mandatory for the judging.

The South Shore Art Center is a non-profit art and educational organization serving all of the South Shore. In addition to maintaining two galleries, a gift shop, and two classroom studios at its Cohasset Village location, the Art Center has exhibition privileges at several satellite locations throughout Boston and the South Shore.

Gallery Artist members are invited to exhibit in a variety of satellite locations throughout the year. Featured Gallery Artists Exhibitions, which include works by six to eight gallery artists at a time, change approximately eight times per year in the Dillon Members Gallery. Gallery Artists may also apply for one-person or limited group showings as well as curated exhibits to be held in the Bancroft Invitational Gallery.

For more information, please call 383-9548.

Taking a break during the recent educational seminar/workshop held at the South Shore Art Center are the Rev. Cliff Cutler; Supt. Stephen Hart; Eric Oddleifson, chairman of the Center for the Arts in Basic Curriculum ; Ann Berman, Cohasset schools art teacher; and Joni Jensen of Cohasset. Oddleifson, a leader in a growing movement that believes it is as crucial to attend to how students learn as what they learn addressed educators, administrators and parents on the benefits of incorporating the arts throughout the curriculum. The seminar was sponsored by the South Shore Art Center.

Submit entries for art festival

The South Shore Art Center is encouraging artists and photographers to submit entries into two juried exhibitions to be featured in the 39th Art Festival at the "Festival on the Common," in Cohasset June 17 through 19. Interested artists should deliver their entries to the art center at 119 Ripley Rd., Cohasset from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday May 20 or from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday May 21.

The juried art exhibition includes oil & acrylics, drawing & pastels, watercolor, graphics, mixed media and three-dimensional work. Artists may submit up to three pieces with a non-refundable fee of $8 per entry.

An awards ceremony will be held at 6 p.m. Friday June 17 under the main art tent on Cohasset Common. The exhibitions will be on display throughout festival weekend from 1 to 8 p.m. Friday June 17, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday June 18 and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday June 19.

Board members elected

The board of trustees elected Sheila S. Evans as chairman of the library trustees and Agnes McCann secretary for the coming year.

The board voted to hold regular meetings on the first Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the library.

Anne C. Bowdoin and June S. Hubbard were elected as new trustees.

George E. Haley and Katharine H. Sturtevant, retiring trustees were thanked for their service to the library.

Book signing at Buttonwood

Hingham author Molly Manley and Hingham illustrator Janet Marshall will sign copies of their new children's book, Talkaty Talker, at Buttonwood for Kids, 28 South St., Hingham from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday May 7.

Hingham residents and friends for many years, Manley and Marshall came up with the idea for a limerick book for young children while on vacation together.

Call 749-2665 for information.

Simmons Club to meet

The South Shore Simmons Club will hold its annual meeting and brunch at 11:30 a.m. Sunday May 22 at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham.

There will be a guest speaker from the college.

Bird house show planned

The South Shore Habitat for Humanity's 1994 bird house show and auction will be taking place May 20-22 at the South Shore Plaza in Braintree.

Two hundred functional and fantasy birdhouses created by local artists, architects and celebrities will be featured. Some special birdhouses will be auctioned at 2 p.m. Sunday May 22 in front of Jordan Marsh. A silent auction will take place throughout the weekend.

Birdhouses autographed by local celebrities will be available in both auctions. These include houses autographed by Seigi Ozowa, Katie Couric, Senator Ted Kennedy, Eric Flaim, Ted Donato, Bobby Orr, Ken Hodge, Mo Vaugn, John Valentin and players for the Celtics and Patriots.

All money raised from the sales will go towards building homes for families in need. SSHH is now completing a home in Abington and will be starting one in Braintree. Future "Habitat" homes will be built in Norwell and Hingham with additional sites becoming available in Brockton, Whitman, Hanover, Quincy and Sharon.

Investment workshop set

A workshop on "Managing Investment Risk In The 90s" is being offered at 6 p.m. Monday May 16 at MacArthur's Restaurant in Hingham.

The workshop will cover asset allocation and tax free and tax favored investments. There is no charge but reservations are required.

What You Should Know About Hearing Aids

Recently, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) took steps to eliminate unrealistic and occasionally false promises made by some hearing aid manufacturers.

The FDA now requires clinical proof of all claims that relate to the elimination of background noise and the enhancement of hearing ability. Additionally, the FDA now suggests that all hearing aid clients receive a complete hearing evaluation in order to benefit fully from the use of a hearing aid.

At the Braintree Hospital Rehabilitation Network Audiology Division our licensed audiologists are specifically trained to provide:

- comprehensive hearing evaluations that use the latest and best in diagnostic technology
- customized hearing aid fittings and follow-up services that ensure clients will benefit fully from their hearing aids
- 30-day home trial on all models
- senior citizen discounts

If you have questions about your hearing or your hearing aid, call us, we have a long-standing reputation of excellence.

Cohasset teenagers to get new hideaway

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

In a vacant Cohasset building chipped paint, dirty windows, broken floors and jail cells all await the town's teenage population.

It may not look pretty right now but, according to Keith Knowles president of Cohasset Youth Resources, Inc. , the Independence Building on South Main Street will soon be ready to house a new gathering place for local teens.

As Knowles walked through the three-story structure last week, he spoke about establishing a place for high school students to go in their free time.

He and others tried before with the Teen Depot across from the Community Center but that effort didn't work out.

Knowles said, "The kids didn't feel like they could make it their own."

With a new approach and a different site he thinks things will be more positive this time around.

Knowles and others have formed a non-profit company that is leasing the Independence building from the town exclusively for the use of youth activities.

With that motive in mind, Knowles pointed out that, "This can become what they (teenagers) want it to be. The next step is to get kids involved."

Years ago the Independence Building was the police station and still has two jail cells on the first floor.

Knowles said that area would probably house the refrigerator and the microwave as well as a sink.

Upstairs he showed two rooms that could act as video games areas, pool rooms or a variety of other recreational activities.

Overall, he said, the students will make most of the operating decisions and will dictate how the center is run.

The adults involved with the center are essentially advisors, he said.

"We're starting with a clean slate," said Knowles.

And he stressed that it would be a mistake to go into a project like this with any preconceived ideas of the new location's success.

With plans to open this fall Knowles realizes there is a lot of work to be done.

A number of construction tasks including painting, plumbing and electrical wiring must be completed before the building is usable.

But he said, "I think that's a reasonable time frame."

Another area that Knowles looked into carefully was accessibility.

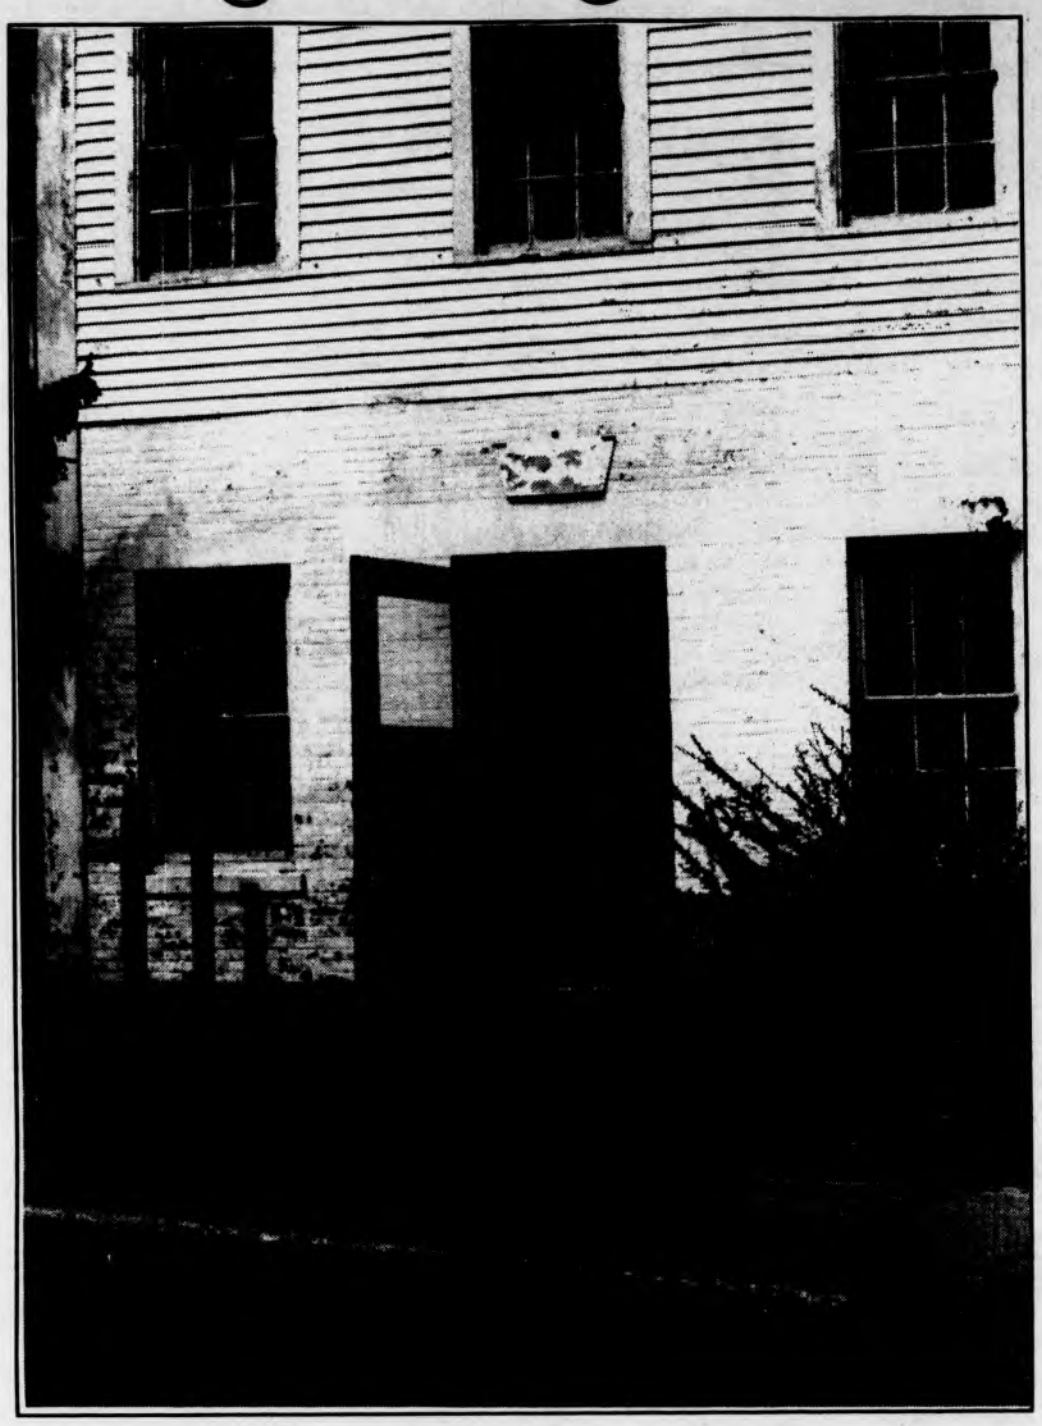
Unfortunately the building is not accessible according to American With Disabilities Act guidelines, but Knowles said, "There's no practical way to do it (renovate the entrances)."

According to Knowles, the building inspector told him, "that it was not something we needed to be concerned about."

The building also falls under a grandfather clause that exempts it from the new regulations.

"The real priority is getting kids involved," Knowles said. Because "there's not a lot of things that kids can do that are safe and fun."

To find out how you can help, Knowles said he welcomes phone calls from both adults and teens at 383-1331.



The door to the Independence Building on S. Main Street in Cohasset Village may soon be open for local teenagers.

Wigmore Pierson wins state cable award

"Pierson to Person," a live talk show locally produced by Continental Cablevision, was awarded the best of a series in the Massachusetts Cable Television Commission's ninth annual community television competition.

Wigmore Pierson of Cohasset is the host and producer of the program which is cablecast from Continental's North Scituate studio.

Aaron Katersky of Scituate, a former intern at the Scituate Mariner and now a freshman honors student at Syracuse University majoring in broadcast journalism, was one of three nominated for the best producer under age 18 category. Katersky was judged on his sportscasts which appeared on "Sportsbeat 53."

John Urban, state cable television commissioner, served as master of ceremonies during the awards ceremony, held at the University Club in the Healey Library of the University of Massachusetts/Boston.

Presenters included Paul Cianelli, president of the New England Cable Television Association; Linda Warren Peterson, director of the Massachusetts Film Bureau; Roy Hobbs, anchor of the New England Cable News, and Jill Reddish, executive director of the Massachusetts cable television commission.

Said Consumer Affairs Secretary Priscilla Douglas, whose office oversees the cable commission: "As our society continues its exciting journey on the information superhighway, we have a growing responsibility to foster new talent, particularly at the local level.

"This contest ssets a standard of excellence for local programmers."

More than 400 entries were submitted in the competition; a panel of judges narrowed the field to 92 nominees in a wide variety of categories.

Pierson, a veteran cable TV host and interviewer, was thrilled with his award.

He began producing "Pierson to Person" in October 1987, and each year, the show has continued to build on its past successes.

He works with between 10 and a dozen volunteers each week to produce the live program.

The eclectic program, which explores diverse topics but is heavily weighted toward politics, is aired live in Scituate, Hingham, Cohasset, Norwell, Hanover and Hull, then is carried on a tape-delayed basis in some 32 other communities served by five different cable operators.

Pierson says the program's mission is to educate and stimulate the viewer, and he has done that. More than 1,000 guests have appeared on his show since 1987, and some 125 volunteers have contributed to its broadcast.

"Wigmore Pierson is shown from Weymouth to Bourne to Avon, and every town in between," said Continental's Scituate programming director Bob Belliveau. "He's the only volunteer producer I know whose show is carried this extensively."

In 1993 Pierson's guests included House Speaker Charles Flaherty, Senate President William Bulger, Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci, Sen. Edward Kennedy and Governor Weld.

What's on cable-TV

Host Wigmore Pierson's guests Thursday May 5 will be Carroll Gagnon, discussing his collection of more than 13,000 comic books and memorabilia; and Jay P. Mitchell of Marshfield, author of "Runaway from Innocence," which deal with teenage sexuality.

"Pierson to Person" is broadcast live from 8 to 9 p.m. each Thursday from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham and Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset. The public is invited to be part of the studio audience. Those planning to attend should be at the studio on Gannett Road by 7:30 p.m.

For information call Robert Belliveau at 545-2500.

Gospel concert at First Parish

The First Parish will present the Concord Chorale in a gospel concert at 7 p.m. Saturday June 18 as part of Cohasset's Arts Festival/Harborfest celebration.

This event is particularly exciting because of the involvement in the chorale of members of the DeVaughn family who attend school in Cohasset through the Metco program. The DeVaughns, with their music minister Roscoe Mills, performed at the Deer Hill School a few years ago.

Support Appalachian work

In a little over two months, 84 students and adults will leave Cohasset for the Appalachian region of Virginia for a home repair work week. This will be the seventh year that the Rev. Gary Ritts and his wife Judy have led groups from Cohasset to this region with the Appalachia Service Project.

Stock Forms: Students and their parents along with advisors are currently selling stock certificates to help fund this trip. If you are interested in supporting us, please call anyone from the above list or call the Second Congregational Church at 383-0345 to obtain a stock form. Shares are $20 each and can be credited to anyone on the list.

Tag Sale: There will be a tag sale at the Second Congregational Church (next to Town Hall) Saturday, May 14, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. If you have any items that you would like to donate, we will be accepting items the week prior to May 14, or if you need us to pick up your donations, please leave a message at the Second Congregational Church at 383-0345.

Dance-a-thon: There will be an opportunity to sponsor any of the participants in a Dance-a-thon coming in May. More details will be available next week.

Pops concert at high school

The annual Pops Concert is planned to begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday May 12 in the Cohasset High School cafeteria. Vocal and instrumental music will be featured.

Admission is $5 and includes refreshments. All money raised goes to support the arts in the high school.

Duet at Conservatory

Cellist Elizabeth Reardon and pianist Judith Goldner will perform an evening of sonatas by Dimitri Shostakovich and Sergei Prokofiev at 8 p.m. Thursday May 12 in South Shore Conservatory's Cox Hall, One Conservatory Dr., Hingham.

Reardon, a member of the Plymouth Philharmonic Orchestra and a freelance musician with the West Bay Chamber Ensemble, teaches cello at The Music School in Providence, RI and has taught for many years in the East Greenwich, RI area.

She recently completed her master's degree in music performance at Boston Conservatory of Music as a student of Andre Diaz and holds a bachelor's degree in music history from Wellesley College.

Reardon lives in East Greenwich, RI with her husband Dr. Daniel B. Reardon, grandson of the late Dr. Daniel B. Reardon of Quincy, and their three daughters.

Goldner teaches piano privately in Lexington and is an active chamber music player. She also teaches preschool music classes and works with special needs adults and teenagers in the Lexington area.

The Russian classics concert is free and open to the public. A small reception will follow.

"Donations to South Shore Conservatory's Scholarship Fund would be appreciated," said Reardon's father-in-law, George Reardon of Hingham. "I like to do anything I can to help the conservatory."

For information call 749-7565.

Adams hexes Austin Prep, Duxbury next

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Judging from the results of the games Cohasset and Austin Prep's lacrosse teams have played the past few weeks, Skippers' head coach Ken Ekberg figured Monday afternoon's matchup on the Deer Hill School field would end in a close score.

So it goes without saying Ekberg hardly expected his Cohasset squad to smother Austin Prep, 11-1, and in the course of doing so, running its record to 6-2 on the season, heading into Saturday's huge showdown with a tough Duxbury High team.

Defenseman Dave Leahy played a major role in the game by swarming over Austin Prep's top goal-scorer and managing to keep him from scoring on Cohasset netminder, Brandon DeVoe.

"He was very physical with the kid," said Ekberg, who was able to play every member of the Skippers' squad throughout the lopsided victory.

Austin Prep could do little to contain the Skippers' ball movement and superior speed as they raced out to a 7-0 in

Walking your way to better health

By Brenda Gailhouse
Special to the Mariner

Regular exercise has been shown to improve the circulation of blood to your heart and lungs as well as increase your overall strength and endurance. Along with a proper diet, regular exercise can also help you control your weight, blood pressure and blood cholesterol. Walking can be a fun and safe form of exercise to help improve your health. Here are a few tips to help you get started.

— First, if you have any current medical problems or have not had a general physical recently, you should consult your physician before starting any new exercise program.

— You should choose a safe place to walk, such as sidewalks, high school tracks, or local shopping malls. Wearing good supportive walking shoes can help prevent injuries, and loose, comfortable clothing allows your body to regulate heat better.

— A 50-10 minute warm-up and cool down should be included in any walking program. This can consist of stretches for your calves, thighs, trunk, and arms, and remember — no bonding!

— Now that you're ready to start walking, remember that distance is not always as important as duration. Your goal may be 30-45 minute walks three to four times a week, but you may need to start with 10-15 minute walks two times a week. During your walk you need to pay attention to what your body is telling you. If you experience shortness of breath, racing heart beat or palpitations, chest pains or dizziness, then you should stop exercising and rest.

If you would like to learn more about starting an exercise program, call the Braintree Hospital Rehabilitation Network at (617) 848-5353, extension 2231, and let us know you're interested.

the first half.

In a season where different players have been stepping forward and leading the offense, particularly with the absence of last year's 50-goal scorer Chris Goodman, Chris Adams proved to be Cohasset's weapon this time around.

Adams blasted home two goals and assisted on four more during a wave of Cohasset shots. Austin Prep had no alternative but to continually clear the ball from its own end in an attempt to regroup, gain momentum and mount an offensive challenge.

However, DeVoe, who made a handful of pretty saves, would be the one waiting down the other end and he'd quickly get the ball back to a Skipper player. Cohasset did a good job in setting the ball up and waiting to take the high-percentage shots.

After Adams, Kevin Smith and Charlie Endris netted a pair of goals each. Ken Leahy and Chris McKenna had a goal and assist, and Andy and Brett McQuarrie had single tallies.

Ekberg said he plans to alter his offense against Duxbury, but continue to emphasize Cohasset's strong passing game.

The win over Austin Prep gave the Skippers momentum to work on heading into Saturday, but Ekberg said his players are in no way overconfident with the prospect of defeating Duxbury.

"It's going to be a challenge," said Ekberg, "that's for sure. We're going to have to play one of our better games to be competitive with them.

"We're not overconfident by an stretch of the imagination."

Goodman was on the sidelines at Monday's game and appeared to be in good spirits. Doctors found a fractured vertebrate in his back, which has been causing him the pain in his leg. Ekberg said Goodman is scheduled to see a doctor on Friday and doesn't have any time table for his top scorer from a year ago.

"He's all psyched and wants to come back and play," Ekberg said. "Chris isn't in any pain but he has to listen to what the doctors say."

The Skippers are hoping they can continue to put the ball in the net on Saturday. It's critical Cohasset scores, but there are players on the team who have been doing that consistently all season.

Spring is finally here in Boston. The Red Sox are hitting home runs at a record clip. And Harry Sinden provided us with an eye-opener when he said the greatest goaltender on the planet, Patrick Roy, "bleeped" and bleeped bad.

The flowers may be blooming but its business as usual in Boston and the rest of the sports world.

• Have you noticed Ellis Burks is off to a great start for the Chicago White Sox now that he doesn't have to worry about Mike Greenwell knocking him silly on those fly balls to left-center.

• The Celtics finish with their worst record since the pre-Bird era and who are they talking about getting rid of? Head coach Chris Ford. It's pretty sad when the team's head coach and oldest player (Robert Parish) have the best overall season of anyone. There's a lot of dead wood on the Celtics' roster and until they decide to cart it off, there's no reason to think the team will improve anytime soon.

• The Bruins had all they could handle in Roy during the Montreal series, but don't expect New Jersey Devils' goaltender Martin Broduer to roll over and play dead for Boston. So far, the netminders have made the difference in the playoffs. And Jon Casey is right up there with Felix Potvin, Broduer and Mike Richter as one goalie who is playing the best he has all season.

• The thing I dread most about the spring and summer is having to see those photos of Patriots' head coach Bill Parcells wearing skin-tight shorts, overseeing mini-camp and the official camp in summer. It's only when you get a look at Parcells' legs that you long for the cold of winter and long pants.

• Have you noticed baseball and football are two professional sports where you don't have to look like an athlete to collect a handsome pay check. No? Try Cecil Fielder, John Kruk and William Perry. Those three look as though they spend the offseason dining in the Hungry Heffer on a regular basis...with Norm, of course.

• Does anybody really care that Charles Barkley is contemplating retirement for a run at politics? With Shaquille O'Neal, Chris Webber, Jamal Mashburn and Alonzo Mourning the rising stars of the future, "Sir Charles" is hardly going to be missed. As for politics, why should Howard Stern have all the fun?

• Is there anything more ridiculous looking than a coach wearing the identical corduroy Little League jackets of his players? Actually, yes. When the word "Coach" is embroidered on the sleeve. It does, however, clear up the confusion as to whether or not he manages the squad or is its starting shortstop.

• Now that Magic Johnson has announced he won't be back as the Lakers' coach next season, it's the perfect opportunity for him to become the new host of the soon to be cancelled, "Arsenio Hall Show."

• I wish the "Boo Birds" would stop heckling Mike Greenwell. Don't they know he just wants to be loved by the Fenway Faithful? Besides, all his belly-aching is beginning to make me feel queasy.

• Jimmy Johnson and Jerry Jones more than deserve each other. And do you get the feeling the Cowboys aren't exactly thrilled having Barry Switzer as their new head coach? Michael Irvin was the first to walk out of the meeting and the team is beginning to lose several players to other clubs around the NFL.

• I have a hard time feeling sorry for the Buffalo Bills and their last four Super Bowl loses when Jim Kelly is their quarterback. He ranks third behind Bobby Knight and Vince Coleman as my most disliked sports celebrity. Distance runner Lynn Jennings is a close fourth.

• Anyone who believes the old adage "Nice guys finish last" never met Bill Rodgers or Greg Meyer.

• After playing for the Celtics for 14 years, the organizations should do the the right thing and trade him to a NBA title contender for his final season. "The Chief" doesn't figure into the future of the team and there really is no sense in keeping him, save for sentimental reasons.

• Dee Brown, Sherman Douglas, Dino Radja and Rick Fox should stay. Acie Earl, Xavelr McDaniel and Aba Abdenaly should wear any color but the Celtics' green next season.

If all my wishes eventually come true, the Spring and Summer of '94 should end up as my best ever. But who knows? Boston is a bizarre sports town.

Phillies tie Reds in Minor League action

By Joan Busk
Special to the Mariner

There was some great baseball Saturday as the undefeated Phillies faced off against the undefeated Reds in the Minor National League. Despite base hits by Amyra Chase-O'Connell, Timothy Anton and Sean Connolley, the Phillies were unable to score in the first inning. The Reds were only able to score one run with great Phillies fielding by Ryan Cannistraro, Malcolm Stansell, Andrew O'Keeffe and Allison Earon.

The Phillies came on strong in the third inning with some great batting and hits by Jeff Barrett and Andrew Busk. Despite the strong Phillie lineup, they were unable to put a run on the scoreboard. In the bottom of the third inning it looked as though the Reds were going to score with a big hit to center field and a runner on third. Andrew "Strong Arm" Busk threw the ball to homeplate where Jeff "I Never Miss" Barrett made the tag in a cloud of dust. The Phillies dugout went wild! They were still in the game!

In the top of the fifth inning, with Barrett on first and Greg "Watch Me Fly" Smith on the third, Mike Ernst saved the day with a single that sent Greg Smith home with the tying run. With time running out, the coaches called the game at 1-1. We'll have to wait until May 20 for a rematch of these fantastic teams. The Phillies coaches, Elinore Barrett and Bob Ernst, attribute their team's success to hard work, many practices, and a secret weapon that no Phillies player will divulge.

A's win first two of season

The A's were off to a strong start winning their first two games against the Mets and the Rangers, 18-2 and 2-0. The Major League season opener was played Monday night, April 24, between the Mets and the A's. Excellent pitching performances by Pete Minnar and Raymond Cavanaugh, and timely hitting by rookies Jimmy French, Kevin Hanian and David Proctor and veteran A's player Ted Pubitz helped lead the A's to victory. Evan Cutler demonstrated excellent catching skills behind the plate and B.J. Butman and Trevor Hardie performed particularly well in the field. Nick Cavanaugh came through with an important sacrifice bunt and D.J. Lanzillotti exhibited excellent base-running skills and a nifty glove in the field. The A's anxiously await the return of slugger Danny Sullivan, who is expected to come off the disabled list in the near future.

Little League dance set for May 29

Dance into summer with "J.D. Billy and Ken," the live band that keeps drawing record crowds to benefit our baseball program, is here once again in Cohasset. This year the Chart House has been generous enough to donate its beautiful function room overlooking Cohasset Harbor for this special event.

The dance will take place on the Sunday of Memorial Day weekend, May 29, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Dress is festive. This year people also have the option of dining at the Chart House before the dance. Reservations should be made well in advance. People can also just come directly to the dance. Tickets are $30 per couple and will be available in advance, as well as at the door.

Anyone who is interested in donating silent auction items or services please call Susan Carr at 383-0331.

Remember, you don't have to have a Little Leaguer to attend the dance. The proceeds benefit our Little League program, but the dance is open to anyone who enjoys a fun evening out.

Safe boating course

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 1208, and the Cohasset Recreation Department will sponsor a spring, six session, Safe Boating Course, offering certification by both the Coast Guard and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The course will be offered to both youth and adults, however, certification in this course is mandatory for 16 years old and under, who wish to operate a craft powered by 25 horsepower or more. U.S.C.G.A., Flotilla 1208 instructors will teach the six session course, scheduled to begin Tuesday, May 17, at Cohasset High School, Room 206. Class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday evening, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. from May 17 through June 2.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791, as soon as possible, as class will be limited in size, and participants will be enrolled on a first call basis. There will be a $15 per person fee for this program, that covers the cost of the text book and class materials. Checks for payment must be made out to U.S.C.G.A. Flotilla 1208. While the class is designed for children/youth and adults, it is suggested that children aged 12 and under be accompanied by a participating adult.

Certification cards will be issued, and both the Coast Guard and State recognize the Safe Boating certificate. Further, for those who may be interested, certification for this course will allow you a discount on your boat insurance premium of 5 to 10 percent, depending upon your insurance carrier.

Aerobics at the Community Center

The Community Center offers an hour of aerobic step, strength and flexibility training in a fun, non-competitive class Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 9 to 10 a.m. and Saturday, 8:45 to 10 a.m. Babysitting available. A 10-class card is $40. Drop in fee, $5. Call 383-0088 for more information.

Tennis lessons begin May 9

Spring tennis lessons for children and adults will be offered at the Cohasset Community Center starting May 9. Lessons will be held twice a week either Monday and Wednesday or Tuesday and Thursday with four students per class for a total of six lessons for $36. Space is limited, so call early, 383-0088.

Recreation Department registering climbing classes

ADULT — INTRODUCTION TO CLIMBING

An introduction to climbing in a supportive group atmosphere and safe environment of the CHS Ropes course.

There are two essential goals in this course. First, all climbers will learn safe and proper use of equipment, climbing knots, how to belay another climber and how to rappel. In addition, you will learn ropes course safety procedures. Secondly, the individual will experience the joy of learning new skills and the rewards of challenging oneself in the context of a group relationship.

One five-week session, Wednesdays, 6 to 8 p.m.; $50 includes use of all equipment and staff to operate climbing facility. The maximum enrollment is 12.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791. You can enroll as a group or individual.

business notes

Hunneman offers school information for buyers

Hunneman Coldwell Banker has affiliated with National School Reporting Services Inc. and now provides customers with objective, comprehensive and up-to-date information on local school systems at no cost.

"The School Report allows us to offer our customers a higher level of service," said Judy Parsons, manager of Hunneman Coldwell Banker.

New manager named

"Steve brings 30 years of retail experience to the position," said Noble. "He knows the ins and outs of a busy retail environment."

Prior to joining Noble's, Norton was the owner of the Bay Company in Hingham, a men's clothing store. Before that, he was the men's clothing buyer for Remick's in Quincy.

A resident of Weymouth, Norton received a B.A. in Marketing from Northeastern University. He is president elect of the Hingham Rotary Club and has been active in the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. He also served on the executive council of the Old Colony Council, Boy Scouts of America. Currently he serves on the Board of Trustees of the Hingham Education Foundation, a statewide parents advisory council for Project Quest, and is active in the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce.

Send your Business News to the Mariner.

Stephen P. Norton is the new manager of Noble's Camera Shop in Cohasset.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
NORFOLK DIVISION
DOCKET NO. 94P0898E1

Estate of THOMAS A. O'BRIEN late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that WILLIAM J. CLARY of SCITUATE in the County of PLYMOUTH be appointed executor named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on June 1, 1994.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16A.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, this eighteenth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-four.

Prisoner of Second Avenue a must for Neil Simon fans

By Judith Brennan
Mariner correspondent

If you enjoy the witty and masterful dialogue of a Neil Simon play, you will want to catch the Cohasset Dramatic Club's production of "Prisoner of Second Avenue." It is a comedy in two acts with all the action taking place in the Edison's 14th floor apartment in New York City.

This Neil Simon comedy was first introduced in 1971, and it's as current today as it was when it was first produced. When Edna (Angie Walsh) asks Mel (Bernie McNulty) if he's worried about losing his job he replies, "No Edna, I'm not worried about losing my job, I'm worried about keeping it." When Mel does lose his job he goes from fear, to anger, to total withdrawal.

McNulty, who makes his CDC debut in this production, played Mel a bit intensely at times taking the character out of the comedic realm. But as Mel's nervous breakdown progressed, McNulty settled back into the part and had fun with the role. He shows real talent and is a terrific addition to the group.

As Mel falls apart Edna gradually reverses her role as homemaker to bread winner and stressed out head of the house. Walsh makes the transition believable, giving a very credible performance.

Mel's illness and the family's problems set the stage for a visit from his brother and two sisters. Harry (Ron Herzberg) is the oldest so he feels a responsibility to help his younger brother, the baby of the family. The two sisters Pearl (Deb Fitzpatrick) and Pauline (Roberta Raffa), go along with their older brother, albeit somewhat grudgingly.

Herzberg, a veteran actor, plays Harry with just the right amount of neurotic concern and angst. He is especially funny in one scene where Mel wants to show his love and appreciation of his older brother by giving him a kiss. Herzberg makes a connection with the audience by touching a common chord in all of us with his awkward and human response to his brother's love and gratitude.

Raffa and Fitzpatrick are delightful as the two sisters. They love their little brother and want to help him and his wife, but being somewhat on the thrifty side they want Harry to keep the costs down.

These two experienced actors give fine performances that are natural and show a gift for comedic timing, as well as a well-developed stage presence.

Stephanie Pedigo also makes her debut as director of the production. In the past she stage-manage[illegible] other productions and produced for the CDC.

Applause should also go to the set director wh[illegible] able to capture the feeling of the cramped overpriced East Side apartment.

If you haven't already caught this CDC production, you can still see it Friday, May 6, or Saturday, May 7, at 8 p.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall.

Stetson Theater update

Stetson Underground Theater will present two one-act plays by Edward Albee, "Zoo Story" and "The American Dream." Written by the author of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolf," both plays received rave reviews when they were first produced in the early '60s.

Bob Harlow, known for his productions at The Barker Tavern's Showstoppers, is directing a talented cast from the South Shore and Boston including Doug Marsden, Crissy Wade, Susan Shellmer and Sharon Evans.

All performances will be at Wilder Memorial Hall, Main Street, Hingham May 13, 14, 15, 20 and 21 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10. For information call 383-2530.

Smoking ban possible

Selectmen are considering banning smoking in town hall altogether.

The discussion followed a suggestion by Executive Secretary Gregory A. Doyon to limit smoking to the basement and that the basement door be kept closed. Currently smoking is allowed in the basement and in a meeting area 2B.

Selectmen Martha K. Gjesteby and Merle S. Brown said for health and safety reasons a total ban would be in order. The board held off making a decision until they receive input on the matter this week from the board of health.

Hull has a no-smoking ban at its town hall, selectmen said.

Doyon said currently smoke and odors are wafting up from the basement because the door is not kept closed.

Join Harborfest parade

Organizers warn that Harborfest is only eight short weeks away. The annual celebration of and for Cohasset is capped off with and old fashioned "down home" New England parade. Individuals, organizations, or companies are invited to sign up. Please call Keith Knowles, 383-1331, for more information.

Engineers to help

Norfolk County engineers have approved the town's request to provide the following:

- assist in survey work for the installation of a handicapped access ramp at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.
- engineering and surveying necessary to widen a portion of Elm Street at the intersection of Brook Street.
- surveying and establishing grades for a connecting driveway at the Edwin Young parking lot on Government Island.

Henry W. Ainslie, director of operations, said the county "is pleased to again be of assistance to the Town of Cohasset."

Override fielded in special Saturday election

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

At the special town election Saturday, Cohasset voters will decide whether or not to hike their taxes to pay for a new high school athletic field complex.

Payment for the $750,000 project requires a debt-exclusion Prop. 2-1/2 override. If the ballot question authorizing the town to borrow to pay for the project passes muster with the voters, owners of a $300,000 home in Cohasset would see about a $51 increase on their property taxes for the first year. That figure would gradually decline thereafter until the debt is paid off.

Town meeting voters in March decided overwhelmingly to go ahead with the project. The town meeting motion is contingent on a favorable override vote Saturday.

The polls are open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Town Hall.

Although she wouldn't predict a turnout, Town clerk Marion Douglas said very few registered voters have requested absentee ballots, which could be a barometer of voter interest. In hotly contested elections, absentee voting is high.

Government Island is all dressed up for dedication

The Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation plans a ribbon cutting from noon to 3 p.m. Sunday (May 15) as a celebration recognizing the official opening of the Minot Ledge Lighthouse Keepers Residence which includes Bancroft Hall.

Also as part of the festivities, a flower show entitled "Sea Watch" will also be presented by the Community Garden Club of Cohasset from 1 to 5 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday.

The grand opening of the lightkeeper's house caps three years of planning and work by volunteers who banded together and form the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation (CLC) to save the structure which had been badly neglected.

CLC President Joseph McElroy said if the weather is good, he predicts the turnout will be upwards of 500 people or double that of the ground-breaking ceremony 18 months ago.

Admission to "Sea Watch", a standard flower show at the lightkeeper's residence is $5. Show chairman Lee Drew announced the club is trying to achieve national Helen Dalessandro enjoys a good read by the Minot Light Replica on Government Island, which is eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places. Tours of the Replica are just part of the festivities on the former U.S. goverment reservation planned for this weekend during the grand opening celebration of the newly renovated assistant lightkeeper's residence.

Burt Pratt's legacy will live on

Cohasset lost one of its own last weekend with the death of Burtram J. "Burt" Pratt, former town official, local historian, author, and retired businessman.

The 74-year-old Ripley Road resident died May 7 at the Ocean Manor Nursing Home in Scituate after a long illness.

Through his involvement with the South Shore Music Circus, Cohasset Historical Society, veterans' groups, Cohasset Rotary and town government — to name a few — there is nary a corner of town he didn't touch or citizen who didn't know of him.

"Franny and I are deeply saddened by the death of Burt Pratt," said former Town Moderator William D. Weeks.

"Burt was a dedicated and energetic town leader who exemplified the best qualities of public service

'I never knew anyone who gave more to a venture when he committed himself to it.'

rendered by the Pratt family through Cohasset's long history," Weeks recalled.

"He gave generously of his time and talents to the well-being of the community in innumerable ways. During my years as Town Moderator, Burt and I worked closely on many matters affecting the town, and I shall always be grateful for his cooperation and

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

IMPORTANCE OF LOCATION

QUESTION: How important is location to the value of real estate?

ANSWER: The three most important factors affecting the value of real estate are: "Location Location and Location." Unfortunately, most home buyers ignore this important advice.

Location is especially vital when buying a house for maximum resale value (and who doesn't want that?). Therefore, take a long, hard look – not only at the present – but the future prospects of the community and immediate neighborhood. Select a location where home values have an increaseing trend. You can replace or remodel a house – but you can never change a location.

Special Saturday election. . .

The bond issue if approved through the override would cover costs of design and construction of a new field on land adjacent to Milliken Field by the high school and for making repairs to Milliken Field.

The override is necessary because the price tag of the project cannot be absorbed within the constraints of Prop. 2-1/2, the sate law that caps the annual tax levy for municipalities at 2-1/2 percent.

The new field will be built where the tennis courts and parking area currently are beside the high school. This location will make bathroom facilities in the high school for sports events easily accessible.

Encircled by an all-weather track, the new lighted field will be used for soccer, field hockey, lacrosse, and football as well as track meets.

Currently Cohasset track teams cannot host home meets because of the condition of the old high school track which was build in 1938.

The four high school tennis courts will be razed and new ones build by the two at Milliken Field. The Milliken baseball diamond will be relocated and Milliken field will be revamped into practice fields.

The advisory committee, selectmen, and school committee have wholeheartedly endorsed the project.

Emergency Medical Week

The Cohasset Fire Department is observing National Emergency Medical Services Week by encouraging residents to visit their ambulance at the station, 44 Elm St. Free blood pressure readings will be taken and telephone stickers will be distributed.

Visitors will be able to view all medical equipment such as the de-fib machine and vital signs monitor. Fire personnel will be on hand to answer any medical or fire-related questions.

"Norfolk Compu-Search"

Norfolk County Register of Deeds Barry T. Hannon said the Registry of Deeds "Norfolk Compu-Search" System is now available. This is an on-line computer service allowing off site access to the indices and other information compiled at the Registry of Deeds in Dedham.

"We have 20 years of recorded information available — information from January 1974 through yesterday," Hannon said.

"I expect that attorneys, banks and real estate offices will be our principal users; however, we have already had inquiries from as far away as California regarding our services."

The information will be available through a computer modem-telephone line. There will be a minimal charge for the on-line service which will help defray the cost of the computerization and modernization at the Registry of Deeds. "This system will be a great convenience and will save time and money for those using our services."

The Registry of Deeds maintains records of all real estate transactions in the 28 communities (27 towns and the City of Quincy) that comprise Norfolk County.

Those wishing to apply for the service may write to: Registry of Deeds, Barry T. Hannon, P.O. Box 69, Dedham, MA 02027.

Burt Pratt's legacy will live on support.

"We shall miss him greatly, and we offer our deepest sympathies to the entire Pratt family."

An imposing 6 ft. 4 in. tall, a good part of Pratt's youth was involved in Cohasset theater. His love of the arts continued through the years. He was a founder of the South Shore Playhouse Associates, which is the parent company of the Music Circus and Cape Cod Melody Tent, and a member of the South Shore Art Center.

In his book Narrative History of Cohasset, Volume II, Pratt chronicles the town's history from the late 19th through the mid-20th Centuries which includes chapters on Cohasset's rich theatrical past, including a summer when youthful actors Humphrey Bogart and Broderick Crawford called the town and its theater housed in Town Hall 'home'.

"No one knew the good old days when the Music Circus was the Town Hall better than Burt Pratt," recalled retired producer Ron Rawson. "His heart was always very much with the Music Circus. He was its guiding light.

"I called him the gentle giant," Rawson said. "He was a big man but a very gentle man. He will be sorely missed by the community.

"I never knew anyone who gave more to a venture when he committed himself to it."

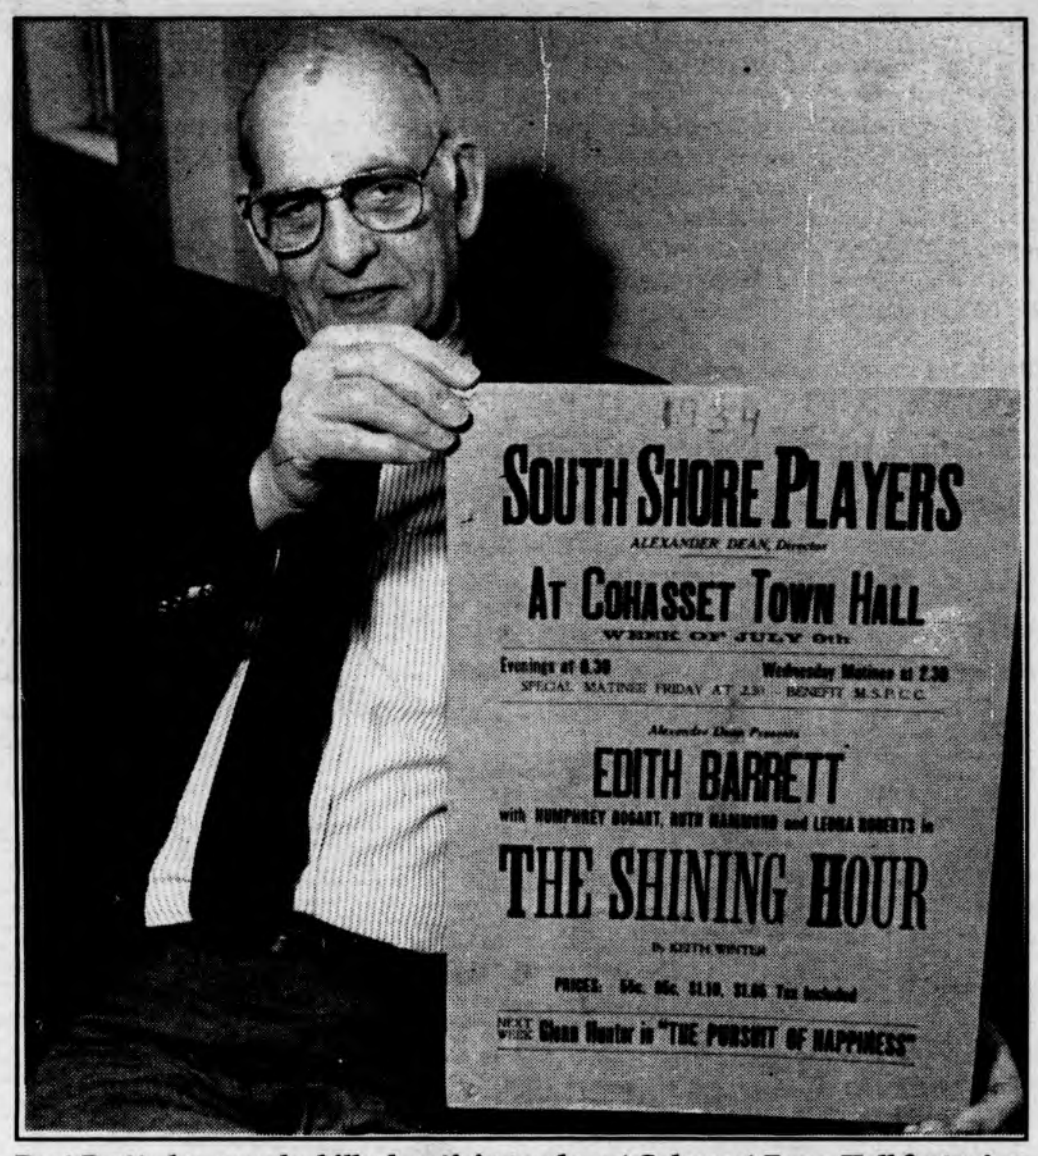
Pratt did not shy away from town politics. He was a selectman from 1987 to 1990 and served as selectmen chairman for two of those years; he served as secretary of the planning board, registrar of voters, and fence viewer.

He was a 40-year member of the Cohasset Republican Town Committee and was publicity director for the Eisenhower for President campaign in the northern section of the Ninth Congressional District in 1952.

Pratt ran for selectman in 1947 for the first time. And although he didn't win, he advocated coordination among town departments and plans for budgeting capital expenses.

"Right to the end, he was asking about things going on in town," Pratt's son, Selectman Peter J. Pratt said.

A master sergeant with the First Army in Europe during World War II, he participated in the invasion of Normandy and the Ardennes campaign, both in 1944. He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion.



Burt Pratt shows a playbill advertising a play at Cohasset Town Hall featuring Edith Barrett and Humphrey Bogart (in small print) from the theater archives at the Cohasset Historical Society. Pratt, past president of the historical society, passed away May 7. (File photo)

Pratt was instrumental in planning the veterans development on the old Town Farm land off Pond St. after World War II.

Following his retirement in 198[illegible] general manager for the Denison P[illegible]s Co., in Weymouth, Pratt was a salesman in the printing field. He has been advertising manager of the New England Art Publishers in North Abington and a correspondent and feature writer for the Patriot Ledger in Cohasset and Scituate from 1947 to 1950.

A director and past president of the Cohasset Rotary Club, Pratt was named a Paul Harris Fellow, the club's highest honor, for his participation in the annual club telephone director which raises scholarships for high school graduates.

He was a past president of the Cohasset Historical Society.

"We've lost a very special person," said state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray. "Burt was a man who cared and loved the town of Cohasset.

"And everything he did for the Cohasset Historical Society will be preserved for future generations," she said.

Pratt was a also member of the Old Goats Club, the Sixty Plus Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Born and raised in Cohasset, he lived there all his life. He was president of his 1937 graduating class at Cohasset High School and worked at Cohasset Savings Bank before the war.

In addition to his son, he leaves his wife, Helen J. (Carroll) Pratt; a daughter Joy A. Pratt of Charlestown; two brothers, Dr. John J. Pratt of Wayland and Edwin Pratt of Spring Hill, Florida; and a sister, Marietta Baynard of Newport Richie, Florida.

awards. Her enthusiasm, along with the energetic committee, has contributed to making this an exciting show. The garden, designed and planted by club members, will be on view for the first time.

Sunday's events include reminiscences about life at the assistant lightkeeper's residence by Bob and Carol Thompson whose father was assistant lightkeeper during World War I and dedication of Bancroft Hall with special guest Jane Bancroft Cook.

Other highlights are: United States Coast Guard Navigational Aids Display, open house aboard the USCG 46-ft. boat, South Shore Concert Band, Cohasset Historical Society period costumes, and Minot Ledge Lighthouse Historical Display and Minot Light Replica, which will be open for tours. Admission is free.

The house includes two upstairs apartments which are currently rented for $875 a month and a community hall available for meetings.

The CLC has a $75,000 outstanding loan and there is still about $30,000 of additional work to be done over and above that at the site, McElroy explains. He said the group will be raising money to finish the kitchen, add more exterior lighting, tree line the Edwin Young Parking Lot, and finish the picnic area.

Government Island is eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places and there is a chance the former government reservation will be named a National Register Historic District in time for this weekend's celebration.

Community Center expands its name

The community center's new name is the South Shore Community Center of Cohasset, Susan DiPesa, president of the non-profit corporation, has announced. The 50-year-old center was previously called The Community Center of Cohasset.

Community Center directors, after meeting with the organization founders and Gerard Keating and representatives from the Council on Aging, decided to expand the center's name for two reasons.

Not only does the Community Center attract members from Hull, Scituate, Hingham and Norwell in addition to Cohasset but the name change will help facilitate fund-raising, explained executive vice president Rhonda Myers.

"The Center operates on a shoestring budget and in a small town, you can't go year after year to the same people," she said. "We need to go elsewhere for grants and corporate donations."

Myers said if the name better reflects whom the center serves, it will be easier to attract more monetary support from beyond the town's borders.

She said the center has a mortgage to pay down and the new senior wing, which was built and paid for by the Friends of the Council on Aging, is still in need of some donations.

Myers stressed that "Cohasset" will always be somewhere in the name.

"We won't ever lose that connection," she said.

David Hassan of Cohasset has generously offered to help design the new logo, Myers said.

What's happening at the community center

The South Shore Community Center will host its 5th annual tennis tournament June 24 through 26, rain or shine. The tournament will be an A & B mixed doubles, two out of three set elimination.

The Youth Draw Doubles Tournament for all levels will be on June 24.

Registration is now open. Forms can be picked up at the center. For information call the center at 383-0088, Charlie DiPesa at 383-2652 or Carolyn Swain at 545-6476.

Early release day, Thursday May 19 between 1 and 3 p.m. Kites of Boston will be at the center to help children build and decorate their own tyvek kite. There will be a presentation of all children's kites and a flying demonstration by Kites of Boston. Pre-registration is required.

Boy's Night Out will be held Friday May 13 from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m. with Ruthann Sargent. Boys will share pizza, participate in gymnastics, bowling and prizes. Pre-register.

Amanda Church will be teaching tennis at the center this spring and summer for the fifth year. Session I will start May 9 and will meet Mondays and Wednesdays for three weeks. Session II will meet on Tuesday and Thursday beginning May 10 and Session III will begin May 31, meeting Tuesday and Thursday. Session IV starts June 1 and meets Monday and Wednesday. Call the center at 383-0088 for sign up and times.

May 15 is a day that Joe McElroy and his extremely able "crew" are looking forward to, that is the day that they cut the ribbon marking three years of effort directed toward preserving and adapting for public use the Minot Ledge Lighthouse Keepers' Residence.

Highlights of the festivities will include a United States Coast Guard Navigational Aids Display, open house aboard the USCG 46' Boy Boat, the South Shore Concert Band, Cohasset Historical Society period costumes, Minot Ledge Lighthouse historical display, and dedication of Bancroft Hall (with honored guest Jane Bancroft Cook).

We are so lucky to have such a wonderful group, so anxious to preserve our history. And, a great meeting place. One thing however, they are still looking for money to finish their project, and Joe is hoping to get a big response.

Why not slip a check in the mail, make it out to Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation, and mail it to Post Office Box 514, Cohasset, MA, 02025, help Joe (and yourselves) to keep what is precious to so many of us.

1944, a very good year! That is when Elinor Kennedy became a member of the Amateur Gardeners. Nothing unusual about that, right? Well, Tuesday, April 19, she attended the yearly business meeting, and was the honored guest. Imagine, Elinor has been a member for 50 years! And, is still active, with trowel in hand and hands in the dirt. A crystal flower bowl was presented to her with great admiration and she was given an honorary membership for her 92 years. You know, she is a special lady with brilliance. Ask her anything.

We know that Kathleen Fox of the "Designing Woman," is participating in the Junior League of Boston's Show House and Garden Tour. She will undoubtedly be great, so be sure to go to Elm St. (605), the former Dutton Estate, and see her great work. And, a wonderful experience.

Everyone has heard the phrase "Fifty is Nifty", it most certainly is true!

My big day was last week, and as a surprise (was it ever), Clark flew my sister, Ricki, from Hawaii to celebrate the "big" event. You should have seen me at the airport, my mouth fell so wide open you could have shot a basketball into it. Ricki will be here for two weeks, all of her old classmates and friends be sure that you get in touch with her. She would love to hear from you. And, she looks super-great!

Shirley Pipenbrink called me with wonderful news last week, she is a grandmother again. She and Fred are sooo happy.

Calli Nicole Pipenbrink was born April 23 at South Shore Hospital, weighing in at 7 lbs., 14 oz.

We understand that she is beautiful, and that mom, Jennifer (Egan) and Bobby are beside themselves with pride. Of course you know that grandparents are always delighted, Joanne Egan is too.

And, proud brother Daniel is just as delighted as the rest. You will certainly see Calli around town, take a peek at just how beautiful she is. We congratulate you all.

Talking about Jennifer Pipenbrink, did you know that she is running "SandCastles," the new pre-school and child care center? And that there are openings for the summer and fall (part-time and full-time)? And, there are a number of Cohassetites that are teachers. They are, Karen Hettstrom, Erin (O'Brien") Flynn, Heidi (Chase) Salerno, Susan (Brown) Fellows, Jenny Salerno and Julie Hassan. Owner and chief operator Jennifer is proud of her group, they teach in pre-kindergarten, preschool, toddlers and infants. Mom, remember the name, SandCastles.

The Massachusetts Chapter of the National Football Foundation has named David Zadel as one of their outstanding scholar-athletes for his achievements on and off the field.

David is a senior at Archbishop Williams High School. He played defensive end and offensive tackle and was one of the most highly recruited linemen in the state. David will attend Wake Forest University on a football scholarship in the fall. A banquet was held May 9 at Lombardo's to honor the recipients of this award.

David is the son of Bill and Betty Zadel of Cohasset, they are surely proud of David and his efforts, both on and off the field, we are too.

Keep in touch with us David, let us know you will do extremely well, and we want to hear about it and your accomplishments!

Gould Academy's Winter Sports Banquet was held recently, honoring athletes for their accomplishments during the season. Junior Melinda Johansen received the Sportsmanship award for the Women's Varsity Basketball team. She is the daughter of Mrs. Pamela Johansen.

Proposed Hingham rail tunnel gains limited support

Selectmen will not follow their counterparts in Scituate and Hingham in endorsing 'Alternative 6a' for restoration of the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad.

Alternative 6a is restoration of surface rail from Scituate to Boston with a short tunnel under Hingham Square.

After 18 months of study, a representative citizens group appointed by the MBTA to comment on a feasibility study involving six transportation alternatives, including restoration of surface rail, recently unanimously supported Alternative 6a as both a prudent and feasible alternative.

In a letter to Trudy Coxe, secretary of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, the CAC said that bringing the train back is the best way to solve the region's transportation problems.

Monday, the sole Cohasset selectman to support Alternative 6a was Martha Gjesteby who sat on the CAC.

While Selectman Jane Goedecke supports the return of the train, she does not support the tunnel because it will add to the cost of the Old Colony Project, she said.

Selectman Merle S. Brown said while he is not totally opposed to the train, he feels other transportation alternatives have not been adequately studied.

Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan said he now has serious safety concerns about restoration of the train.

Selectman Peter J. Pratt did not attend Monday's meeting due to the recent death of his father, Burtram Pratt.

Last winter, selectmen agreed to give Scituate selectmen unanimous support in sending a letter to Gov. Weld urging him to focus his efforts to get the Greenbush Line on track.

Two weeks later, when Scituate Selectman Kevin Kinsella asked for their signatures on a letter to Weld, then Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said he did not agree to support restoration of the train which would go through Cohasset. He said he only agreed that the issue should be resolved once and for all. Brown also said he did not support restoration of the railroad but wanted the governor to support transportation alternatives.

Kinsella made a special trip to the Cohasset selectmen's meeting to obtain the board's signatures on the letter to Weld imploring him to "act with great speed and alacrity to get this railroad off dead center."

Goedecke, Sullivan, Gjesteby, and Brown signed the letter. Laugelle did not.

In a 1991 referendum, 64 percent of the Cohasset citizens who voted were in favor of railroad restoration. The percentage in favor across the Greenbush towns averaged 73 percent.

We give a huge round of applause to Jo-An R. Kilgore, who has been named a new trustee at the Judge Baker Children's Center in Boston.

Ms. Kilgore is director of marketing system for the WGBH Educational Foundation in Boston. She has worked in various financial and fund-raising positions at the foundation for 14 years!

Judge Baker Children's Center is a national leader in research, training and treatment of childhood mental illness. A non-profit agency, the Center integrates its research and professional training with community-based programs that focus on preventing social, emotional and learning problems in children and their families.

Finally, don't forget to VOTE this weekend. For a grand new field. Your vote is needed. Cohasset hasn't made a significant investment in outdoor facilities since the 1930s. Consequently, our fields are substandard and below the levels of the surrounding towns. Imagine our lighted game field and track being proposed (located between Milliken Field and the Cohasset High School)?

The new field will be sued for soccer, lacrosse, track, football, and field hockey. The most important result is that our facilities will be increased from three fields to five, a necessary project indeed! It was overwhelmingly approved by Town Meeting, recommended by all the boards in the town, and is a MUST!

Vote "Yes" this Saturday, all of your children and future generations, will be so glad that you took the time and the thought to get to the pols. Plus, it is a show of how happy that the Outdoor Sports Facilities Improvements Committee has had all of their HARD work pays off. VOTE YES.

Don't forget, call me with your news.

Dorothy E. (Tabor) McAdams of Cohasset, a retired bank manager at South Shore Bank, Quincy and Lincoln Trust in Hingham, died at home May 2 after a long illness.

Mrs. McAdams was also bank manager for five years at the Boston Five Bank, formerly Haymarket Cooperative Bank.

A native of Quincy, she graduated from the Woodward School for girls in Quincy.

She leaves her husband, Leo G. McAdams; four daughters, Leslie Hines of Marshfield, Lisa Hellar of London, England, Lisbeth Lease of Indiana and Leigh-Stephanie Hernan of Scituate; and four grandchildren.

Arrangements for a private funeral service and burial were made by McNamara-Sparrel Funeral Home.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 294 Pleasant St., Stoughton 02072.

Remembering Burt Pratt

Burtram J. "Burt" Pratt was one of the first people I met in Cohasset.

As the new editor of the Cohasset Mariner in March 1992, I beat a path to the local historical society's door at the Caleb Lothrop House on Summer Street to look for stories.

Having covered Norwell and Hanover for four years and hailing from across the border in Scituate, I was soon fascinated by something completely out of my realm of experience — Cohasset's rich theatrical past.

I was immediately referred to Burt Pratt, who agreed to meet me and discuss the history of Cohasset theater — a topic I naively thought could be dealt with in an hour or two.

The better part of a day and three reporter's notebooks later — I knew I was in way over my head.

I carried the notebooks around in my tote bag for a while. I looked them over and over. Finally after several months, I mustered up the courage to ask Mr. Pratt to meet me again at the Cohasset Historical Society.

This time I corralled him into only telling me the story of Humphrey Bogart's summer in Cohasset.

So the story I started in the spring finally made it to completion in time for Christmas that year.

A former reporter himself, Burt didn't lose faith that a story would appear. He kidded me about it whenever I ran into him in town.

Throughout his life Mr. Pratt stayed involved in the town he loved. His son, Peter says despite his illness, he never stopped asking about Cohasset goings on.

The Pratt family plans to work with the historical society and other non-profit groups to see that Mr. Pratt's lifelong dream of a historical library and archives at the society come to fruition.

It will be a wonderful tribute to a man who counted many among his friends — old and new ones alike.

A little history on the train

letters

To the Editor:

There is an apparently unrecognized irony in a sign, "Stop the Train," that has appeared on Forest Avenue in Cohasset as part of the belated and benighted effort against restoration of the Greenbush line of the Old Colony railroad.

Unless my information on Cohasset history is amiss, Forest Avenue was cut in a straight line through vacant forest from Jerusalem Road to North Main Street at the turn of the century just to get to the train. It was reputedly financed privately by the wealthy summer residents of Jerusalem Road, who also financed a station, Black Rock, so they could easily catch the convenient commuting trains to Boston. (This station, incidentally, was bought by my father just before World War II when the railroad was in the throes of "downsizing," and moved, to eventually become a residence at 44 Beechwood Street.)

I think the residents of Forest Avenue and Jerusalem Road, like thousands of other South Shore residents, would find a restored Greenbush line still a great convenience that would probably increase the value of the already valuable homes built in the last few years along Forest Avenue. And I am one who believes that a restored Greenbush line would actually be a boon to the centers, including Hingham, that it would pass through.

Boats and buses may work for some, but they are poor substitutes for the comfort and convenience of a modern train.

Recreation commission supports Prop. 2 1/2 override, vote Saturday

To the Editor:

While sympathetic to tax date expenditures, the Cohasset Recreation Commission stands in support of the override question before voters May 14 that provides the necessary revenue to expand Miliken Field and re-locate the track. In fact, because of privately donated money towards this project, the tax-dollar expended will have considerably greater value.

During the past decade, numerous individuals have expended great amounts of time and effort in an attempt to conceive and fund field expansion plans. The plan before voters May 14 provides maximum field and track expansion for a minimum number of dollars. The concept of this plan is essentially very simple. Currently, Cohasset lacks the field area to accommodate the numbers of children and youth who desire to engage in school and recreational sports programs and activities. Further compounding field area deficits, is the current location of the Miliken Field track which represents an unsafe condition. The current location of the Miliken Field track, in proximity to the baseball field, makes use of the track by either runners or walkers during a baseball game hazardous. However, there currently exists no room for re-location of either track or baseball diamond. Field expansion would rectify this unsafe condition as a new track, distal to the baseball diamond, would be installed.

There are, of course, a number of obvious benefits that would manifest from field expansion and track re-location, however, there are also some very vital, but less obvious benefits to be gained from this project. At this time, field maintenance, repair and scheduling is an absolute nightmare for everyone involved, especially the Tree and Park Department, the designated caretakers.

Even under ideal conditions, field upkeep and care can often be extremely time consuming and seemingly, never ending. Under current conditions, it will only be a matter of time before our fields become virtually unsafe to play upon, despite the Trojan and often heroic efforts made to keep fields in repair, by our Tree and Park Department.

Essential to proper field maintenance/use, is the capability to periodically rotate field usage. That is, close areas for repair and rest on a rotating basis — a concept which is neither feasible or possible right now, due to field shortages. In the long-run, over the long-term, field maintenance time, hence, costs should actually be reduced via field rotation methods. Costs, however, should be only a secondary consideration to the safety of our youngsters. At this juncture, we should no longer subscribe to conditions that may soon border upon negligence. More field space and certainly, a new, safer location of a running/walking track is not a consideration of luxury, but rather a consideration of absolute necessity.

Respect for Richard Nixon is justified

To the Editor:

In his letter published May 4, Mr. Robert Schneider objects to a day of mourning for President Nixon, on the grounds that honoring a man guilty of abuse of power sends the wrong signal to young people.

I say that the day of mourning sends a message that it's well to respect a man who devoted his entire life to public service, who served the public interest by fostering far-sighted social legislation, who sets an inspiring example by his iron determination to continue to be useful when most others would have been broken. He was an effective President, and probably would have gone down in history as one of the most productive, had he not become a victim of his personal demon of insecurity and stumbled into Watergate.

Nixon was far from alone in abuse of Presidential power; he had the misfortune to try it (and get caught) when the nation, and especially the media, was looking for a scapegoat on whom to vent our frustrations with the Vietnam debacle.

I don't agree with Mr. Schneider's contention that blatant misuse of power is unique misbehavior that cannot be forgiven. I can more easily forgive that, in a leader that leads intelligently and constructively in the common interest, than I can forgive one in a position of leadership who hasn't the courage, moral fiber, intelligence, sense of history, maturity, patriotism and vision to represent us effectively.

For example, had Franklin Roosevelt not abused his powers in 1939 and 1940 to aid those allied against Hitler, W.W. 2 might not have begun to turn against the Nazis in 1942, it might not have been feasible to free Europe in 1945, and Russia might have become part of a massive and ruthless Nazi empire permanently arrayed against us and bent on further conquests.

The moral deficiencies of American society are deeply troubling, but I was heartened by the understanding and generosity of spirit shown by most people, when Nixon left us.

Gage assails Bulger appointment

After reading of Senate President William Bulger's appointment of Senator Brian McDonald as chairman of the Senate Insurance Committee, democratic senate candidate Timothy Gage stated that Mcdonald's obvious entrenchment in the Bulger camp has strengthened his resolve to unseat the senator.

"It is amazing to me that Sen. McDonald has been out there claiming to be uncommitted in the senate leadership battle and yet the senate president appoints him to one of the plum positions in the senate," Gage said. "Who is fooling who?" Gage also referred to the fact that McDonald ran on a platform of reform and change in his 1990 and 1992 campaigns for the senate. "He pledged to be a candidate for change but his real agenda was to preserve the status quo and politics as usual."

Gage has said that he will not vote for Sen. Bulger if elected to the senate and McDonald's recent appointment confirms the need for change in leadership. "Despite receiving an extra $7,500 a year, McDonald failed to hold a single committee hearing in the 16 months that he chaired the Senate Ethics Committee.

Gage said that the voters have to hold public officials accountable. "If people take the time to compare Sen. McDonald's rhetoric with his actions, they will not return him to the senate," he said.

Cohasset needs sports fields

To the Editor:

It's 1994. Cohasset needs Plan B!

Plan A was good for its time, but it has sunk with the weight of 60 years of change. Now it's time for Plan B.

Plan A, the original Milliken Field, provided outdoor sports facilities for a couple of hundred school boys. Cohasset has changed since 1938. Over 1,000 people of all ages use our sports facilities. Our population has quadrupled. Girls are active in sports to the same degree that boys are. Middle aged and senior men and women use outdoor sports facilities for recreation and fitness. Soccer was unheard of in 1938. Now it's our most popular sport. We have 41 (!) soccer teams this spring, yet we are still operating on the old Plan A — for 200 schoolboys.

We can't host field hockey or track because our facilities don't comply with modern standards. Players and spectators at football games have nowhere to go to the bathroom (some use the woods). It's crowded and can be dangerous — a lacrosse player was hit by a baseball recently. We are unable to reasonably schedule soccer practice and games and field maintenance. It is simply too crowded.

Plan B creates a new field and allows the layouts at Milliken to be redesigned to pick up an extra field there too. Expanding our surface by two fields will relieve the overcrowding.

Plan B is cheap. It is estimated to start off at under a 1% tax increase, and become less every subsequent year over the 15 year life of the bond issue.

A picture is worth a thousand words. Maybe that's why town meeting voted 326 to 5 in favor of the article for improved sports facilities. The attendees saw slides comparing the facilities of surrounding towns with Cohasset's. One series of slides showed the first day of a track this spring. Girls and boys at Hingham, Norwell, and Scituate were practicing on their modern, all-weather tracks, but because of the condition of our 1938 track, Cohasset's girls and boys had to run in the streets. The other three towns, as well as most towns in the state, have already implemented their Plan B's. It's high time Cohasset did too.

PROBLEM: TRANSPORTATION on SOUTH SHORE*

PROPOSED SOLUTION - TRAIN TO GREENBUSH

IMPACT ON TAXES

Train fares cover only a small fraction of operating expenses to run the train and maintain the stations, parking lots and garages. Your taxes pay the rest. Braintree had to pay $936,322 for the "privilege" of having the train. That money came from the town's operating budget. Any increase to your town means less for the schools, police, fire depts., etc. Otherwise, your town will RAISE YOUR TAXES!

IMPACT ON ENVIRONMENT

The winding train route was laid out in the 1800's along the lowlands because the engines didn't have power for hills. A diesel run, double decker, high speed train with NO EMISSION CONTROL will charge through these same wetlands and marshes including the PROTECTED Back River Estuary. HERBICIDES/CHEMICALS will be sprayed to control growth along the tracks threatening water supplies and fragile ecosystems. The Environmental Protection Agency considers any noise above 55 decibels as NOISE POLLUTION. Decibel levels on the Greenbush line will reach 115 Decibels. This pollution will occur 24 times a day! Noise barrier walls will become targets for GRAFFITI.

END OF THE COMMUTER BOAT

of people in workforce on South Shore > 73,170 (according to latest U.S. census)
of people MBTA anticipates will take the train > 3,500 (1/3 currently using public transportation)
of people currently commuting by boat > 2,500 (many of whom the MBTA predicts will switch to the train)

The exhorbitant MBTA DEFICIT will NEVER justify two major modes of transportation to the same area servicing SO FEW PEOPLE. The train will mean the probable DEMISE of the commuter boat ending the most reliable, weather resistant, pleasurable form of public transportation (advertised in New York as the civilized commute) as well as ending the best demonstration of public/private cooperation.

ALTERNATIVE SOLUTION - BUSES AND BOATS

MBTA studies show that for $36 million we could get:
1. an expanded Hingham Shipyard terminal
2. new Nantasket (Hull) terminal
3. 5 new high speed commuter boats
4. feeder bus service on South Shore
5. increased peak-time service

Add to that our recommendations:
1. new Boston terminals - Fan Pier, South Station
   new South Shore terminals - Quincy, Weymouth
2. TIMED bus service upon arrival in Boston to transport people to the Prudential and other downtown areas
3. direct water shuttle from South Shore to Logan with Park and Ride lot
4. midday, late night, weekend service
5. handicap accessibility
6. conversion of Greenbush train route to bicycle/walking path

SICK AND TIRED OF HIGHWAY TRAFFIC?

Congestion on our highways will not improve until we develop a transportation system that will help the 79% of the South Shore workforce who DO NOT WORK IN BOSTON. We are recommending a busway system on Route 3 from Marshfield to Boston and along Route 128. This is based on a system used in Germany and Australia that has the characteristics of light rail combined with the FLEXIBILITY of buses.

There is no vote on this issue. Sign our petition to Governor Weld telling him that we are opposed to the train and that we favor improved and expanded bus and water transportation.

Harbor Islands Park opening

The Harbor Islands League, a non-profit organization focusing on projects and programs needed to enhance the Boston Harbor Islands State Park, will open the park's season Sunday May 1 with a celebration at the American Legion Nickerson Post on Moon Island Road in Squantum, Quincy. The event will feature talks on lighthouses and the islands.

The goal for this summer of the newly-formed league is to renovate the multi-denominational chapel on Peddock's Island. The league will also provide funding and volunteers for the children's Kidleidoscope Program, an environmental educational summer program held on Bumpkin and Grape Islands.

Volunteer knitters wanted

Cohasset resident Ginger Ferenz is looking for knitters to knit woolen hats to be donated to the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans in Boston.

Ferenz has two hat patterns that she will provide for the project.

Volunteers may call her at 383-2863 and pick up the pattern and yarn at her Windy Hill Road home. If knitters have extra yarn at home, they are welcome to knit the hats from their own supplies. Once the hats are completed, Ferenz will drop them off at the shelter.

"I think the summer months are an ideal time to knit, while sitting at the beach or relaxing," Ferenz said. "Knitting is a wonderful hobby and pastime.

"If experienced knitters would like to teach want-to-be's, they can leave their names with me and those who need a teacher can contact me and I'll match them up," she said. "Perhaps some high school girls and boys might like to learn the hobby and knit a hat for homeless veterans."

No committee vote yet on school calendar change

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

At a sparsely attended meeting Thursday, May 5, the school committee defended its stated intention to change the school calendar for the 1995-96 school year.

The proposed change would eliminate both the February and April vacations in favor of a one-week vacation in March. Because both the February and April vacations contain holidays, the effect will be that only three days of vacation are lost as a result of the change.

At its April meeting, the committee indicated that it would vote not later than June of this year on the change for the 1995-96 school year. It was suggested at that meeting that an early vote was necessary in order for parents to be able to make appropriate vacation arrangements.

Following Thursday's meeting, the timetable for the vote seems much less clear. One reason for the change in the expected voting date is that the committee and Supt. Stephen Hart have developed a three-question survey for distribution to other school committees across the state.

With the help of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees, the surveys will be sent around the state in order to determine what other school systems have adopted the changed calendar and what the results have been. The survey is also aimed at determining what systems are contemplating the change at the present time and when such a change might be implemented.

> 'Out of fairness, we need to make up our mind, pick a close time for a vote and make a final decision.'
> — School Committee member Jim Kirk

According to Chairman Nancy Sandell, the committee had hoped to distribute the survey, consider the results, and vote on the issue in the fall of 1994.

Newly elected member Jim Kirk took issue with this proposal and urged the committee to hasten the distribution of the survey so that a confirmatory vote could be held in June. Kirk feels that a delay in the vote until next fall will leave parents in exactly the position that the committee had hoped to help avoid.

Namely, parents would be unable to make appropriate vacation plans for the following school year. Some committee members have expressed concerns that if parents have made vacation plans based upon the traditional vacation schedule and that schedule is changed with short notice, some parents will keep their children out of school for that time.

"Out of fairness, we need to make up our mind, pick a close time for a vote and make a final decision," Kirk urged.

While the committee has stated its intention to make the change, it wants to have its decision supported by other communities.

"We are very committed to talking with surrounding communities about this," Sandell said.

Audience members questioned the committee and Hart and asked them to site research in support of the change or other compelling reasons for making it. In response, Hart said that all of the research supports making the change but said there really aren't any specific studies supporting either side of the issue. Hart went on to say that one of the most compelling pieces of evidence is the majority of systems across the country do not have February and April vacations.

"One very compelling reason is the belief that this change would improve the educational continuity of the school year. There would be fewer interruptions in the school year and this would smooth out the number of instructional days within each month," Hart explained.

"I would like to see a compelling educational reason not to do it," he said.

Committee member Ralph Kidder pointed out that as compared to children in more advanced nations, American students spend less time on academics in school and outside.

"We must try to find ways to get kids more time on task," he said.

"We really have to have an open mind on these types of issues. Why should we be the last to do it. We should look at alternatives and not always in comparison to the old ways," Hart added.

The school committee intends to form some type of study committee to collect more information regarding the proposed change before holding a final vote.

Parenting workshops set

The elementary school adjustment counselors are offering a series of four parenting workshops from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Thursdays in the "living room" at First Parish House, Main St.

May 12 — Self-esteem...What Can a Parent Do?

May 19 — Teaching Responsibility and Respect to Children

The workshops are open to any Cohassset parent and will be led by Ed Leonard and Frank Fitzgerald who have extensive experience consulting with parents. The success and appeal of the workshops offered earlier in the year has prompted this four-part series that will include parts of Canter's "Assertive Discipline" as well as information from the "STEP Parenting" and "How to Talk so Children Will Listen (And Listen so Children Will Talk)" programs.

Even if you attended the earlier workshops, the series will offer much more as well as a refresher. Attend any or all of the dates. Call Ed or Frank at 383-6115 or 383-6117 for information.

Metco fund-raiser set

The Cohasset Metco Program will have a coffee and donut stand at the high school for farm team baseball games.

The stand will be open from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday May 21 and June 18. Money raised will go to support the Cohasset Metco late bus.

Continental Math League

Grade seven, March Meet: In the Euclidean division our team consisted of Amanda Denz-Collins, Tamara DeVaughn, William Kearney, Robert Morgan, Alex Russell, and Morgan Sandell. The student with the highest cumulative score is Ian Mathews.

In the Pythagorean division, our team consisted of Ron Nicynski, Justin Golden, Nick Herzog, Jordan Fiore, Ben Littauer, and Rene Fagot. The student with the highest cumulative scores is Nick Herzog.

Top scorers named

More than one million students who took the 1993 PSAT/NMSQT last October entered the 1995 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Six students from Cohasset High School achieved Selection Index scores which placed them among approximately 50,000 highest-scoring participants.

These students are:

Candice Buckley, Ann Dane, Jessica Jenkins, Corinna McMackin, Mary Ellen Rayment, and Josiah Slotnick

While all 50,000 high scorers have shown outstanding academic potential, only some 15,000 of them will be named Semifinalists. The other 35,000 will be commended for their performance on the PSAT/NMSQT, but only Semifinalists will have an opportunity to continue in the competition for about 6,500 Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1995. Neither Semifinalists nor Commended Students in the 1995 Merit Program will be informed of their standing until September 1994.

Retailers file suit to overturn Blue Laws

Statewide referendum also sought

By Steve Adams
Mariner staff

Retailers are mounting a two-pronged assault — in the form of a class action suit and a statewide referendum drive — to strike down the state's Blue Laws.

Shaw's Supermarkets, Stop & Shop, Home Depot, Big Y Foods, the Massachusetts Food Association and the Retailers Association of Massachusetts filed a class action suit May 4 in Boston's U.S. District Court to overturn the Blue Laws, which prohibit supermarkets and large retail stores from opening before noon on Sundays, as well as Memorial Day, Independence Day, and Labor Day.

Or do they?

Bernie Rogan, a spokesman for Shaw's Supermarkets, noted that the company's Revere and Melrose stores are permitted to open Sundays at 9 a.m., because the Blue Laws, which are riddled with 54 exemptions, allow local authorities to override the state guidelines.

But Shaw's Braintree and Hanover stores aren't allowed to open on Sunday until noon.

"When you're operating on a regional or statewide basis like we do, this just points out the inconsistencies," said Rogan. "The customer gets confused, too. Customers need to know they can shop when they need to shop."

Shaw's operates 87 supermarkets in New England, including 54 in Massachusetts.

The lawsuit was filed after the legislature's Commerce and Labor Committee set aside for further study an initiative petition by retailers asking legislators to rescind the Blue Laws statute.

"We filed it out of frustration," said Christopher P. Flynn, president of the Massachusetts Food Association, which has 300 member companies, half of them retailers. "The legislative process has failed to give us the designated results. We are now going to explore every avenue available to us."

The retail coalition had to collect 70,000 signatures to bring the petition before the legislature. Now they need to file an additional 12,000 signatures with the Secretary of State's office by July 6 for the measure to appear on the November ballot.

As currently written, the Blue Laws contain 54 exemptions, adding to confusion for authorities and shoppers alike. Stores with three or fewer employees are exempt. And some retail stores connected to malls are permitted to open if they have separate, outdoor entrances.

Drug stores are permitted to open before noon on Sunday, including those that sell groceries, Flynn noted.

"It creates some crazy things," he said. "You have drug stores open, which are technically only selling medicine, and they'll have two to three aisles of food."

On the three summer holidays, local police chiefs decide whether to issue a permit allowing retailers to open. Police chiefs have expressed frustration at being caught in the middle of a controversy that they say should be decided by legislators.

The language of the law allows chiefs to grant permits to avert a "public inconvenience," Flynn said. Some chiefs who approved permits reasoned that failure to allow stores to open on the holidays would create increased traffic on the previous shopping day — hence the "inconvenience," he noted.

"It is inconsistent," said Rogan. "Our point is: today's shopper is a seven-day shopper. People just work such hours that the only day they can get out to do their shopping is Sunday."

Maine recently approved Sunday openings for banks, Rogan noted, another indication that seven-day shopping is spreading to some of the nation's sleepiest corners.

Business after hours

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will hold their May 10th Business After Hours at the South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, from 5 to 6:30 p.m. This popular event will include beer and wine, hors d'oeuvres from the Borrowed Butler and a drawing for a complimentary Business Membership at the Art Center.

People will also be able to visit two exhibitions currently on display at the Art Center. Art in the Family is a multi-generational exhibition featuring works by four generations of the Koopman family, including Lisbeth Koopman-Wyman of Weymouth and Kristina Wyman of Quincy, and three generations of the Regan family, including Joanne Regan of Canton and Chris Regan of Chicago. Cohasset's Harborfest has found a home!

The Harborfest Steering Committee has selected Goodale Insurance Company at 3 South Main St. to be its headquarters for all Harborfest events and the center for its Button Sales Program. In conjunction with Festival on the Common, this year's Harborfest events will encompass three days of activity. And because of the many Cohasset groups participating, the Steering Committee felt the need for a Central Clearing House made available to all, hence headquarters.

The activities will include: Friday, June 17, a sandcastle competition, a rollerblade demonstration and instruction, a breeches buoy demonstration, a lifesaving boat race, an ice cream festival and balloon games; all on Sandy Beach under the direction of the recreation department.

Saturday morning at 8 a.m. the Rotary Club will sponsor a pancake breakfast at the Community Center. Sunday, beginning at 1:30 p.m., the Clergy Association will sponsor a Blessing of the Fleet at the harbor. Following this the Chamber of Commerce parade will begin at the harbor and continue to the common. This will be followed by the Social Service Leagues Chowderfest where restaurants will compete for the coveted 'Clam of the Year' award.

Beginning Friday at 1 p.m. and continuing through Saturday and Sunday, the Council on Aging's Center Stage will provide events from pantomime to music, from singing to dance and from acting to the sound of big bands, all on the common.

Coinciding with all of these events, the South Shore Art Center Art Festival Tents and Crafters will be open from 1 to 8 p.m. Friday; from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

To raise money for the cost of the parade, (the bands, clowns, etc.) the Harborfest Headquarters will have buttons for sale at a cost of $5. The button will gain the wearer admittance to the pancake breakfast, the Chowderfest and discounts in all local merchant stores displaying a "Button Poster". Without the 'button' the charge for the pancake breakfast and the Chowderfest is $4 for each event.

Chamber of Commerce to meet

Arleen Tremblay of the MCCF will discuss how your small business can qualify for funding through the Massachusetts Community Capital Fund. at the meeting of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce. The meeting will begin at 6:L30 p.m. Thursday May 19 at the Chart House Restaurant. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. and the speaker will follow.

Reservations are required. Call the Chamber at 383-1010 or the Chart House at 383-3003.

What's on Pierson

Host Wigmore Pierson's guests Thursday May 12 will be William L. Paterson, deputy director of the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs and state coordinator for DARE; DARE officer Domenic L. D'Arcangelo of Scituate; DARE officer Edward Nolan; DARE officer Barry Garrity of Abington; and James Wellf , drug and alcohol coordinator for the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department.

The discussion will review how and if DARE works, its impact on law enforcement officers, impact of officers in schools and how DARE fits into community policing.

"Pierson to Person" is broadcast live from 8 to 9 p.m. each Thursday from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham and Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset. The public is invited to be part of the studio audience. Those planning to attend should be at the studio on Gannett Road by 7:30 p.m.

For information call Robert Belliveau at 545-2500.

Detwiler on Channel 53

Tuesday May 17 at 6:30 p.m. on "Children's Corner," Bob Detwiler will read some Dr. Seuss favorites, "Horton Hatches the Eggs" and "The Lorax."

At 8:30 p.m. on "Bob Detwiler's Journal" Betty Ann Copley Harris, with the fund-raising consulting firm Copley-Davenport Co. and Peter Dubay, executive director of the South Shore Health and Educational Foundation will discuss the concept of planned giving to charity by using estate planning.

Bird house auction

The South Shore Habitat for Humanity's 1994 bird house show and auction will be taking place May 20-22 at the South Shore Plaza in Braintree.

Two hundred functional and fantasy birdhouses created by local artists, architects and celebrities will be featured. Some special birdhouses will be auctioned at 2 p.m. Sunday May 22 in front of Jordan Marsh. A silent auction will take place throughout the weekend.

Birdhouses autographed by local celebrities will be available in both auctions. These include houses autographed by Seigi Ozowa, Katie Couric, Senator Ted Kennedy, Eric Flaim, Ted Donato, Bobby Orr, Ken Hodge, Mo Vaugn, John Valentin and players for the Celtics and Patriots.

All money raised from the sales will go towards building homes for families in need. SSHH is now completing a home in Abington and will be starting one in Braintree. Future "Habitat" homes will be built in Norwell and Hingham with additional sites becoming available in Brockton, Whitman, Hanover, Quincy and Sharon.

Giant yard sale May 14

The Harborview Tenants Association of Cohasset is planning a giant yard sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday May 14 at 60 Elm St.

Baked goods, clothing, furniture, household and miscellaneous items will be on sale.

Drawing for raffle prizes will be at 4 p.m.

Pops concert at high school

The annual Pops Concert is planned to begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday May 12 in the Cohasset High School cafeteria. Vocal and instrumental music will be featured.

Admission is $5 and includes refreshments. All money raised goes to support the arts in the high school.

Affirming Diversity series

Sunday, May 22, at 7 p.m., there will be a public forum in the continuing "Affirming Diversity" series at Old Ship Church Parish House, 107 Main St., Hingham.

A panel of parents who are gay or lesbian will speak about their experiences raising children in a non-traditional setting. This will be an opportunity for participants to expand their understanding of what it means to be a family, and to gain a greater awareness of the challenges these families face.

The forum is sponsored by the Welcoming Congregation Committee of Old Ship Church (Unitarian-Universalist), a free church sheltering persons of diverse points of view. Old Ship has a long tradition of concern for social problems and individual religious growth.

There is a suggested donation of $5. The Parish House is wheelchair-accessible. For further information call Old Ship Church, 749-1679.

Fairytales at Buttonwood

Susan Podshadley, designer of Fairytale Fashion, will be displaying her line of creative dress-up clothing for children at Buttonwood Books and Toys in Cohasset Saturday May 14 and Buttonwood for Kids in Hingham Saturday May 21.

Between 11 a.m. and 4 pm. each of these days, children between the ages of 2 and 8 can dress up in an original princesss pinafore or knight's tunic and cape and Podshadley will draw a complimentary caricature.

No sign up is necessary for either event. Call 383-2665 or 749-2665 for information.

Caregivers is subject

"Family Caregivers: the Other Victims of Alzheimer's Disease," will be the subject of the next meeting of the Alzheimer's Disease Support Group of the South Shore at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday May 25 at Thaxter Community Hall, 30 Thaxter St.

Carolyn Housman, LICSW, of the Hingham Visiting Nurses, is program coordinator for a new Alzheimer-Dementia program developed by nine affiliated VNAs serving 21 South Shore towns. The program provides assessment, teaching, management and care services to benefit the patient as well as the family members.

The meeting is open to anyone interested in learning more about Alzheimer's Disease or the VNA Alzheimer's program. For information call 749-5417.

Drug abuse is topic

Melanie Snook from "Impact Quincy," a coalition for the prevention of alcohol, tobacco and other drug abuse, will speak at the next meeting of the Coastline and South Shore Councils for Children from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday May 24 at East Milton Congregational Church, 610 Adams St., E. Milton. Snook is also on the women's issues task force and the family life task force.

Alejandro Rivera from the youth development program of Bay State Community Services that serves Quincy, Randolph, Hull and Weymouth will explain his drug and alcohol prevention program aimed to negate the need for treatment.

All council meetings are free and open to the public. For information call Marty Amdur in Hingham at 749-0691.

The councils are a volunteer group of people living or working in Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth interested in improving services for children and adolescents.

Cohasset Historical Society forthcoming events listed

The Cohasset Historical Society announces the following events in its summer season activities.

"PIECES FROM OUR PAST"

An Exhibition of the society's artworks, mostly 19th and early 20th century paintings and collection items relating to the history of Cohasset as a small New England seacoast village, to be held at the South Shore Art Center Gallery, 119 Ripley Road, from June 17 through July 30. On exhibit will be some 40 items from society collections including oil and watercolor paintings, prints, selected costumes and artifacts.

"WINDOWS TO OUR PAST"

As part of the ongoing June and July exhibit of society's artworks and artifacts there will be a slide presentation featuring a number of the items in the exhibit, presented at the South Shore Art Center Wednesday, June 22.

Wine and hors d'oeuvres will be served at 6:30 p.m. to be followed by the slide presentation. Presenter will be David H. Wadsworth, society curator. Reservations for the hors d'oeuvres and slide presentation are $20 per person, payable by check to Cohasset Historical Society, 14 Summer Street, Cohasset 02025. Please return reservations by Friday, June 17.

SHIP COVE WALKING TOUR

A walking tour of Cohasset's historic harbor, once known as "Ship Cove," will be held Sunday, August 14. The tour will meet at the Society's Maritime Museum, Elm St., Cohasset Center, at 2:30 p.m. Included in the tour will be a walk along Elm St., once home of some of the town's "Deep Sea Captains," along the edge of Cohasset Harbor, active home port of 19th century fishing fleets and mercantile businesses, and a visit to Gulf or "Government Island," formerly the U.S. Lighthouse Service Shore Station Reservation for the famous offshore light at Minot's Ledge.

The society's curator will lead the tour. Admission will be free of charge.

For further information please call the Historical Society at 383-1434.

Annual Leavitt reunion

The National Association of Leavitt Families will hold its annual reunion Saturday, June 18, in Hingham.

The meeting which is open to all descendants of John and Thomas Leavitt will be at Old Ship Parish Hall, Main Street.

Registration and morning coffee hour will begin at 8:45 a.m., followed by a short business meeting and luncheon.

Make reservations by June 11 with Fred Leavitt, 34 Barden Hill Rd., Hillsboro, NH 03244 (603-478-3568).

The cost is $15 per adult, $8 children six to 12.

The Association was founded in 1934 to bring together the descendants of the immigrants John Leavitt 1608-1691 of Hingham, and Thomas Leavitt 1616-1696 of Hampton, N.H.

Volunteers needed for animal

There will be a meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday May 24 at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham for anyone interested in volunteering to help with fund-raising for All Paws Rescue.

Those interested and unable to attend the meeting should call All Paws Rescue at 749-0968 for information.

Collins' tally clinches laxmen victory

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Ken Ekberg said last week the Cohasset High lacrosse team would have to beat south power Duxbury if the Skippers stood any chance of doing well in the tournament. The Green Dragons had already played, and defeated, several quality teams and a win over Duxbury would show just where Cohasset stood.

After the Skippers' come-from-behind, 7-6 win over the Green Dragons, and Tuesday's 8-5 pasting of a much-improved Masconomet team, Cohasset looks to be standing just find on its own two feet.

"The intensity of the (Duxbury) game by both teams was remarkable," said an extremely pleased Ekberg, as his Cohasset squad moved to 8-2 on the season with the Masconomet win.

It looked as though the Skippers were in for a long afternoon as Duxbury beat goaltender Brandon DeVoe twice, just two minutes into the game. However, DeVoe loosened up and went on to make several big saves and was extremely sharp in the second half. Ekberg said many of his stops were purely by "instinct" and called his 6-foot-5 netminder "outstanding" in the second.

Cohasset fought back and managed to tie the game by halftime, 3-3. A slow third-period start put Duxbury back on top, 6-3, but it was the Skippers who gained momentum and got the best of the Green Dragons from that point on.

Cohasset put the game away for good when Dave Leahy found Andy Collins open in front of Duxbury's net with less than two minutes to play. He passed off to Collins, who then whipped the ball toward the net, beating the Green Dragon's goalie for win.

Chris Adams, like he has done so many times this spring, led the Skip-

Dave McKee

by Joe & Dave

Like Abington-Rockland Mariner editor Steve Adams said in last week's "Sound Off" column, neither Dave nor I are trained in nutrition or weight counseling. But having run cross country and track under some knowledgeable coaches, both in high school and college, I learned that the key to losing weight is the combination of a sensible diet and exercise.

Running 8-11 miles per day at Bridgewater State gave us a little more leeway as to how much more we could eat, but that was only after building up to a point where we were able to handle that much training. Still, when you run that many miles, the weight is going to come off.

The most essential thing to remember is to drink plenty of water and unsweetened fruit juices. A person should average at least eight glasses of water a day. With the warmer weather coming, anyone training daily should drink more than that amount to avoid dehydration. You can never get enough fluids in your system during the summer.

The combination of water, heat and training does wonders in suppressing ones appetite during the summer months. Athletes tend to prefer lighter meals. Fruit and vegetables are always favorites.

There is nothing wrong with snacking as long as it is done smartly. Bill Rodgers recommends Graham Crackers and sweet fruits, such as grapes and strawberries. Popcorn is also a popular snack food, but be sure to lay off the butter and salt.

You also don't have to give up desserts. Substitute ice milk or yogurt for ice cream. There are also several low fat and low cholesterol desserts on the market, but I question just how low in fat chocolate cake really can be.

The main things to remember about losing weight are:

- Get a physical from your family doctor before beginning a diet or exercise program.
- Drink plenty of liquids.
- Cut out fatty foods and add more fruits and vegetables.
- Don't try to lose weight overnight. Be patient and have a long-range goal. Crash diets seldom keep weight off for long and can be dangerous.
- Read some books on the topic of weight loss and dieting. One author who I'd recommend is Nancy Clarke. She also has a cook book on the market with several high volume, low calorie recipes that will leave you feeling full, but without the excess calories.
- Skip the Susan Powter hair-do. She may know her stuff when it comes to diet and exercise, but that head of hers is the main reason Powter's obnoxious promotion airs at 4 A.M.

Tate, Krein strong in Cristale soccer

By Kathie Crosby
Special to the Mariner

Molly Tate scored both the Under-12 teams goals. Katie Weizel and Jamie Steverman had strong games on the wings. Christine Lewis had outstanding game in defense. The Under-13 Green team had a great game, dominating the entire contest. The goal was scored by Katie Krein from a beautiful pass set up by Jody Boss. Katie Krein had a terrific game at center mid-field and Diana McCarley did a great job as stopper. The Under-14 Green team played its all-time rivals, and, despite the score, held its own and played a strong game. The Under-14 Green team played an outstanding game with Kathryn Chiros scoring the goal. Jamie Drew at left-halfback and Mariann Toth as stopper both had an excellent game. Despite the soggy, puddle-ladden field, the Under-16 team had an outstanding game with two goals from Jess Bicknell, one from Amy Nihtila, assisted by Carrie Lyttle, and one from Dottie Snow, assisted by Lindsey Adami. Keisha Cody also had a great game and assisted Bicknell on one of her goals. The Under-17 Green team played a strong game with Janella Coutts and Amy Key scoring goals. Caroline Sheeran had an outstanding game as center.

Cohasset figure skater Kara Protulis will took part in last weekend's "Blue Chips" exhibition performance.

Protulis appears in Ice Chips

Kara M. Protulis appeared in the 82nd edition of Ice Chips May 6, 7 and 8 at Boston University's Walter Brown Arena. This annual production by the Skating Club of Boston starred Paul Wylie, 1992 Olympic Silver medalist. Hayden Precision teams and many national local skaters were also featured.

Kara is a senior at Cohasset High [illegible] will be attending Northeastern University in the fall.

Cohasset Little League

Cohasset baseball news

This week's teams in the spotlight are the Blue Blazers, Black Magic, Blue Jays and the Red Sox.

Please call Susan Carr at 383-0331 with your team's news so that we can continue to read all about the great job our Cohasset Little Leaguers are doing on the fields.

Don't forget to mark your calendar for the Little League Dance scheduled to take place the Sunday of Memorial Day weekend, May 29, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the Chart House. "Dance Into Summer" with the live band, J.D. Billy and Ken. Tickets are $30 per couple and will be available starting this week. Please call Susan Carr if you are interested in helping on the dance committee or donating items for the silent auction table.

Black Magic wins in spellbinding action

By Cindy Kuppens
Special to the Mariner

The Black Magic took to the field last Saturday in an exciting game against the Lions. Both teams are powerhouses with sensational hitting, excellent baserunning and incredible fielding.

Black Magic is loaded with baseball talent. Andrew Lovallo, at first base, effortlessly tagged several swift Lions. Kevin Dinsmore caught a high fly in center field, relayed the ball to Jon Grimm and Kate Kuppens, who both guarded second base. Jake Previte was impressive in left field, handily catching fly balls and grounders. Christopher Pescatore showed versatility, with excellent skills at both third base and center field.

The Magic's great hitting talent was evident. Sam Steele hit a triple to center field. Ben Guild's two-bagger drove a baserunner home. Emilie Shea's hit to first loaded the bases. Christopher Ackley drove the ball into left field for a base hit. Stefan Parnell followed with a powerful hit to third. Rick Lorden's line drive got him to first and knocked in two runs.

The Magic will only be stronger when Kirby Bukowski returns to add to the team's overall strength. Coaches Bill Grimm, Joey Previte and Matt Steele are excited about the team's prospects for a strong season.

Unfortunately, Jon Grimm is now on the disabled list. He fell off a fence later in the day and broke his arm. The team will miss his steady defense and strong hitting and looks forward to his return next year. Hope you feel better soon, Jon!

Collins' tally clinches laxmen victory

pers' offense with a pair of goals and an assist. Single tallies were registered by Collins, Charlie Endris, Chris McKenna, and John Lacks.

Ekberg had high praise for the Duxbury goaltender and the team's athleticism in general.

"We had to beat Duxbury if we had any aspirations of playing in the postseason," Ekberg said.

The intensity level between Cohasset and Masconoment didn't even begin to approach that of the Duxbury game, but Ekberg was pleased with the win, nevertheless.

"The quality of play, the intensity of our play was not comparable to our play on Saturday," he said. "But it's still a W."

Much of Cohasset's veteran players experience shown through. None bigger, perhaps, than Endris who eluded a double-team defense and outran three more Masconomet players to keep the ball in the defensive area.

"You look for seniors to make those kind of plays," Endris said.

Dave Leahy, one of the best ball-handlers on the club, also had a big game for Cohasset. Fast and big, few players can steal the ball from Leahy and slow his play-making skills. "He gives us a great deal of flexibility in clearing the ball," Ekberg said.

Adams struck for three goals and two assists, while Endris found the back of the net twice. Ken Leahy assisted on two goals, and Ben Redfield, Kevin Smith and Brett McQuarrie had a goal each.

The Skippers play another strong opponent on Thursday against Barnstable. Ekberg said the Cape Cod team has a stiff schedule and expects "a physical and tough game for us."

Cohasset should be ready for Barnstable. The Skippers know all about strong opponents and intensity on the field.

Cafaro, Blue Jays drop Yankees

In minor league action this week, the Blue Jays faced off against the Yankees Monday, May 9. The resulting 10-3 Blue Jays win put the squad at 3-1-1 for the season. In a strategic coaching move, Coaches Snowdale and Jerz brought in their rookie pitching staff to start off the game. Jack Jerz, Justin Baker and Andrew Guild maintained a 6-3 lead with the help of a tremendous defense. Matt Ogrodnik made a spectacular catch in right field to end the second inning. Sparkling defense continued throughout the game by Terry Baraudi and Mike Snowdale. The Blue Jays chipped away at Yankee pitching, with power provided by Brian Boyle, Andre Skorupka, Justin Langham, and a tape-measure triple by Mike McMillen. Seasoned-closer Chris Cafaro held the Yankees scoreless to ice the victory for the Blue Jays.

Little League Sox just like the pros

Just like the Major League Red Sox, the Cohasset Little League Sox have started the season with a bang. Three wins, a tie and one loss puts them on top, along with the A's.

"The extra pre-season practice is really paying off," said Coach Steve Golden. "The Red Sox are playing good, disciplined baseball with all team members contributing 100 percent."

Returning 12-year-olds Evan Murphy, Jake Nohe and Wiley Wakeman are providing the team with hits, base speed and pitching. An excellent draft brought the Sox a talented group of 10-year-olds. Tim Straughan is an impressive catcher, Peter Maitland is the team gazelle in center field, Alex Johnson gets those all-important outs at third base and the skilled Ben Maitland commutes between team shortstop and pitcher. Chris Peters, another 10-year-old, has become the Sox's clutch hitter with the most important hit so far this season, last Saturday against the A's.

Chris Golden and Johnny Cotter move around the infield making the routine plays appear easy. Cotter also takes shifts behind home plate, scrambling for every out. Lane Ford and Joey Nicynski, first year members of the Sox, have added solid defense and power hitting.

Golden is not resting this early in the season. You will see the Red Sox practicing this week in preparation for their next game Saturday against J. Caron's powerful Rangers.

Viola knows there's a strong possibility his career could be through and he has already let the press and fans know he has no intention of being a hanger-on. Viola said he'll have the operation, go through what looks at this point to be a grueling rehabilitation period, and then try to throw again. Only then will Viola know if he can come back and pitch at the Major League level. If he can, he'll be thrilled. If not, Viola will be disappointed, but he did say he has other avenues he can pursue if his career is over.

Personally, I'd like to see Viola become the Tommy John of the '90s. John had the same type of surgery Viola is expected to have. He returned to pitch better than ever. Viola will do what it takes during rehabilitation, but he won't be deluded about a return. Power to him.

Five-time All-Pro Andre Tippett is another New England favorite who may have played his last game. The Patriots' linebacker is expected to announce, this week, whether or not he'll play another season with the up-and-coming club.

I met Tippett once in 1984 when I was working at "The Athlete's Foot" in Braintree during the Christmas holiday. To say Tippett is huge is an understatement (T.V. doesn't do these guys justice when it comes to their size).

I recognized him as a local, professional athlete, but it wasn't until he paid for a pair of Nike basketball sneakers with his credit card that I knew it was him.

The moment also marked my first interaction with a professional athlete, asking tough, hard-nosed questions that make a person's forehead perspire: "You play for the Patriots don't you," I asked sheepishly.

"Yes, I do," Tippett replied.

Howie Carr eat your heart out!

"What we have here is a failure to communicate." - the prison warden from "Cool Hand Luke."

There should be a better system in place regarding weather -elated game cancellations.

On Friday the Needham High girls' lacrosse team traveled all the way down to Hingham High for a 4 p.m. game.

However, around 2 p.m. the rains started and by the opening face-off, it was raining cats, dogs and several other house pets.

The two teams gutted it out in the muck but a couple minutes into the second half, the referees called off the game because the field was unsafe. The game will be replayed later on this season.

As the coaches talked to the referees after the game was called, the Needham coach said rather forcefully, "This is a waste of our time and a waste of a couple hundred dollars." Needham was leading in the game when it was called off.

The coach got on the bus more than a bit miffed.

Lacrosse is a tough sport and the game usually is played no matter what conditions.

However, Friday's game never should have started and Needham should have remained at home.

As a matter of fact, Thursday's Hingham High girls' lacrosse home game was called off because of rain.

I believe current policy regarding game cancellations is to have the athletic director of the home school decide if the field is playable and then call the opponent's athletic director about the decision towards the end of the school day.

If the game is on, the opponent's AD calls the bus company and tells them to send the buses as planned.

If the game is called off, he or she cancels the buses and the game is rescheduled.

I don't know what happened on Friday but the bus driver will have to be paid as will the referees.

The Needham coach was right on target with her comments.

The AD's and the coaches of all area high schools should be better informed and make their decisions about playing before anyone gets on a bus. It will save time, money and maybe some player's knee cartilage.

And if the sky looks bleak, call the National Weather Service or Channel Five's Dickie Albert or my personal favorite, Channel Seven weather babe Mish Michaels to see what the immediate forecast is.

Either that or learn a few rain dances.

—David McKee

The Mariner softball team, a group mentioned by many in the same breath with the '27 Yankees and the '76 Reds, is about to start its season.

Practices will begin soon and we are looking for some suckers, er, opponents to play against.

We are coming off a 2-1 season last year.

We beat the Patriot Ledger twice (two very close games that went into extra innings) and then lost a heartbreaker to MPG (we were missing our top players and all the rest forgot to wear their contact lenses.)

We will play anyone, anytime, anywhere.

So if you want to play ball call Joe or Dave at 837-3500.

Cohasset Little League

Team 2 - Blazers Farm League opens season

Ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls... Play ball!

Opening day, this past Saturday, for the 5, 6 and 7-year-old Farm League was a much anticipated and fun-filled event for all! The undefeated Blazers and undefeated Blue Angels played their first game at beautiful Cohasset High School's field No. 4.

The Blazers, with almost a full roster (Jessie "Bruza" Abbruzzese was out on the D.L.), showed tremendous confidence behind the plate with some powerful hitting by rookies Jake "The Snake" Watts, Parker "The Marker" Berg and Mike "Out of the Park" Parkes. Matt "Big Mo" Casey slammed a home run to deep left field frustrating the pitching of Blue Angels Coach Flynn. Other outstanding rookies, Susan "Slammer" Curry and Molly "The Mauler" O'Grodnick showed some excellent instincts, both offensively and defensively.

This league generally requires a great set of hands at first base, so the Blazers positioned veteran Will "The Will Maker" Maich at first. He balanced his great infield play with a 3 for 3 day at the plate. Brendan "Bam-Bam" Ford, Andrew "Slick" Jerz and Casey "At the Bat" Anderson at shortstop provided a great defensive force for opening day.

Batting for the first time in any league, Reed "The Steed" Dickinson, "Big John" Burgdon and "Monster Mike" Devlin slammed their first pitches, contributing towards their team's total score (although they did need some help finding the bases!).

All and all it was a great day. Enthusiasm, good sportsmanship, and genuine desire to improve skills are great values that will be nurtured and carried to future team participation. Great game guys, keep practicing and most of all, have fun!

Little League dance set

Dance into summer with "J.D. Billy and Ken," the live band that keeps drawing record crowds to benefit our baseball program, is here once again in Cohasset. This year the Chart House has been generous enough to donate its beautiful function room overlooking Cohasset Harbor for this special event.

The dance will take place on the Sunday of Memorial Day weekend, May 29, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Dress is festive. This year people also have the option of dining at the Chart House before the dance. Reservations should be made well in advance. People can also just come directly to the dance. Tickets are $30 per couple and will be available in advance, as well as at the door.

Anyone who is interested in donating silent auction items or services please call Susan Carr at 383-0331.

Remember, you don't have to have a Little Leaguer to attend the dance. The proceeds benefit our Little League program, but the dance is open to anyone who enjoys a fun evening out.

Playground volunteers sought

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept applications for volunteer counselors for its summer, 1994 Playground program. Those who may be interested in working on a volunteer basis for a few hours each week, between July 6 and August 19, may call the recreation office at 383-6791 for further information.

The commission's playground program is for children ages 3 through 1[illegible]. Volunteer services are especially needed with younger age groups of 3- to 7-year-olds. CRD will train volunteers who qualify and have a strong interest in working with children.

Some plain 'lies' about the game of golf

By Joe Keefe
Special to the Mariner

Eric from Hingham wrote to me this week and asked me to discuss different lies found on a golf course and what to do about them when encountered with this type of situation.

First and foremost, do not panic. Understanding what a golf ball will do under these common situations will help you prepare for the shot better and achieve the desired result more often than not.

Let's take the golf ball above our feet first. This situation occurs when we find ourselves on a side-hill lie with the ball higher than our feet. Under normal circumstances, the golf ball when struck properly should move down towards your feet so a right handed golfer should expect the ball to "hook" or move from right to left. For a left handed player, the ball should still "hook" but to them the ball moves from left to right.

When the ball is below your feet you should expect the opposite shot. When we find ourselves with the ball below our feet the shape of the shot, again when struck properly, will move away from our feet so a right handed player should expect the ball to "slice" or move from left to right. For a left handed player the ball should still "slice" but to them the ball moves right to left.

Ball placement in your stance is played in the same position but pay close attention your posture. Your golf club should always be placed properly on the ground to help you achieve your proper set-up. Don't let the terrain position you improperly because a poor set-up is just asking for a poor shot.

Just because we don't always [illegible] "perfect" lie doesn't mean we can't achieve the "perfect" result. Proper planning and knowing what the ball should do prior to the shot will help you avoid the other obstacles we face on the links. Thanks Eric for the letter. I hope this will help you and all the others to play "Better Golf."

'Boys Night' registrations being taken

Registration is now being taken for "Boys Night Out" at the Cohasset Community Center. Boys ages 5-11 are invited to attend. The evening consists of obstacle course, gymnastics, bowling, make your own pizza. Cost is $15 for non-members and $13 for members. No drop-ins! Friday, May 13, from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m. Call the center today at 383-0088.

Reeve on hand at Suffolk Downs' benefit

Saturday, May 28, film and theater star Christopher Reeve and members of the 1984 Gold Medal Olympic Equestrian Team will be Racing Against Leukemia at Suffolk Downs Racecourse. A special horseback riding performance and an afternoon of entertainment is scheduled to benefit the University of Massachusetts Medical Center Division of Pediatric Hematology and Oncology.

Both the general audience and children from outpatient programs will enjoy petting zoos, raffles, pony rides and introductions to celebrities in sport. All proceeds go towards research of pediatric cancer at U of Mass Medical Center in Worcester, the benefits of which could help children everywhere.

For more information on scheduling, reservations or directions, please call (617) 568-3227. Suffolk Downs is located on Route 1A, two miles north of Logan Airport. So, come enjoy the festivities and support our Celebrity Team Racing Against Leukemia!

Safe boating course

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 1208, and the Cohasset Recreation Department will sponsor a spring, six session, Safe Boating Course, offering certification by both the Coast Guard and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The course will be offered to both youth and adults, however, certification in this course is mandatory for 16 years old and under, who wish to operate a craft powered by 25 horsepower or more. U.S.C.G.A., Flotilla 1208 instructors will teach the six session course, scheduled to begin Tuesday, May 17, at Cohasset High School, Room 206. Class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday evening, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. from May 17 through June 2.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791, as soon as possible, as class will be limited in size, and participants will be enrolled on a first call basis. There will be a $15 per person fee for this program, that covers the cost of the text book and class materials. Checks for payment must be made out to U.S.C.G.A. Flotilla 1208. While the class is designed for children/youth and adults, it is suggested that children aged 12 and under be accompanied by a participating adult.

Certification cards will be issued, and both the Coast Guard and State recognize the Safe Boating certificate. Further, for those who may be interested, certification for this course will allow you a discount on your boat insurance premium of 5 to 10 percent, depending upon your insurance carrier.

.VI, No.29 | Thursday, May 19 , 1994 | 1-800-649-6661 | 50 cents

Robert Thompson and Carol Thompson Hyland were two of many guests at the ribbon-cutting celebration for the opening the Lightkeeper's residence at Bancroft Hall at Government Island on Sunday. Thompson and Hyland, who are brother and sister, lived in the residence during World War I when their father Winfield Scott Thompson was assistant lightkeeper at Minot Ledge Lighthouse.

Lightkeeper's opening caps off three-year volunteer effort

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

For siblings, Robert Thompson and Carol Thompson Hyland, Sunday's ribbon-cutting ceremony was a time to reflect when Government Island was a rural spot complete with a cow and chickens.

They recalled their father, Winfield Scott Thompson, an assistant lighthouse keeper for Minot's Ledge Lighthouse during World War I, going off for two weeks at a time "out there on that thing in the middle of the water," Hyland said.

But Thompson said every night their father would turn the light on the house and signal 1-4-3 for "I love you."

"It was impressive," Thompson remembered.

For Joseph McElroy, the president of the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation a volunteer group which spent three years envisioning, designing and working hard to make Sunday's event possible — it was time to look ahead.

"The next six months will be more challenging than the past 36 have been," McElroy said. He spoke of the effort involved in managing the residence which includes two apartments and Bancroft Hall which is available as a meeting place for community groups. McElroy said plans are also to eventually install a commercial kitchen downstairs and to rebuild the semaphore system on Beacon Rock which in the old days was used to communicate with the lightkeepers out at Minot Ledge. He also mentioned the prospect of tying the adjacent town-owned Hagerty Property into Government Island to form a joint recreational area.

In a May 5 decision District Court Judge Thomas Brownell found for property owner William Hanney, who is trying to evict Mill River Marine Railway, Inc., a boat repair business, from the 16,000-square foot harborfront parcel he bought last year.

Facing possible eviction, Frank Carey, owner of the boat yard business for 2-1/2 decades, has filed an appeal to superior court. According to Carey's attorney Peter Eleey of Quincy, a jury trial will determine whether or not the documents between the parties comprise a lease.

Hanney, who reportedly wants to build a residence at the Border Street location, bought the property from Cohasset voters gave a resounding yes to a ballot question Saturday authorizing the town to raise the tax levy to pay for a new sports-field complex at Cohasset High School.

Although the turnout was 30 percent — the 3-to-1 margin of votes in favor of the Prop.-2-1/2 override clearly indicated the project had broad-based support.

R. Gary Vanderweil, who headed the 16-member strong citizens' group behind the project, said communication was the key this time around.

Twice before a proposed project for new or refurbished fields failed either at town meeting or at the ballot box.

"I was delighted with the vote," Vanderweil said. "I

Meeting on train sought

Scituate selectmen finally heard back from Gov. William Weld about meeting face to face to discuss the return of Greenbush rail. His answer, however, was not exactly what the selectmen wanted.

"Basically," said selectman Kevin Kinsella, "Gov. Weld thanked us for our interest but told us to take it up with (Transportation Secretary) James Kerasiotes.

"So the question now is, do we want to continue to chase around the governor, or do we address Mr. Kerasiotes?" Kinsella asked.

The board chose not to chase the governor.

Selectmen Chairman Joseph Norton, who serves as chairman of the citizens' advisory committee which commented on the project's environmental feasibility study, said selectmen should address Kerasiotes and do it quickly.

"We'd like to keep the momentum going," he said. "It's been two months since we petitioned the governor. I think we should set up a meeting with Mr. Kerasiotes as soon as possible ."

One formality remains before the board can contact the transportation secretary: the original petition to Weld was written in concert with a handful of boards of selectmen from other towns in the Greenbush corridor.

"We certainly can't act independently," Kinsella said. "We'll have to contact the other towns. But I don't see getting their consent as too much of an obstacle."

Cohasset received a letter from Scituate asking the selectmen for continued support.

"We will pursue an appointment with Secretary Kerasiotes unless we hear form you to the contrary, ie, you prefer that we again urge the Governor to meet with us," Norton wrote.

In Weld's letter, the governor said completion of the Greenbush environmental study is "a high priority of the Weld/Cellucci Administration.

"This report will be released for public review by the end of the month. James J. Kerasiotes, Secretary, Executive Office of Transportation and Construction, is prepared to meet with you at your convenience to provide further information on the project's status, and to address your specific concerns," Weld wrote.

Four/fifths of Cohasset's board of selectmen signed the letter to Weld which Kinsella personally brought before them two months ago. Former Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle did not sign the letter which implored Weld "to act with great speed and alacrity to get this railroad off dead center."

In a 1991 referendum, 64 percent of the Cohasset citizens who voted were in favor of railroad restoration. The percentage in favor across the Greenbush towns averaged 73 percent.

More legal detail sought

Not happy with the lack of detail provided on the bill of $17,407.70 for 91.6 hours of work to the Boston law firm Warner & Stackpole for professional services provided to the board of health and conservation commission the bulk of which is for legal expenses incurred in connection with Cohasset Heights Landfill, Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby asked that selectmen write the firm a letter asking for more itemization on bills in the future. She also wants the board to ask Warner & Stackpole to charge the town a lower or "non-profit" rate.

Boat yard loses first round in court

Peoples Bank of Brockton which had foreclosed on the prior owner.

Following a trial two weeks ago in Quincy District Court, Judge Brownell asked attorneys representing both sides to submit briefs.

David Kaiser, who represents Hanney, explained the issue surrounds whether or not Mill River has a written lease that entitles the business to stay or if the boat yard is a tenant-at-will.

The appeal will take four-to-six months, Eleey said.

Another issue, which is not related to the eviction proceedings, is whether Hanney can build a residence at the site.

Building Inspector Robert M. Egan said the site is zoned for waterfront business and it would take a variance or zoning change for a home to be built there. Permits would have to be obtained from the local planning and zoning boards and the sewer and conservation commissions and possibly from the state and Army Corps of Engineers.

Under pressure to act from fishermen, who see their livelihoods threatened if the boat yard closes, and residents, who want the aesthetic aspects of the site preserved, selectmen agreed last October to speak and write in opposition to the issuance of permits and variances on economic grounds. They also formed a subcommittee to focus on the issue and pursue having Cohasset harbor declared a protected port by the state.

However, Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan said recently the town's legislators had been contacted but had not been able to come up with anything, he said. State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray said she was waiting to hear from the Secretary of State's office.

Last October Jeffrey Donzé of Parker Avenue presented selectmen with a petition with 150 signatures asking that the town do all it can to preserve the boat yard. Donzé said recently he planned to continue to get signatures to keep the issue alive.

Drug arrests are made

An ongoing drug investigation led to the arrest of two men last Friday in the Cushing Plaza parking lot, Cohasset police said.

Police arrested Charles S. Hegarty, age 41, 50 Birchbrow Ave., Weymouth and charged him with unlawful possession of a class B substance (cocaine), possession of a class B controlled substance and drug trafficking. Hegarty had 21.3 grams of cocaine in his possession, Sgt. Robert W. Jackson said.

Police also seized an undisclosed sum of money and impounded Hegarty's car.

"We are seeking forfeiture of the vehicle because it was used in a crime," Jackson said.

Also arrested was Arthur A. Rowe, age 38, whose license showed his address as Amherst, New Hampshire. Police charged Rowe with conspiracy to violate the controlled substance act, Jackson said.

The arrests were part of an ongoing investigation. Three more arrests were made in Scituate that same night which are part of the same investigation and part of a joint-effort between Scituate and Cohasset police, Jackson said.

Monday, Rowe and Hegarty were arraigned in Quincy District Court and will return to court for a pre-trial conference June 2.

Unemployment is down

The unemployment rate in Cohasset dropped slightly from February to March.

According to statistics from the state Department of Employment and Training, the unemployment rate in Cohasset decreased from 3.6 percent in February to 3.5 percent in March. The state reported that in March, 137 Cohasset residents were unemployed from total local labor force of 3,928.

The news was not as good for the state, however, where unemployment increased slightly to 6.1 percent in April. The national rate for April was 6.4 percent. Employment numbers for municipalities lag a month behind the state statistics.

"The slight, one-month upward tick in the Massachusetts rate last month is not as significant as the moving three-month average of 6.1 percent," said Commissioner Nils L. Nordberg. "We are still below the federal three-month average of 6.5."

State may help bail out Cohasset Harbor

By Alice C. Coyle
Mariner Staff

It's been nearly 40 years since the last full dredging of Cohasset Harbor and Executive Secretary Gregory J. Doyon says it's badly needed.

So badly, in fact, that the town has made a request to the federal government for an emergency dredging of the channel as soon as possible.

On the state level, Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray has also become involved. A budget amendment introduced by Murray passed in the Massachusetts House of Representatives just last week and could raise $300,000 for the long overdue job. Legislative aid to Senator McDonald, Bill Ryan said that the Senate will be working on the budget within the next couple of weeks there is a good chance the amendment will go through.

All of this is good news to Harbormaster Shawn Kelly who said the harbor has lost at least a dozen moorings already due to low water levels, "which is lost revenue for the town."

"The Coast Guard had to come and move the buoys again last September,because they were lying on their sides."

— Cohasset Harbormaster Shawn Kelly on the harbor conditions.

Kelly maintains that in addition to the very shallow cove area near Kimball's by the Sea by the Sea, the federal channel is especially bad.

"The Coast Guard had to come and move the buoys again last September, because they were lying on their sides," Kelly said, adding that federal dredging is not scheduled until late in 1995.

Harbor Committee Chairman John "Fritz" Pfaffmann said that conditions in the harbor have worsened over the winter.

The Army Corps of Engineers sent a survey boat in to do soundings, Pfaffmann said, and it ran aground.

"They had to wait until high tide to get out again," he said, adding that fishing boats are also experiencing problems getting in and out of the harbor at low tide.

During one extremely low tide, a few weeks ago,

The Grand Tour — with Ginger Ferenz, 383-2863

The Manning residence at 231 South Main Street announces the arrival of spring with two lovely stone urns filled with bright pink tulips and purple pansies. This lovely home with its crisp white trim complementing the beige stucco exterior has a dark blue door that beckons guests to enter through the lovely slate-roof portico.

Volunteer knitters wanted

Cohasset resident Ginger Ferenz is looking for knitters to knit woolen hats to be donated to the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans in Boston.

Ferenz has two hat patterns that she will provide for the project.

Volunteers may call her at 383-2863 and pick up the pattern and yarn at her Windy Hill Road home. If knitters have extra yarn at home, they are welcome to knit the hats from their own supplies. Once the hats are completed, Ferenz will drop them off at the shelter.

"I think the summer months are an ideal time to knit, while sitting at the beach or relaxing," Ferenz said. "Knitting is a wonderful hobby and pastime.

"If experienced knitters would like to teach want-to-be's, they can leave their names with me and those who need a teacher can contact me and I'll match them up," she said. "Perhaps some high school girls and boys might like to learn the hobby and knit a hat for homeless veterans."

To My Valued Customers:

As you know, strict anti-smoking laws will take affect in Hingham on July 1, 1994. This action and the concerns of most public health officials regarding second-hand smoke, has prompted my decision to make Abbadessa's "smoke-free". Since Abbadessa's has always been your local "family restaurant, I feel this is the appropriate step to take in the interest of YOU, our valued customer, your children and the employees of Abbadessa's Restaurant. So, as of June 1, 1994, Abbadessa's will be smoke-free (except for burning pizza's!). Thank you for your understanding and continued patronage.

Attention to all of you parents of seniors, the Prom is rapidly approaching. It will be held May 25, and all of you are encouraged to help with the events. You may call Jane Goff (383-0013) to help with the pre-prom party at the South Shore Art Center, or call Regina Schultz (383-0598) to help with the post-prom party at the Unitarian Parish House. They really do need parent volunteers, and your support would be greatly appreciated.

By the way, the PSO asks that individual families not host any post-prom parties at their homes, it is the last time for all of the seniors to be together for a school event, and they should all be there. Everyone is working so hard to make the prom the best one ever, do your share to make sure that it is super-successful.

Thank you, thank your thank you!!! For voting last Saturday! As everyone must know by now the vote was an overwhelming success in favor of the new field, and all that worked so hard to make it possible are thrilled!

As are all the students and coaches and parents and runners and spectators and cheerleaders and all. Some work has already begun, it will be wonderful. Congratulations to all who made it possible, won't it be great to see the dream become a reality!

Colby College sends Dean's List news. Christian N. Ford was named to the honor for the fall semester for his outstanding academic achievement during the fall semester of 1993. Christian is the son of Curtis Hall and Marie Ford, Jr. A member of Colby's class of [illegible], we will undoubtedly hear more about him in the future as he is an admirable student.

Oh gosh, how do we talk about Burt Pratt, a true lover of our town who did everything that he could for us. He was a former selectman, member of the Rotary, the Cohasset Historical Society, the South Shore Music Circus — the list could go on forever.

Burt always was concerned about our town, and the "goings-on", and still had time to be a great husband and father. He was a truly superman, and we all know how different it will be for us without his not stating his "case" around town. Our hearts go out to Burt's family.

While we are on the subject of Burt, wouldn't he have been proud to see the crowd at Government Island to celebrate the opening of the Minot Ledge Lighthouse Keepers' Residence!! What a crowd

Hard lessons

The few weeks between the prom and senior graduation are too often an odd mix of joy and tragedy in the cyclical life of a small town.

Despite the cajoling of the media, the in-class videos, the stern warnings from driver's ed instructors and the morbid presence of a mangled car outside the high school, the presumed dangers of drunk driving are not powerful enough to eviscerate a graduating senior's illusion of immortality.

Only when one loses a friend or classmate does the reality hit home, and even here this reality can become cloaked in a shroud of denial.

"It won't happen to me," I've heard myself and others say. It is most difficult to impart such a harsh and cruel message upon young people who presumably have a long future yet to fulfill.

Yet, as adults, we know that dangers do lurk around every corner. Wisdom has been gained through the experience of years. It taught us that although youth is a spirited time, it is not eternal.

Two years ago, before the Scituate High School prom, a group of about 20 high school students donned white face and black clothes to dramatize the chill a sudden death can impose upon a close-knit community.

Following a car crash which claimed the life of a Scituate teen in 1990, that first "White Face Day" struck an eerie realization into the hearts and minds of many students, according to those who participated.

Since that time, however, the message seems to have been lost.

Perhaps the effort lost some of its initial spontaneity. Maybe the barrage of authority figures poking fingers and decrying the evils of alcohol has jaded these youngsters.

Perhaps it has made them more eager to experiment.

In any case, the disappointment showed clearly on the faces of those Students Against Drunk Driving who tried in later years to impress upon their peers the seriousness of their message.

This is not a condemnation or a sermon to those juniors and seniors who will be participating in their school's proms and graduations. It is a simple message we state with great sincerity. As young adults, you must gain control over your actions, realizing that whatever course you decide to follow will have consequences beyond all adolescent expectations.

Life can seem cheap when you're on the crest of discovering what LIFE really means. It's a cruel joke played out on a real stage.

Everything seems to tempt you to fall, to crash and burn in glory. "Die young and leave a good-looking corpse" as they say.

The real trick is to hang on and keep your head.

It's tough. Hell, sometimes it isn't even as much fun, but the net worth of a full life lived near the edge far outweighs that of a short one lived on it.

To the Editor:

I wish to thank publicly two civic-minded individuals who donated materials and time to help beautify the Constitution Park next to the Cohasset Post Office.

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset is responsible for maintaining the trees, rhododendrons and barberry bushes behind the benches in Constitution Park. May 10, Andy Salvaggi of William Barnes Company at 150 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, donated three yards of mulch for placement in Constitution Park. Joe Sestito, of Sestito Landscaping, delivered the mulch to the Park free of charge.

The Community Garden Club is indeed grateful to Andy and Joe for their generous contributions.

To the Editor:

I would like to thank everyone who helped with the recent cleanup at Black Rock Beach. Many faithful regulars were there, and also several who moved to Cohasset as recently as last month. Thank you for caring enough to give up a Saturday morning to make the beach a more pleasant place. Your efforts really did make a difference. Take a walk to the beach and see.

Many thanks to Mr. Peter Laugelle of the tree and park department, who always makes it easy for us by providing trucks and disposing of all the debris. You are great, Peter.

Citizen board comments on railroad rehabilitation project

(Editor's note: the following are the comments on the environmental feasibility study of transportation improvements of the Old Colony Greenbush Line Corridor Citizen's Advisory Committee (CAC) which will be sent to State Secretary Trudy Coxe of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA). Cohasset's representatives on the CAC were Martha K. Gjesteby, Ed Fegreus, and Deborah Cook. The MBTA plans to file the report with the state this month. Once filed there will be a 45-day public comment period which will include a public hearing. Once Coxe reviews the report and considers public comment and is satisfied with the environmental study, the MBTA can move ahead with the Final Environmental Impact Report, which will focus on a preferred alternative).

Dear Secretary Coxe,

The Old Colony Greenbush Line Corridor Citizen's Advisory Committee (CAC) is pleased to submit to you the CAC comment on the CAC Review Draft of Supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Statement/ Report for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) study of Transportation Improvements in the Greenbush Line Corridor.

We have prepared comments on the adequacy and completeness of the environmental review that has been conducted by the MBTA. In doing so, we have considered particularly the SDEIS/SDEIR responsiveness to the Secretary's certificate on the project notice of project change, issued in December, 1992 and on the Draft Environmental Impact Statement/Report for the Old Colony Railroad Rehabilitation Project, issued August, 1990.

Members' appreciation of the special character of each Greenbush community has been expressed in our concerns for quality of life and environmental issues. Each member's familiarity with and interest in the Greenbush corridor and its transportation problems has inclined the CAC to comment also on the effectiveness of the transportation alternatives examined in the study.

The CAC recognizes that restored commuter rail service on the Greenbush Line would carry more riders and reduce highway congestion far more than any other transportation alternative—more than boats or buses.

The CAC has met frequently to discuss the Transportation Improvements project and to examine the environmental work conducted by the MBTA in preparation of this SDEIS/SDEIR. Chapter by chapter, the CAC has reviewed, questioned and commented on the draft SDEIS/SDEIR. CAC member questions initiated detailed discussions of the methods and results of the studies. Through the CAC review process, members have become well-informed concerning natural and socioeconomic resources in the Greenbush Corridor. They have become knowledgeable about the methodology for identifying, evaluating and avoiding or mitigating impacts to these resources. Members have become familiar with the environmental review process and the many laws and regulations that govern the development of transportation projects.

The CAC process has generated considerable public discussion of the Greenbush studies. All CAC meetings are public, have been well attended by interested citizens, and have enjoyed coverage in the local and regional news media. The CAC deliberations on the environmental analysis and the transportation alternatives have provided opportunities for the public to become informed and to comment as well.

The CAC created a special procedure for preparation of the CAC Comment. Prior to submission of the consolidated CAC Review Draft SDEIS/SDEIR, the CAC created a comment subcommittee. The role of this subcommittee has been to gather individual CAC member comments and develop a useful CAC comment.

It is the CAC intention that both the CAC process and its Comment will provide information and assistance to the Secretary of Environmental Affairs in the environmental review of the Transportation Improvements project.

This comment expresses the consensus of the entire CAC and also identifies concerns and issues not shared by the full CAC.

CAC COMMENT

Transportation Alternatives

The Greenbush Corridor has serious transportation problems. The local and regional highways are heavily congested and will not improve until such time as a comprehensive, multi-modal transportation plan is in place. The region's work force spends an inordinate amount of time stuck in traffic. The region clearly needs more extensive mass transit service.

It is important that the choice of a transportation alternative serve the greatest number of people and increase transportation options in order to bring real improvement to the existing conditions.

The CAC recognizes that restored commuter rail service on the Greenbush Line would carry more riders and reduce highway congestion far more than any other transportation alternative-more than boats or buses. Therefore, the CAC views restored commuter rail service to Greenbush as an essential part of a multi-modal program to improve transportation in the Greenbush Corridor. Restoring commuter rail service should be a priority as one component of a comprehensive plan that includes commitment to attractive commuter boat service and more extensive express bus service. The CAC supports the restoration of this passenger rail service on the Greenbush Line as quickly as possible, with a stated preference for Alternative 6a.

Environmental Impacts and Mitigation

This SDEIS/SDEIR is developed as Secretary Tierney directed on the previous Old Colony Draft EIR/S. This second document, more than fifteen months in preparation under the direct review of the CAC, is comprehensive and detailed in its discussion of the impacts and alternatives to transportation improvements in the area. This document in its present form provides the context, alternatives, costs and consequences upon which decisions can be made concerning transportation and air quality improvements for the Greenbush corridor.

Though the CAC finds that for the most part the evaluation of impacts and mitigation proposed is adequate and appropriate, the CAC would like additional information on several issues:

Noise and Vibration

The CAC believes that the noise and vibration impacts of the restoration of commuter rail service will be significant. The CAC asks that the MBTA develop a more detailed mitigation plan for noise and vibration impacts all along the Greenbush Line. Developing more noise and vibration mitigation measures for impacted areas along the entire Greenbush Line at this stage of the process will be essential to ensuring that Greenbush Line commuter rail service will be a welcome neighbor. The elimination of any grade crossing would reduce noise impacts. We also support the MBTA's initiative to implement a new pole-mounted warning system at grade crossings and recommend the pole-mounted warning devices be used on the Greenbush Line to both insure safety and minimize noise impacts. We recommend that the MBTA assign a captive fleet of the new F-40 PH 2C locomotives or quieter for providing commuter rail service on the Greenbush line. For vibration mitigation we encourage the use of wood ties, deep ballast, and other vibration absorbing technologies along the entire line, and consideration of ballast mats where they would be found to be effective.

Hingham Square

We believe that restoring commuter rail service at-grade would create significant impacts in the Hingham Square area. The historic nature of the area, the large number of homes in very close proximity to the tracks, the eight grade crossings within short distances of each other all combine to create a situation that calls for careful mitigation Although adverse impacts of an at-grade Hingham Square alternative could be partially mitigated, an adequate mitigation would be the construction of a short tunnel.

Cost estimates show that the short tunnel option 6a would increase costs of construction. Yet the cost of restoration of commuter rail service at-grade may have been understated in light of the additional mitigation that may be necessary in the at-grade alternative. The CAC would like to see the MBTA revise the estimated cost figures for the at-grade commuter rail alternative to better reflect the mitigation that would be required for the at-grade alternative. Concurrently, we urge the MBTA look closely at ways to reduce the estimated cost of alternative 6a. We think the elimination of the otherwise necessary at-grade mitigation measures should further reduce the differential between the cost of the tunnel in relation to the cost of the at-grade alternative. Further, the elimination of grade crossings would result in a modest reduction in overall running time.

Any new open space created by tunnel construction should, to the extent feasible, be devoted to public use.

Scituate Landfill Alternative

We recommend the Scituate Landfill alternative for the Greenbush Station and Layover. Constructing the layover in this location would avoid visual intrusion on the designated scenic North River as well as possible water quality and wetlands impacts from construction and operation of a layover on the right-of-way extending out toward the North River. Constructing the layover and station as proposed in this alternative would result in wetlands impacts, impact to one residence, and result in an additional cost of $10 million. However the avoidance of impacts to the North River and to the businesses that would be displaced in the Driftway area under the original alternative, far outweigh these drawbacks.

Finally, more than eight years have been spent studying how best to improve transportation and air quality on the South Shore in the Old Colony area and considering the environmental impacts of possible improvements. The CAC believes that the information is at hand to permit the important decision-making on which transportation improvements to construct and operate.

Wetlands

We believe that the wetland protection documentation is adequate for this stage of the environmental review.

Safety and Security

Safety remains another main concern. We are aware that commuter rail operates safely in many other communities in the metropolitan Boston area. However, the Greenbush Line passes through densely populated areas and has not been active for many years. More detail on grade crossing protection and measures to reduce the incidence of trespass on the right-of-way is requested. This should include local education programs for residents of all ages and for all motorists. Measures to reduce the number of at-grade crossings should be considered in keeping with the national policy to eliminate grade crossings.

Parking at station sites

The CAC is concerned that the parking proposed may not be adequate to meet the current and projected use. Every effort should be made to identify possible solutions.

Conclusion

The CAC has worked very hard collectively since the start of our work in January of 1993. Reaching consensus has been difficult, but consensus has come. We thank the Secretary for the opportunity to participate in this process through which this consensus has been achieved.

Finally, more than eight years have been spent studying how best to improve transportation and air quality on the South Shore in the Old Colony area and considering the environmental impacts of possible improvements. The CAC believes that the information is at hand to permit the important decision-making on which transportation improvements to construct and operate. The CAC supports the selection of alternative 6a for restoration of commuter rail service on the Greenbush Line, responding to the issues discussed above. Transportation Improvements in the Greenbush Corridor Project must move forward without delay.

Town may get Central Artery clay to cap landfill

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

Health board chairman William Baird and Bruce Haskell of Camp, Dresser & McKee, an engineering firm hired by the town, appeared at a public hearing of the Conservation Commission May 17 and received approval of a plan to stockpile clay at the town dump.

This is the next step in the long process of capping the inactive landfill off Cedar Street. Estimates are that the job of capping the landfill will require upwards of 30,000 cubic yards of clay, much of which could come from the Central Artery Project in Boston.

The clay is being made available to cities and towns in order to help alleviate some of the cost associated with capping landfills and in the interest of environmental concerns associated with landfills. The clay will be transported by contract haulers who will be hired by municipalities to take the clay to their respective capping sites.

Applications for the clay must be made through the Department of Environmental Protection. Haskell said Camp, Dresser & McKee will handle the application process on behalf of the town.

According to Haskell, the current plan calls for storing the clay on two separate sites within the landfill property. Specifically, one pile of approximately 23,000 cubic yards of clay will be stored at a site which is about 400-to-500 feet northeast of the transfer station. This pile would be about 20 feet high.

The second site, which would store about 7,000 cubic yards, is further east. This site is a bit more problematic in that it may encroach on the wetland's buffer zone. The Conservation Commission's approval was limited to storage of the clay outside the buffer zone.

Both sites will be protected by hay bales and siltation fences to avoid erosion and impact on surrounding wetlands.

Wetlands would be delineated near the landfill in order to help determine whether the second storage site is within the buffer zone.

Haskell explained that wetlands are defined under the law according to the existence of certain types of plants. It is believed that some of the qualifying plants may have begun to appear on both sides of the road which surrounds the landfill property.

If the proposed second site cannot be used, alternative sites on the property will be considered.

Haskell encouraged the health board at its meeting Tuesday to consider expediting the capping of the site to whatever extent possible, citing the existence of leachate impacts on the wetlands. The earliest the site could be capped is next summer.

With this expedited plan in mind, Haskell and the board agreed that Cohasset should pursue the first of two possible phases of clay delivery if possible. According the the existing schedule, 500,000 cubic yards of clay will be awarded in 1994, and will actually be excavated in 1995 and 1996. The second phase will be after 1996 and will involve the excavation of an additional 2-to-2.5 million cubic yards of clay. The only costs associated with the procurement of the clay will be the contract price for hiring the hauler. The clay itself is free to municipalities.

Health Agent Joseph Godzik said he will meet this week with representatives from various town boards and departments to discuss safety and scheduling issues involved in the delivery of the clay. The yardage which is anticipated would involve 1,000 truck loads of clay being delivered to the site. Members of the health board agreed that deliveries should be limited to certain hours and days of the week and that there should be certain well-defined haul routes for the trucks.

• In other business, the board agreed to begin assessing fines against the owners of property located at 244 Cedar Street in response to the owner's refusal to repair a failed septic system at the property. According to Dr. Godzik, the cesspool is overflowing periodically, requiring the town to have a private contractor pump it.

The board decide not to condemn the property since there are two families presently renting it. A condemnation of the property would require the eviction of the families. The board will continue to arrange for pumping of the system as needed until it can force the owner to repair the system. The board will place a municipal lien on the property in order to recover co[illegible] incurred in pumping the site.

• The board also heard from representatives of the Cohasset Consignment Shop in response to complaints about cigarette smoking at the shop. A smoking variance was issued a few years ago by the health board allowing smoking in certain limited areas. This week, board members revoked the variance by unanimous vote.

"Truly I find smoking offensive. I'm in favor of prohibiting smoking in places where the public is forced to be exposed," Baird said.

Town bids are awarded

Cerrone Olds-CMC Truck, which was the low bidder, will supply the town with a 4x4 pickup for $14,960 and a one-ton truck for $18,990 for the highway department, selectmen said.

At $760, Todd DiGregorio, 108 Doane St., was the sole bidder for the used Harbormaster's outboard motor. DiGregorio will take the motor "as is," selectmen said.

No photo finish for new track, fields needed

suspect the communication was better this time."

He said that the slides and presentation at town meeting last March showed many there that the town was in extreme need and those "disciples" went out around town and convinced others. The town meeting motion was contingent on a favorable override vote Saturday.

A total of 1,417 ballots were cast with 1,044 yes votes, 340 no's, and 33 blanks. The town has 4,665 registered voters.

Payment for the $775,000 project requires a debt-exclusion Prop. 2-1/2 override. Owners of a $300,000 home in Cohasset will see about a $51 increase on their property taxes for the first year, according to the assessor's office. That figure will gradually decline thereafter until the debt is paid off.

The bond issue covers the cost of design and construction of a new field on land adjacent to Milliken Field by the high school and for revamping Milliken Field.

The override was necessary because the price tag of the project cannot be absorbed within the constraints of Prop. 2-1/2, the sate law that caps the annual tax levy for municipalities at 2-1/2 percent.

The new field will be built where the tennis courts and parking area currently are beside the high school. This location will make bathroom facilities in the high school for sports events easily accessible. The four high school tennis courts will be razed and new ones build by the two at Milliken Field. The Milliken baseball diamond will be relocated and Milliken field will turned into two practice fields.

Encircled by an all-weather track, the new lighted, game field will be used for soccer, field hockey, lacrosse, and football as well as track meets.

Vanderweil, a 1958 Cohasset High graduate, said he was motivated to get involved when he learned Cohasset teams were deprived of hosting home meets because of the condition of fields and track which date back to 1938.

He said the next step is the town to appoint a building committee to take the project forward. If all goes smoothly, the new fields-complex could be on line by the fall of 1995.

State may help bail out Cohasset Harbor

Doyon said several boats in the fishing fleet were trapped inside the harbor.

According to Pfaffmann, besides a complete harbor dredging in the late 1950's, the only dredging project that has taken place recently was last year's partial dredging.

Kelly said the harbor was not dredged enough or properly at that time and the situation has gone from bad to worse.

Doyon agreed and said the $225,000 that was raised by the state along with about $20,000 raised by the town for the project didn't cover much. Doyon is not sure how much the town will have to raise this time around but said that state dredging programs are requiring more local participation.

In Marshfield where there is a recurrent problem with silt build up, the Army Corps of Engineers always pays for the dredging, said Kelly who would like the Hydraulic dredge to make its way up the coast when it's finished in Marshfield.

In Cohasset, Kelly said, most of the dredged silt is ocean dumped, but there are many environmental issues at stake now.

One issue that came up during the recent partial dredging was a concern about the welfare of the winter flounder population, Doyon said. And while ocean dumping is the most inexpensive method of taking care of silt, extensive testing is now required for environmental reasons. If the silt cannot be ocean dumped, the town has to do land dumping at an approved dumping site, Doyon added.

"Times have changed," Kelly said. "Things are more stringent now, environmentally."

In addition to the massive silt build up, Cohasset also has to deal with ledge in the harbor, Doyon said. Ledge is bedrock that has come to the surface and in the past was dealt with by blasting.

"Blasting is not considered an environmentally sensitive solution," Doyon said. Instead of blasting, a steel ram-rod is now used to mechanically chip away at the rock, which Doyon said can be a navigational hazard.

Kelly said that the town has asked Congressman Gerry Studds to help and he hopes that a meeting with the town, state and Army Corps of Engineers can take place. "We need to sit down and discuss the problem," Kelly said, adding "the channel is so narrow now, it's going to reek havoc on the summer time."

Doyon also hopes to be able to coordinate the project with the federal government and use the Army Corps of Engineers contractor for the town's share of the harbor as well.

In the meantime the Army Corps of Engineers have been made aware of the situation and they will have to decide, ultimately if and when an emergency dredging will take place.

Commercial fisherman Scott Herzog said the situation isn't getting any better. "It needs to be done," he said, adding "it's affected some fishermen already; in a short time it will affect everyone."

Grant application okay'ed

Selectmen recently approved a state grant application by the Council on Aging for $4,000 which will be used to help fund a part-time nutrition site manager for the COA's two day per week nutrition program; to pay dues to the (state) MCOA group which keeps the senior center informed on legislative issues; and to pay a portion of the MCOA conference costs for the director and board members.

Volungis is reappointed

Selectmen unanimously reappointed Judy P. Volungis, 234 Forest Ave., of the Republican Town Committee to the Board of Registrars.

Liquor license is pledged

Selectmen approved a pledge of the liquor license of Ko Ko Island Restaurant Inc., 154-156 King St. (Rte. 3A) to the Hibernia Savings Bank of Quincy in connection with a refinancing loan being made by the bank to the restaurant for $350,000.

Ambulance billing update

The town billed for 22 ambulance runs in April for a total of $7,048.63, according to Jane E. Henderson billing clerk at the fire department. So far this fiscal year, the town has $78,042.09 in receipts out of a possible $93,875.30 which is a collection rate of 83 percent.

Mammography is available

The Cohasset Social Service League announces that it will sponsor a visit by the Mobile Diagnostics Mammography Van.

This fully equipped van makes it easier for women to have mammograms. Most women who have not had a mammogram give inconvenience and cost as the reasons. This service is more convenient, less expensive, and is accredited by the American College of Radiology. The best means of controlling breast cancer is through early detection. Breast cancer is 90~ curable if found early. Schedule your mammogram today! It only takes 20 to 30 minutes of your time. The one thing worse than having breast cancer is having it and not knowing it.

Mammogram screening is Saturday, June 4, from 9:15 a.m. to 5 p.m. The van will be in the Town Hall parking lot. Appointments are required and can be made by calling the Social Service League of Cohasset at 383-0771.

Mobile Diagnostics, Inc. of Wellesley provides a fully equipped van which is comfortable, private, and staffed by registered, female technologists. The dose mammography unit. The x-rays are read by board certified radiologists, and the results will be sent to you and your physician.

Recent legislation mandates that, with few exceptions, insurance companies must provide coverage for mammograms. The total cost of mammography with Mobile Diagnostics is $107, and they will bill your insurance company for this amount. If you have no insurance or your insurance does not cover this test, you can take advantage of the $85 cash price, payable on the day of the exam only, by cash, check, Mastercard, or Visa. Medicare covers the cost of a mammogram every other year after you have met any deductibles. For an appointment, call 383-0771.

AARP meets May 26

The next meeting of the South Shore Chapter of #1139 of the American Association of Retired Persons will be Thursday, May 26, at 1:30 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, Route 3A, Hingham. This is the annual meeting and election of officers. The "Opals" will lead a sing-along. Refreshments will be very special. This is the ideal time to bring prospective members and learn about activities and volunteering opportunities.

Candy Ford's modelling agency celebrates 15 years

By Joyce Bain
Mariner correspondent

It was a bright and sunny day, perfect for a ride in a convertible. But the people who rode down Newbury Street April 14 were not just out for a joy ride. They were celebrating the 15th anniversary of Ford Model Management by reenacting the opening parade held in 1979, when Candy Ford founded the company.

Today, Ford Model Management is becoming a nationwide company, due to the hard work and dedication of Candy Ford, who resides in Cohasset with her husband and two children.

Candy first got into the modeling business in high school and again while attending Boston University, but it was much later that she decided to open an agency. First she left the field in pursuit of a carcer in communications, getting an internship with the New England Patriots while in college and later becoming their director of sales and promotions.

"It's amazing how much things have changed since then. It [the Patriots' management] really wasn't a place for women," says Candy.

She recalls how, after being there for some time, she expressed a desire to move up in the organization.

"The PR director told me I should work for a cosmetics company. If someone told you that today you would slap him."

When she did leave the Patriots, Candy planned to live with her brother in California. She had even gone as far as making travel arrangements when her mother suggested opening a modeling agency. Candy still suspects her suggestion stemmed from a mother's desire to be near her children.

Regardless of how the idea came about, it was fairly easy to collect a group of models to represent since she had kept in touch with several of her friends from her modeling days.

From this inauspicious beginning, representing only eight-to-ten models and wondering if she could collect a clientele, Candy has nurtured her company into the largest modeling agency in New England. Ford now boasts several divisions including runway, print, television, and promotions, which is in the process of going national.

"Fifteen years ago, who knew what I was about to embark upon," says Candy. "I just thought I could run an agency as well as or better than other agencies in town. Now I've proven to myself that I can."

There is a great deal more to Candy than her agency, though. A mother of two, she never lets grass grow under her feet.

She comments: "People are always telling me I have it all, but I tell them I do it all. I scrape peas off the kitchen floor just like every other mother."

Although her agency handles children, Candy does not plan on bringing her own into the world of modeling, at least not yet. She says that if they want to when they are older then they can, but she will not push them.

Despite her busy schedule, Candy does manage to find time for herself, what she calls "Candy time." She enjoys skiing in the winter, being an experienced downhill skier and a beginner in cross-country, and she also is a member of a tennis team. Health and fitness seem to be important to her, not surprising in her line of work.

When asked about the health of her models, Candy shows her serious side. Last summer she was on a network television special on anorexia and bulimia and she is very concerned with the infatuation some people develop with being thin.

"I think this ultra thin ideal is a trend, a fad. I hope it goes away. It's not attractive and it's definitely not healthy," Candy comments.

She believes her clients in Boston are more conservative than other areas of the country, and is pleased that they are not going for the "emaciated" look. She suggests that a low fat diet with four or five small meals a day and a lot of exercise is all anyone needs to lose weight.

Being thin is not all it takes to become a model. Candy receives photographs every day of people who want to break into the field.

"If you don't want to be a model," she says, "you know someone who does."

In addition to the photographs, Ford Management picks people out of crowds at restaurants and other public places.

But the most common means they use of finding new models is from their training school, Image Resource. Every month approximately 30 people go through an intense two-day training course where they learn everything there is to know about modeling, including some tricks of the trade. Candy demonstrates one trick models use to make their hair look full of body by pulling it all forward, leaving a gaping hole in the back.

Even knowing their tricks, Candy is often amazed by the metamorphosis people undergo through the camera. She vividly recalls one girl whose photographs were stunning, but when she met her face-to-face she found her to be extremely unattractive.

"I almost thought it was a test, that this wasn't the same girl at all," she says. "I thought it might be a picture of a friend and she was trying to see if I would notice."

According to Candy, despite how it sounds, her job is not all glamour. She dislikes the cut-throat nature of the business.

"It's fun and glamorous, but the down side is dealing with egocentric people you can never do enough for. When a model leaves, I take it personally. If I didn't take it personally, I may not do as good a job."

Candy is very excited about the expansion of the promotions division into a national entity and hopes to expand other departments in the future.

"I often wonder how long I will stay in the business. I can't believe it's been 15 years already," she says. "It's in my blood, I guess."

Literary and arts magazine

This year, for the first time, Cohasset High School's annual literary and arts magazine, Whispers & Shadows, will be mailed home to all families, grades seven through 12. This publication represents the creative effort of more than 50 artists, writers, and staff workers and offers a poignant, humorous and significant view of the students' world and ours. Thanks to the contributing artists, to teacher/advisors Jo-Ellen Wood and Tom Sippel, with assistance from Mr. Kite and Mrs. Burbank. Thanks also to the CHS staff for production help and to the CHS Arts Boosters for essential funding and mailing.

Metco fund-raiser set

The Cohasset Metco Program will have a coffee and donut stand at the high school for farm team baseball games.

The stand will be open from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday May 21 and June 18. Money raised will go to support the Cohasset Metco late bus.

Geography bee student

The Massachusetts State Geography Bee was held at Clark University in Worcester April 8. James O'Sullivan, who attends Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School, participated in the Bee.

The sponsors of the Bee are National Geographic World and Amtrak.

The state Bee is the second level of the National Geography Bee, which began in December with competitions in thousands of schools across the country. 458 students in Massachusetts won their school level competition and were eligible to take the written exam.

The state Bee began with a preliminary round with 10 winners going on to the final round competition. R.D. Sahl from WHDH-TV was the moderator of the final round.

Bee winners were: first place, William Hartley from Rochester; second place was Daniel Schlozman from Brookline and third place was Alex Crowley from Leominster. Each winner received a cash prizes along with gifts. The first-place winner also received an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, along with his teacher escort, to participate in the National Bee May 24 and 25.

Artists honored tonight

The Arts Boosters Club will host the annual Cohasset High School Arts Recognition night Thursday, May 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the CHS cafeteria, immediately following the CHS Arts Open House. Approximately 800 senior high school students, their parents and teachers will gather to honor CHS artists, dramatists, musicians, writers, and all our creative students involved in the arts. Invitations have been mailed to parents of students to be recognized by arts teachers Joel Antolini, Maureen Duffy, Ron Emmons, Marcia Lajoie, Bryan Marks, John Packard, Tom Sippel, Laureen White, Jo-Ellen Wood and Joan Wool.

The evening's program provides a tribute to all CHS artists. Teachers present awards for individual achievement, the Arts Boosters present an Undergraduate Study Award, and Principal Meg Gallagher recognizes the Outstanding Senior in the arts. Please come to celebrate the arts, and the artists at Cohasset High School.

Rolandelli finds a new challenge behind the plate

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Chris Rolandelli has been a part of Cohasset High's starting baseball lineup for the past five years. But it has been less than one season since the powerfully built senior has buckled up the shin pads, donned a mask and taken his sport between home plate and the umpire.

Rolandelli, the Skippers' co-captain, originally played left field and pitched but it was only last summer that he began to catch for the newly-formed Cohasset Land Sharks team.

He liked the position so much, Rolandelli decided to give the spot a try in this, his final season of schoolboy ball. It's a decision he's glad he made.

"I love it better than any other position I've ever played," said Rolandelli who is batting a nifty .325 for the Skippers. "You're constantly in control of the game and the pace of the game."

Many thought Rolandelli's best sport in college would be football, but he has no intention of spending his fall on the gridiron. That in itself is somewhat surprising, considering he was a Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic at middle linebacker. Known as a hard hitter and aggressive player, Rolandelli, complete with his Fu Manchu-like mustache that made him look all the more intimidating than he already was, led the Skippers in tackles last fall in South Shore League play.

However, he insists those days are over.

"I set my mind right after that (football season's ending) I wasn't going to play, so the calls I got I said I wasn't interested," Rolandelli said without the slightest hesitation in his voice.

"It took too much out of me," he continued. "I have more fun playing baseball. It's more interesting."

Rolandelli already spoke at length with the head baseball coach at Flaglar College in St. Augustine, Florida, and was told there's a spot for him on the varsity team.

Rolandelli admits there are facets to catching that he must improve on, but they are skills that every catcher works on continually, no matter what the level. Rolandelli considers his throwing arm and quick release to second base his greatest assets behind the plate. It's the subtle things catchers must deal with in every game that Rolandelli has focused his concentration on.

"I'm still learning a lot," he said. "I'm still trying to get everything down."

While he is good defensive catcher with few balls getting by him, Rolandelli said he wants to master the skill of turning his glove when the ball is in the dirt, and further improve the accuracy of his throws to second when base runners attempt to steal.

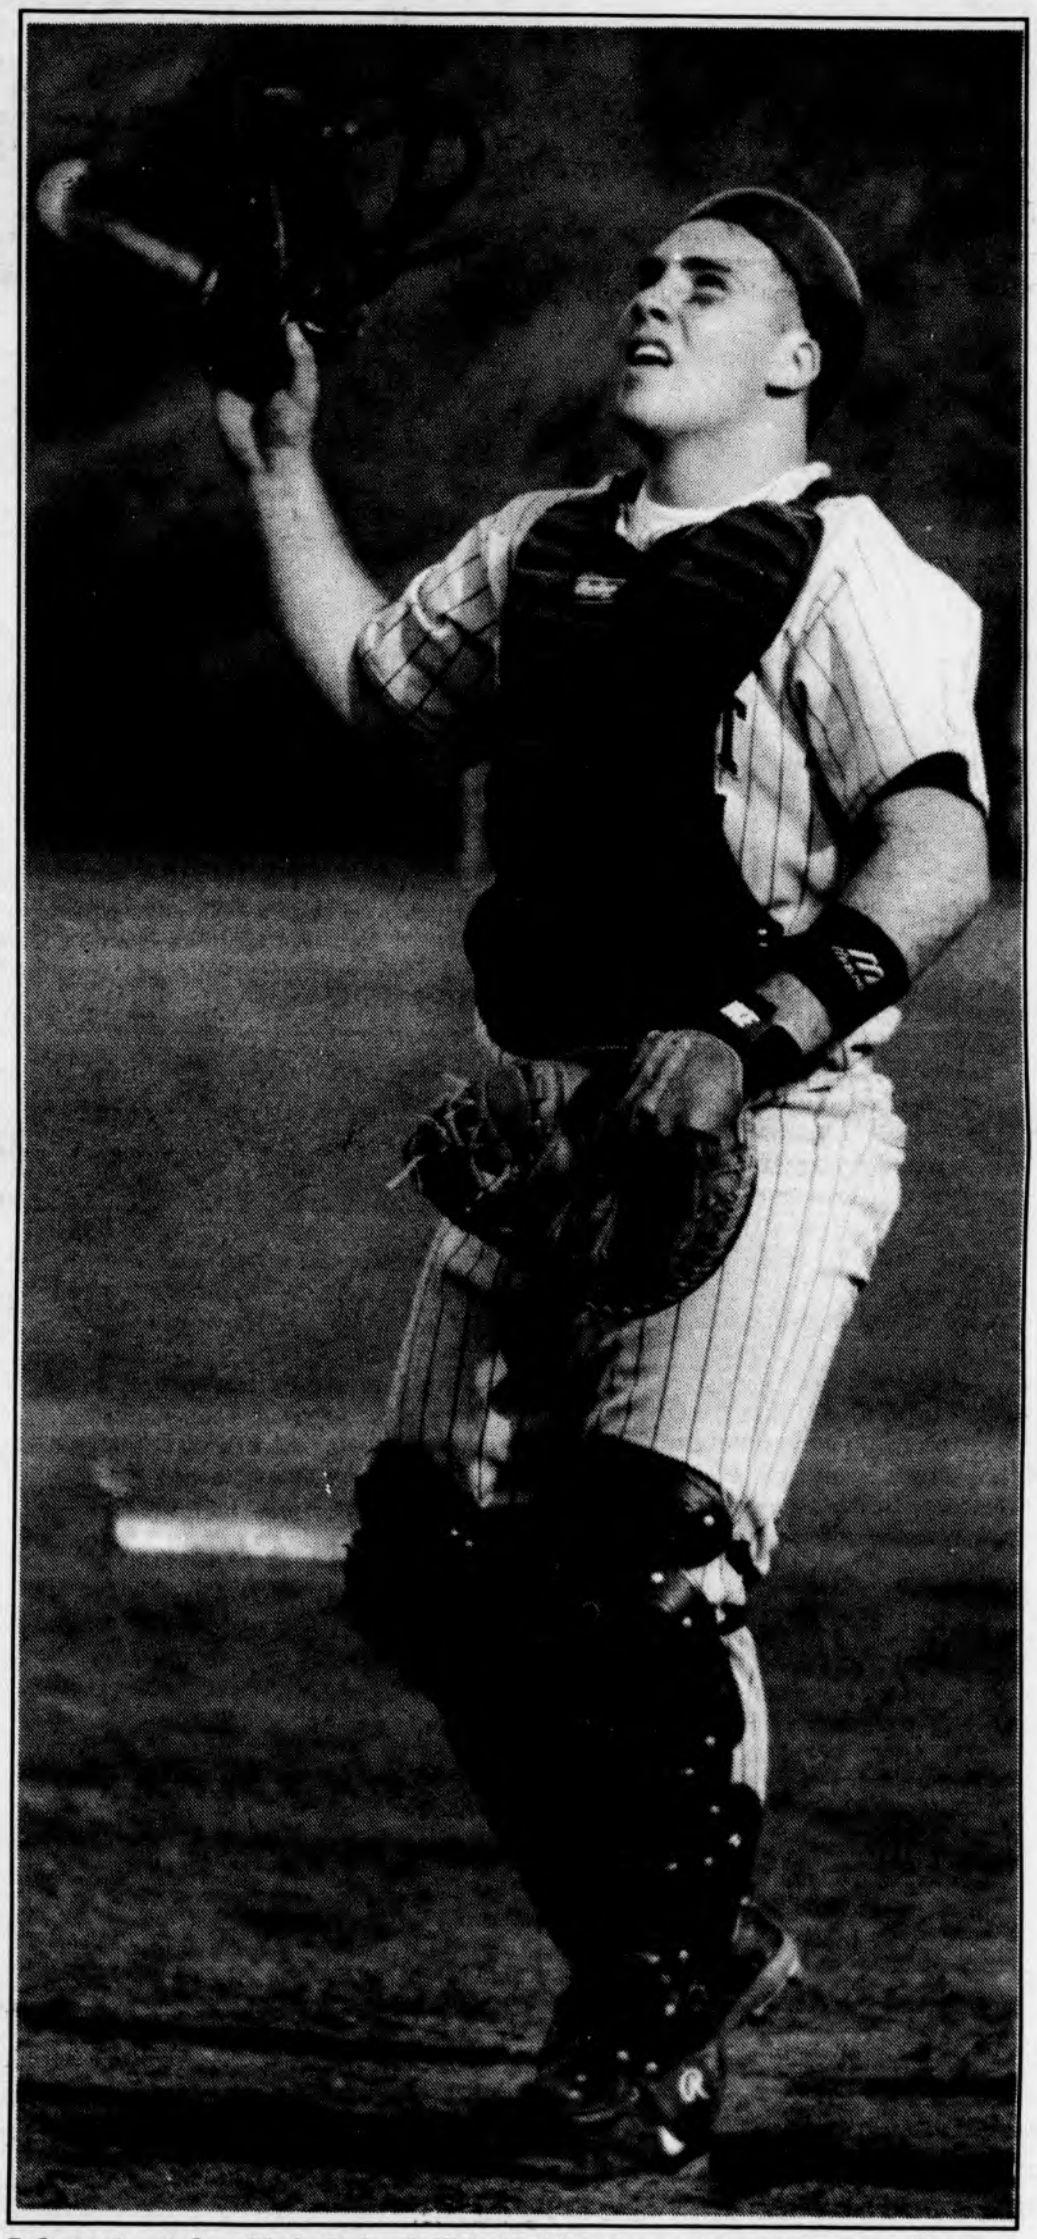
Offensively, Rolandelli's experience has shown through the most in his pitch selection. He is far more patient at the plate than in past seasons and Rolandelli has seen far fewer fastballs.

"I've seen a lot of curve balls this year," Rolandelli said. "They haven't thrown a lot of fastballs."

Because the pitchers have altered the way they pitch to Rolandelli, who likes nothing more than to sit on the fastball, he too has had to make adjustments at the plate to compensate.

Never a strong curve-ball hitter, Rolandelli's older brother, Mike, pitched to him during the preseason, getting him used to seeing the curve on a regular basis.

"Until this year I haven't really been able to hit a curve ball," Rolandelli said.



Cohasset catcher Chris Rolandelli is looking forward to improving the finer skills of his new position behind the plate.

As a team, Cohasset is struggling this season with a 2-10 record. However, the Skippers staged a huge upset over Norwell with a shocking, 3-1 final. Rolandelli, who had two hits and missed a home run by less than a foot, considers the win a preview of what's in store for the S.S.L., once the younger players on the team develop and gain more experience playing at the varsity level against quality competition.

He has seen the improvement the Skippers have made since the beginning of the season under first-year coach Ron Ford. "From the first game we've done a 360-degree turn," Rolandelli said. "The younger guys are coming through for us. They're really leading the team."

Rolandelli said they young players on the squad, the Kevin McKennas, Joe Magnes, Rob Buckleys and Grant Endes are the team members who will do the most in improving the Skippers' record in the future.

That and the coaching of Ron Ford, one of the most popular and respected

"Winning isn't everything but getting your butt kicked by a high school tennis player is pretty embarrassing." -David McKee, sports writer and failed tennis dude.

It was Thursday, May 12 when I took to the practice courts at Marshfield High School to play tennis against Kerry Steel.

Steel, a senior first singles player for the Lady Rams, is the top player in the Atlantic Coast League and owns a perfect 8-0 record against players from Duxbury, Hingham and Dennis-Yarmouth.

Thanks to my trash talking with Marshfield coach Roberta Daniele, I ended up on the court playing Steel.

Last week I was on the phone talking to the coach about her team and mentioned my great tennis skills.

"Well, why don't you come down and play with Kerry," Daniele suddenly asked.

"Sure," I stammered. "Anytime."

"How about Thursday. We have an off day," Daniele said.

"I'll be there."

I hung up the phone and a cold sweat starting running down my back.

I last played tennis three years ago and now I had to play with the best player in the ACL. I was in way over my head.

I jogged a couple miles on Wednesday and practiced my tennis swing with a golf club while watching TV that night. I was ready for Kerry.

I got to practice on Thursday dressed in tan shorts, a black T-shirt, and my Converse high-top basketball sneakers with "React Juice."

I looked like a country club reject.

I borrowed Daniele's racket and introduced myself to Kerry.

She was extremely polite and in very good shape.

"Don't hurt me. I'm an old man with bad knees," I told her, trying for sympathy.

I don't think it worked.

I told Kerry that all I wanted to do was hit with her for a little while.

I hadn't served a tennis ball in three years and there was no way I was going to send her any of my second serve cookies.

She would have stroked winner after winner and it would be 6-0 before I knew it.

Anyway, we grabbed a handful of tennis balls and started to hit on the first court.

She began hitting and everything was deep and powerful.

I was trying hard just to return her shots, never mind trying to hit any winners.

I was sweating like a goat and my Converse high-top basketball sneakers with "React Juice" were squeaking like a rusty wheel as I tried to get to every shot.

I hit some decent forehands and backhands but Steel got to them easily and hit the ball back just as hard.

And she was nice about her shots as she hit them all right in the middle of the court so I could get to them.

Mary Lou is still crowd's favorite 10 years after Olympic gold

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Olympic gold medalist Mary Lou Retton tries to coax a smile out of 4-year-old Kari Potts while 4-year-old Sean O'Brien is perfectly content. Both Kari and Sean are from Braintree. Retton was on hand signing autographs and chatting with her fans at the grand opening of Caldor last Thursday in Braintree.

Olympic gold medalist Mary Lou Retton had a key bit of advice for young gymnasts who have aspirations of standing on the victory stand, just as she did at the 1984 Games in Los Angeles.

"Dreams do come true," said the only American woman ever to capture the gold medal in the Olympics' All-Around competition. "But don't expect them on a silver platter. It's not going to happen overnight. Through hard work and determination you can get results. I'm a prime example of that."

Retton, now 26, married and living in Houston, Texas, shared her tips with dozens of wide-eyed youngsters as she spent more than two hours autographing glossy photos during last Thursday's grand opening of Caldor in Braintree. Retton was on hand to promote Naturistics and Natural Glow — the first all-natural cosmetic, bath and skin care products available on the mass market.

Stephanie Hayano, Naturistics' vice president of marketing, said Retton was the perfect choice as the products' spokesperson, a position she has held for three years.

"We find that Mary Lou's wholesome attitude is a good tie-in with our products," said Hayano. "There's noting artificial about Mary Lou. She's down to earth. A super model wouldn't be the right fit.

"She's genuinely wholesome and beautiful."

Hayano watched as Mary Lou greeted each person in line with her trademark smile. She asked them their names, whether or not they were gymnasts and reminded them to keep working hard at the sport.

At one point during the autograph signing, Retton had her photo taken with 11 Braintree High School students.

Retton enjoys the public appearances and meeting the gymnasts and general public from around the country. "It wasn't that long ago I was their age," she said.

Hayano knows the Naturistics line has the perfect celebrity endorsing its products. Retton's rapport with her fans is a welcomed change from many of the self-serving athletes who expect autograph seekers to shell out a fee for their signatures.

"It's amazing how inspirational she is," Hayano said. "Mary Lou's a real role model for the kids. And she's as easy speaking with the adults as she is with the kids."

Retton trained under the legendary Romanian coach, Bella Karolyi, and went on to become a household name at the '84 Olympics, much the way Olga Korbut and Nadia Comaneci did during their gold-medal performances in '72 and '76.

Retton's win broke the Eastern Bloc stronghold stronghold on gymnastics and paved the way for a slew of American hopefuls for future Olympic greatness. She left Los Angeles with five medals, the most won by any athlete in all events.

Retton was very much aware of what her accomplishments meant and admitted she was proud of the fact that she carved her own notch in Olympic history.

"My name will be in the history books and that means a lot to me," she said during a short break.

Retton retired soon after the Olympics and said she didn't regret her decision at all. She never wanted to be a "hanger-on" who continued to compete past her prime. "I wanted people to remember me as a winner," Retton said. "1984 was my year."

As for the future of American gymnastics, Retton believes the United States' best can compete head-to-head with the premier gymnasts on the International level. She picked world champion Shannon Miller and Dominique Dawes as the country's best hopes for medals at the '96 Games in Atlanta.

"She's really, really tough," Retton said of Miller. "They both have competed in dual Olympics and experience is a big plus."

And just as Retton is a hero to millions of gymnasts across the country, she said she looked up to Comaneci and her own older sister, Shari, who was also a gymnast.

"I had my own idols growing up," Retton said.

Retton eventually wants to coach young gymnasts, but with her hectic schedule — she makes more than 30 appearances per year — she admitted there wasn't enough time to give a full commitment to the work.

"It's the second stage in my life," Retton said of coaching. "It's a full-time job."

Many of the adults shopping in Caldor, who weren't aware Retton was on hand for the grand opening, took a double-take when they passed by the table she was sitting at. A line of people 50-feet long waited patiently to meet with her.

One man was particularly impressed with Retton, who still looks as though she could still score in the 9's on the floor routine.

"You're adorable," the man said to Retton as he leaned against his shopping cart. "If I wasn't married I'd marry you."

"I'm already married," she said before breaking into a laugh.

And of course, that trademark smile was very apparent as well.

Basketball camp

The Cohasset Recreation Department is currently accepting registrations for a boys' and girls' basketball camp to be held the week of Monday, July 11 at the Cohasset High School gym.

Ron Ford, boys' varsity basketball coach, and staff will conduct the week-long camp, which is for youngsters ages nine and over. The tuition for basketball camp is $125 per child and camp hours are from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily, Monday, July 11 through Friday, July 15.

Registration forms are available at the recreation department office on the first floor in the Cohasset Town Hall. Non-residents will be accepted for basketball camp on a space available basis.

Playground volunteers sought

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept applications for volunteer counselors for its summer, 1994 Playground program. Those who may be interested in working on a volunteer basis for a few hours each week, between July 6 and August 19, may call the recreation office at 383-6791 for further information.

The commission's playground program is for children ages 3 through 12. Volunteer services are especially needed with younger age groups of 3- to 7-year-olds. CRD will train volunteers who qualify and have a strong interest in working with children.

Early deficits worry Ekberg as playoffs near

Bobbe Reardon
Mariner staff

Head coach Ken Ekberg sees one constant from Cohasset High's lacrosse team that could cause problems once the tournament kicks off a week from Saturday.

The Skippers (9-2) have made a habit of falling behind early in their games, only to come back with a vengeance both on offense and defense.

But simply becoming more intense, offensively and defensively, may not be enough against the lacrosse teams in the state's upper echelon.

"As we go further in the season and playoffs we can't afford to do that (fall behind)," Ekberg said. "It's a major consideration as far a the playoffs are concerned."

The trend continued in Cohasset's most recent win, a 15-9 drubbing of Barnstable. While Ekberg was pleased with the victory because of the calibre of the Cape team and its tough schedule, he called a quick time-out early in the contest when the Skippers found themselves behind, 2-0.

Ekberg's words sunk in and Cohasset "defensively, came together" and was able to put the ball through the 5-hole for a two-goal lead at the half.

Another more positive constant played itself out as Chris Adams cor.dnued to be the Skippers' most dominant offensive player. Adams hammered Barnstable with six goals and an assist.

"That's a great game for him," said Ekberg who thought for a moment and then added, "it's a great game for anybody."

With the playoffs on the horizon, Ekberg said the Skippers must tighten up their already strong defense even more and be more patient on the offensive side of the field. He wants Cohasset to bide its time for the high-percentage shots.

And Ekberg would also like to see an early lead. Playing catch-up is exciting, but it's part of the game he can do without.

New challenge. . .

coaches at the high school and within the S.S.L. "He has been great," Rolandelli said. "He's like one of the players. Mentally he gets us ready to play as well as we can, physically. He's a good motivator and a great help to the younger kids."

Once the high school season ends, Rolandelli will immediately switch his uniform for that of the Land Sharks'. Their regular season runs from June 1 to July 13, with the playoffs beginning soon after. Most of the high school players will be on the team, along with several lacrosse athletes, including Dave Leahy and Chris Goodman.

"It looks good," Rolandelli said of the club's chances. "We're going to have a lot of fun."

And the fun will begin with Rolandelli flashing the signals behind the plate — the position he now considers home.

See I have the range of a Red Sox infielder. One step in each direction is all I can reach.

If Steel started going for the lines, I would be standing there saying "Nice shot, nice shot" like a robot.

We hit for about 20 minutes and had a few decent rallies going.

Steel put the ball right where I could hit it and I ended up hitting a few shots that I was actually proud of.

However, my lungs were burning and the sweat was flowing.

It was time to get out of there before I tore a muscle in my leg.

I hit the last ball into the net and called things to a halt.

I walked over to Steel and thanked her for letting me play.

There wasn't a single drop of sweat on her face and she wasn't even breathing hard.

She could have played for another two hours.

As for me, I looked and sounded like a broken down steam train.

I asked Kerry about my game.

"Not too bad. But you need to practice some more," she said.

I asked her if I could make the team at Marshfield High.

"Probably," she diplomatically said.

I went over to the coach and thanked her as well.

I slowly walked back to my truck.

My tennis comeback lasted 20 minutes and my legs have hated me ever since.

From now on, I'm sticking to Nintendo.

The MIAA made its most recent, and intelligent, change in the tournament qualification standard. Beginning in September, teams will be required to win 50-percent of their games, down from the current 59-percent total required for post-season play.

And unlike the dismal open basketball tournament, which was mercifully put to rest this past winter, hoop teams won't be the only squads the new standard applies to. Basketball, field hockey, soccer, hockey, lacrosse and baseball will all be included.

The new 50-percent win number has several positives working in its favor and you'll be hard pressed to find a coach who regards it as a farce. Such was not the case with the come-one, come-all hoop tournament.

- Teams who get off to a slow start have, a little less pressure on put on them to qualify.
- Those squads with records just under .500 have an ambitious goal to shoot for, but one that is not too far out of reach. A tourney appearance for a rebuilding team can only help in getting more potential players to tryout for the squad the following year.
- More tournament teams mean more revenue, which the school's get a certain percentage.
- Premier players on average squads will get the chance to display their talents in front of larger crowds, who otherwise may never have seen them in action.
- More teams means more chances for upsets in the early rounds, which can only make the tourney that much more interesting. This could be particularly beneficial for teams that get off to slow starts but play strong in the second half of the season leading into the tourney.

The Bulls' Scottie Pippen was treated like a hero in Chicago against the New York Knicks, one game after he requested to be taken out with 1.8 seconds left in the fourth quarter with the score tied.

Pippen asked to grab a piece of the pine because he was supposedly aware that Tony Kukoc was to take the final shot for the Bulls. He also was unhappy with the effort the Bulls turned in during the game.

Pippen, who is Chicago's "team leader" since Michael Jordan's retirement let his true colors shine through in the ugliest of ways. And to think, Jordan was criticized as being selfish when he decided to forego basketball for a career in baseball. It's hard to imagine His Airness wanting to watch the final seconds of a tie game from the bench, whether it be in the playoffs or a regular-season contest. They would have had to put Larry Bird in a straightjacket for him to come out in a pressure situation. Add Charles Barkley, Kevin McHale and Reggie Miller to that list. But then again, why name names. Barring an injury (even then most would probably stay put), no other player I know of would voluntarily come out of the game in that situation.

What this episode showed is that Pippen is nothing more than a fraud. His

Golf tournament June 6

Join your friends and tee off for a good cause at South Shore Health and Educational Foundation's fifth annual golf tournament, which will be held June 6 at Cohasset Golf Club. Proceeds from this year's tournament will benefit the expansion of South Shore Hospital's special care nursery, which provides specialized local care to infants who are ill, premature or have medical problems at birth.

Three corporate sponsors have already signed up at the Golden Tee Club level: Purity Services, Advantage Health Corporation and Perini Corporation.

Player sponsorships start at $250 which includes a contribution to a special care nursery, lunch, an afternoon of golf and dinner. Participants will also be eligible for prize drawings.

Although space is filling up fast, corporate and player sponsorship opportunities are still available; for more information, call Jill McDonough, South Shore Health and Educational Foundation at 340-8848.

Little League dance set for May 29

Dance into summer with "J.D. Billy and Ken," the live band that keeps drawing record crowds to benefit our baseball program, is here once again in Cohasset. This year the Chart House has been generous enough to donate its beautiful function room overlooking Cohasset Harbor for this special event.

The dance will take place on the Sunday of Memorial Day weekend, May 29, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Dress is festive. This year people also have the option of dining at the Chart House before the dance. Reservations should be made well in advance. People can also just come directly to the dance. Tickets are $30 per couple and will be available in advance, as well as at the door.

Anyone who is interested in donating silent auction items or services please call Susan Carr at 383-0331.

Remember, you don't have to have a Little Leaguer to attend the dance. The proceeds benefit our Little League program, but the dance is open to anyone who enjoys a fun evening out.

The "Sports Final" crowd did a job on Pippen Sunday night, and rightfully so. It was one of the few topics Boston Globe columnists Bob Ryan and Dan Shaughnessey both agreed upon 100-percent.

You can bet the farm the subject will turn up this week in at least one of their columns. And God forbid if the Boston Herald's Gerry Callahan decides to direct his wrath towards Pippen. Callahan is known for his cynical, but right on the money commentaries. If Callahan does dedicate a column to Pippen's child-like antics, the Bull will be reduced to a deer staring at oncoming headlights.

Land Sharks prepping for new season

The Cohasset Land Sharks are back again this summer. The 1993 District 8 Big League Champions have joined the Babe Ruth League this season and will face divisional competition including Kingston, Carver, Hanover, Norwell, Duxbury, Weymouth, Pembroke-Halifax and Canton.

Cross divisional games will be played against Braintree, South Boston and Milton, among others, as part of a 16-game schedule. The Land Sharks begin their 1994 campaign June 1, therefore practice will begin within the next couple of weeks in accordance with the varsity schedule. The season ends in mid-July and an All-Star game at Harvard Stadium will be held.

The schedule is already printed (in order for players to make work arrangements as needed) and will be handed out at the first practice along with T-shirts and new pinstripe uniforms. Any 16-18-year-old who has not yet sent in a registration form or does not have one, please call John or Mike Rolandelli at 383-2190.

Safe boating course

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 1208, and the Cohasset Recreation Department will sponsor a spring, six session, Safe Boating Course, offering certification by both the Coast Guard and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The course will be offered to both youth and adults, however, certification in this course is mandatory for 16 years old and under, who wish to operate a craft powered by 25 horsepower or more. U.S.C.G.A., Flotilla 1208 instructors will teach the six session course, scheduled to begin Tuesday, May 17, at Cohasset High School, Room 206. Class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday evening, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. from May 17 through June 2.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791, as soon as possible, as class will be limited in size, and participants will be enrolled on a first call basis. There will be a $15 per person fee for this program, that covers the cost of the text book and class materials. Checks for payment must be made out to U.S.C.G.A. Flotilla 1208. While the class is designed for children/youth and adults, it is suggested that children aged 12 and under be accompanied by a participating adult.

Certification cards will be issued, and both the Coast Guard and State recognize the Safe Boating certificate. Further, for those who may be interested, certification for this course will allow you a discount on your boat insurance premium of 5 to 10 percent, depending upon your insurance carrier.

Recreation Baseball Camp accepting registrations

The Cohasset Recreation Department is accepting registrations for a week-long baseball camp for youngsters ages 5 through 18 at the recreation office on the first floor of Cohasset Town Hall.

The South Shore Baseball Club has been contracted again this year to provide the baseball camp, which will be held the week of Monday, June 27, at Miliken Field.

Two camp programs are available to youngsters as follows: full-day, 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., for ages 7 and over and a half-day camp, 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., is available for 5- and 6-year-olds.

The week-long camp costs $120 per child for the full-day program, and $70 per child for the half-day program. Camp ends Friday, July 1.

The South Shore Baseball Club, located at the South Shore Sports Center, Hingham, operates year-round baseball instruction and has provided baseball camp for Cohasset Recreation for four years.

VIP SOCCER CAMP REGISTRATIONS

The recreation department is also accepting registrations for VIP Soccer Camp, for children ages 4 through 7.

VIP Soccer Camp offers two programs for boys and girls: ABC Soccer is especially designed for 4- and 5-year-olds and meets from 8 to 9:30 a.m., Monday through Friday, July 18-22. The cost is $40 for the week.

Also offered by VIP is a three-hour per day program, meeting from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, July 18-22, for 6- and 7-year-olds. The cost is $70 for the week.

Both VIP programs will be held this year at the Front Field of Cohasset High School.

SOUTH SHORE SOCCER CAMP APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE

Registrations for South Shore Soccer Camp have begun for boys and girls ages 8-18. This is the South Shore Soccer Camps' fifth year of operation in Cohasset. If you are interested in registering, call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791 to be assured enrollment.

South Shore Soccer will be offered to both girls and boys, Monday through Friday, during the weeks of August 1-5 and 8-12. Should a camper wish to attend both camp weeks, this will now be possible. In order to choose the week of camp you desire, early registration is advised, as both camp weeks must be restricted in number.

Camp meets daily, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Cohasset's Miliken Field. The cost for camp is $165 per week and discounts for multiple weeks and subsequent children are available. South Shore Soccer Camp represents top-flight training delivered by top college and high school coaches and players from the New England area.

Girls' softball season begins

Over 100 girls participated in the fifth annual softball evaluation session held Saturday, April 30. Aside from an occasional cartwheel, the Cohasset High School fields were full of girls practicing their batting, fielding and hitting. The result of all this has been the formation of eight Division I softball teams and two Division II teams.

Play began Tuesday evening with three games played at the high school fields and the forth at Barnes Field. Division I games will be played Tuesdays and Thursdays at either the high school fields, Barnes Field or the Deer Hill School. Division II will play at Beechwood Ballpark or the Barnes field, beginning May 19.

The Girls' Softball League would be non-existent if not for several loyal sponsors and volunteers whose support is truly appreciated. The following is a list of the coaches and sponsors who made this league possible:

Division I: Coaches Rick and Kathy Lordan and Karen Divine. Sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Welby, Refrigerated Food Express, Inc. Team 2 Coaches: Dan Cellucci and Bill Foley. Sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cellucci, Bridge-Wey Tailors. Team 3 Coaches: Deidre Dolan, Maribeth Butman and Susan Cox. Sponsors Pilgrim Co-operative Bank. Team 4 Coaches: John Smoot and Liz Bates. Sponsor, Grandpa's Girls. Team 5 Coaches: Emily Collins, Ben Redfield and Neven Bunstein. Sponsor, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stansell, Beacon Architectural Associates. Team 6 Coaches : Stephen and Priscilla Sullivan and Mike O'Connell. Sponsor, Captain Hugh J. Morgan. Team 7 Coaches: Eddie Straugh, Bill Devine and Colleen Roth. Sponsor, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Deane, Renewable Investment Co.

Team 8 Coaches: David Ronan and Jim Watts. Sponsor, Thornton, Early and Naums, Mr. and Mrs. David McMorris. Division II Coaches: Paula and Jen Knowles. Sponsor, Bonkers, Mr. Joe McLaughlin. Team 2 Grammy Collins' Girls, Mrs. Eleanor Collins.

Cubs take three in "dream week"

By Charlie Downing
Special to the Mariner

In exciting Minor League action Friday night, the Cubs notched their first win of the season over National League powerhouse Phillies, 8 to 3.

The game was close throughout as the Cubs and formidable Phillies traded single runs for a couple of innings, before the Cubs broke loose for three runs each in the third and fourth innings.

The Cubs' hit parade was led by hit-dogs Ryan Oftshun, John DeWaal and Nick Murphy. The combined pitching of Jon "K-man" Downing and Dave "Rocket Man" DeJulio cooled the hot-hitting Phillies bats. Their superb battery-mate was Jaime "The Target" Litchfield. Also contributing to the offensive explosion were Tom Stack-Babich and Scott McArthur with big hits and key runs. The victory was preserved with outstanding fielding by Mark "Glove Man" Davis at second base. Hooray and thanks to team sponsor Harold Litchfield for free ice cream after the game.

Little League

Cubs take three . . .

The Cubs completed their dream weekend with 2-1 and 9-5 victories over the talent-laden Reds. Saturday's game featured strong offensive and defensive play by Ryan Tufts, and was won in the bottom of the sixth inning when Mike "The Road Runner" Dooley scored the winning run from first on a base hit.

Little League news

The teams that are highlighted this week in Cohasset baseball are the Reds, the Tax Dodgers, the Green Hornets and the Dodgers. Don't forget to call Susan Carr at 383-0331 with your team's news. We want to hear about the great job all our Little Leaguers are doing this season.

Tickets are now available for "Dance Into Summer," our Little League Dance scheduled to take place at the Chart House Sunday, May 29, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. The fantastic live band "J.D., Billy and Ken" are guaranteed to keep you on the dance floor all night long! Tickets are $30 per couple. Please call Susan Carr at 383-0331 for more ticket information, or if you would like to donate specific items or services for the silent auction table.

Tax Dodgers compute many happy returns

By Kasey McCarthy
Special to the Mariner

Windfall profits were reaped Sunday by the Farm League's Team 8 — "The Tax Dodgers."

"Interest" accumulates weekly for the team's impressive "IRS-Internal Run Service." Power hitters Conor Holway, Caitlin O'Connell and Michael Bunstein "electronically filed" outfield singles. Inning after inning, baseball fundamentals were "publicly traded" with the consistent hitting and "profitable" base-running of contact hitters Zachary Markert, Chris Davis and Daniel McCarthy.

Prior to the game, the White House announced President Clinton's support of the team's "middle-of-the-order bat and tax cut" stance. Earning "long-term capital gains" with these efforts were Patrick Bertovitch, Peter Bunstein and Ben Bolster. The "revenue-seeking" threesome "amortized" hits with successive infield singles.

Further fortifying the "social security" of the team was the "dividend-yielding" defensive play of Tim Smith and Danielle Hajjar.

Qualifying for an unprecedented congressional game "exemption" to conduct a special Judiciary Committee tax audit of Judge Stephen Breyer was rookie Alison Krupczak.

"Calculating" on their own enthusiastic play and unyielding family support, the sportsmanlike "Tax Dodgers" proved they are "CPAs" (certified to play awesomely!). Undoubtedly, the team's bottom line paid off as fun was won by all!

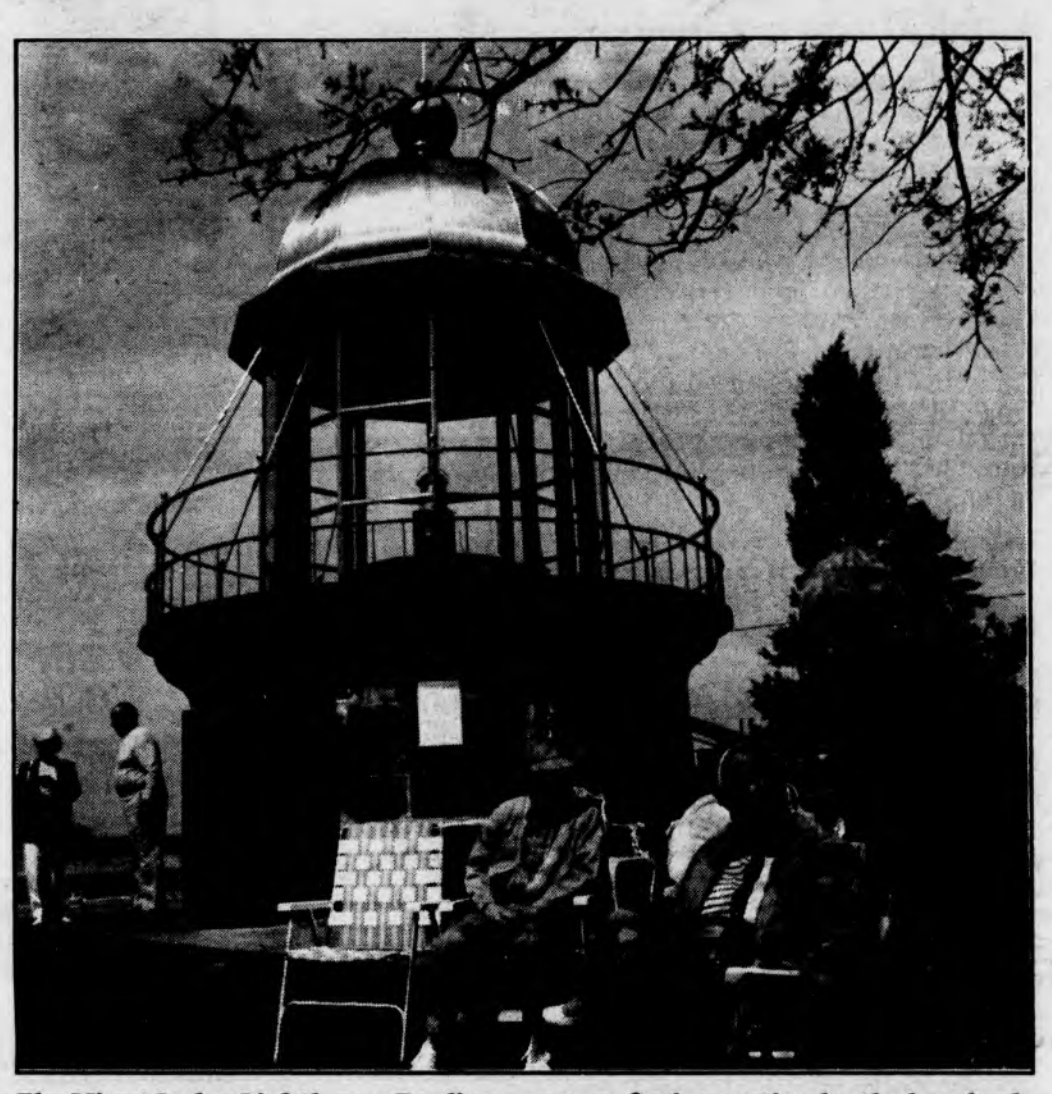
Ribbon-cutting ceremony is frosting on the cake!

Caps three years of volunteer effort by Lightkeepers group

Marion Brackett plugs her ear as someone rings the fog bell which used to hang at Minot's Ledge Lighthouse. The bell can be rung from inside the replica. Brackett's father was assistant lighthouse keeper during the early 1930s.



The Minot Ledge Lighthouse Replica was open for inspection by the hundreds of folk who came to enjoy the ribbon cutting for the Lightkeeper's residence, Sunday. Government Island which includes the Replica, Lightkeeper's House, Beacon Rock and more is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

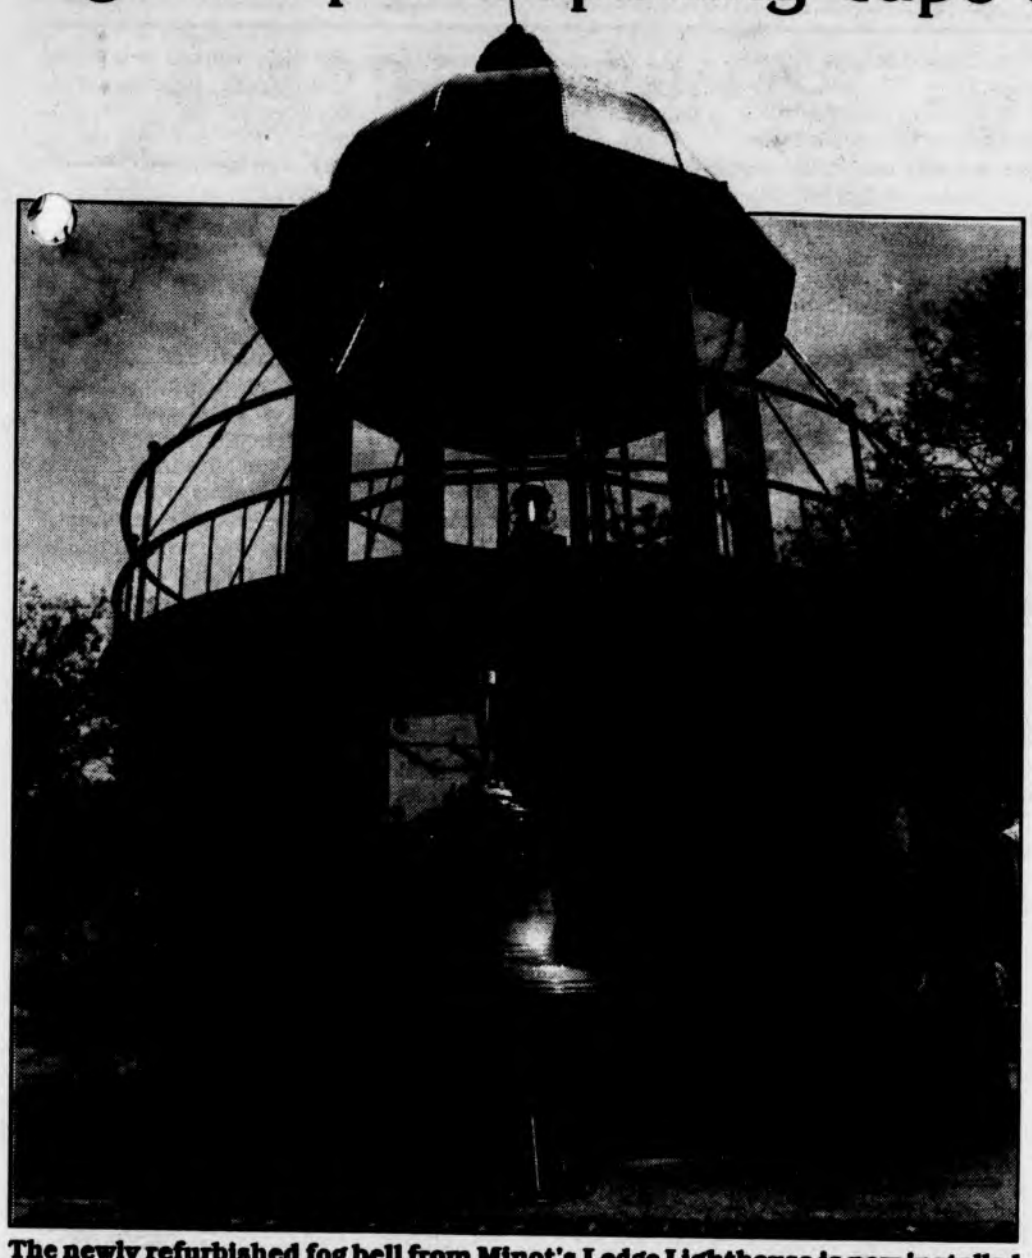
Jane Bancroft Cook cuts the ribbon held by Cohasset Lightkeepers Corp. President Joseph McElroy at Sunday's celebration officially opening the lightkeepers residence. Mrs. Cook is a benefactor of the project which was made possible by an army of volunteers.

The compass rose inlaid in the floor of Bancroft Hall drew oooo's and aaah's from Sunday's crowd numbering around 300 strong. The volunteer architect for the project is Cohasset's Richard Grinnell.

Lightkeeper's opening caps off three-year volunteer effort



The newly refurbished fog bell from Minot's Ledge Lighthouse is now installed to the side of the replica on Government Island and can be rung from the inside of the structure.

landscaping at the front of the residence, it was a time for pride.

"In all my years in Cohasset, I've never before seen the community come together and work so hard to on a project," she said. "Natives and newcomers all came together, the board of selectmen, department heads and committees.

"It is the most rewarding experience for us all to realize this dream," she said.

Upwards of 300 people attended the ceremony which included a dozen speakers, singer David Crossland who performed his original song "Minot's Light", and special guest Jane Bancroft Cook, one of the projects benefactors.

Cook said the day was especially significant because it was her 82nd birthday.

"I feel fortunate to have been born in Cohasset. I've always loved it," said Cook, noting how the townspeople have worked to make the town as nice as it is.

The brand-new Bancroft Hall glistened with chandeliers and an inlaid oak compass rose in the floor. The Cohasset Historical Society provided period costumes and an original spy glass and old photographs and several flower arrangements were still on display from the Community Garden Club's flower show held last Friday and Saturday.

Each speaker thanked those whose efforts made the official opening possible.

A special surprise was the announcement that Government Island has been named to the National Register of Historic Places. The Cohasset Historical Commission officially learned of the designation last Thursday.

The renovation project cost about $250,000 raised through private donations, fund-raising events, and loans. About $30,000 more is needed to complete the kitchen, add more exterior lighting, tree line the Edwin Young Parking Lot, and finish the picnic area.

The CLC, a non-profit corporation, leases the residence from the town for $1 a year.

The Amateur Garden Club will plant wild flowers along the the walk to the parking lot and the Cohasset Garden Club plans to landscape behind the residence.

At the start of the ceremony, state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray tried to ring 1-4-3 on the bell at the Minot's Light replica but couldn't complete the rings because unbeknown to her someone had put a stick inside the bell trapping its clapper.

Register designation for Island

The Massachusetts Historical Commission informed David Wadsworth of the Cohasset Historical Commission May 12 that the Government Island Historic District has been accepted by the National Park Service, Department of the Interior, for listing in the National Register of Historic Places.

The National Register is the nation's official list of buildings, districts, sites, structures and objects which retain their historical character and are important to local, state, or national history. The National Register was established under the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 and is administered in the state by the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

The Caleb Lothrop House on Summer Street is also on the National Register. The Cohasset Historical Commission is in the process of seeking National Register designation for the Cohasset Common Historic District, a process which takes several years to complete.

Historical Society events listed

The Cohasset Historical Society announces the following events in its summer season activities.

"Pieces from our Past"

1. An Exhibition of the society's artworks, mostly 19th and early 20th century paintings and collection items relating to the history of Cohasset as a small New England seacoast village, to be held at the South Shore Art Center Gallery, 119 Ripley Road, from June 17 through July 30. On exhibit will be some 40 items from society collections including oil and watercolor paintings, prints, selected costumes and artifacts.

"WINDOWS TO OUR PAST"

As part of the ongoing June and July exhibit of society's artworks and artifacts there will be a slide presentation featuring a number of the items in the exhibit, presented at the South Shore Art Center Wednesday, June 22.

Wine and hors d'oeuvres will be served at 6:30 p.m. to be followed by the slide presentation. Presenter will be David H. Wadsworth, society curator. Reservations for the hors d'oeuvres and slide presentation are $20 per person, payable by check to Cohasset Historical Society, 14 Summer Street, Cohasset 02025. Please return reservations by Friday, June 17.

SHIP COVE WALKING TOUR

A walking tour of Cohasset's historic harbor, once known as "Ship Cove," will be held Sunday, August 14. The tour will meet at the Society's Maritime Museum, Elm St., Cohasset Center, at 2:30 p.m. Included in the tour will be a walk along Elm St., once home of some of the town's "Deep Sea Captains," along the edge of Cohasset Harbor, active home port of 19th century fishing fleets and mercantile businesses, and a visit to Gulf or "Government Island," formerly the U.S. Lighthouse Service Shore Station Reservation for the famous offshore light at Minot's Ledge.

The society's curator will lead the tour. Admission will be free of charge.

For further information please call the Historical Society at 383-1434.

Boston Harbor guide ready

The first ever Guide to the Boston Harbor Islands is now available just in time for the opening of the season of the Boston Harbor Islands State Park.

This 14-page informative guidebook is highlighted by a map of the islands, boat schedules and a listing of island events planned for this year. Editorial sections feature fascinating historical information on the major islands in the harbor.

To receive your free copy send a 52-cent stamp to the Harbor Islands League, P.O. Box 1, Hingham, 02043, or call (617) 925-5293 for distribution locations.

The Harbor Islands League is a non-profit organization recently formed to preserve and maintain the historical features, and promote recreational uses of the Boston Harbor Islands.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT NORFOLK DIVISION DOCKET NO. 94P0953A1

Estate of VELMA LAFLAMME AKA: VELMA L. BARNES LAFLAMME late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that HELEN E. BABB of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK be appointed administratrix of said estate with surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before ten o'clock in the forenoon on June 8, 1994.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within fourteen (14) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, this twenty-fifth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-four.

Dog obedience offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for beginner and intermediate dog training classes to be taught by Laurie Cleveland. Classes are Tuesdays on Cohasset Common, beginning May 31.

Beginner classes will be from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., and intermediate/advanced classes will be from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. The fee for the eight-week program will be $44. Checks made payable to the Town of Cohasset may be brought to the first class. Participating dogs should be a minimum of three months of age.

The purpose of the beginner classes will be to teach novice pet owners basic obedience and responsible pet ownership.

Subjects to be covered are proper use of voice corrections, stay commands, getting the dog to come, heal, etc. Helpful hints on ownership and responsibility will also be included. The training will include those exercises beneficial to pet owner as well as those thinking about eventually showing their dogs in obedience.

The intermediate/advanced class is designed for dogs that have completed the recreation department beginner class.

For the classes, owners are required to have their dogs equipped with humane choke chain. The proper size of the chain is determined by measuring the dog's neck and adding four inches. Absolutely no spike collars allowed. It is strongly suggested that the handlers use comfortable shoes and clothing for this session.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791.

Car wash benefit

Appalachia Service Project is sponsoring a car wash this Saturday, May 21 at the Second Congregational Church (next to town hall on the Cohasset Common) from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Donation requested is $5 per car.

Please plan on getting your cars washed and support A.S.P. at the same time.

What's on Pierson

Thursday, May 19, Host Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person will discuss a wide range of economic, environmental, and business development planning issues.

Pierson's guests will be David C. Soule, executive director of the Metropolitan Career Planning Council; Michael Hogan, executive director, Massachusetts Office of Business Development; Douglas B. MacDonald, executive director, Massachusetts Water Resources Authority; Edward P. Kunce, deputy commissioner, Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection. In addition, a representative from the Central Artery Project has been invited to participate in the program.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8-9 p.m., from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham; on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset and Scituate.

For further information about upcoming guests and additional show information contact the Pierson Show's Executive Producer, Robert Belliveau, at 545-2500.

Annual barn sale planned

Congregation Sha'arary Shalom, 1112 Main St., is having its annual barn sale Sunday, May 29 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. (rain date is May 30). New and used items available. Food and bake table. All are welcome to attend.

Concert at First Parish

The First Parish will present the Concord Chorale in a gospel concert at 7 p.m. Saturday June 18 as part of Cohasset's Arts Festival/Harborfest celebration.

This event is particularly exciting because of the involvement in the chorale of members of the DeVaughn family who attend school in Cohasset through the Metco program. The DeVaughns, with their music minister Roscoe Mills, performed at the Deer Hill School a few years ago.

Diabetes benefit planned

A 'Family Fun Carnival' to benefit the American Diabetes Association is planned for 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Saturday, June 4 at the South Shore Community Center of Cohasset.

Events include carnival games and a dunk tank. There will be clowns, balloons and grab bags full of surprises. A buffet lunch and raffle including gift certificates for dinner, trips, and services is also on the agenda.

Volunteers to help are needed. For information or if you can help out, please call Judi Mannetho at 383-6672.

It's festival time

Debbi Hanian, Mary and Bill Earon, Penny Redfield, Olga Nohe, Tom Lucas, Debbie Flanagan, Gary Ritts, Alicia Spenlinhauer, Ryan Freeman, Allison Ulmer, Elaine Coyne, Cheryl Bugley, Polly Logan, Darlene Hubley, Robert Fraser and David Hasan, all of Cohasset, have been named committee chairs for the South Shore Art Center's 39th annual Art Festival, scheduled for June 17-19 on Cohasset Common and at 119 Ripley Road.

The three-day "Festival on the Common" weekend will feature five art exhibitions, art demonstrations and paint-alongs, a children's activity tent, more than 100 artisans and crafters, and a food court. While all 35 committee chairs have been selected, art festival coordinator Rhonda Myers of Cohasset reports there are plenty of volunteer opportunities for anyone who would like to participate. She invites volunteers to call the Art Center at 383-9548.

Festival, like the Art Center, is open to all residents of the South Shore. The three-day event is packed with creative activities, family fun, unique shopping opportunities, inspiring art, and delicious food. Volunteering enables people to participate in the festival while supporting the arts, and enjoying all the fun. Volunteers are needed to help with hanging the exhibitions, assisting in the children's activity tent, acting as guides, selling raffle tickets, and hostessing at the reception gala. Please call 383-9548 for volunteer information.

Critical chain of events gives golfer new lease on life

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

A local golfer may owe his life to a medical system that went like clockwork.

Thanks to first aid performed at the scene by his fellow golfers — followed by the emergency help from the Cohasset EMTs and paramedics from South Shore Hospital, and medical treatment in the South Shore Hospital emergency room — the 47-year old Hingham man, who was at death's door after an apparent heart attack, is back home with his family.

'He said the first thing he's going to do after a recuperation period is take a CPR course. So am I, so is the whole family.'

— wife of heart attack victim

Saturday, May 14 the Cohasset Fire Department responded to a call from the Cohasset Country Club that a man on the seventh tee needed medical attention.

"The gentleman was on the ground and his playing partners were performing CPR when we arrived," said fire Capt. Robert Silvia, adding the man had no response.

"We shocked him three times with the defibrillator

Picture perfect...

Dianne Panarelli Miller paints Cohasset's Motif #1, a building which dates back to the mid-1800s and once housed a lumber mill built by Abraham Tower. Around 1900 the site became a boat yard. A natural sluice way still runs under the building and part of the old grinding stone from a tidal grist mill that burned down in 1862 in still down there. The parcel was recently sold and the new owner reportedly wants to build a residence at the harbor-front location.

Music Circus repertoire has hot country flavor

By Suzanne Siteman
Mariner correspondent

Changes mark the debut of the South Shore Music Circus' 1994 season, with a brand new liquor license and an on-site Special Events Tent available for catered rental.

This season, which begins on July 7, beer and wine will be sold for $4 each. The expanded food and drink menu allows the Music Circus to offer a more complete evening of food, drink, and entertainment all under one roof, appealing to both the convenience and budget minded.

Vincent G. Longo, general manager of the Music Circus, is excited about the new offering.

"By expanding our food and beverage menu, we've taken another step to make sure our patrons have an enjoyable time at the Music Circus," he said.

For groups of 20 or more, the new Special Events

Speed stops catch more than heavy feet

Thirteen percent of the motor vehicle violations issued by Cohasset police since mid-January have resulted in an arrest or criminal complaint against the driver, Sgt. Robert W. Jackson said.

This year police started an aggressive campaign of stopping cars for speeding and other violations. The officer, making the stop, runs the driver's license and registration through the police computer which reports if the individual has a suspended license and if the car is insured, Jackson said.

So far this year police have issued criminal complaints or made an arrest following 32 stops for motor vehicle violations like speeding, expired stickers, or defective equipment.

Jackson noted that uninsured drivers add to the insurance costs of everyone else.

"We're not just ticketing speeders," he said. "Some of these individuals take your pocket books too."

Jackson said the car is impounded if the driver is found to be uninsured or to have a suspended license.

Memorial Day observances Monday

U.S. Navy Capt. Daniel J. Brennock is the keynote speaker for Cohasset Memorial Day observances Monday (May 30).

Brennock, who grew up in Cohasset and is currently stationed at the Navy War College in Newport, Rhode Island, will speak at Veterans' Memorial Park in Cohasset Harbor at about noon.

Dredging summit sought

Selectmen said the town will seek a summit as soon as possible with the town's state and federal legislative delegations, the Coast Guard; Army Corps of Engineers; officials from Coastal Zoning Management, a state agency; Cohasset Harbormaster, and the Scituate and Cohasset Conservation Commissions to determine what can be done about the need for dredging in Cohasset Harbor channel.

Selectman Peter J. Pratt said a fail-safe strategy is required to get money into the budget so something can be done immediately.

He said Congressman Gerry Studds' office offered to coordinate the meeting with all the agencies involved.

Both the inner and outer harbor are in critical need of dredging. The outer harbor channel has become very narrow due to silt buildup. The Army Corps of Engineers sent a survey boat to do soundings and it ran aground. The Coast Guard had to come and move the buoys last fall because they were lying on their sides. Now fishing boats are having problems getting in and out of the harbor at low tide.

Pratt noted that having the situation declared an emergency could help the town obtain funds for dredging.

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray introduced a budget amendment for $300,000 which passed the state House of Representatives to help with dredging Cohasset's inner harbor.

What's left of Cohasset's inner harbor at low tide. Selectmen have called for a summit of state, local, and federal officials to ask for help with emergency dredging of the harbor channel. State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray is seeking money from the state to help with dredging the inner harbor.

Stickers are required

Police warn that with the warm weather they are tagging vehicles at Sandy Beach that have no parking sticker. Current stickers which expire June 30 can be obtained for free at town hall. New stickers which are valid from July 1, 1994 through June 30, 1995 will be sold starting June 13.

New appointment made

Selectmen appointed Police Officer Jeffrey Treanor to the town Drug and Alcohol Committee to replace Sgt. Robert W. Jackson who is stepping down after three years.

The board thanked Jackson for his three-year commitment.

Bill payments okay'ed

Selectmen authorized payment of the following bills at their board meeting Monday: $6,158.59 to the legal firm Warner & Stackpole for professional services concerning Cohasset Heights Landfill for March; $3,455.05 to Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson for services provided the town in April; and $1,420.54 to Tutela Engineering Associates for sewer plant services.

Hagerty openings noted

Selectmen said they would make appointments to the Hagerty Committee at their next board meeting a week from Monday. There are three, possibly four, openings on the board which is trying to determine the best recreational use for the two-acre harbor-front parcel.

and he was able regain sinus rhythm and then normal rhythm," Silvia recalled.

Silvia said EMTs continued providing medical attention in the ambulance and met the Advanced Life Support (ALS) paramedics from South Shore Hospital at the corner of Hull and East Streets in Hingham. The paramedics evaluated the man who had by then regained consciousness and was able to give pertinent medical information.

The ambulance transported him to the emergency room at South Shore where he was stabilized and moved upstairs, Silvia said.

Four days later, the father of three was transferred to Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston where he was released May 21.

"This is the way the system is supposed to work," Silvia said.

"CPR was performed which is the first step in any of this.

"We arrived with the defibrillator and were able to convert a "fibrillating' heart to regular rhythm. The paramedics administered drugs and the emergency room stabilized the patient."

"It worked exactly as it works on paper," Silvia said.

Cohasset's ambulance has had a defibrillator for about three years, Silvia said.

In addition to Silvia, Cohasset EMTs Frank Mahoney, Lenny Davis and Fire Fighter Bill Protulis also responded to the scene.

The man's wife, who asked that their names not be used, credited the quick action by all involved with her saving her husband's life.

"It's amazing," she said. "He's going to be fine.

"He said the first thing he's going to do after a recuperation period is take a CPR course," she said. "So am I, so is the whole family."

the police department up to a full complement of officers enabling police to direct more attention to traffic problems. Money collected from traffic tickets goes to the town treasurer's office to be deposited into the town's general fund and does not go directly to the police department.

The primary contributing factor to automobile accidents is speeding, police said. A recent traffic study determined that many drivers aren't obeying the speed limits in town which prompted police to step up enforcement efforts targeting areas of high traffic and high speeds.

Memorial Day observances Monday

Brennock live on Oak Street, is a 1969 Cohasset High School graduate and graduate of the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps (NROTC) program at Illinois Institute of Technology.

The annual Memorial Day parade steps off from the South Shore Music Circus parking lot at 10:30 a.m. and will proceed down Sohier Street to North Main Street, to Central Cemetery, then to Cohasset Common and then to Veterans' Memorial Park.

Cohasset Memorial Day Parade and exercises are sponsored by the George H. Mealy American Legion Post #118 and the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #9163.

All veterans are invited to participate and should report to the Legion Hall, 98 Summer Street, at 8 a.m. At 8:15 a.m., the contingent will march to the Paul Pratt Memorial Library to board buses to visit cemeteries for veterans' grave-side services.

The Memorial Day schedule is as follows: report at Post headquarters by 8:15 a.m.; North Cohasset Cemetery, 8:45 a.m.; North Cohasset Honor Roll, 9 a.m.; Woodside Cemetery, 9:30 a.m.; Beechwood Cemetery, 9:45 a.m.; Music Circus parking lot assembly, 10:30 a.m.; Central Cemetery, 11 a.m.; Cohasset Common, 11:30 a.m.; Veteran's Memorial Park, noon.

The line of March for the parade is: band, Legion and other veterans, band, Girl Scouts, Brownies, Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts.

Chiefs meet on trains

Fire chiefs throughout Norfolk and Plymouth Counties continue to meet at regular intervals to discuss concerns dealing with the possible return of the trains, Fire Chief Roger W. Lincoln said. Railroad restoration, both commuter and freight, presents the possibility of public safety and environmental incidents; a future meeting with M.B.T.A. officials will address these concerns, he said.

June blood drive

From 2 to 7 p.m., Tuesday June 7, the American Red Cross will conduct a blood drive at the Unitarian Church, 23 N. Main St. The blood drive is open to the public. For more information call, Betty Fernandes (617) 770-2600.

Plans for tennis courts served up

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Construction of new tennis courts at the high school could begin this summer.

This week selectmen authorized $5,000 to cover consulting costs for a civil engineer to help with the plans. The money will come out of the amount to be raised through a debt exclusion override which was approved by voters May 14.

R. Gary Vanderweil told selectmen he needs a structural engineer's advice on some of the technical details involved regarding retaining walls, drainage, and to help establish the extent of ledge that may need to be removed.

The four high school courts will be razed and new ones built adjacent to those at Milliken Field. The current high school courts must be removed to make room for the new track and game field. Work on the new field should begin next spring.

The highway department will use a back hoe to dig and see how much ledge is there. If ledge is found, the town may opt to build the new courts at a higher elevation on top of the ledge giving the group of courts a terraced effect.

Selectmen named Vanderweil, Highway Supt. Harold Litchfield, Tree & Park Supt. Peter Laugelle, and a tennis representative to the building committee for the tennis courts. Anyone with tennis expertise can apply to selectmen for the tennis representative's spot.

Plans for the $750,000 project include $80,000 for the tennis courts, Vanderweil said.

Open burning ends

Fire Chief Roger W. Lincoln noted the open burning season ended May 1, "leaving behind many responses due to complaints, and one busy day when it was necessary to request the services of the Norwell Fire Department," he said.

ACO car repairs costly

Selectmen will recommend a transfer of nearly $600 to cover the cost of repairs to the animal control officer's car. The money will also cover installation of a two-way radio in the car. Apparently the repairs were not budgeted for in the ACO's FY'94 budget.

Ambulance rate hiked

The town will charge about three percent more for ambulance service to keep up with Medicare Approved Rates.

The increase will give the town about $3,000 more annually in additional revenue.

The basic transport fee goes up $5.88 from $195.89 to $201.77, Fire Chief Roger W. Lincoln said.

The town must boost rates to receive maximum Medicare reimbursement, selectmen said.

Photocopier is kaput

At the request of the water department, selectmen declared the photocopier in that department surplus this week.

The copier has been inoperable for three months and the cost of repairs is outweighing the value of the copier based on its age and the cost for parts, according to the water department.

Evergreen tree possible

Robert V. Davenport has offered to donate a large-sized, live evergreen tree to the town to be planted on the Town Common about where the temporary tree was placed for the holidays last December.

Selectmen will look into having electricity installed underground to the base of the tree so it can be aesthetically lit for the holidays. Last Christmas the temporary tree titled slightly and had to be held up with guy wires which many townspeople found unsightly. Orange electrical wire was also run from a nearby outlet.

Selectmen will ask what the cost of installing the underground electrical wire will be and may ask the public for donations to pay for it.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

HOME OFFICE DEDUCTION

QUESTION: I understand there are restrictions on taking a home office as a tax deduction. Could you explain?

ANSWER: No longer will the IRS allow you to drop a briefcase on a table and deduct the entire room as a home office deduction. Now, the "office" must be used EXCLUSIVELY for business. Also, expenses cannot exceed earned income from the business.

If the office fulfills these parameters, the amount deductible will depend on the office area in relation to the rest of the house. If it is 10% of the house area, you can deduct this percentage of the house's light, heat, repairs, depreciation, taxes, etc.

Music Circus repertoire has hot country flavor

Will movie star Julia Roberts accompany her husband hot Country-Western singer Lyle Lovett to the Music Circus for his July 9 performance? It depends if they're speaking to each other, sources say. Tickets to see Lovett and dozens of other performers to appear at the Music Circus throughout the summer go on sale Saturday. Call 383-9860 for more information.

Tent is available for private receptions or parties before performances, or children's birthday celebrations following the children's shows on Thursday mornings. The tent comfortably holds up to 75 people, and any number of food and beverage catering options are available, including full barbecue, appetizers, or a cash bar.

"The Special Events Tent is great for people who want to celebrate a birthday before a concert, and really make an evening out of it, or for corporations looking to host a special event in an intimate and private setting," Monica Neville, director of public relations, explains.

The tent is available for rent at a flat fee, with varying prices for catering and the option of alcoholic drinks for purchase. Children's parties can include pizza, ice-cream, cake and autograph sessions with the mornings performers.

A broad spectrum of comedic and musical talent has always distinguished the offerings at the Music Circus. In response to the still-growing popularity of country-western music, this year's programming includes up and coming and world-famous country-western stars like Tanya Tucker, Patty Loveless, Emmylou Harris, Willie Nelson and Lyle Lovett. Returning favorites include the Temptations and Bill Cosby, and comedienne Paula Poundstone and a "Royalty of Rock 'n Roll" show highlight the schedule.

The Music Circus continues to position itself as a unique offering in the competitive entertainment industry, providing the kind of intimate performance setting where audience members are never more than 50 feet away from the stage.

The box office opens this Saturday, May 28, at 10 a.m., with phone lines open at 9 a.m. The season will run from July 7 through Sept. 2, and new shows are still being added. Call 383-9850 for general and rental information and ticket purchase.

The Music Circus and its sister theater, the Cape Cod Melody Tent in Hyannis, are owned by South Shore Playhouse Associates, Inc., a non-profit corporation which provides grants to support local arts and education programs.

Scholarship is established

The South Shore Playhouse Associates, Inc., the not-for-profit group that owns and operates The South Shore Music Circus, has announced that it has established an annual scholarship program. This scholarship opportunity is being offered to all student summer employees of The South Shore Music Circus. The first scholarship in the amount of $1,500 will be awarded in September.

The recipient of this very special award will have displayed the following characteristics throughout the summer season at The South Shore Music Circus:

1. Excellent work record, including attendance, punctuality and job performance.
2. Eagerness to learn.
3. Demonstrated leadership qualities.
4. Outstanding degree of effort applied to perform his/her job to the satisfaction of his/her supervisors and managers.
5. Works well with co-workers and easily takes direction from supervisors.

Any students who are interested in this extraordinary opportunity must apply as soon as they begin work at The South Shore Music Circus and they must work at least eight consecutive weeks. The scholarship award will be remitted directly to the winner's educational institution.

Eligible student employees will be judged by a committee made up of the management staff of The South Shore Music Circus. The objective of this scholarship is in keeping with the philosophy of the South Shore Playhouse Associates, Inc. who have been active in and attentive to the community for the past 46 years and whose proceeds are donated to other not-for-profit organizations that support education and the arts throughout the South Shore of Massachusetts and Cape Cod.

Mopar FIVE-STAR CUSTOMER CARE

Talks on control systems at CHL continue

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

Representatives of Cohasset Heights Landfill, Inc. discussed ongoing problems with the landfill's storm water and sedimentation control systems during a public hearing with the conservation commission Tuesday.

Problems with the systems were the basis, in large part, of a notice of violation issued by the conservation commission to landfill owners in April.

Storm water and sedimentation control systems are important because they offer protection to surrounding wetlands when designed properly.

In preparation for the public hearing, the town requested that its engineering consultant, Camp, Dresser & McKee of Cambridge, perform a review of Cohasset Heights' submittal on improved sedimentation control at the landfill. The commission invited Bruce Haskell, an engineer with CDM, to report his findings.

Haskell submitted a written report to the commission outlining his findings. Specifically, the report noted that drainage swales running along the access road to sedimentation pond number one are insufficient to accommodate the peak discharge from the 'upgradient' discharge areas.

Secondly, Haskell's report indicated that the total area of silt impacts appears to be larger in several areas than reported by CHL. CDM also questioned CHL's assertion that siltation has not had significant impact on wildlife habitat.

Finally, with regard to the proposed redirection of storm water from sedimentation pond number one to a different wetland system, CDM feels that although this is an improvement, it remains unclear if further siltation will occur at a new spot and impact other wetlands.

CHL was represented at the hearing by Attorney Antone Moehrke and various engineering consultants from SITEC Engineering.

Moehrke spent much of the meeting attempting to pin the commission down on exactly what standard it expects the landfill owners to meet with regard to sedimentation.

"What is the standard we are playing by? Is it concern about any sediment leaving the site or is it concern only for sediment leaving the site which has an adverse impact on the wetlands?" he asked.

Notre Dame Academy has announced the honor roll for the third marking period of this year, and Cohasset students shine! Julie Catalano was on the Principal's list, Danielle Nohe earned first honors, and second honors went to Michelle Boyle, Jennifer Cellucci, and Julie Smith achieved second honors.

You are all excellent, keep up your good work!!

Question: Did you receive your annual plea from the Sandy Beach Association? They really need us this year, after the horrible winter that we had (and lived through, yeah!). They are really looking for your support to maintain what is one of the finest beaches in the area. As you may or may not know, the parking sticker has nothing to do with the maintenance of the beach, they need $$$ to restore the winter storms!

President Paul Corbett says that the contributions each year vary between 15 and 17 percent, very low considering the number of us who use the beach!! Help to make it beautiful again this year, send your donation to the Sandy Beach Association, P.O. Box 285, Cohasset 02025-0285.

The opening day is June 15, just be sure you support it!

Two names from "the past" that were here two weeks ago, Andy Wood and Carol Gates. Former CHS grads that now live out of town, they both looked super! We hope that they come back more often, they are loved around town.

There is a reason for the huge smile that dons Leo Fiori's face these days, he is a grandfather again!

April 27, at 7:07, weighing in at a hefty nine pounds, enter D. Richard (Derick) Danielson. He is the son of Christina (Fiori) and John Danielson, and the brother of Lea Danielson (who welcomes him with open arms). His paternal grandparents, Richard and Kay Danielson, live in Florida (Homosassa), we bet they will be spending lots of time here now (and, vice-versa, the Danielsons will undoubtedly spend time in Florida next winter), we sure wish you all the best. What a great time of year to have a baby. Congratulations!

Yes! It is spring. And, here comes the Music Circus with a banner schedule (under the fine direction of Vince Longo). As we say every year, South Shore Music Circus is a harbinger of spring, and this Saturday is the day to get all of your tickets. The box office is open, everything is rolling, it will be great. Be sure to get your tickets early, there will be many sell-outs!

Oh, how wonderful, another birth to announce! Please welcome to our town Warren David Hill, who was born May 9 at 10:23 a.m. and weighed 8 lbs., 11 ozs. Warren lives on Beechwood Street, and there will have to be a double carriage for those long walks, as he joins Lindsay Marie Hill, his big sister.

We won't have to tell you how happy and proud mom and dad, Brenda and David are. Welcome Warren when you see him "around town."

Hope Caston, a junior at the Holderness School in Plymouth, New Hampshire, has qualified for the school's winter term honor roll.

Hope also participated in an on-campus jobs programs, and took part in Out Back, a two-week Outward Bound-style winter excursion into the White Mountains. She has been elected a floor leader in her dormitory for the next year, and in sports was a member of an alpine skiing team that won a league title and helped lift Holderness to its fifth consecutive New England comined skiing championship.

Hope is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Gaston III of Cohasset.

It is with great pleasure that we tell you the news about Kevin O'Donnell, a student at Cohasset High School who has had an entry in the Seventh Annual Art All-State Festival during the weekend (May 27 and 28). He is one of 140 students to be nominated, what an honor!! We surely hope that Kevin will let us know the results of all of his hard work. Win, loose or draw you are a winner in our eyes, your talent is overwhelming. We wish you the best of luck for all of your efforts.

Hey, to all of you seniors (and partners) make this prom a happy and safe one, this is a celebration of all of your successful years, you deserve a wonderful night! God Bless!!

One more beautiful baby boy to greet in Cohasset, his name is Adam Joseph Martin Bailey, and he is the son of Dennis and Carolyn Bailey. We cannot wait to meet Adam, thank heaven it is spring so we will see him in a stroller somewhere around town.

If your car looks like the rest, think of the Second Congregational Church car wash, which is coming up on May 28 (also June 4).

There was a great event last week, Dennis Kuntz was honored for his retirement. Tons of people were there, he was so loved and so well thought of ... a super teacher and friend to the children. Scituate Country Club never saw a better time, love was everywhere. So is Dennis, give him a hug when you see him, and thank him for all that he did for your child.

Dennis, we will miss you as a teacher, but never as a friend.

Hats off to the Arts Boosters Club, which hosted the Annual CHS Arts Recognition night last week. It is so nice to see artists being acknowledged, they are super. We have always envied talent, and they are loaded with it. Keep it going, you are a group of talented people, and we are so grateful and proud of you. Joel, Maureen, Tom, Marcia, Bryan, Tom, Laureen and Jo-Ellen. We cannot believe the great work you do.

obituaries

William Ripley Jr.

William Ripley Jr., 91, of Cohasset, former superintendent of Cohasset schools and an educator in the town for 42 years, died May 13 in South Shore Hospital, South Weymouth, after suffering a stroke.

Mr. Ripley was a pioneer with the Metco organization, making Cohasset among the first of suburban school systems to educate minority students from Boston.

He started teaching in 1926 after receiving a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Brown University. He taught chemistry, biology, science, algebra, commercial geography and civics and coached football and baseball for many years.

He attended summer classes at Harvard University, to earn a master's degree in education in 1943.

Mr. Ripley was named high school principal and superintendent of schools in 1942, and continued as superintendent when the jobs were separated in 1955.

A new high school, a high school addition, the Deer Hill School and an addition to the Osgood School were built during his tenure.

Cohasset Rotary Club gave Mr. Ripley its first Paul Harris Fellowship in 1985. A member for 40 years, he served on the scholarship committee.

He was a member of the Massachusetts State Guard during World War II, a member of First Parish in Cohasset and a founder of the Old Goats Club whose members had lunch together several times a month.

Mr. Ripley enjoyed hunting for ducks and other game in Maine; he liked gardening and growing vegetables.Born in Hingham, where he graduated from high school in 1922. Mr. Ripley moved to Cohasset in 1945. He lived in the Cardigan Nursing Home, Greenbush, for five years.

He was a member of Kappa Sigma at Brown and a member of several educational associations.

The husband of the late Alice L. (Gay) Ripley, he leaves two sons, William Ripley III, of Colorado and Robert G. Ripley of Cohasset; a sister, Alice Ripley Quinn of Providence, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

A memorial service was held May 19 in First Parish Unitarian-Universalist Church. Burial was at the E.P. Ripley family plot in Hingham Center Cemetery. Arrangements were made by the Downing Funeral Home of Hingham.

Donations may be made to the William Ripley Jr. Memorial Fund in cooperation with Cohasset public schools at Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, 48 South Main St., Cohasset 02025-1887.

engagements

Igo/Lutz

Mr. Paul Francis Igo of Cohasset announces the engagement of his daughter, Donna Marie Igo to David Scott Lutz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Lee Lutz of Virginia Beach, Va. She is the daughter of the late Katherine E. Igo and the granddaughter of Mrs. Anne Signorelli.

The bride-to-be graduated from Cohasset High School and Norwich University with a bachelor of science in communications. She works for Genzyme Corporation as the manager of customer service.

Her fiancé holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va. and a masters degree in business administration from Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Va. He works for ICE Information Technology Inc. as an associate.

A December wedding is planned.

editorial

Fifty years ago

Fifty years ago, this nation was at war.

Fifty years ago, Americans fought along side men and women from 32 other countries — allied together against clearly defined forces of evil and tyranny.

Fifty years ago, those who stayed behind to fight the battle on the home front had no doubts about the rightness of our cause and had no hesitance about rising to the occasion.

Everyone, from our industrial leaders, to our mothers and sisters — who overnight became a battalion of "Rosie the riveters," — everyone committed themselves to a world they knew was worth saving; to values they knew were worth preserving.

Fifty years ago, Americans fought and won that war. And when our men and women came home to rejoin those who had fought the war with them, they were hailed as heroes — not fighting for empire or treasure, but fighting for freedom against what was wrong, and for what was right.

The wrong was Hitler and the Blitzkrieg, his maniacal war of expansion. The wrongs were the concentration camps and the willful extermination of millions of human beings. The wrongs were the attacks on Pearl Harbor, the death marches in the Phillippines, and the enslavement of defenseless nations.

The right, was a free world's belief in the human spirit and liberty, and the just plain down home concept of human decency.

There is an American tradition, and it comes out of the farm country of the south, and the open spaces of the far west, out of the cities of the east, and the factory towns of the midwest, and that is the tradition of standing up for human decency. That's what World War II was all about. That is its legacy, and as we commemorate the 50th Anniversary of that war and its victory, I hope all Americans will rededicate themselves to learning from the lessons of that fateful conflict and reaffirm the values of human decency.

In the next two years, Hillary, Tipper, Al and I, hope to join all of you in playing a part in the commemorative events marking the 50th Anniversary of World War II. I've asked the Secretary of Defense to coordinate the events of the 50th Anniversary, and I urge all veteran, government, civic, business and social organizations to join together in demonstrating that a grateful nation remembers.

They who stood their ground before us have guaranteed us a right to enjoy being part of the land of the free. It is both appropriate and necessary that we remember and thank them.

— President Bill Clinton

letters

(Ed's note: The following letter was sent to selectmen.)

Selectmen:

Friday, May 13, U. S. Coast Guard Aids to Navigation Team Boston received a report that Minot's Light was extinguished. The crew made an attempt to get underway but needed to return to Boston due to rough seas. Being a 14-mile run from the Coast Guard Base, it was too rough of a ride in a 21' open boat. I spoke to the Cohasset Harbormaster about the problem and before I could even ask for assistance Mr. Kelly offered to transport the technicians and gear to the light. Mr. Kelly transported the technicians and stood by for over three hours while the light was being repaired.

Through his actions and willingness to assist Aids to Navigation Team Boston, Minot's Light was relit to serve the mariner and also in time for the Keepers Quarters Ceremony.

Mr. Kelly has always been a gentleman and acts professionally when dealing with the Aids to Navigation Team. He is certainly a fine representative of the town of Cohasset and a pleasure to deal with. I look forward to working with Mr. Kelly for many years in the future. Again, I appreciate the assistance by the town of Cohasset and especially by Harbormaster Shawn Kelly.

Landfill legal expenses justified

To the Editor:

Recently, the Advisory Committee has held up payment of legal bills of about $17,000 incurred by Warner & Stackpole for legal work related to Cohasset Heights Ltd. (CHL) landfill, after the bill had been approved by the Board of Health and Selectmen.

The Advisory Committee has raised proper and legitimate questions regarding the need for these bills to be better itemized and about the need for the town to properly budget these types of costs rather than depleting the reserve fund. I hope these concerns are appropriately addressed.

However, it appears that some people are now questioning the justification in the first place for incurring legal or engineering costs on matters relating to CHL. Apparently, some town officials are suggesting that we make a choice between paying for legal costs to enforce existing regulations affecting CHL or to incur costs to fight the proposed expansion.

I hope we can all agree that the Town of Cohasset needs to pay both whatever costs are necessary and appropriate to bring CHL in compliance with existing regulations and to fight the proposed expansion. There isn't much at stake here — just the protection of our environment, quality of life, and the future of the Town of Cohasset.

Are these expenses justified? Certainly. If the Board of Health and Conservation Commission can enforce their regulations on individual homeowners, they also must enforce their regulations against CHL. Without appropriate legal and engineering consulting services, these two town boards will be powerless to protect the town and to do their job.

Also, we must consider that whatever these legal costs total on an annual basis, they are at least partially offset by the "tipping fees" — about $70,000 in 1993 — that the town collects from CHL every year. So, CHL is actually helping pay for the town expenses to regulate the landfill.

These legal costs are just the "cost of doing business" for the Town of Cohasset, which has the responsibility to enforce its regulations and to protect public health, safety, and the environment.

Abutters express concerns over new fields

(Ed.'s note: The following letter was in the selectmen's correspondence packet this week.)

Dear Members of the Study Committee:

Congratulations on your successful override election. The children of Cohasset should, without doubt, have upgraded athletic facilities.

As an abutter to the project, we feel it is appropriate at this time to voice some concerns.

1. Having lived in Cohasset for 22 years, we are very much aware of how seemingly insignificant changes can dramatically affect drainage conditions. We are aware of your plans to have drainage provisions under the field and applaud your intent. However, we can't emphasize enough that if our property develops a water problem because of this project, we will have no recourse but to hold the Town responsible to correct the problem.

In this same vein, the stream that runs along the edge of our property (wetland) and runs under Pond St. is constantly subjected to dumping of old tires by passing cars, grass clippings from school lawn mowing, etc. If this stream is clogged from dumping as well as having an overflow of runoff from the new field, once again we face having a flooded yard.

2. Use of night lighting and loudspeakers is also an issue of concern. We are not so much worried about the occasional Friday night school-sponsored football game or athletic event as we are about increasingly expanded usage by various town sports leagues and loosely supervised organizations or individuals. We sincerely hope that there will be tight restrictions on the hours and days that lighting/speakers are permitted.

The Grand Tour — with Ginger Ferenz, 383-2863

A simple spray of forsythia is just the right touch on the Naughton's front door at 174 Linden Drive. The linen beige of the home with its black shutters and cream-colored trim is a pleasing combination making this home a lovely addition to the neighborhood.

Volunteer knitters wanted

Cohasset resident Ginger Ferenz is looking for knitters to knit woolen hats to be donated to the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans in Boston.

Ferenz has two hat patterns that she will provide for the project.

Volunteers may call her at 383-2863 and pick up the pattern and yarn at her Windy Hill Road home. If knitters have extra yarn at home, they are welcome to knit the hats from their own supplies. Once the hats are completed, Ferenz will drop them off at the shelter.

The Prime-Plus-1% Home Equity Line
No Fees
Many home equity lines offer a low "teaser" rate for the first year or so. The problem is, they switch you to a higher rate down the road. Usually about 1.5% over the prime rate.
But with a Prime-Plus-1% Home Equity Line from Quincy Savings, you can count on a competitive variable rate: just 1% over prime for the life of the loan. And since there are no fees, it couldn't be any easier to get started.

Reception for volunteers

The Board of Trustees of the Paul Paul Pratt Library, the library staff and the Friends of the Library will all gather this evening (May 26) for a festive reception to honor the many library volunteers. The volunteers will be thanked for their hours of dedicated service and presented with a gift and certificate of appreciation.

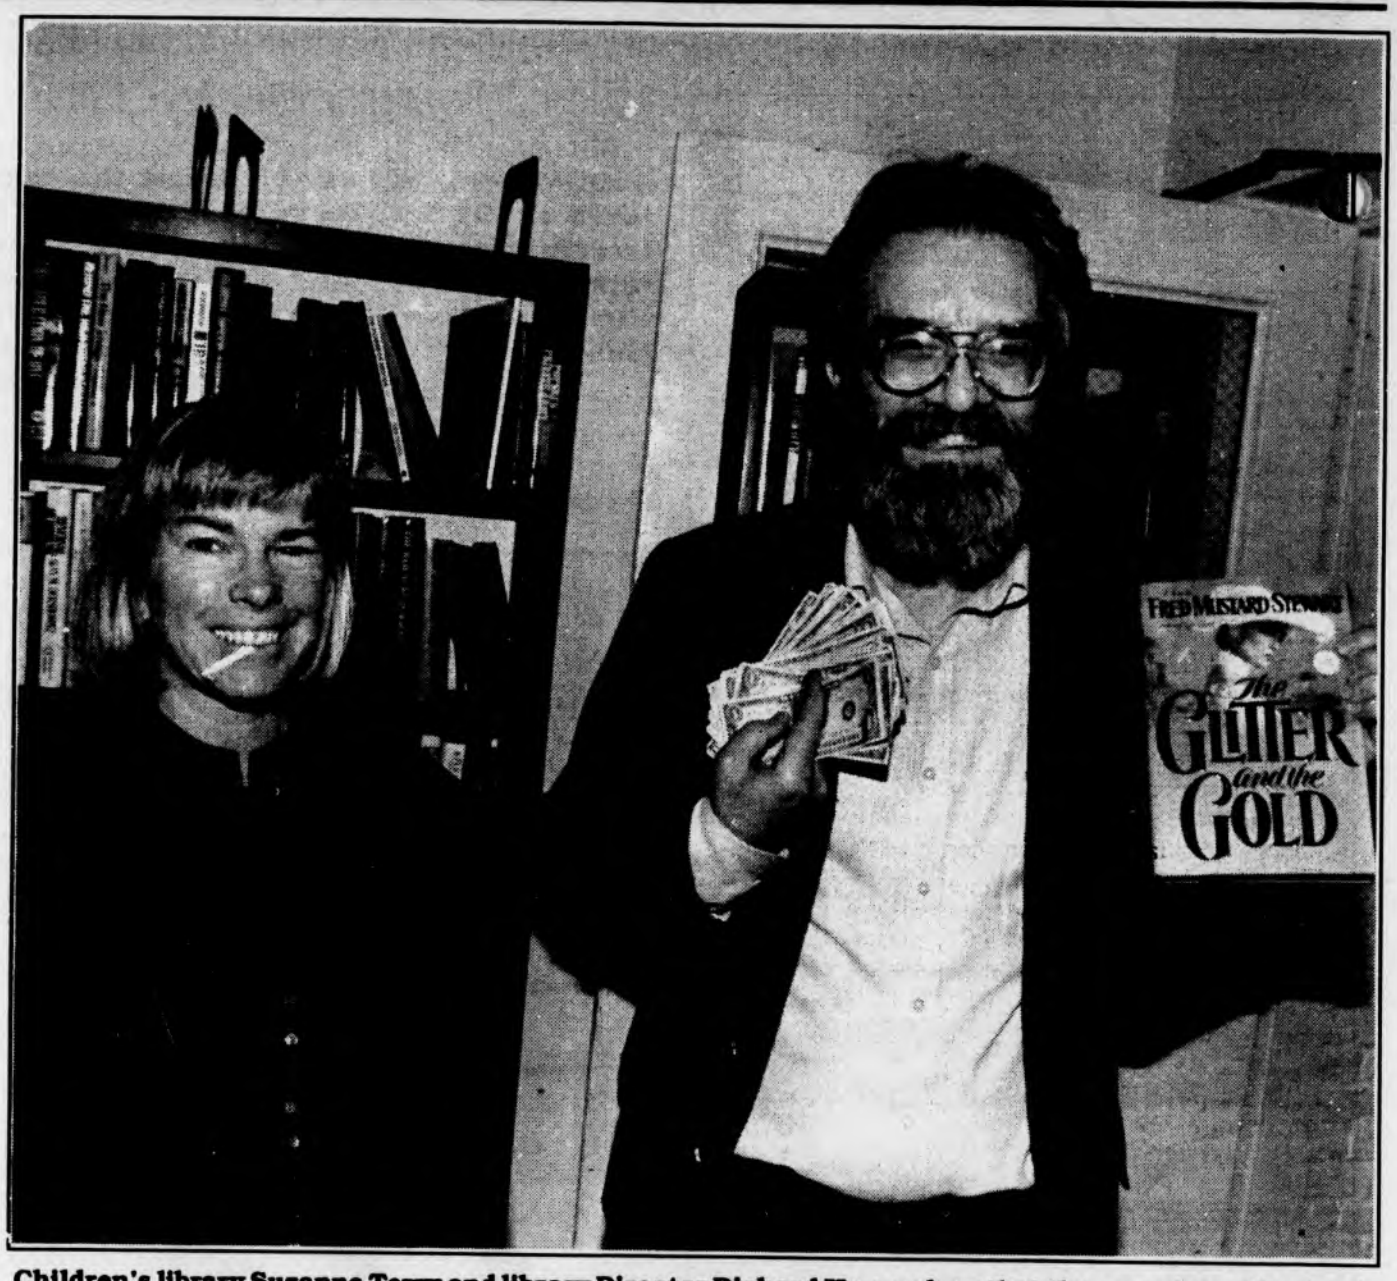
Friends of the Library to present author

P. Carey Reid, author of the moving novel Swimming in the Starry River, will read from his book June 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the Paul Pratt Library. The reading is free and open to the public. When not writing, Reid teaches at Northeastern University. His poems and stories have been widely published in small presses and literary magazines. This is his first novel. The author will be available to sign books courtesy of Buttonwood Book Store.

Gardening Collection

The lobby book display currently features a wonderful collection of books on gardening and flower arranging. Find inspiration from books on English gardens, gardens-by-the sea, famous gardens and gardens of the famous. These beautiful books could give you that extra impetus to get out and get gardening.



Children's library Suzanne Terry and library Director Richard Hayes show that the recent used book sale at the library went well. The annual fund-raiser is sponsored by the Friends of the Paul Pratt Library. (Staff photo/J. Paul MacDonald)

Open house at gallery

There will be an open house at The Artist's Son Gallery in Jonathan Livingston Square, Rte. 3A from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday June 4 and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday June 5. Refreshments will be served.

During the month of June artisans will demonstrate their crafts. A variety of artisans from the area include a woodcrafter and clockmaker, basketmaker, Native American artist, metalcraft jeweler, batik artist, beaded jewelry artisan and fabric artist. Also on display are had woven oriental rugs and antiques.

The gallery is interested in adding to the current group of artisans. Anyone wishing to present work for consideration should call Judy at 383-1841 for an appointment.

The gallery has been serving the art and framing needs of area residents for nine years; and it is a good place for these artisans to display their work.

Ensemble auditions held

Auditions for South Shore Conservatory's Summer Wind Ensemble program which runs from July 5 through August 5 have begun and will continue until June 4.

Summer Wind Ensemble, or SWE, is a three to five-week summer camp for wind and percussion students grades seven through 12.

Full wind ensemble, chamber groups, musicianship classes, jazz improvisation, movement, masterclass and sectional rehearsals with professional instrumental coaches and jazz ensemble are all part of the daily curriculum. During breaks, students are encouraged to utilize the pool and other recreational facilities available.

Interested students should call 749-7565 for information.

Library network access

Home and business computers may now dial access the Old Colony Library Network catalog, which lists 1.7 million items owned by 24 member libraries.

A brochure available in the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, Cohasset, and other libraries explains how to set up an account for dial access. The account, available on NYNEX "Infopath", is the least expensive way to offer personal computer access to this database.

The OCLN database lists books, magazines, and audiovisual materials; indicates whether an item is available; and permits the searcher to place a hold on the first available copy. Requested books are transferred between libraries by daily delivery system provided by the Eastern Massachusetts Regional Library System, a state-funded program.

The 24 public libraries in the Old Colony Library Network include most of the libraries in the region between Milton, Plymouth and Walpole. Since the Network went online a couple of years ago, it has registered more than 250,000 users.

LIBRARY HOURS

Summer hours are now in effect at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. Closed Sunday and Wednesday. Open Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Respect is diversity topic

By Diana N. Kinch
Special to the Mariner

At the annual spring meeting of the Cohasset PSO last Wednesday, May 18, speaker Norm Bossio burst onto the scene with humor, irreverence and sincerity to address the issue of respect. As he unmercifully pounced from one unsuspecting member of the audience to another in order that they participate in his role playing, he showed us that there is no particular formula for instilling respect. It has to be part of the immediate environment in which our children grow.

Since we are the mirrors into which our children look, the support systems to whom they first come, the reflection should be a positive, unconditional one. The support system may as well be us, he added.

Mr. Bossio, who has been an educator in the role of superintendent, principal, and teacher, spoke to us also as a parent of three sons. He had no magic formulas to convey. Since we're all human, he stressed how we're bound to do this "parenting thing" wrong sometimes. Using humor and wit, he emphasized the importance of letting our children see us laugh and enjoy one another.

And when our children see us include the kid who is overweight or unpopular, they'll begin to accept. When we take time to re-explain something to the child or adult who has a learning disability, they'll begin to accept and respect differences.

The next time our child jumps on the sofa with dirty cleats, maybe we'll explain why that's not OK with us, instead of screaming it. Then, we may begin to be heard.

(Speaking of respecting differences, the next meeting of The Diversity Committee will be held June 20, 1 p.m., at the home of Susan Etkind, 88 Nichols Road. Anyone interested, please attend or call Susan at 383-6602.)

Program change notice

Originally scheduled for June 1, The Cohasset Council on Aging Financial and Legal Lecture Series will begin Wednesday, June 22.

Duncan Maceachern, director of Long Term Care in Taunton, will be the first speaker in this ongoing series.

He will discuss the finances of nursing home placement; how a home is affected, how assets are determined and what is done to financially protect a spouse who remains in the community.

The second program will be held Wednesday, July 6. Jack Conroy, a local attorney and CPA, will discuss estate planning. These lectures are free and begin at 10 a.m. For more information or to be put on the mailing list for this series call 383-9112.

Also, watch for news of up-coming All-Star Baseball Brunch in late July.

FOOD STAMP FACTS

Everyone knows that it is hard to make ends meet on a fixed income. If you are living on a fixed income and your bills are high, you could benefit from receiving food stamps, the food stamp program is set up so that everyone who is eligible can receive food stamps.

How much you will receive depends on your monthly income and living expenses such as rent or mortgage, utilities and medical bills. Many elders do get more than $10 in food stamps each month. You can own a home, a car, and have up to $3,000 in the bank and still get food stamps. You can get Social Security and/or SSI and food stamps. If your only income is from SSI and you live alone (or with others with whom you do not share food) then you are automatically eligible for food stamps. You do not have to pay for food stamps. For more information call 1-800-645-8333.

COHASSET FOOD PANTRY

Through a dedicated group of volunteers, a food pantry is operated at the Second Congregational Church Parish Hall each Tuesday from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and 7 to 8:30 p.m. For more information call Margie Steele, 383-0345.

Abutters express concerns over new fields

3. We fully expect that the new field will be enclosed by a tall fence and surrounded by a mature evergreen hedge, as promised. We do not wish to be unwilling spectators (visual, audio, or otherwise) to events at the field, nor do we want lights shining in our windows at night. We also don't want to find ourselves restricted from opening our windows in the good weather because of the prohibitive noise level.

4. Loitering in the high school parking lot at night in the good weather has often been a problem, and it will undoubtedly get worse with the new facilities. It is hoped that the police will address this issue along with the increased traffic created by these events. Also, we do not wish to have our driveway blocked nor our lawn parked on by people attending games.

It has been an observation by many that the existing tennis courts have not been well maintained. What provisions have been made for the new facility? (When asked the question previously, someone on the committee responded that there would be a sprinkler system. This is all well and good, out one would suspect you are going to have a considerable amount of litter and other maintenance issues.) Just living next door to the school we pick up more than our share of discarded items on our property. We are concerned about the amount of extra debris created by having this new facility. We do not wish to spend any more time than we do now picking up trash disposed of in our yard.

We know from personal experience (i.e., $32,000 septic system) how quickly appropriated funds can be used, particularly in a strictly regulated town. We feel it is very likely that the cost of the project will run substantially over the amount allocated. If this is, in fact, the case, what parts of the project will be delayed or eliminated? We do not want to see a delay on any of the above (proper drainage, fence, mature hedge, maintenance, etc.) due to lack of funding.

As we mentioned before, although we are pleased to see the town modernizing its sports facilities, we do not want it done at our expense. We have worked very hard and invested a lot of money in our property, and we will not be able to sit back and see our property value affected adversely without taking whatever action necessary to prevent it. It is hoped that sufficient care will be put into the planning stages to prevent bigger and more expensive problems as time goes on. Hopefully, we will end up with the new facility that you have envisioned and one that we can all be happy to have in the neighborhood.

Greenbush railroad line opposed

(Ed's Note: A copy of the following letter was sent to the Mariner for publication.)

Dear Governor Weld:

I am writing to you regarding the Greenbush railroad line, and hope you will be attending the June 15 meeting at the Chart House, that you have been invited to.

Many of us on the South Shore are strongly against this diesel train, for tax, environmental and safety reasons. We feel bus and boat alternatives would meet the needs of more commuters, and the general public, than the diesel train will.

An estimated 70 people from Cohasset are projected to use this train, while the rest of the 7,500 people in my small hometown will be paying, through our pockets, our childrens' lives and with our wonderful conservation land.

I strongly feel that a modernized bus system, with more park and ride stations, and an improved commuter boat system, will meet the needs of many more commuters, and also take more of the general population off the roads.

Movable ramp available

The Cohasset Commission on Disabilities has donated a movable ramp to the town. It is stored at the fire station for use by any resident. Inquiries about the ramp can be directed to the commission at the town hall or the fire department.

Talks on control systems at CHL continue

Rod Gaskell, an engineer with SITEC, suggested that wetland protection is not about preventing impacts but rather on preventing impacts that affect the value of wetlands as set out in state statutes. He cited such things as flood protection and wildlife habitats as functions to be protected.

Commission Chairman Jeff Waal seemed to suggest that Gaskell was accurate in that the commission's concern was for preventing sedimentation that resulted in adverse impacts on the wetlands.

Haskell of CDM conceded it would be virtually impossible for an operation such as the landfill to prevent all sedimentation or siltation from occurring at the site.

According to Gaskell of SITEC, the area of impacted wetlands is less than 10,000 square feet. Waal stressed the commission's desire tor restore this area.

"I'm in favor of restoring the affected area. Even if we fix that, we still have to solve the underlying problems," Waal said.

Moehrke, after consulting with the landfill owner and engineering specialists, proposed that CHL be giving a short time to review the findings of CDM and to prepare a new proposal to satisfy the concerns raised. The specific concerns to be addressed are: the the size of the swales, the design and size of the sedimentation ponds, the management and maintenance of the storm water retention system, and the restoration of the affected wetlands.

"We believe we can work with the board in some way relative to restoration and a fix to the problem," Moehrke said. He asked Waal for permission to allow the landfill's engineering representatives to speak directly with the town's engineers in order to address some of these concerns.

Waal refused permission at this point based upon Moehrke's refusal to agree on whose responsibility it would be to pay for the town's engineering consultants.

"I think that as long as we are paying for the town's engineering people, it casts a cloud over the whole operation up there," CHL owner Paul Barry said.

Unless some agreement can be reached, all correspondence between the landfill's engineers and the town's engineers will be through letters and proposals to the conservation commission.

Engineers from SITEC will submit new proposals and modification plans by June 14 to all commission members. The proposals will then be addressed further at the commission's meeting at 8 p.m., July 5.

Waal also said that the board of health and the conservation commission have formed a joint committee that will meet June 1 at town hall. The joint board will discuss concerns about groundwater and surface water quality at the landfill site.

Brunch for Rep. Murray

The fund-raiser brunch for Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Third Plymouth District) will be from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Sunday June 12 at the South Shore Country Club.

Rep. Murray is seeking re-election to the state House of Representatives where she is ranking member on the committees on counties, ethics and local affairs.

Stage dancing approved

Selectmen amended the entertainment license held by the South Shore Music Circus to include live dancing on stage for Sammy Kaye Orchestra performance, August 24. According to General Manger Vincent Longo, the artist requested audience participation.

"This is a one-time occurrence and our current license does not include live dancing on stage," he said.

Festival spot gets nod

Selectmen will allow the Appalachian work group, made up of 24 adults and 60 students, sponsored by the Second Congregational Church to use the area immediately in front of the town hall auditorium steps for a fund-raiser during the Festival on the Common next month. The fund-raiser will include face painting, button making, and selling T-shirts to raise money for the group's week in the central Appalachians.

To My Valued Customers:
As you know, strict anti-smoking laws will take affect in Hingham on July 1, 1994. This action and the concerns of most public health officials regarding second-hand smoke, has prompted my decision to make Abbadessa's "smoke-free". Since Abbadessa's has always been your local "family restaurant, I feel this is the appropriate step to take in the interest of YOU, our valued customer, your children and the employees of Abbadessa's Restaurant. So, as of June 1, 1994, Abbadessa's will be smoke-free (except for burning pizza's!). Thank you for your understanding and continued patronage.
Sincerely,
Jim Wells

Country estate benefit

South Shore and Cape residents are invited to "Lion's Head Farm", country estate of Eleanor Gleason Bleakie, 135 Border St., North Scituate, for a cocktail reception to benefit Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts Sunday, June 12, from 5 to 7 p.m.

Among those assisting co-chairmen Eleanor Bleakie and Polly Logan are:

From Hingham: Mrs. Alan G. Carr, Mrs. William Collins, Mrs. Brooks Robbins, Mrs. Humphrey Swift, Mrs. Janet Vanderweil.

From Norwell: Mrs. Robert Littlehale, Jr..

From Duxbury: Mrs. Robert Lamere.

From Cohasset: Mrs. A. Werk Cook, Mrs. Null Doughtery, Mrs. Wendell Ford, Mrs. Peter Goedecke, Mrs. Edward Guild, Mrs. John F. Harshorne, Mrs. Muriel Kasdon, Mrs. Benjamin H. Lacy, Mrs. Donald J. Larson, Mrs. Edwin Lincoln, Mrs. Craig D. Muir, Mrs. Douglas R. Peck, Mrs. George Rabstejnek, Mrs. Robert G. Ralston, Mrs. Raymond A. Remick, Mrs. John Rousseau, Mrs. James Sandell, Mrs. Henry G. Simonds, Mrs. Raimund G. Vanderweil, Mrs. Samuel W. Wakeman and Mrs. James W. Wallace of Cohasset and Cambridge.

The Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts is a statewide, non-profit social service, health education and medical service organization whose continuous history dates back to 1928. Mrs. Bleakie added that her mother, Mrs. Hollis Gleason, was an early pioneer in PPLM.

Reservations may be made with committee members, Eleanor Bleakie 545-1637, Polly Logan 383-0031 or 492-0518.

Sunset dance cruise sails

There is no need to drive into Boston to board a concert cruise that will navigate past the harbor islands, the U.S.S. Constitution, the Boston Harbor Hotel, and the glittering night lights of downtown Boston's skyscrapers.

This year's "Helping Hand" fundraiser aboard the privately chartered 197' Provincetown II will depart from Pemberton Pier in Hull and will feature three live bands on three separate decks during the 9 p.m. to midnight voyage.

The main deck will showcase "The Swingin' Johnsons" playing oldies that every husband will surely want to dance to, even if he hasn't danced in years.

"The Susan Tedeschi Band," fronted by three women on vocals, lead guitar and harmonica, will set the second deck on fire with their hot blues.

The intimate romantic cabaret deck will have "Frank Shooshan and his Friends" set the mood for the rest of the evening with cool jazz.

The boat can accommodate 1,000, guests so have your own private party on board with friends, neighbors, relatives, work associates, club or organization members on this very casual evening of relaxation and socialization.

Profits from the cruise will provide scholarship aid to two deserving seniors for their continued community service activities, enhance education at the Osgood, Deer Hill and junior/senior high school, and benefit projects and organizations engaged in social well-being throughout the town.

Tickets may be purchased for $25 per person at the Community Center, the Community Center Nursery School, the Second Congregational Church, from Rose Collins at the girl's softball league, from Grace Evans at the Scituate/Cohasset Newcomer's Club, at Milliken Field during Saturday soccer games and at the Little League dance.

"Seaside Cafe" at COA

The Council on Aging is hosting a seaside cafe during the three-day Harborfest June 17, 18 and 19 at the senior center, 3 North Main St. Sandwiches, drinks, brownies and cookies will be served.

Money raised will go to the Friends of the Council on Aging.

Art festival planned

Artisans and crafters from around the country are reserving spots on Cohasset Common for the South Shore Art Center's 39th Art Festival. Part of Festival on the Common, Art Festival is the oldest, longest-running art festival in New England. Scheduled for June 17 through 19, the festival includes five art exhibitions, art demonstrations and paint-alongs, a children's activity tent and a delicious food court.

More than 100 crafters will participate in the artisans market.

Art Festival will be joined by a strawberry festival hosted by the Second Congregational Church and the Cohasset Harborfest which includes weekend-long entertainment, a pancake breakfast, blessing of the fleet, a parade and a chowderfest.

This year's event will also feature the unveiling of "Colors of Cohasset," an outdoor mural painted on the expanse between the art center and Pat's Barber Shop. The community mural project, sponsored by the art center in collaboration with the Cohasset PSO and the Arts Boosters, funded in part by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, is being designed by mural artist Heidi Schork with the help of students from Cohasset High School.

For information on participating in the festival call the art center at 383-9548.

Festival for children too

A mardi gras party will be held under the Children's Creativity Tent at Festival on the Common from 3 to 5 p.m. Friday June 17. KidsFest Carnivale is just one of many free activities the South Shore Art Center has planned for children during the three-day event scheduled June 17 through 19 on Cohasset Common. Talbots is sponsoring the children's tent for the weekend.

While children under five must be accompanied by an adult, parents may leave older children at the tent for creative exploration while they peruse the fine art exhibitions and artisans market. KidsFest also includes free drinks and snacks donated by Ocean Spray, L.Knife and Peggy Lawton.

The children's tent will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday June 18 and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday June 19. Children may drop in to participate in a variety of art projects for which Stop & Shop is providing many supplies. Sunday, Father's Day, children can get framed for their dads from 1 to 3 p.m. After posing for a Polaroid snapshot, children will decorate the mat frame for the photo.

Allison Ulmer, Elaine Coyne and Cheryl Bugley, all of Cohasset, are chairmen of the Children's Creativity Tent. Although all Children's Creativity Tent activities are free, donations are welcome at the festival's entrances.

For information call 383-9548.

Camps are limited in size. To insure acceptance into a camp, register as soon as possible.

Family discounts are available for all camps.

RECREATION COMMISSION YEAR-ROUND SERVICES

The Recreation Department conducts children, youth and adult programs and events on a year-round basis. Special after school recreation programs, for children ages four through grade 6, are conducted in three seven week sessions. (Fall-Winter-Spring). Information regarding recreation activities appears in all local news media, fliers home from school, school menus and on cable T.V. local listings. You may call the office daily at 383-6791 for information on all services.

MUSIC CIRCUS REGISTRATIONS

The Music Circus registrations will be open to children in the playground programs. Children in all the programs will go to the 10:30 a.m. show. We will be attending the pe:formances Thursdays at a group rate. Registrations must be made two weeks prior to the show date as indicated below. No late registrations can be accepted. Payments must be made at the Recreation office, Thursdays between 9 a.m. and noon, or between 5 and 7 p.m. in the evening on the dates indicated in the column below.

Show Date	Performance	Cost	P y m t Date
July 7	Sleeping Beauty	$5	June 23

August 4	Cinderella	$5	July 21
August 11	Little Red Riding Hood	$5	July 28
August 18	Beauty & the Beast	$5	August 4

The Music Circus is optional, regular playground program activities will continue for those who do not attend. On rain days please see Ted regarding pick-up and drop-off routines. Programs are subject to change by S.S.M.C.

BAND CONCERTS

During the past four seasons, concert funding has been provided through the generosity of the South Shore Playhouse Associates, Inc. Each June the Board of Directors of the South Shore Music Circus take under consideration the request of the Recreation Commission for concert funding, hence, certainty of concerts are not absolute until mid-June, each season.

Based upon continued SSMC funding, the schedule for the 1994 season is as follows:

Saturday, June 18, TBA; Tuesday, July 19, 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday, August 2, 7:30 p.m.; and Tuesday, August 15, 7:30 p.m.

Performing will be the 30 piece South Shore Concert Band under the direction of Mr. Richard P. Whitmarsh.

Concerts are held on the Cohasset Common, are free of charge and the public is cordially invited. It is a good idea to bring either lawn chairs or blankets to sit on, and from time to time, insect repellant is a good item to have available.

OUTDOOR GOLF LESSONS

The Cohasset Recreation Department will sponsor golf lessons for beginner and intermediate levels, continuously throughout the summer.

The fee for the five week program will be $60 per person, payable by check, to the "Town of Cohasset." Participants will need a couple of irons, putter and driver for lessons. If you do not have access to clubs, please indicate this at the time of registration.

Classes will be held for the most part Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Classes will not meet if weather is inclement, and if you should be in doubt on any given evenings if classes will be held, you may call the Recreation office to confirm.

If you would like more information on the golf lessons, call the Recreation office at 383-6791. Sessions are five weeks and are conducted outdoors from June through September.

DOG OBEDIENCE CLASSES

The Cohasset Recreation Department will continuously, throughout the summer, offer dog obedience classes taught by Mrs. Laurie Cleveland. Classes will be held Tuesday evenings on the Cohasset Common.

For both the beginner class and the intermediate/advanced class, dog owners are required to ave their dogs equipped with a humane choke chain. The proper size is determined by measuring the dog's neck and adding 4". Absolutely no spike collars.

The beginner class will teach basic obedience and responsible ownership to novice pet owners. Helpful hints on ownership, voice directions, basic commands and exercise beneficial to those thinking about eventually showing their dog, will be included.

The intermediate/advanced class is designed for dogs that have completed the Recreation Department beginner class. For all classes the fee is $44 for the eight week, one hour per week program.

To register for the next session available call the Recreation office at 383-6791. A new session will begin approximately every eight weeks. Classes are limited in size and participants will be accepted on a first call, first enrolled basis. Classes meet on a year round basis, indoors during the fall and winter months.

AEROBICS

Step training classes, various level step training programs, taught by Ms. Normandie Nigh of Fit for Success meet at Town Hall Auditorium. Should you be interested in beginner or advanced step aerobics, call the Recreation office at 383-6791 for details. Classes currently meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 5 to 6:15 p.m. and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 7:45 p.m.

YOUTH TENNIS

Youth tennis will begin Tuesday, July 5 and continue for seven weeks through August 19. Youth tennis registrations will be held starting Monday, June 20 and continue throughout that week, as follows: Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to noon and again 1 to 3 p.m. and Thursday evening, from 5 to 7 p.m. The program is offered for children aged 7 through 18 years of age. The program is designed on a Monday/Wednesday or Tuesday/Thursday schedule. The fee for one seven week session of instruction, two days a week, is $35. $10 discounts are available for additional children in a family.

Lessons for beginners, intermediates, and advanced players are offered. Friday's are special clinic or tournament days. If it rains before 9 a.m., all tennis classes will be cancelled for that day.

NELTA TOURNAMENT

The Nelta Tournament will be held Friday, August 5. More information will be forthcoming through the tennis classes. Registration for this event will be done through the youth tennis classes.

If interested register through the Recreation department office the week of June 20 at the designated times and days listed above. Classes will begin Tuesday, July 5.

ADULT TENNIS

The Recreation Department will offer tennis classes for beginner and intermediate tennis players throughout the summer on various evenings. The classes are one hour long and a session is five weeks. New sessions will begin approximately every five weeks.

Beginner classes meet Tuesday evenings from 6 to 7 p.m. and the intermediate classes will meet from 7 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays. Advanced (tournament level instruction) classes meet Thursday evenings from 6 to 7 p.m., and advanced beginner will meet from 7 to 8 p.m. Thursdays. Classes will be limited in size. Additional classes will be formed should demand dictate. All classes will meet at the Recreation Commission tennis courts at the top of Norfolk Road, next to Miliken Field.

To register, call the Recreation Department office at 383-6791. The fee for the five-week program is $45 per person. Payable by check to the "Town of Cohasset." Each participant will need a racquet. Classes do not meet if weather is inclement, and should you be in doubt, due to weather conditions, call the Recreation office prior to class time.

PARKING PERMITS: SANDY BEACH/ GOVERNMENT ISLAND/PARKER AVE.

Permits may be obtained at the Recreation Office, first floor, Town Hall. Permits are valid from July 1, 1994 to June 30, 1995.

DATES AND TIMES OF ISSUANCE

Monday, June 13 through Saturday, July 16, excluding Saturday, July 2 and Monday, July 4.

Mondays through Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday evenings, 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.; Fridays, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Saturday, 9 a.m. to noon.

Monday, July 18 through Friday, August 26. Monday, Wednesday, Friday only, 10 a.m. to noon.

You will need: Registration of vehicle(s). If not a Massachusetts registration, proof of residency (tax bill or rental lease). Check payable to "Town of Cohasset" (while cash is accepted, checks are preferred).

Permits are issued to vehicles of residents. Each permit is $7. Seniors, 60 years of age and over, will be charged $3 per permit if vehicle is registered in senior's name. All replacement permits will be $2 each.

Non-transferability: each permit issued will, for vehicle owners, have your plate number printed on the sticker. Should you required a new permit, due to a change in plate number, please bring back the original sticker, and you will be issued a new permit for $2.

Period of Grace: beginning May 1 of each year, you will be issued at no charge, a permit for the remainder of the current season. This permit will expire on June 30, by which time you must obtain a new permit, at the established rate:

Any questions regarding parking permits should be directed to the Recreation Department office, first floor, new wing, Town Hall or call 383-6791.

Laxmen prep for state tournament in prime shape

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Save for the absence of last spring's 50-goal scorer Chris Goodman, the Cohasset High lacrosse team couldn't be in much better position than it is now when the postseason tournament gets underway this Friday or Saturday.

The Skippers, who capped off the regular-season schedule with a 10-0 win over Xaverian on Friday, to finish at 11-2, will know for sure who they'll be playing in the first round on Thursday. The seeding meeting was scheduled for May 25 at the Newton Fire Station.

Depending on how the rest of the state's teams fare in their remaining games, Cohasset head coach Ken Ekberg said there could be between 13-19 qualifiers.

Enrollment-wise, the Skippers will undoubtedly be the smallest school in the tournament. That, however, doesn't necessarily mean summer vacation will start earlier for them than a bigger school.

"I'd really like to come up with a win," Ekberg said. "We're playing as well as we can. We'll certainly show up."

Xaverian was wishing the Skippers didn't show up and spoil its weekend by leaving them shell-shocked on their home field.

Cohasset played its best all-around game of the season, blitzing the overmatched Xaverian squad with strong midfield play, consistent offense around their goal and a defensive curtain led by Dave Leahy and goaltender Brandon DeVoe.

With Goodman out, the Skippers have done the job in stepping up their offense and receiving key contributions from different players all season, although Ekberg views the loss of Goodman as a big blow to this year's team.

"It's hard to give up a 50-goal kid," Ekberg said.

With Goodman on the sidelines, Chris Adams emerged as Cohasset's most productive offensive player. Adams finished with 61 points on the season to lead the Skippers in that department, and was complemented by just about every player on the roster at one point or another.

The balanced scoring was apparent all spring and Friday's game was no different. Five different Cohasset players blasted home goals, despite a relatively quiet game by Adams.

Ben Redfield led the Skippers with four goals and an assist, while Dave Leahy and Brett MacQuarrie added a

"I am not a role model."
-Charles Barkley, NBA player.

Charles has it right. Athletes, at all levels, are far from perfect.

This was illustrated last week in two incidents on the South Shore.

*At Norwell High, 25 students, including a number of quality athletes, received suspensions after acts of vandalism late Wednesday night resulted in $2,000 of damage at the school.

Some of the antics included egg-throwing and breaking windows. The student-athletes had to miss one varsity game for punishment.

*And at Hingham High, a food fight on Friday, the last day for seniors, led to the suspension of several varsity athletes from playing in games that day.

In the overall scheme of things, these two incidents are very small potatoes.

In fact, when the statue of limitations expires on some of my anti-social behavior, I might admit to participating in a food fight or two and throwing some eggs at things other than a frying pan.

However, athletes are in the spotlight more than regular people. And they are sometimes put under an unfair microscope.

Tennis player Jennifer Capriatti is a perfect example of this.

She was busted for possession of marijuana last week in Florida.

Her mug shot was splashed all over the front page of every newspaper and she was labelled an out-of-control drug addict.

This was totally blown out of proportion because she was held to a higher standard because she is a famous athlete.

You could turn to the police blotter section of this very newspaper and find at least a half-dozen more serious offenses than Capriatti's.

Yet those people do not have their mug shots plastered all over the place.

The point is, athletes excel on the field and should be praised for this only.

When they screw up, it is no more important than if some unknown person does.

One more thing. What's the deal with Capriatti's nose ring? Yuck.

Is it just me or is Channel 4 sportscaster Scott Wahle starting to sound more and more like Big Brother Bob Lobel during his five minutes of air time. Wahle's voice inflections were almost identical to Lobel's during Saturday night's news while he recapped the Bulls-Knicks playoff game.

Whether the similarity in delivery is coincidental or intentional on Wahle's part, doesn't really matter. He provided the news to us with confidence (which he already had) and enthusiasm (which appeared to be lacking in some of his previous newscasts).

And if imitation is the best form of flattery, it's a win-win situation for Lobel and Wahle. Along with Bob Neumeier, Channel 4 has the best all-around sports telecast in the Boston television market, pair of goals apiece. Charlie Endris and Chris McKenna each had single tallies to round out the lopsided victory.

The play of DeVoe will go a long way in determining the degree of success Cohasset has in this year's tourney. DeVoe registered his first shutout of the season against Xaverian and has been solid all season in goal. At 6-foot-5, he is also tough to handle when he comes out of the goal to get the Skippers' fast break started.

Ekberg believes having a hot goaltender heading into the tourney is definitely on Cohasset's side. "A hot goaltender can make a big difference in the tournament," he said.

What was especially encouraging about Cohasset's whitewash of Xaverian was that the team broke its disturbing habit of falling behind early before rallying back.

The complete opposite was true.

The Skippers found the back of the net twice within the first five minutes of the game and never let up until the final whistle.

Cohasset worked mainly on its transitional game during Tuesday's practice and brushed up on the different offenses Ekberg implemented this season.

A tournament visit is just one more step in Cohasset's attempt to further strengthen its program. Ekberg said the JV team had a fine season and played a strong game in its 9-8, overtime win over Xaverian's JV team. Taylor Devin provided the winning goal, blasting one past the goaltender, early in the first overtime period.

Bike-a-thon set for AIDS victims

By Dave McKee
Mariner staff

Pedaling For a Purpose, a spring bike-a-thon to benefit the HIV/AIDS Pen-Pal Program will be held Saturday, June 11 at 9:30 a.m. the Wompatuck State Park in Hingham.

The bike-a-thon offers three courses, a three mile ride through the park, a five mile ride through the park and a 25 mile ride through Hingham, Norwell, Scituate and Cohasset.

The registration fee is $10 per adult and $5 per child.

The bike-a-thon will be held rain or shine and all participants must wear helmets.

Bikers are also encouraged to collect sponsors.

Those who collect $100 in pledges will have their names appear in the special Pen-Pal notebooks given to those in the program.

Those raising $75, will receive a receipt for tax deduction purposes.

The bike-a-thon and the HIV/Pen-Pal program is the creation of Parents and Kids Together, Inc., a non-profit organization formed in '92 to create awareness and increase communication between parents and kids concerning the most relevant issues today such as HIV/AIDS, world hunger, the changing family, ecology, self-esteem and more.

The funds raised at the bike-a-thon will go towards the HIV/AIDS Pen-Pal program where kids with HIV/AIDS and their siblings are matched up with a non-HIV/AIDS kid as a pen-pal.

Both receive notebooks especially developed for the program in which they can write and keep their letters.

The pen-pals live in different states and the program requires a communication commitment from both groups of pen-pals and from their parents.

Those who participate in the bike-a-thon are simply raising funds for the pen-pal program.

They are not making a commitment to join the pen-pal program unless they chose to.

Hingham's Janis Siegel and Barbara McCarthy are part of the Parents and Kids Together group and say the bike-a-thon will be fun for all.

"This should be fun for everyone from kids to experienced adult riders," McCarthy said. "And this is for a very important cause. HIV/AIDS is a very important issue these days and this pen-pal program makes children aware. It also helps out those children who have HIV/AIDS. Having a pen-pal to write to and share things will only help them through a difficult situation."

The HIV/AIDS Pen-Pal program is nation-wide program which started in '92. The program is active in states such as Arizona, Florida, New York and Maryland and has been recognized by the National Institute of Health.

Currently the pen-pal program has more than 50 youngsters writing letters and it is looking to expand. The bike-a-thon is the first of many fund-raising events planned.

It is estimated to cost $50 to start and maintain a pen-pal relationship.

There are several thousands children who suffer from HIV/AIDS in the United States, according to Parents and Kids Together organizers.

As much as I enjoy covering high school sports on the South Shore, I must admit it is extremely frustrating not being able to contact every coach on a weekly basis.

I realize most of the coaches are also teachers and their schedules are pretty full. And although I don't have set hours, so to speak, I have a problem with a coach telling me the best time to get in touch with him is on a Sunday night at 8:30 P.M.

I've gone over several ways in which I could get in touch with the most coaches on a weekly basis, or vice versa. Sunday is the best day of the week to do one-on-one, feature interviews, so I may not be home during the day. And if it is a sunny day with temperatures in the 70s, it really doesn't make much sense trying to get in touch with coaches during the day.

Starting May 31, I'll have a schedule set aside solely for calling coaches or for them to call me.

Coaches Clip-and-Save

Monday — 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Tuesday — 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Wednesday — 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Friday — 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.
Sunday — 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. (843-2937)

In order to get results and articles written by deadline, I must talk to the Hanover coaches no later than 10 a.m. on Tuesdays; Abington and Rockland, no later than 12 p.m. on Tuesday, and Wednesday by 10 a.m. for the Cohasset coaches.

With the tournaments beginning soon, I'll be leaving a little early for the games, but I can be reached at the Braintree office on Sunday nights for those tourney games I won't be able to cover because of the inevitable scheduling conflicts that come when so many local teams qualify for the postseason.

The only thing better than last weekend's weather was watching Patrick Ewing and the New York Knicks eliminate the three-time world champions, Chicago Bulls from the N.B.A. playoffs.

Oh, did I say I was happy the Bulls were eliminated? I meant Scottie Pippen. The Bulls' "All-Star" was an embarrassment to his team and head coach Phil Jackson. First there was his self-centered decision to take himself out of Game 5 Jackson decided to go with Toni Kukoc on the final shot with just 1.8 seconds remaining.

Then the tainted prima dona gave Ewing a cheap shot in the Bulls' Game 6 win following a dunk. And if that wasn't enough, flat nose arrogantly motioned for film director Spike Lee to sit down in his seat as he cheered on the Knicks.

It's only fitting that in the end, Ewing, Kukoc, Lee and, of course, the Knicks had the last laugh. Pippen dropped by the wayside as a national audience watched. Many of them had to feel warm all over.

Cohasset Little League

Mix of players spur Hornets

By Kevin Lewis
Special to the Mariner

The "Good Sport Green Hornets" are coached by Dan Leahy, Kevin Lewis and a host of volunteer parents. This year's team has a sprinkling of veterans and rookies. The team has played two exciting games thus far this season.

Defensively, veterans Crandon Leahy and Mark Lewis continue to excel in the field and at the plate. Matthew Baroudi continues to swing a big bat with numerous hits. Other offensive stars include William McCarthy, John Roth, Tyler Goodman, Noah Wilcox, Tessa Leahy, Kevin Lewis, Michael Corry, Ian Maslin, Christian Manchester, Michelle Lemaire, Kathleen and Courtney Hurley.

The team features several family combinations: Crandon and Tessa Leahy, Kathleen and Courtney Hurley, and Mark and Kevin Lewis.

The coaching staff believes the Green Hornets will be a force to be reckoned with all season long!

Purple People Eaters pound out 25 hits

Offense was the name of the game for The Purple People Eaters of the Cohasset Farm League. Saturday, May 7, they pounded out more than 25 hits with Ashley Faber, Jake Kovach, Daniel Maitland and Brian Pratt doing some real damage with their bats. The middle of the line-up provided plenty of power with "Red Hot Bats" Zach Etkind; Bobby "Don't call me Robbie" Meikleham; Thomas "Mo" Morgan; Chris "Cody" Morgan; Patrick "Big Hit" O'Brien; Brent "The Bruiser" Daly and Cecilia "Hit For The Cycle" Chapman seemed to be on base all game long.

The Purple People Eaters have a potent offense and plenty of speed on the bases. Key players such as Becca Lehr, Kevin Roach, Christen Reardon and Patrick Kelly have all shown tremendous bat control and great speed when running the base paths.

Overall this team appears to be one of the teams to beat in the Cohasset Farm League. They are going to be hard to stop!

'Flame Thrower' shrinks Giants

By Patty Smith
Special to the Mariner

The Cohasset Reds went storming into the weekend with an undefeated record. Friday night's 9-2 win over the Giants included an 11 strike-out pitching effort by Reed "The Flame Thrower" Smith, with long hits by catcher Mike "The Fireman" Rasmussen, Brian Bilton, Justin "The Hustler" Goodman and that dynamite first baseman, Mike "Surestop" Geddes. Not even the dog that ran away with Paul Cotter's hat could slow them down.

Saturday's 2-1 loss to the Cubs was a close one with fine batting from the unstoppable Kavon Tehranian and Michael "The Hitter" Hajjar. The highlight of Sunday's make-up game with the Cubs was Paul Cotter's unbelievable unassisted double play, along with fine catching by Mark Donovan. When not on the injured reserve list, Leah and Sarah McMorris are proving to be fine fielders.

LL Highlights

The teams highlighted in Cohasset baseball this week are The Reds, The Green Hornets, The Dodgers, The Mets and The Purple People Eaters.

Please call Susan Carr at 383-0331 with your team's news. We want to hear all about those great plays our Cohasset Little Leaguers are making each week on the fields.

Don't forget the Little League dance is scheduled to take place this Sunday, May 29, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the Chart House. "Dance into Summer" with the fantastic live band "J.D., Billy and Ken!" Tickets are $30 per couple. Dress is festive. Please call Susan Carr at 383-0331 with any items or services that you would like to donate for the silent auction table.

Little League dance set for May 29

Dance into summer with "J.D. Billy and Ken," the live band that keeps drawing record crowds to benefit our baseball program, is here once again in Cohasset. This year the Chart House has been generous enough to donate its beautiful function room overlooking Cohasset Harbor for this special event.

The dance will take place on the Sunday of Memorial Day weekend, May 29, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Dress is festive. This year people also have the option of dining at the Chart House before the dance. Reservations should be made well in advance. People can also just come directly to the dance. Tickets are $30 per couple and will be available in advance, as well as at the door.

Anyone who is interested in donating silent auction items or services please call Susan Carr at 383-0331.

Remember, you don't have to have a Little Leaguer to attend the dance. The proceeds benefit our Little League program, but the dance is open to anyone who enjoys a fun evening out.

Dog obedience classes

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for Beginner and Intermediate Dog Training Classes to be taught by Mrs. Laurie Cleveland. Classes will be held Tuesday evenings on Cohasset Common beginning Tuesday, May 31.

Beginner classes will be from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., and intermediate/advanced classes will be from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Both levels of instruction are Tuesday evenings. The fee for the eight-week program is $44. Checks made payable to the Town of Cohasset may be brought to the first class. Participating dogs should be a minimum of three months of age. The purpose of the beginner classes will be to teach novice pet owners basic obedience and responsible pet ownership. Subjects to be covered are proper use of voice corrections, stay commands, getting the dog to come, heal, etc. Helpful hints on ownership and responsibility will also be included. The training will include those exercises beneficial to pet owner as well as those thinking about eventually showing their dogs in obedience. The intermediate/advanced class is designed for dogs that have completed the recreation department beginner class.

For the above classes, owners are required to have their dogs equipped with a humane choke chain. The proper size of the chain is determined by measuring the dog's neck and adding four inches. Absolutely no spike collars allowed! It is strongly suggested that the handlers wear comfortable shoes and clothing for this session. For all classes, the fee is $44 per dog for the eight week, one-hour-per-week program. To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791. Classes are limited in size, non-residents will be accepted on a space available basis.

OUTDOOR GOLF LESSONS

The Cohasset and Scituate Recreation Departments will co-sponsor outdoor golf lessons throughout the spring and summer months, to be taught by Cohasset Golf Club's Assistant Pro, Andy Moulton.

Sessions begin during June and are five weeks in duration, meeting one hour weekly from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m. and again from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. The fee for this program is $60 per person for the five-week session.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791, or the Scituate Recreation Department at 545-8738. Should you need to borrow clubs to participate in lessons, please indicate this at the time of registration.

Tennis tourney slated

The South Shore Community Center Mixed Doubles Tennis Tournament will be held June 24, 25 and 26 on 25 private courts in Cohasset and Scituate. The cost is $35 per person which includes tennis tournament, T-shirt, balls and "Point After" party.

Youth Draw Doubles Tournament — Friday June 24. The cost is $15 per child which includes tennis tournament, T-shirt, balls and ice cream party. All levels of play. Beginners Clinic for ages 7 and older.

There will be an ongoing Tennis Expo featuring clothes, teaching videos, tips and more in the Center Gym. See how you rate with Bob Green, National Tennis Rating Program.

For more information, call The South Shore Community Center at 383-0088 (formerly The Community Center of Cohasset), Carolyn Swain at 545-6476 or Charlie DiPesa at 383-2652.

Hettstrom and Flint top performers in NEAAU regional

Tara Hettstrom and teammate Caitlin Flint were among the top finishers at Merrimack Valley in Methuen this past weekend. They both competed in the All-Around Competition for New England American Athletic Union Gymnastic Regional Championships.

12-14 age division novice; Tara Hettstrom placed third in the All-Around, fifth on the Beam, third on the Floor and seventh of the Bars.

9-11 age division novice: Caitlin Flint placed eighth in the All-Around, second on Vault, and fifth on Bars. Both gymnasts received a trophy and medals from each event.

Hettstrom and Flint both train at the South Shore Community Center of Cohasset under the direction of Ruthann Ardizzoni and Patricia Donahue.

Cohasset Recreation Department Baseball Camp accepting registrations

The Cohasset Recreation Department is accepting registrations for a week-long baseball camp for youngsters ages 5 through 18 at the recreation office on the first floor of Cohasset Town Hall.

The South Shore Baseball Club has been contracted again this year to provide the baseball camp, which will be held the week of Monday, June 27, at Miliken Field.

Two camp programs are available to youngsters as follows: full-day, 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., for ages 7 and over and a half-day camp, 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., is available for 5- and 6-year-olds.

The week-long camp costs $120 per child for the full-day program, and $70 per child for the half-day program. Camp ends Friday, July 1.

The South Shore Baseball Club, located at the South Shore Sports Center, Hingham, operates year-round baseball instruction and has provided baseball camp for Cohasset Recreation for four years.

VIP SOCCER CAMP REGISTRATIONS

The recreation department is also accepting registrations for VIP Soccer Camp, for children ages 4 through 7.

VIP Soccer Camp offers two programs for boys and girls: ABC Soccer is especially designed for 4- and 5-year-olds and meets from 8 to 9:30 a.m., Monday through Friday, July 18-22. The cost is $40 for the week.

Also offered by VIP is a three-hour per day program, meeting from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, July 18-22, for 6- and 7-year-olds. The cost is $70 for the week.

Both VIP programs will be held this year at the Front Field of Cohasset High School.

SOUTH SHORE SOCCER CAMP APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE

Registrations for South Shore Soccer Camp have begun for boys and girls ages 8-18. This is the South Shore Soccer Camps' fifth year of operation in Cohasset. If you are interested in registering, call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791 to be assured enrollment.

South Shore Soccer will be offered to both girls and boys, Monday through Friday, during the weeks of August 1-5 and 8-12. Should a camper wish to attend both camp weeks, this will now be possible. In order to choose the week of camp you desire, early registration is advised, as both camp weeks must be restricted in number.

Camp meets daily, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Cohasset's Miliken Field. The cost for camp is $165 per week and discounts for multiple weeks and subsequent children are available. South Shore Soccer Camp represents top-flight training delivered by top college and high school coaches and players from the New England area.

Golf tournament set for June 6

Join your friends and tee off for a good cause at South Shore Health and Educational Foundation's fifth annual golf tournament, which will be held June 6 at Cohasset Golf Club. Proceeds from this year's tournament will benefit the expansion of South Shore Hospital's special care nursery, which provides specialized local care to infants who are ill, premature or have medical problems at birth.

Three corporate sponsors have already signed up at the Golden Tee Club level: Purity Services, Advantage Health Corporation and Perini Corporation.

Player sponsorships start at $250 which includes a contribution to a special care nursery, lunch, an afternoon of golf and dinner. Participants will also be eligible for prize drawings.

Although space is filling up fast, corporate and player sponsorship opportunities are still available; for more information, call Jill McDonough, South Shore Health and Educational Foundation at 340-8848.

Wah Lum Academy to host Taoist master

Saturday and Sunday, June 18 and 19, internationally renowned author and Taoist teacher Mantak Chia will visit Cohasset to teach two workshop courses. Master Chia, founder of the International Healing Tao System and a leading authority on Taoist tradition, has authored 10 books on the subjects of Tao meditation and Chi Kung practices.

His workshops here will require no previous experience and will be open to the public. Curriculums will include an energy channeling meditation and Tai Chi Chi Kung, which is a tai chi chuan short form appropriate for beginner or advanced.

For information on times and cost call Wah Lum Academy Director John Loupos at (617) 383-6822.

Girls' night out June 3

Friday, June 3, from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m., come join Ruthann, Susie, George and Gina for a fun-filled evening of bowling, gymnastics, obstacle course and make-your-own hot dogs. Each child receives something for participating. Bowling and obstacle course prizes will be awarded. Girls ages 6-11 may attend. (Sorry 5- and 12-year-olds) No drop ins! Members $13, non-members $15. Limited sign-up. Must be prepaid. For more information call the South Shore Community Center of Cohasset at 383-0088.

Basketball camp

The Cohasset Recreation Department is currently accepting registrations for a boys' and girls' basketball camp to be held the week of Monday, July 11 at the Cohasset High School gym.

Ron Ford, boys' varsity basketball coach, and staff will conduct the week-long camp, which is for youngsters ages nine and over. The tuition for basketball camp is $125 per child and camp hours are from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily, Monday, July 11 through Friday, July 15.

Registration forms are available at the recreation department office on the first floor in the Cohasset Town Hall. Non-residents will be accepted for basketball camp on a space available basis.

Playground volunteers sought

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept applications for volunteer counselors for its summer, 1994 Playground program. Those who may be interested in working on a volunteer basis for a few hours each week, between July 6 and August 19, may call the recreation office at 383-6791 for further information.

The commission's playground program is for children ages 3 through 12. Volunteer services are especially needed with younger age groups of 3- to 7-year-olds. CRD will train volunteers who qualify and have a strong interest in working with children.

Golf is a game filled with 'birdies'

By Joe Keefe
Special to the Mariner

We all are quite familiar with the three most common birds in golf. Today I would like to discuss one other bird most are not familiar with. A bird even more rare than the double eagle, hardly ever seen in this great game, but a bird even the true beginner should be looking for.

Firsts we all are quite familiar with the "birdie". This elusive bird is found only when you score one stroke below par. A feat not many can achieve, even when receiving a stroke on the hole. This elusive bird is truly treasured and looked fondly on by all golfers.

The eagle, an even rarer bird, can be achieved when scoring two strokes under par on a given hole. An eagle on a par three is also named an "ace" or a hole in one. We all know how rare these birds really are.

A "double eagle" is an extremely rare bird and is found when a player scores three under par on hole. On a par four a double eagle is one who scores a hole in one on this same hole. This same double eagle is found when a player scores a two on par five. Most recently Jeff Maggert scored a double eagle at the Master's tournament, only the third player in history to score this phenomenal feat at Augusta National. Of course, Gene Sarazen is the most famous player to score a double eagle because this great feat helped spur himself to a victory in the Master's.

An even rarer bird in the golf game is the "Flamingo". What the heck does the flamingo have to do with golf you ask? What is the flamingo most famous for? The bird can stand on one leg! This is a great drill for you to work on when you complete your golf swing. Try this:

When you complete your follow-through, check to see if ALL your weight is on your forward foot. A proper swing will have a balanced finish with 99 percent of your weight on your forward foot, or the foot closest to your target. When you watch your golfball travel towards your target, check to see if you can lift your back leg and not fall over. If you can, you have transferred your weight properly and more than likely will produce a better golf shot.

This is a position that not many players get to. Be a flamingo and watch yourself improve.

(Joe Keefe is the golf pro at Hingham's South Shore Country Club. He is a regular contributor to the Mariner*).*

Gun Club gun shows offer great fun

By Jack Svrcek
Special to the Mariner

Whether it's called a Fish and Game club, Sportsmen's Club, or a Rod and Gun club, gun shows held in these establishments are inexpensive, and are a great source of information and personal entertainment that many family members can enjoy.

Throughout the long winter and the wet and dreary days of spring many area clubs host one- or two- day gun shows and swaps. These events help break the monotony of weekends lost due to bad weather and the ever-present cabin fever. Major gun shows are fun also, but they hold a very different atmosphere.

The first thing you notice at a gun club gun show is that the price of admission is easy on the wallet. At the food concession, you'll find it hot, plentiful, high in flavor and low in price. If you want to sell sporting equipment that you haven't used, or look for anything from war memorabilia to firearms books, this could be the place for you. Table rentals can be half the price that is charged at the major gun shows. Many tables are rented by individuals looking to sell their accessories, ammunition and firearms at fair prices. They don't have the built-in overhead a dealer has. Haggling is a big part of a gun show.

Aside from the raffle and door prizes, you can get a chance to see what a Rod and Gun club has to offer its members. The atmosphere is friendly, offering hours of diverse pleasure and interest. Last, but most importantly, you can learn a great deal about your Second Amendment rights.

Some plain 'lies' about game of golf

By Joe Keefe
Special to the Mariner

Eric from Hingham wrote to me this week and asked me to discuss different lies found on a golf course and what to do about them when encountered with this type of situation.

First and foremost, do not panic. Understanding what a golf ball will do under these common situations will help you prepare for the shot better and achieve the desired result more often than not.

Let's take the golf ball above our feet first. This situation occurs when we find ourselves on a side-hill lie with the ball higher than our feet. Under normal circumstances, the golf ball when struck properly should move down towards your feet so a right handed golfer should expect the ball to "hook" or move from right to left. For a left handed player, the ball should still "hook" but to them the ball moves from left to right.

When the ball is below your feet you should expect the opposite shot. When we find ourselves with the ball below our feet the shape of the shot, again when struck properly, will move away from our feet so a right handed player should expect the ball to "slice" or move from left to right. For a left handed player the ball should still "slice" but to them the ball moves right to left.

Ball placement in your stance is played in the same position but pay close attention your posture. Your golf club should always be placed properly on the ground to help you achieve your proper set-up. Don't let the terrain position you improperly because a poor set-up is just asking for a poor shot.

Just because we don't always get the "perfect" lie doesn't mean we can't achieve the "perfect" result. Proper planning and knowing what the ball should do prior to the shot will help you avoid the other obstacles we face on the links. Thanks Eric for the letter. I hope this will help you and all the others to play "Better Golf."

business notes

■ Tradewinds Technology Corporation of Cambridge announces that Richard W. Swanborg Jr. has joined their organization as managing director. He will be responsible for business development, consulting, and operations for Tradewinds, which specializes in redefining how information technology is applied, used, and managed to achieve large scale improvements in business value.

Mr. Swanborg has more than 20 years of information technology and operations experience as both a consultant and practitioner. He has held senior management and leadership positions at Ernst & Young's Center for Business Innovation, Index Technology, Index Group, and Helix Technology. He has published on a wide variety of information technology topics including reinventing the IS organization, IT process benchmarking, strategies for managing the client/service transition, and building an integrated planning environment.

At Tradewinds, Mr. Swanborg will lead client engagements to dramatically improve the contribution of IT to business value. Tradewinds' objectives are to help its clients improve both business performance (leveraging IT capabilities to achieve business advantage, increase productivity and organizational performance, and enhance product and service quality) and IS performance (service levels, price and performance.) Tradewinds is a solution provider and will support and/or manage any aspect of information services transformation including visioning, design and planning, and implementation.

Richard W. Swanborg

Mr. Swanborg received a Bachelor of Arts degree in mathematics and computer science from Knox College, Illinois. He lives in Cohasset with his wife, Ann, and son, Matthew.

■ John K. McNabb Jr. of Cohasset has formed a consulting practice, McNabb Government Strategies, which provides lobbying, government relations, political education, and community organizing services.

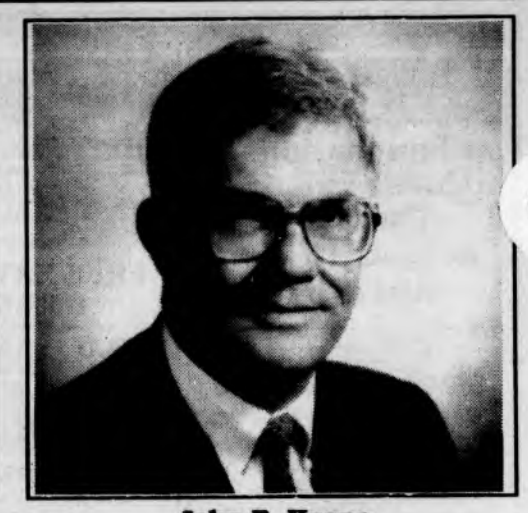
McNabb has over 10 years' experience providing government affairs services, and has substantial experience working on legislative issues on Beacon Hill.

John K. McNabb Jr.

McNabb's clients have included state environmental groups, a local environmental group, a national organization of rehabilitation professionals, professional associations, and associations of municipal employees.

From 1983-1989, McNabb was employed as Legislative Liaison Officer for the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection, where he dealt with a wide range of environmental issues on Beacon Hill.

From 1992-1994, McNabb was Government Affairs Director for the National Association of Rehabilitation Professionals in the Private Sector (NARPPS), where he dealt with insurance and vocational rehabilitation issues, including health care reform and workers' compensation reform legislation, at both the national and state level.



John F. Keane

McNabb is active in local government. He was recently appointed to the Cohasset Water Resources Protection Committee, and has been active in the local environmental group, SAFR. He is a former member of the Board of Library Trustees and the Town Government Structure Committee.

McNabb is a graduate of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, and Cohasset High School.

■ John F. Keane, founder of Keane, Inc., an innovative software services company, has been appointed president of the New England Aquarium's Board of Trustees.

As the aquarium's president, Mr. Keane will oversee Aquarium 2000, a long-range plan which will culminate in a state-of-the-art expanded facility on Central Wharf.

According to Keane, "This is an exciting time to serve as the aquarium's president. I look forward to helping bring to life an inspiring new mission which includes increased hands-on science programs for kids, active leadership in conservation research, and a renewed devotion to community service." Mr. Keane will also direct the aquarium's search for a new director following the planned 1997 retirement of long-time director, John H. Prescott.

Mr. Keane founded Keane, Inc. in 1965. The company designs, develops and maintains computer software specific to corporations and health care facilities. Keane is also Director and Immediate Past Chairman of ITAA (Information Technology Association of America), the national computer software and services trade association. He is a also a trustee of the Massachusetts Software Council, serves on the Board of Directors of Transition Systems, Inc. and is a member of the Compensation Committee at the New England Deaconess Hospital.

Prior to starting his own business, Mr. Keane worked for IBM's Data Processing Division and was a marketing and management consultant for Arthur D. Little. He is a graduate of Harvard University and received an MBA from Harvard Business School.

Mr. Keane is an avid sportsman whose hobbies include tennis, skiing and sailing. He is a three-time national sailing champion of the International 210 Class. Mr. Keane and his wife, Marilyn, live in Cohasset and Boston.

Grass roots train groups disagree over Greenbush

By Alice C. Coyle
Mariner staff

Coastal Coalition signs are popping up all over the South Shore lately and while they may not stop the train they are stopping traffic.

According to a Hingham Police log entry, on May 24 police removed several signs on town owned property on East Street that were causing trucks to stop at inappropriate times and "causing near misses of motor vehicle accidents."

The anti-train signs with the slogans "Progress Yes - Train No" or "Train = Taxes" represent the position of the Coastal Coalition, a grass roots citizens' group founded by Hingham residents Nancy Buckley and Randy Young. Instead of restoring train service to the Greenbush line, the Coastal Coalition suggest expanded and improved bus and water transportation on the

Before leaving their Cohasset High School days behind — the 74 members of the Class of 1994 will be together one more time at 1:30 p.m. Sunday for their school's annual commencement exercises.

Principal Mary Ellen Gallagher describes this year's graduating class as "well-rounded" evidenced by the students' involvement in athletics, drama, and music.

"I was struck by the number of seniors involved in the Senior Show, either in skits or working behind the scenes," she said.

"It was symbolic of the closeness of the kids in the class."

Guidance Counselor Maureen Sullivan said this year's seniors are not only bright but unique.

Cohasset turns out for Memorial Day observances

By Joyce Bain

Captain Daniel Brennock advised the people of Cohasset to never allow the stories of American character to fade away at the Memorial Day ceremony held Monday.

If the turnout for the parade and accompanying ceremonies is any indication, Capt. Brennock has nothing to worry about. Once again the Cohasset parade came alive in its tradition of honoring those who have served our country in the armed forces.

The day began early with services at several cemeteries around town in honor of those veterans who are buried there and continued on with a parade around the town. In addition to the veterans who marched, the Kevin Barry Irish-American Club Pipes and Drums played along with the Deer Hill Marching Band. The Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and Brownies also marched the length of the route and took part in ceremonies.

State champs end laxmen's tourney run

By Joe Reardon

Assistant coach Terry Kahan used a basketball analogy to better get across what he believed to be the chance Cohasset High's lacrosse team had in defeating defending state champion Newton North in Saturday's first-round tournament game.

"This is the 64th seed against the first seed in the NCAA tourney," said Kahan. "They'll put tremendous pressure on us and try to force us out of the game."

Kahan's analogy turned out to be true, for at least part of the game.

The Tigers used the aggressive defense, hard-hitting approach in throwing Cohasset's offense off kilter and ending their postseason party, 15-3.

Cohasset's week

Leave brush for chipping

Brush for the spring brush chipping at the Cedar Street Recycling Transfer Facility will be accepted from Cohasset residents only at the facility Saturday, June 4 and Sunday, June 5.

No brush from contractors or landscapers will be accepted. Small hedge clippings will go directly to the compost pile. Nothing over 10 inches in diameter can be accepted. There are no length restrictions.

For information call the recycling transfer facility at 383-9627.

Pumpout grants to help

Boaters in Cohasset should find it much easier to pump out their holding tanks or empty portable toilets by the end of the summer.

A comprehensive infrastructure of sanitary pumpout stations and waste disposal facilities will be near completion by that time, the result of the Federal Clean Vessel Act grant awards to 51 Massachusetts marinas and municipalities.The Town of Cohasset will get $4,000. The awards represent the Federal Government's 75 percent share of the costs involved in each project.

Although it is illegal to pump wastes from boat toilets overboard less than three miles from shore, boaters often must travel much farther to find a pumping station. Some boaters, unable to get rid of their waste conveniently, and legally, resort to pumping it out in harbors and bays. Coliform counts, the standard way of measuring the amount of sewage in water, often quadruple each summer in embayments.

The act was introduced in 1992 by Rep. Gerry Studds and earmarks a portion of the fuel and equipment tax paid by boaters for the purposes of eliminating boat sewage in coastal waters.

By the time the grant terminates in 1997, it is hoped sufficient pumpout stations and waste reception facilities for portapotties will be in operation coastwide to make any town in the state able to apply for Federal no discharge zone status, making it illegal to put even treated sewage from boats in the water.

Recycling grant received

According to State Sen. Brian J. McDonald (D-Weymouth) Cohasset has been awarded a $927 environmental grant to provide for the mailing of recycling education materials to every resident.

The grant program is designed to help communities keep residents informed about recycling programs and enhance recycling in the community.

"This grant will allow Cohasset to continue to make progress in their recycling efforts," McDonald said.

The Recycling Public Education Material Grant, part of the Department of Environmental Protection's Solid Waste Recycling Grant program, includes customized graphic design, printing on 100 percent post-consumer recycled paper using soy-based ink, cost of postage and mailing to all residents.

No pump-out wanted

Hamilton Tewksbury of the Hagerty Property Committee wrote to selectmen on behalf of the committee to go on record that the group is unanimo[illegible] opposed to any pump-out operation on or near the t[illegible] acre property.

"This is a recreation area — not a disposal area," he wrote.

The Prime-Plus-1% Home Equity Line

No Fees

Many home equity lines offer a low "teaser" rate for the first year or so. The problem is, they switch you to a higher rate down the road. Usually about 1.5% over the prime rate.

But with a Prime-Plus-1% Home Equity Line from Quincy Savings, you can count on a competitive variable rate: just 1% over prime for the life of the loan. And since there are no fees, it couldn't be any easier to get started.

No Gimmicks

What's more, you can use the money any way you like. To make home improvements. To buy new furniture or appliances. To consolidate existing credit card balances at a lower rate. Or whatever.

7.75% Annual Percentage Rate

Rate based on prime as of 5/11/94.

Police offer kids incentive to wear bike helmets

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Although there's no fine in the state's new law requiring children 12-and-under to wear bicycle helmets, Cohasset police hope that a little reward rather than punishment will help kids get the point.

Starting this week, police will award coupons for a free large Slush at Cohasset Food Mart in Jonathan Livingston Plaza off Rte. 3A to children wearing bicycle helmets while riding their bikes.

Each officer will get 50 coupons to distribute, explains Safety Officer Clifton Jones.

He noted that Cohasset Food Mart is not only offering the free Slushes but paid for the printing costs of the coupons.

"We can't thank Cohasset Food Mart enough," Jones said.

The state law requires children 12 and under who are operators or passengers on a bicycle to wear a properly fitted and fastened helmet on public ways and property.

Bicycle helmets can reduce the risk of head injuries by 85 percent, according to the Massachusetts Governor's Highway Safety Bureau.

Jones said injuries aren't just statistics.

A letter he shared with the Cohasset Mariner showed how a helmet can make a difference.

In the letter, the mother of a third grader wrote how luckily she didn't listen to her son's protestations about not wearing his helmet.

"Son, you have a choice—you can walk or wear your helmet," she said.

Her son was on his way home when, while crossing S. Main Street, he was hit by a bus. She said EMTs were sure the boy's injuries would have been much more severe if he had not been wearing his bicycle helmet.

"Helmets should be like seat belts, they are not up for negotiation," she said.

Two years ago, police and the Parent School Organization tried a similar reward program for kids wearing bicycle helmets but that program was on a smaller scale, Jones said.

Jacqueline Moores

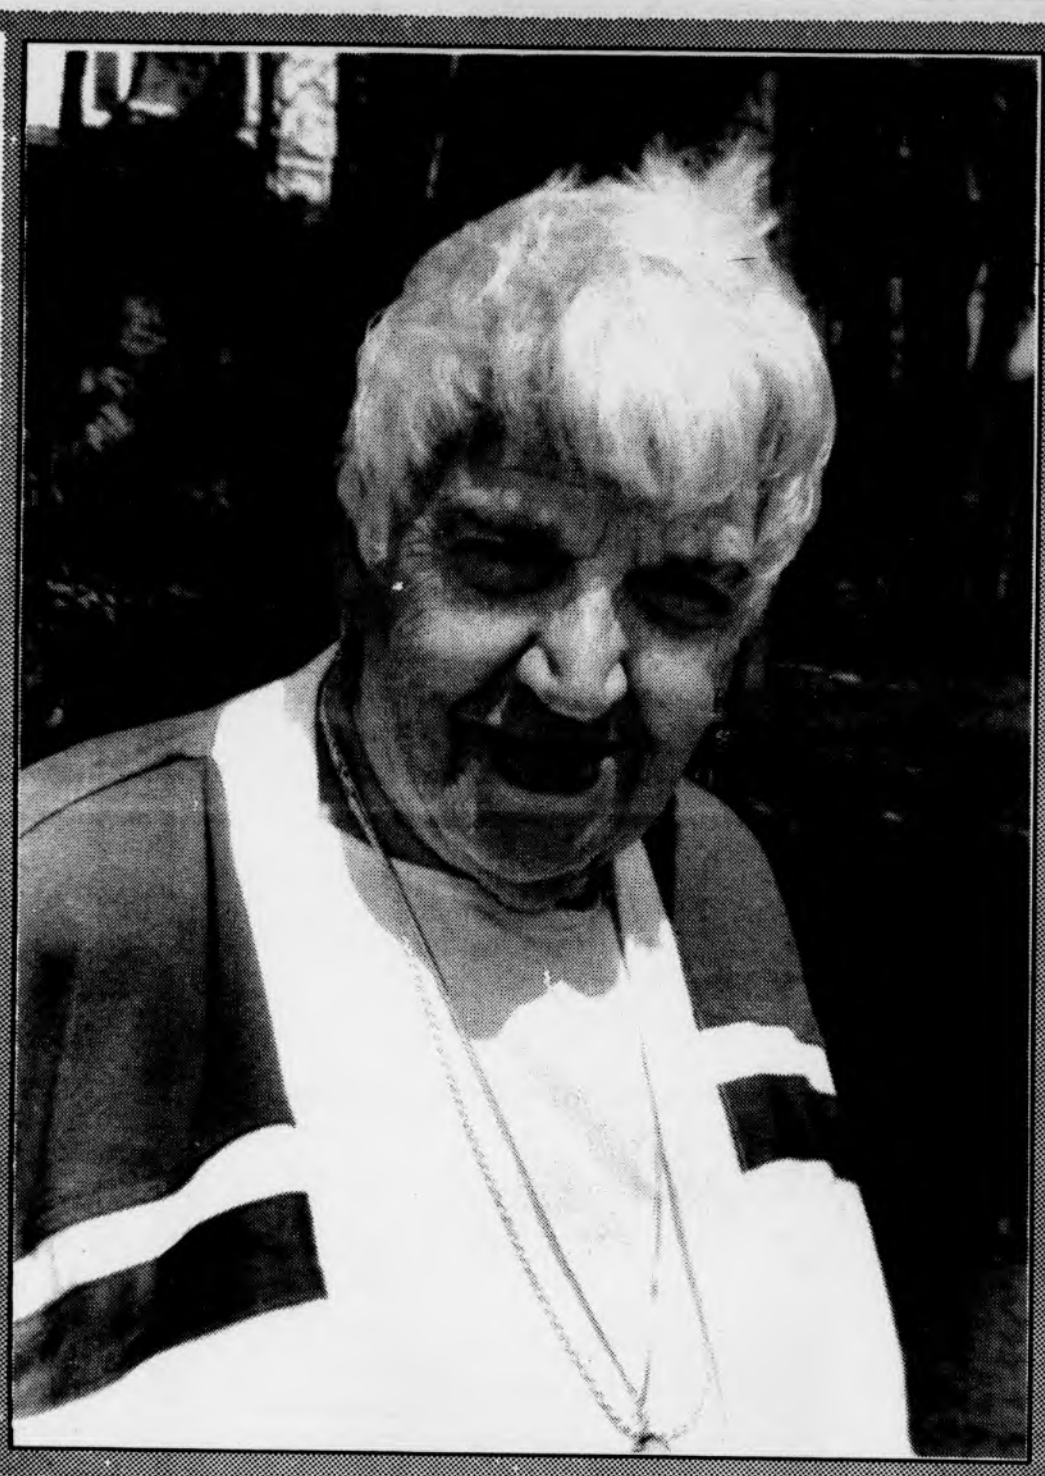
Name: Jacqueline Moores

Occupation: Painter, genealogist, and cheerleader for the South Shore Art Center and garden clubs.

Best day of your life: Participating in a coffee klatch in 1988 by the Anne Hutchinson River Parkway in Pelman, NY after having lobbied to have a new sign installed on the Hutchinson parkway showing it was named for a woman.

Most embarrassing moment: Telling the Chancellor at Boston University that "I'm Charlie's mother!" and then realizing there must be hundreds of 'Charlies' at the school.

Biggest worry: Every mother's worry: the health and happiness of my family.



Best vacation: Any trip to the far corners of the Maine coast and islands.

Favorite holiday: The Fourth of July — especially concerts on Boston Common with John Williams.

Favorite season: The Christmas season.

Favorite book: "The Winthrop Woman," by Anya Seton.

Favorite TV show: "Are You Being Served."

Favorite movie: "Anne of Green Gables."

Person you'd most like to meet: Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy.

Pet peeve: People who ask me personal questions like 'How old are you?" after just having met me.

Favorite junk-food: Oatmeal cookies loaded with raisins and nuts.

Abbadessa's

Ristorante & Pizzeria

211 Lincoln St., Rte. 3A, Hingham • 749-9829

To My Valued Customers:

As you know, strict anti-smoking laws will take affect in Hingham on July 1, 1994. This action and the concerns of most public health officials regarding second-hand smoke, has prompted my decision to make Abbadessa's "smoke-free". Since Abbadessa's has always been your local "family restaurant, I feel this is the appropriate step to take in the interest of YOU, our valued customer, your children and the employees of Abbadessa's Restaurant. So, as of June 1, 1994, Abbadessa's will be smoke-free (except for burning pizza's!). Thank you for your understanding and continued patronage.

Sincerely,

Jim Wells

The Chisholm residence at 605 Jerusalem Road really puts on a show for spring. Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm labor long and hard in their beloved gardens and it certainly shows! In the front yard, purple and pink creeping phlox cover the ground while masses of red, white, and yellow tulips stand tall amongst purple and white grape hyacinth. This year they have added a glorious bed of red, white, yellow, and orange tulips in their backyard, The blue water of Straits Pond is the perfect backdrop to this splash of springtime color. This is a special yard — be sure to take a ride by and enjoy the view!

"Anyone who objects to reproductions is asking for something worse. Either a reproduction or a new design. Give me a reproduction every time, if it is real. People forget that the world requires much more furniture than our fathers left us. If there once was enough, it is mostly broken, worn out, lost. There must needs be reproductions or degradations. If the dollar is the first consideration in reproductions, they will be bad."

Grass roots train groups disagree. . .

South Shore. The Coalition is currently collecting signatures on a petition that they intend to present to Governor Weld.

William Grimes, chairman of the Back on Track, pro-train movement which has been working in support of rail restoration for ten years, wonders where this group was all during the deliberations and controversy. Grimes believes the Coalitions efforts are those of last-minute desperation.

But Buckley said she had been following the progress of the train movement closely and that when she attended an MBTA meeting last winter very little attention was given to the bus and boat alternative. During a February selectmen's meeting in Scituate, which other South Shore selectmen attended, again the issue was skirted, Buckley said.

After writing a letter to the Scituate Mariner, Buckley heard from several people who like her were opposed to the train and the Coalition began to come together.

The Coastal Coalition is a relative newcomer to the ongoing train controversy and made its objections clear to the public in a May 12 political advertisement in the Hingham Journal & Mariner and Cohasset Mariner.

In the ad, the Coalition maintains that taxes will be raised to pay for the train and that it will have a negative impact on the environment by causing noise pollution and threatening protected lands.

The Coalition also predicts an end to the commuter boat stating that the MBTA deficit "will never justify two major modes of transportation to the same area servicing so few people." Coalition figures show that currently of the 73,170 South Shore residents who make up the work force, 2,500 people commute by boat and the MBTA anticipates that 3,500 will take the train.

Instead of the $300 million project, the Coalition offers a $36 million alternative project that would expand the Hingham Shipyard Terminal, construct a new Nantasket (Hull) terminal, add five new high speed commuter boats, provide feeder bus service on South Shore, and increase peak time service.

In addition the Coalition recommends new Boston terminals at Fan Pier and South Station, new South Shore terminals in Quincy and Weymouth, timed bus service upon arrival in Boston to transport people down town, direct water shuttle from the South Shore to Logan with a Park and Ride lot, midday, late night, weekend service, handicap accessibility and conversion of the Greenbush train route to a bicycle/walking path.

In reference to the bike route conversion, Buckley said that a representative from the federal group "Rails to Trails" will attend and speak at the Coalition's next meeting. This organization converts abandoned railroad tracks to bike trails and Buckley said that the trails could be used for commuting to work as well as for recreational purposes.

Buckley maintains that the Coalition's recommended bus-way would accommodate the majority of South Shore residents and that "the railroad is financially indefensible."

Coalition co-founder Randy Young agrees. Young said restoring the train is an expensive project that only serves a small part of the South Shore population.

"Today what the coastal South Shore needs is a total transportation system, not a system that only gets them to South Station," Young said.

Young estimates that about 21 percent of the [illegible] along the Greenbush Corridor actually work in Boston and of them only five to seven percent work in the financial district near South Station.

Young admitted that his group has many ideas and a good deal of vision but they are not transportation planners. The combined system of boats and buses would meet more of the South Shore's needs, said Young who envisions High Occupancy Vehicle (H.O.V.)/ Car pool lanes for direct travel on Route 3 and the expressway. Young said he is in favor of more direct routes for the work force on the South Shore and called the train alternative an inflexible system.

"Eighty percent of the population will pay for a system that won't take care of their transportation needs," he added.

But William Grimes, chairman of the Back on Track movement which has supported rail service restoration for all three Old Colony lines is not worried about the Coastal Coalition derailing the restoration project.

"With the actions by the selectmen, the consensus agreement on alternative 6A and the support of Senator McDonald and State Rep. Hynes, I think the area has spoken," said Grimes who was also a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC).

The CAC was created to assist in the preparation of the Supplemental Draft Impact Report Statement, a federally-ordered feasibility study focusing on environmental impacts of transportation alternatives.

In April the CAC came to a unanimous decision in support of the restoration of the Old Colony Railroad Greenbush line. It took 18 months of study and compromise but the 17-member citizens' group with representatives from all towns along the Greenbush corridor came to a consensus agreement.

The MBTA has filed the CAC's comments along with its environmental impact report with Trudy Coxe, the Secretary of Environmental Affairs, who will conduct a public hearing on the matter within the next month and a half.

On the Coalition's recent entry into the fray, CAC member Alexander Macmillan said "it's too little, too late." Macmillan pointed out that whatever alternative the MBTA chooses, it must be prudent and feasible to be adopted, and the Coalition's recommendations do not meet the transportation needs as defined by the MBTA, he said.

"The boat won't help people in Scituate and Marshfield," Macmillan said.

And as far as commuter boat service being eliminated, Grimes said it's a false issue and nothing and no one has said it will be stopped or scaled down.

"It will work for those who need it," he said.

Grimes said the Coalition is simply trying to frighten people. In reference to the ad, Grimes said "they use bold face typography when their arguments are weak," and maintained that all of the issues the Coalition has just recently brought up have been previously addressed.

"We've tried to talk about the real issues and needs of the people down here and we feel we benefit all groups," Grimes said, adding "we've been involved in this for 10 years."

Fellow Back on Track member Ross Hall said Coalition members are making inappropriate use of innuendo and grasping at anything.

"All of the questions they've brought up have been sorted through and dealt with and they're bringing them up again as if they're brand new," Hall said. In addition Hall maintained that the Coalition is using "selective argumentation, leaving facts out and getting their facts wrong."

Grimes, who said the Coalition is exaggerating all kinds of things, anticipates that ridership on the Greenbush line would see steady growth.

"Commuter rail ridership has increased at least five percent each year for the last 10 years in the state, and rail restorations are taking place all over the country" said Grimes, adding that communities will become more attractive through the availability of the train.

Grimes disputed the claims of environmental hazards from a "high speed train charging through" South Shore towns. Grimes said the trains will not exceed 60 mph which is far less than the average 200 mph of high speed trains in Europe and Japan. The trains will be modern, up-to-date, handicapped accessible and air conditioned.

The Coalition's fears are unfounded said Grimes, who calls the issues raised by the Coalition just "window dressing" for their "real agenda which is driven by selfishness and city-phobia."

As for the restoration project Grimes said "there is no white wash here, no covering up little details."

"I would have hoped that by now those against it (the train) would realize all their fears have been addressed," Grimes said, adding that the project "best reflects the needs and desires of the Greenbush community and is going forward."

Propane tanks warning

Fire Chief Roger W. Lincoln warns that old propane tanks used to fuel grills can be dangerous. Firefighters responded to a fire caused by a leaky propane tank on Memorial Day. The fire destroyed the grill.

Lincoln said propane fires can burn houses down. He stressed that grills should not be placed too close to houses and not on wooden porches.

"The older the tanks are, the more they are prone to mechanical failure," he said.

Lincoln explained that on windy days, the wind blows the flame out the bottom of the grill which can damage the hose which runs to the tank causing any leaking gas to ignite.

He suggested that grill owners check the hose for any leaks or cracks and replace old, rusty propane tanks.

June 3 will be a special evening, three special people will be honored. Jack Leary, Sam Erby and Charlie Stover are all going to be honored for their years of dedicated service to our High School. Jack has been there for 35 years, Sam for 31 years, and Charlie for 32 years. 98 years between them, WOW! More details will follow, I will be sure of that. To three great men, we thank you and applaud you for you and all of your efforts.

Don't forget the Bloodmobile to be held at the First Parish House, 23 North Main St. from 2 to 7 p.m. Tuesday June 7. Please come and give the gift of life.

Congratulations to the Rhodes/Tower families.

Their newest addition is Jake Thomas Tower, born to Kerri (Rhodes) and Tom Tower, April 2. He weighed in at 5 lbs. 4 oz. and was 18 1/2 in. long.

His proud grandparents are Kathy Rhodes of Cohasset, Jack Rhodes of Hull, and Frank Tower of Marshfield.

Jake is also lucky to have great grandparents Tom and Peggy Hernan of Cohasset.

In July, Jake will meet his great-great grandmother Laura Waldron who will be coming from Florida to meet him.

Oh, what a great time of year! All sorts of college news is pouring in, many June events are being planned; we are excited to tell you all about it. Here goes ...

Tara Volungis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Volungis, graduated Magna Cum Laude from Boston University May 22 with a BSBA from the School of Management with a concentration in accounting.

Tara was a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, Beta Alpha Psi, and the Golden Key National Honor Societies. While at BU she was awarded the Boston University Founder Scholarship, the School of Management Selig Scholarship, and the Alpha Kappa Psi/Dean Lord Scholarship.

Tara Volungis

Tara was also awarded a certificate from the BU School of Management in Recognition of outstanding scholarship.

And, listen to this folks, she did it all in three years. Tara graduated from CHS in 1991.

Next we are going to tell you that Jason Richard Cameron, the son of Bruce and Lois Cameron, graduated from Saint Michaels College May 8, receiving a Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration. Hopefully we will have more news for you regarding Jason, he is one great person! And, good luck in the business world.

Karin Skoogland Bartow received a bachelor of arts degree in English from Simmons College in Boston at Commencement exercises May 22. Karin was a member of the English Liaison and a recipient of the Wylie Sypher Prize.

Super job, Karin, we all wish you the best future possible!

More news of commencements, this time from the University of New Hampshire. Lauren Michelle Wood, daughter of Peter and Mardi Wood, received her degree (Bachelors) with a major in Communication May 21.

By the way, remember that Lauren continued competitive figure skating and was a social events coordinator, volunteer for the special olympics — isn't she super? Lauren plans on working and living in Boston. Keep in touch with us Lauren!

Memory quiz, who was the 1993 wrestling champ from CHS. You have gotten it, Raymond K. Jones.

Well, Trinity College (Hartford, Conn.) has awarded a varsity letter for his participation on the wrestling team this past winter, quite an honor for a freshman! Remember how great he was at football?

Yikes, what a great person, and a great athlete! You can be sure that his mother, Aretha Jones, is extremely proud of him.

Julienne R. Guemere, daughter of Kathleen Guemere of Cohasset and Larry Guemere of Boston, has been awarded the Andrew B. Saxton Undergraduate Fellowship in Music at Hartwick College. Julienne received the award during the College's annual Honors Day Convocation. This Saxton fellowship that Julienne received is awarded to students in each academic department and allows them to work as student assistants, tutors of faculty research assistants. Congratulations!

Tara Volungis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Volungis, graduated Magna Cum Laude from Boston University on May 22, 1994 with a BSBA from the School of Management with a concentration in accounting. Tara was a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, Beta Alpha Psi, and the Golden Key National Honor Society. While at BU she was awarded the Boston University Founders Scholarship, the School of Management Selig Scholarship, and the Alpha Kappa Psi/Dean Lord Scholarship. Tara was a 1991 graduate of Cohasset High.

Accolades go to Polly Logan, who has been awarded the Lincoln Medallion for service to the nation and the Commonwealth at the 127th annual dinner. Polly was the 18th person to receive it, many people cannot keep up with her and her expertise and energy.

Polly served for 12 years as the national committeewoman for Massachusetts, also received the Abigail Adams Award from the Massachusetts Political Caucus and presently serves on the Mass. State Committee, is director of Middlesex Club, and on the board of the legal Defense fund. By the way, the Middlesex Club was founded in 1867 and is the oldest continuing organization in the U.S.A.

More good news, Thomas J. Callahan has opened a law firm right here in Cohasset (85 Hillside Dr). He is great, give him a buzz if you need anything.

Okay, mark your calendar, right now!! To benefit the American Diabetes Association, there will be a big event at the Cohasset Community Center from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. There will be a dunk tank (dunk your favorite teacher), games, prizes, clowns, balloons, grab bags for children, giant raffle, appetizers (comps), luncheon buffet, clam chowder, a full luncheon; the works!

They are also having a grand prize drawing. Toys are donated, from a BMX Bike, boys' bike; FAO Schwartz donated a huge teddy bear. Every game ticket purchased is automatically entered into the drawing.

The kiddos will love it, we will see you at this event. And, you will help the American Diabetes Association, a most worthy cause!

That's it for this week, surely hope you will keep me informed as to your latest event, we love it!

James A. Leonard

James A. Leonard

James Arnold Leonard, 72, of Hingham, died Monday, May 30, of a heart attack suffered while he was marching in the Cohasset Memorial Day parade.

He was born in Cambridge in 1921, and moved with his family to the family home in Joplin, Missouri, when he was thirteen. After graduation from Joplin High School he attended Phillips Exeter Academy for two years before entering MIT in 1941.

He was the first man in the United States to join the Army Enlisted Reserve June 4, 1942. His active army service, from June of 1943 to February of 1946, was in the Signal Corps, stationed in the Pacific arena. After World War II, he joined the active Reserve, attaining the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, until his retirement in 1975.

At MIT Mr. Leonard was junior class president and captain of the swimming team. He played varsity lacrosse and was vice president of the MIT Athletic Association. He graduated with the class of 1948 as a chemical engineer and held various positions as an industrial engineer and planner in the Boston area.

His great interest and avocation was community theater. In the last 30 years he played in 107 productions and helped plan and build uncounted stage sets. He was one of the founders of Darling Productions and a mainstay of Quincy Dinner Theatre. A life member of Curtain Call Theatre, he was given its J. Clarke Settles award for extraordinary service.

As a swimmer at MIT, Mr. Leonard set pool records that stood for several years. Forty years later he started swimming competitively again in the Quincy Senior Olympics, and he was an enthusiastic member of the seniors volleyball team at the Community Life Center in Wollaston.

Boating was another of his enthusiasms, and he looked forward every winter to trailing an outboard cruiser to the Thousand Islands in the St. Lawrence for two or three weeks in the summer. Over the years that area and those associations became his home away from home.

His friends will remember the gusto with which he met life, and the many small, practical kindnesses that he showed to so many.

He leaves his wife, Fan, and two sons, John and Christopher, a niece, Nancee Houghton, and her daughter, Melanie Kate.

A memorial service will be held at the Old Ship Church, 90 Main St. in Hingham, Sunday, June 5, at 3 p.m. The Rev. Kenneth Read-Brown will officiate. In lieu of flowers, gifts may be made to Curtain Call Theatre, P.O. Box 850204, Braintree, MA 02185-0204; or to the Old Ship Memorial Garden, 107 Main St., Hingham. MA 02043.

Eleanor M. Bates

Eleanor M. Bates, 65, died in Bar Harbor, Maine May 21. She was born in Cohasset December 10, 1928.

The daughter of William C. and Lena V. Quigley Bates, she was a 1941 graduate of Shepard Gill Nursing School in Boston. She worked as a private nurse in the Boston area for many years before moving to Mount Desert, Maine where she worked as an LPN at Barnard Nursing Home, Ellsworth, The Summit House, Bar Harbor, and the Mount Desert Island Hospital in Bar Harbor, Maine. Miss Bates retired in 1978.

She leaves two brothers, William C. Bates III of West Palm Beach, Fla., and John E. Bates of Scituate; two sisters, Dorothy Bates Gammon and Mrs. Duncan Bates Todd, both of Scituate; eight nephews and eight nieces; several great grandnephews and great grandnieces.

Memorial donations may be made to The American Cancer Society, Maine Affiliate, 52 Federal St., Brunswick, Maine 04011.

Anne Smith

Anne (Weston) Smith, 82, of Cohasset, died May 27 in the Colonial Nursing Home in Weymouth after a long illness.

She was in charge of billing in the accounting department at the former Draper & Co. of Boston for 24 years before she retired many years ago. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of North Scituate.

Mrs. Smith was born and educated in Needham. She lived in Cohasset for 47 years.

She leaves her husband, Ralph L. Smith, a well-known watercolor artist; a brother, Charles Weston of Needham; and a sister, Jane Panros of Brookline.

A graveside service was conducted May 31 by the Rev. Richard Dutton, pastor of the First Baptist Church, in Woodside Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036-2266.

Say cheese!

Proms and graduations are two good reasons why your requests for photo reprints soar this time of year.

So it's a good time to go over how to go about obtaining reprints of photographs taken by our talented staff photographers.

Reprints are $8 for a 5x7 in. glossy photograph and $10 for an 8x10. We need the page number on which the photo appeared, the name of the photographer who took the picture, and the date and name of the paper. That last part may seem redundant — but with 15 Mariner newspapers — knowing in which paper the photo appeared will expedite your request.

For example, on a sheet of paper you would write the following: one reprint of Alan Chapman photo of little girl with the big hat which appeared on page 3 of the Cohasset Mariner on May 19.

Checks should be made out to the Mariner Newspapers and mailed to 165 Enterprise Dr., Marshfield 02050. Attn. photo reprints. Please allow three-to-four weeks for processing.

To request a photographer, give us a call at 749-0031 or 1-800-649-6661. The more notice you provide us, the better the chance is that one of our staff photographers will be able to cover your event. Because we must share our photographers with other Mariner towns, it is extremely difficult for us to schedule a photographer with less than 24 hours notice.

If a staff photographer is unavailable — your photographs can help us tell the story of your event or activity. Please keep in mind, however, that people in the photograph must be identified. Try and get close to your subject so whom or whatever you are trying to photograph isn't too far away in the picture.

You do not need to use black and white film, we can process color prints. We can also change the size of your print. Do not send negatives or slides. We try but cannot promise to return your photographs.

We think lots of great photographs — yours and ours — help the Cohasset Mariner report on all the goings on about town.

letters

To the Editor:

"...Chills upon the fretful Greenbush line."

Reading the recent Coastal Coalition ad in this paper, I was reminded of the lines from Hamlet, Act I:

"I could a tale unfold whose lightest word
Would harrow up thy soul, freeze thy young blood,
Make thy two eyes like stars start from their spheres,
Thy knotted and combined locks to part,
And each particular hair to stand on end
Like quills upon the fretful porcupine."

In reality, though, the ad resembles a circus poster more than Shakespeare, using big letters to scare people when the logic and the facts don't hold up to close inspection.

When you look at the literature these people crank out, it's important to read between the lines and realize their real agenda: their campaign is driven, I believe, by selfishness and city-phobia, and all the wailing about taxes and the imagined demise of the commuter boat (no MBTA plan provides for ending commuter boat service) is just window dressing.

On exiting the Hingham High School after voting a few weeks ago, I encountered a Coalition member distributing literature. I asked her what objections she had to the train returning, and her first words were, "It'll bring the wrong kind of people." This same dire prediction of the downfall of our towns has appeared before on anonymous flyers distributed in Cohasset. My informant would not be more explicit about just who the "wrong kind of people" are, but I'm pretty sure they're not Eskimos.

All of the issues raised in the ad have been thoroughly discussed and addressed in the course of the last ten years, during which I have served on the Citizens' Advisory Committee for all three Old Colony rail restorations. In April the CAC achieved consensus in supporting the rail restoration alternative with a short tunnel through Hingham. This was a remarkable achievement in view of the deep division that had existed between tunnel advocates and those like myself who felt that no tunnel was necessary. Back on Track also supports the construction of this tunnel as being least disruptive to the merchants in Hingham Square and their genuine concerns about the effects of restored rail service on their livelihoods.

Now let's examine some of the statements made in the Coalition's ad: it says that train fares cover only a portion of operating and maintenance expenses. The same is true of the highways, of course. In any case, our taxes have been paying for other communities' commuter rail service for years; it's time we got ours. The ad also says that Braintree had to pay for the privilege of having the train; but Braintree does not have the train yet — it has the Red Line, which is rapid transit, and a large parking garage. There is no logical connection to the Greenbush situation.

The train route is alleged to be a result of the "engines not having power for hills." In fact, anyone laying out a railway will pick the flattest terrain available to reduce operating costs, no matter how powerful the locomotives. Reference is made to a "double decker, high speed train...charging through wetlands and marshes;" why is the idea of a "double decker" (only the coaches, of course, with their air-cushioned ride and air conditioning) so terrifying, I wonder? As for "high speed," our commuter trains get up to 60 mph, just a crawl when you think of modern trains running at 200 mph every day in Europe and Japan.

Noise: "Decibel levels will reach 115 decibels," we read, but where? Noise barrier walls become targets for graffiti only if (1) they exist in the first place and (2) they offer large smooth surfaces for "artists." When rail service returns, towns should carefully consider if such walls are really needed; if they are, a rough, rocky surface will discourage the sprayers.

No one has ever suggested eliminating the commuter boats; appropriately priced, they can continue to serve those who live and work close to the terminals. Others will prefer to ride the train, especially from Cohasset and points south, after parking in the commuter rail lots.

Feeder buses can serve both the commuter rail stations and the boat pier. But any suggestion that an oddball scheme involving buses that run on the streets and then enter a fixed guideway to run down the middle of Route 3 completely ignores the fact that it snows a great deal more here than in Germany or Australia. Not only the impracticality of keeping such a system running in all weather but the far smaller capacity and inferior comfort of buses compared to trains rule out this scheme.

The "79 percent of the South Shore workforce who do not work in Boston" will find the roads clearer of traffic when those who do go to Boston have taken the train rather than clogging local roads on their way to Route 3, leaving cars behind instead of their exhaust.

Coalition meets June 15

Signs "Progress Yes — Train No" or "Train = Taxes" urging people to sign a petition, represent the position of the Coastal Coalition, a citizens' group who favor expanded and improved bus and water tranportation as opposed to the train.

Signatures on a petition to be presented to Gov. Weld are being collected at Carousel Antiques, Strawberry Parfait, Cohasset Hardware, Nothin' More Natural, and French Memories.

The public is invited to a Coalition meeting at 8 p.m. June 15 at the Chart House. Parking is limited, please walk or car pool.

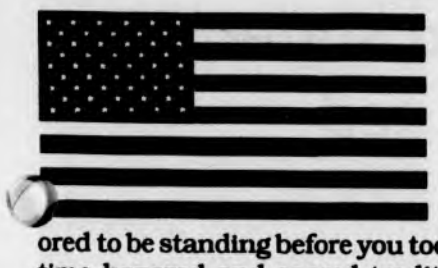
Do not let soldiers' stories die



(Capt. Daniel Brennock gave the following address during Cohasset's Memorial Day observance.)

I am deeply honored to be standing before you today joining you in this time honored and sacred tradition that is Memorial Day. I remember that as a young boy I marched many times in this parade (very much like my son Christopher did today) beside a proud father and his equally proud friends and fellow veterans. There was and still is a certain closeness and mutual respect shared among them even though their lives have taken many different turns over the many years. But the one common bond in their lives that draws them together is their service to country. But the fraternity is not a closed one, for the George Mealey Post continues to attract and accept past and present members of the armed services. But let me say that the service to their country as parents, grandparents and in many cases great-grandparents is not over.

Each of you with your families has a history to share, an important history. Some have ancestors who fought in the Civil War and World War I and maybe even earlier in our nation's history. All of you were a part of the era that has most recently shaped our world: World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Grenada, Panama and Desert Storm. But, irrespective of when you served, you all have a history that includes service that defines the character of the American Spirit.

Today I want to share some history with you. History I learned from books and by attending classes I'm now completing at the Naval War College. I am not going to talk about the great generals or admirals such as Grant, Lee, Pershing, Patton, Eisenhower, MacArthur, Nimitiz, Puller and Schwartzkopf, for their stories are well chronicled. They were all extraordinary leaders. But as my father often reminds me, it's the young men and women, the young soldiers and sailors and Marines who do the fighting and build the character of our nation.

In May of 1864 during the Battle of the Wilderness in Virginia, the Union Army had bravely charged through the confederate lines of General Lee. He knew in order to save his Army he needed a swift, daring and decisive counterattack. He decided to lead the desperate charge himself but General Gordan, realizing Lee's intentions grasped the bridle of Lee's horse and checked him. General Gordan said, "General Lee, you shall not lead my men in a charge. Another is here for that purpose. These men behind you are Georgians, Virginians and Carolinians. They have never failed you on any field. They will not fail you here. Will you boys?" In unison they called, "No, no, no; we'll not fail him!" With that, General Gordan ordered General Lee, "You must go the rear." The soldiers did not fail him. They came from good stock.

This story could be about any war. It could be about the American servicemen in the trenches of World War I, the Marines on Guadalcanal and Iwo Jima and the sailors and pilots of the Battle of Midway. The same story could also be written about Inchon in Korea and Hamburger Hill in Vietnam. It could also be about the men on the Normandy coast, nearly 50 years ago today on June 6th in 1944, D-Day. They too, no.....you too! did not fail against near impossible odds whether assaulting the beaches as a part of the 5th or 7th corps of parachuting into the darkness as a member of the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions or as a ranger climbing the cliffs of France. Now it was not Georgians and Virginians, it was Americans under the leadership of Generals Eisenhower and Bradley that charged the beaches of Omaha and Utah. They came from good stock.

Earlier, as I listed the names of famous generals and admirals, I included the name of General Lewis B. Puller, Sr., "Chesty" Puller, whose heroism in the Pacific during World War II and Korea made him the most decorated Marine in history. This morning I want to talk about another Marine, Lewis P. Puller Jr., his son, his fortunate son.

I recently served for three years in the Pentagon. One afternoon on a Saturday I was shopping at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, when I came upon this man I as yet didn't know. He was in a wheelchair. He had no legs, his hands were badly damaged, he sat erect. Six months later I saw a picture of the same man in the Washington Post. He had written his autobiography and specifically about his experiences in Vietnam as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He had left for Vietnam when his wife was expecting their first child. He was only in the country three months when leading his platoon on patrol he stepped on a land mine, vaporizing his legs.

His book tells of returning home, his healing of his physical wounds and his battle with alcoholism. Lewis Puller did not blame his father for setting an impossible standard, he did not blame his country for sending him to an unpopular war, he did not blame the enemy that planted the treacherous landmine that cut him in half. No, Lewis Puller simply healed himself with the help of his family and friends. In his Pulitzer Prize-winning book Fortunate Son: The Healing of a Vietnam Vet, he wrote about his part in the war, "My role in it had been as honorable as circumstances would permit. I had not performed perhaps as well as my father might have; but I had done the best I could, and it was time to move on to new challenges."

Lewis went on to become a lawyer and worked in the Pentagon until recently. Several times I saw him wheeling about the Pentagon, always in a hurry. He also ran for public office. He fought the toughest battle of his life after Vietnam and was winning until May 11 of this year when the war finally beat him. Two days ago I read that in his final days he was raising funds for a Vietnamese elementary school. The country of Vietnam will name the school after Lewis Puller Jr. He could not go back to Vietnam as other veterans have returned to Germany, Italy, Korea. You see we Americans have the virtue of forgiveness. We don't forget, we must not forget, but we do forgive. We come from good stock.

These are just a few stories. There are thousands more. There are stories of bravery, of heroism, of compassion, of camaraderie. There are painful stories and there are stories that will make us cry with laughter. You, the veterans of foreign wars, the others, the widows, the children of servicemen and servicewomen who could not be with us today, know these stories. I implore you to not let these stories of character, American character and spirit fade away.

Today, as you partake in the usual picnics and family traditions, take a moment to remember those men and women who have served their country with honor and dignity by passing down just one story. We must not let our story die. We come from good stock. Yes, we come from good stock.

Thank you and God bless.

Cohasset turns out for Memorial Day observances

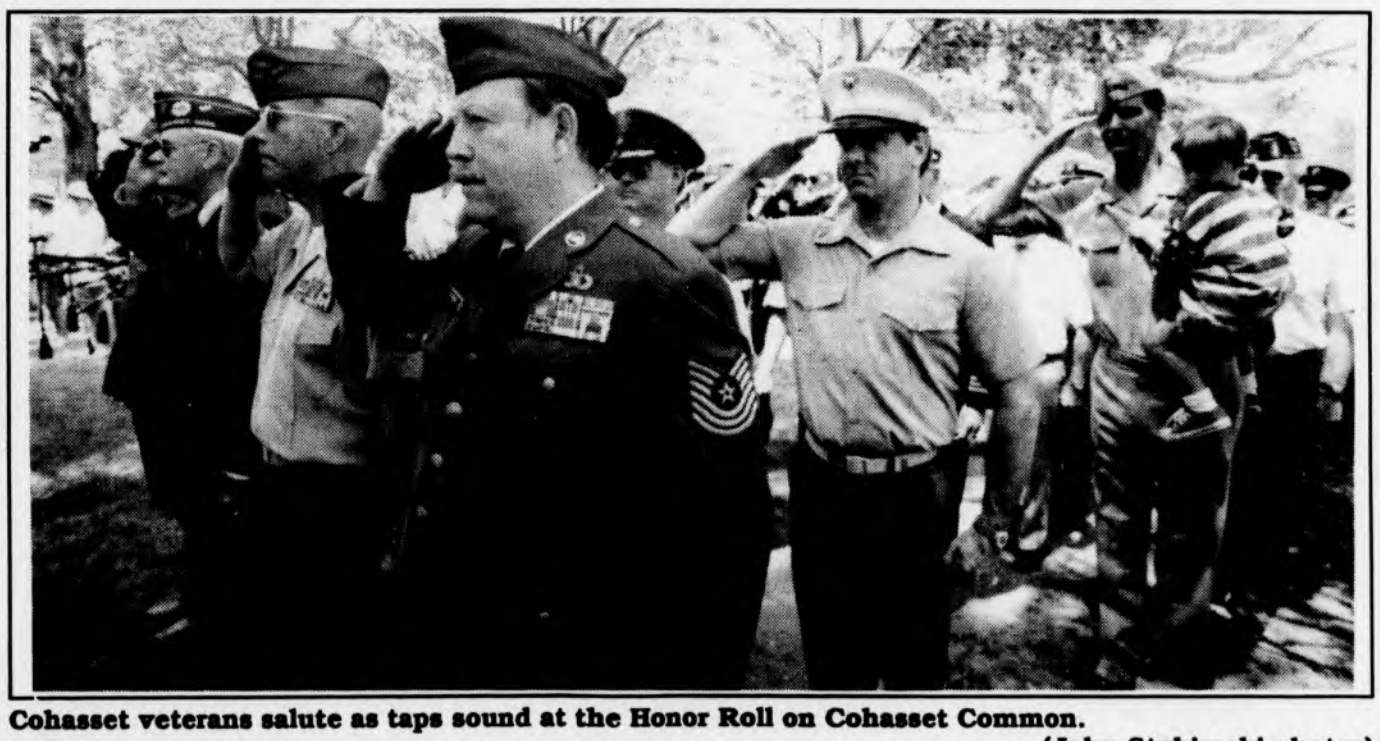
The parade, sponsored by the George H. Mealy American Legion Post #118 and the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #9163, made its first stop at Central Cemetery where a prayer was offered, followed by a 21-gun salute and the playing of "Taps". The formation then moved on to the Common where another ceremony took place before reaching its destination at the Veteran's Memorial Park. The route was lined with town members who came out to pay tribute to the fighting men. With so many allegations of growing apathy in American culture, the marchers found it uplifting to see the number of spectators, both young and old, who applauded and cheered them as they went past. In fact, many members of the crowd joined the procession to the park.

Sheila Barrow and sons Ryan, 4, and Cory, 2, watch the parade in Cohasset.



Cohasset veterans salute as taps sound at the Honor Roll on Cohasset Common.
(John Stobierski photos)

Early along the route, James Leonard, a marching veteran, collapsed from an apparent heart attack and had to be taken to the hospital in an ambulance. Leonard was remembered through prayers in the following ceremonies.

Capt. Brennock, who appeared as the guest speaker at the Memorial Park ceremony, pointed to Leonard as an example of the American spirit in his speech. He spoke of the stock Americans are made of and called for everyone to forgive the enemies of the wars fought, but not forget the people in them and the purpose behind them.

Brennock is a native of Cohasset and remembers marching along side his father in the Memorial Day parade of past years, much as his son marched with him this year. He joined the Navy in 1973, earned his Wings of Gold as a pilot in 1974 and has completed several tours around the world. He most recently completed a three-year tour at the Pentagon and is anticipating graduation in mid-June from the Naval War College where he will continue to work.

Although Capt. Brennock, his wife and three children live in Rhode Island, he still feels the ties of his Cohasset heritage and, when asked to speak at the parade, jumped at the opportunity. His speech was greeted with lengthy applause from the audience, who obviously found it moving, bringing to life the reality of what those marching in the parade and those who are not with us any longer experienced and did for their country.

The day closed with the reading of a poem and the symbolic tossing of flowers into the ocean by a group of approximately 30 young girls. But, although the ceremonies of the day were completed, the meaning of the day and the emotions brought out by the pageantry remained with the crowd, especially those young children who attended the procession and may take part in future ceremonies.

Supt. Hart gets top marks

(A copy of the following press release was provided to the Cohasset Mariner for publication.)

The school committee recently evaluated Supt. Stephen Hart's performance for the 1992-93 school year.

This performance evaluation is a result of a compilation of responses from every school committee member based on their assessment of the achievement of Steve Hart's goals and objectives for the 1992-93 school year. The school committee again is very pleased with Hart's performance as superintendent for 1992-93. Some of the areas listed below deserve special recognition, as well as some areas that need continued monitoring.

Areas of commendation:

1. Capital budget items revised appropriately.
2. Schools generally well maintained.
3. Outreach to the community is strengthening, with Osgood newsletters, in-service newsletter and Mariner articles. Outreach to community re: better and more use of facilities has been effective.
4. Hart continues to improve on goal-setting, both individual and school-wide.
5. Hart exhibits good leadership in curriculum review.
6. Important contribution as a member of the local C.E.F. and the South Shore Collaborative.
7. Excellent job in helping to negotiate the teacher's contract. Knowledgeable of the issues, thorough in his preparation and in documenting the process to avoid confusion.
8. Communicates well with the school committee.
9. Strong leader with tact and diplomacy, exhibiting good judgment, especially in difficult situations.
10. Excellent job of juggling all the many "balls" thrown at him.
11. Excellent job negotiating the adoption and implementation of the new evaluation instrument.

Areas for continued monitoring:

1. Ability grouping.
2. Continued community outreach every year.
3. Implementation of the evaluation instrument.
4. Follow up on the curriculum/department reviews.
5. Yearly submission of data to support long range planning.

The school committee commended Hart for his ability to deal with multiple and complex issues, always with tact and forthrightness. It is in part because of Hart's consistent good work that the Cohasset community continues to support the school system.

Movable ramp available

The Cohasset Commission on Disabilities has donated a movable ramp to the town. It is stored at the fire station for use by any resident. Inquiries about the ramp can be directed to the commission at the town hall or the fire department.

Anti-train statements are disputed

(See page 10)

Our senators and representatives, the selectmen of the Greenbush towns, and the majority of the voters in recent referenda have sent Governor Weld the clear message: "We want the train, and we want it now." The long and expensive environmental impact study process has competently addressed the points just being raised now by the Coastal Coalition, so late in the day, as if they had just been discovered. I don't know where they've been, but our organization has been working for a decade to get Greenbush trains

Ambulance staff appreciated

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Cohasset Fire Department and most especially the ambulance staff that assisted transporting me to South Shore Hospital after my fall May 14.

Their prompt response and professional handling of the situation is much appreciated.

'New' dealership looks great

To the residents of Cohasset:

I would like to congratulate Don Stasko on the great job that he has done on the two pieces of business properties that he owns on Cushing Highway, especially the job that he has done at the old Spensley Chevrolet now known as South Shore Chevrolet.

It's worth a ride by just to see what a wonderful job he has done on he landscaping at South Shore Chevrolet as well as the Stop & Shop Plaza that he owns.

Great job Don!!

Lightkeepers says thanks

Joe McElroy, president of the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corp. wrote to selectmen to thank the many town officials and employees who made the dedication of the Minot Ledge Lighthouse Keepers' Residence such a great day.

"We particularly appreciate the vote of Selectmen and Advisory Board in supporting the recommendation to re-pave the Ed Young Lot and the Border St. access road. Harold Litchfield and the Highway Department as well as Peter Laugelle and the Tree & Park Department did their usual superb jobs," he said.

McElroy also noted that Jack Worley and the Recreation Department made it possible for the South Shore Concert Band to participate in the festivities, May 15.

"Cohasset is a great town," he said.

'Close knit' class of 1994 to graduate

SAT, she said.

Graduation exercises get underway at 1:30 p.m. (June 5) rain or shine under the big top at the South Shore Music Circus.

The traditional program includes addresses by the Sarah Atherton, class president; Christa Ansbergs and Anne Lindgren, salutatorians; and Courtney Schultz, valedictorian.

Gallagher will hand out the awards and schools Supt. Stephen Hart will present the class for graduation. School Committee Chairman Nancy Sandell will award the diplomas.

Nearly 90 percent of the graduates will go on to college. A sampling of the colleges that this year's seniors have been accepted at include: Boston University, Bowdoin College, Denison University, Holy Cross College, MIT, Penn State, Trinity College, the University of Colorado/Boulder, and Villanova University.

Cruise for scholars

Four scholarships, derived from money from ticket sales to the "Helping Hand" Sunset Dance Cruise, will be presented to graduating seniors this evening at Class Night. This community service scholarship is an attempt to recognize the whole person, those individuals who have given back to the community. Individuals who we can be proud to say come from Cohasset.

Combine a good time and a good cause Saturday June 11. This year's "Helping Hand" fund-raiser aboard the privately chartered 197' Provincetown II will depart Pemberton Pier in Hull and features three live bands on three separate decks during the 9 p.m. to midnight sailing.

Tickets may be purchased for $25 per person at the Community Center, the Community Center Nursery School, the Second Congregational Church, from Rose Collins at the girl's softball league, from Grace Evans at the Scituate/Cohasset Newcomer's Club, at Milliken Field during Saturday soccer games or be sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to "Helping Hand," 60 Hillside Dr., Cohasset 02025.

For group ticket sale delivery call Mike Dinsmore at 383-6816.

The main deck will feature "The Swingin' Johnsons" playing oldies that every husband will surely want to dance to.

"The Susan Tedeschi Band," fronted by three women on vocals, lead guitar and harmonica, will set the second deck on fire with their red hot blues.

The intimate, romantic cabaret deck will have "Frank Shooshan and his Friends" set the mood for the rest of the evening with cool jazz.

In addition to scholarship aid, money raised from the cruise will enhance education at the Osgood, Deer Hill and junior/senior high school as well as benefit projects and organizations engaged in social well-being throughout the town.

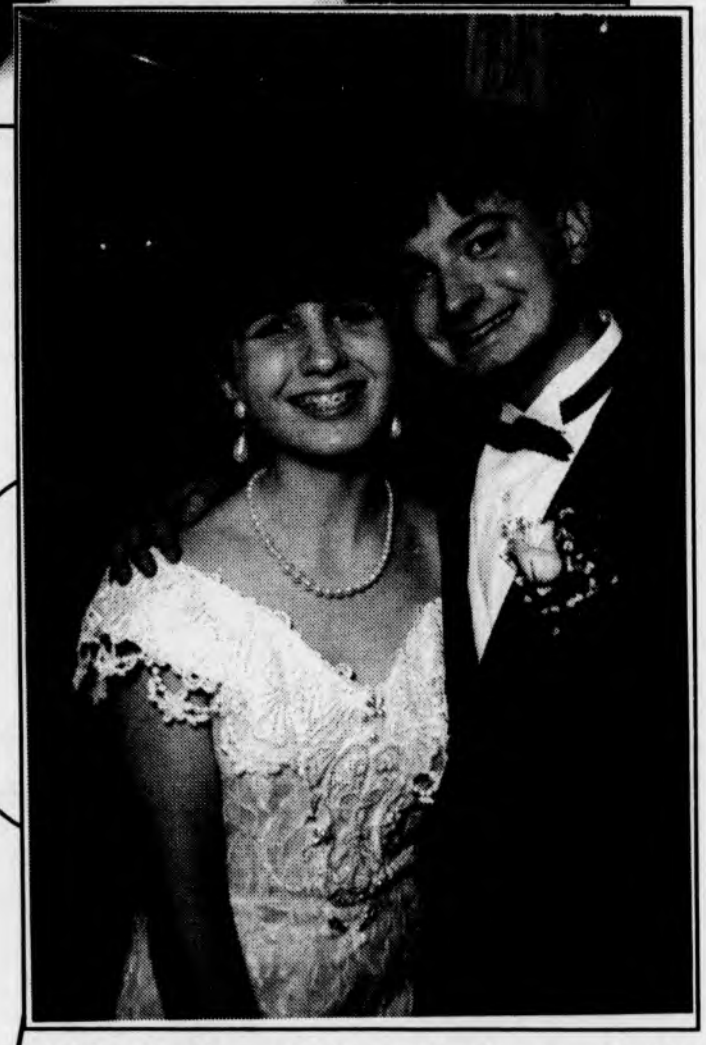
Cohasset High School seniors hold pre-prom show at South Shore Art Center

The guys sure are looking handsome. This year's prom was held at the Marriott Long Wharf in Boston.

Simone Carlisle and Anthony Green are all dressed up for the occasion.



Heather Proctor and Jeremy Begley pose for the Mariner lenses. Ninety-nine percent of the senior class went to the prom last week.

Scott Theriault and his prom date Jen Vanderpool make a smashing couple.

This good looking Cohasset High dude arrives at the South Shore Art Center for the pre-prom photo session.

Sara Belson, Ashley Heilner, Jamilah Afshar, Mindy Cheel, and Jill DuMoulin are looking lovely.

Hagerty boat house may be home for Maritime Institute

By Sean Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

The Hagerty Committee met last week to discuss potential uses of the two-acre town-owned property off Parker Ave.

The property was the site of Cohasset Colonials by Hagerty, a well-known furniture manufacturing company. Prior to beginning the production of furniture, Hagerty was a manufacturer of rowing shells and skiffs.

The site had contained about seven buildings until recently when all but three of the structures were demolished. The three structures that were not destroyed are the Victorian house which housed the offices and showroom, the sheet-me'al structure known as the cutting room, and the old lightkeepers' boat house which was moved from Government Island. The boat house was originally used to launch lifeboats.

According to committee members, it was agreed at the recent meeting to recommend to selectmen that the boat house be turned over to a local rowing group for at least the next year. The group, known as the Cohasset Maritime Institute, will be headed up by teacher Jack Buckley. The group will be comprised of adults and children and will operate in accordance with a four-point plan submitted to the Hagerty Committee by Buckley.

The group must move go through certain administrative procedures with the town in order to rent the boat house from the town for a token amount of money.

Preliminary plans announced at the Hagerty committee's meeting indicated that the committee would carry out certain stabilizing construction measures on the boat house. The Cohasest Maritime Institute will then perform the necessary cosmetic work to the property.

"The group will maintain the historical appearance of the boat house and will not change it to any major degree," said Hagerty committee member Hamilton Tewksbury.

At this point, plans to possibly move the boat house back to Government Island have been rejected in light of concerns about finding an appropriate location for it and the fact that the move may be cost prohibitive.

One of the biggest questions which still remains about the site is the use of the showroom building. According to members of the committee, the issue was discussed at the recent meeting but no unanimous recommendation could be agreed upon. At the present time, it appears that the committee should reach agreement within the next month or so on a recommendation. The first of two proposed uses which the committee is focusing on involves leasing the property to a management company for a term of about five years to oversee the leasing and maintenance of the property for use as office space. The second proposed use would involve the town retaining the use of the first floor as a meeting room and leasing the other two floors as office space.

In either case, the house would not be used for residential purposes. The committee is split on whether the town should remain in control of management of the building or if it would be more desirable to a allow a management company to handle the day-to-day operations.

Finally, the committee will recommend that the cutting room remain for another year to be used by the town harbormaster and for related activities. The committee may recommend that the structure be torn down at a later date if a consensus can be reached among committee members.

Plans were discussed at previous committee meetings for using the property for an improved boat launching ramp area, a park area for picnics and harbor viewing and for the construction of a wooden walkway to Government Island. This type of use for the property is still being actively developed and considered.

Bands to Rock 'n Row for boathouse repairs

June 11, the Alternative School at Cohasset High School will hold its third annual Rock 'n Row fundraising concert. This year the money raised will go towards the restoration of Cohasset's historic boat house situated on the newly-acquired "Hagerty" property. This year's concert has a new, exciting venue, the South Shore Music Circus. Bands Amplexus, Chaotic Utopia, and Fun in the Kitchen will be providing the music for the show. Tickets are 5$ at the door and 4$ in advance. Show time is 4 p.m., Saturday, June 11.

Alternative School students have been actively involved in the rowing-maritime program. Money raised in years past has gone towards the restoration of the John Warren II. Like many other activities in Alt School, this year's Rock 'n Row has been planned out primarily by students with the help of a few teachers. The new "Hagerty" property has aroused a feeling of excitement among the enthusiastic students in Alt School.

Alt School student Brendan Kinchla says, in a letter which he wrote to Cohasset's selectmen, "By turning the Hagerty property into a boat house for the John Warren II, it would no longer be a problem taking the boat out of the water in the winter time...The boat house would solve this problem and the room (in the high school) where the boat was stored could be put to better use."

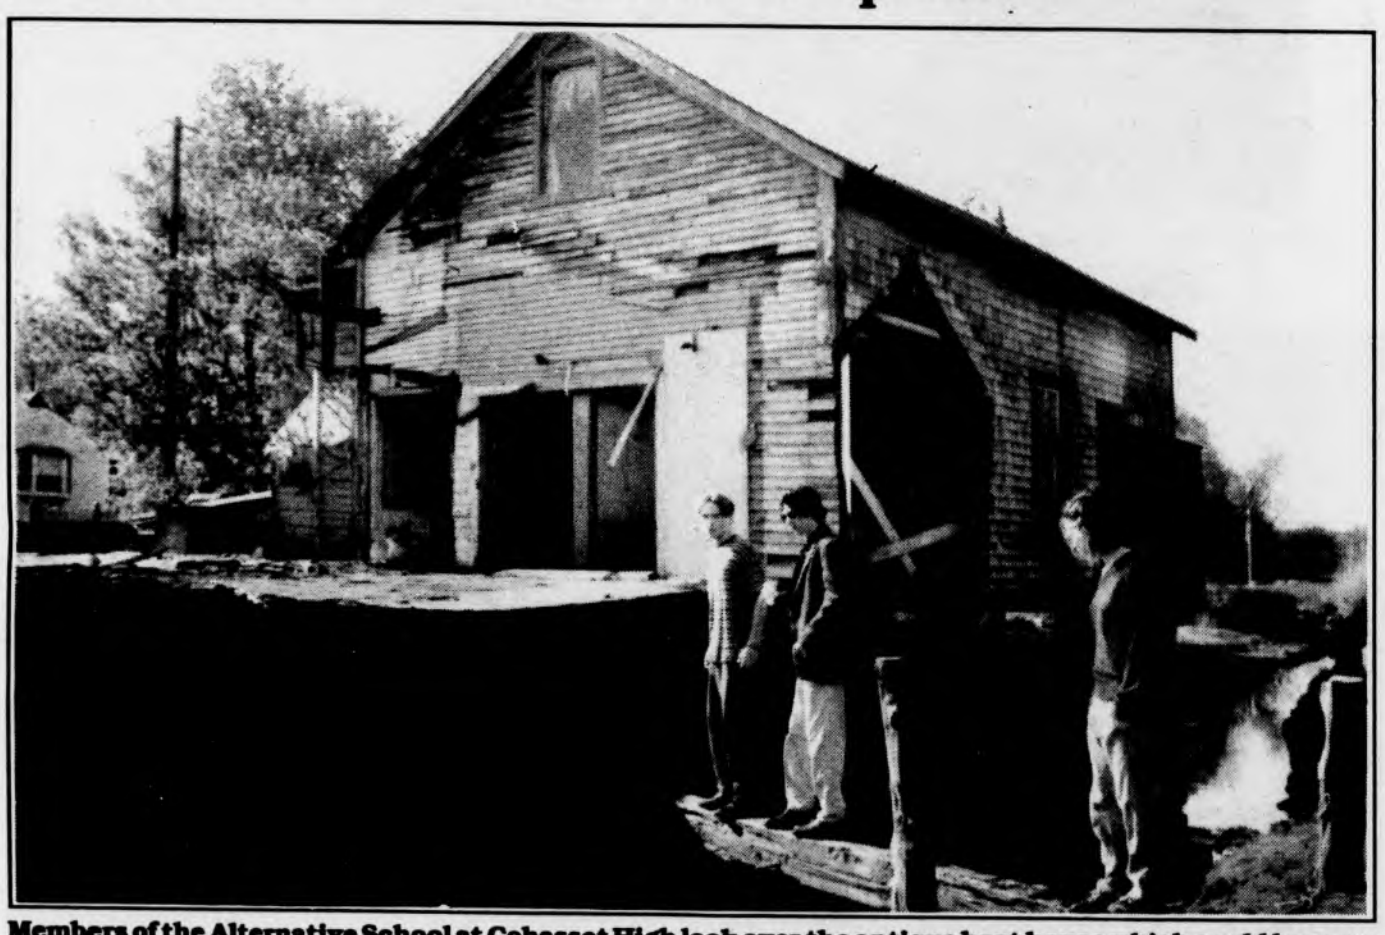
Other members of the Alternative School also wrote letters with similar messages. Christine McMackin writes, "The Alternative School has poor ventilation... and heavy use of chemicals caused many members of the Alt. School, including myself, to become sick. Having the boat in our classroom is a health problem that needs to be addressed. A local boat house would offer a solution to this problem.'

Simone Carlisle sees even greater possibilities. "A boat house here in Cohasset, meant for the community, could employ high school students for the summer, and teach about Cohasset's environment (water quality) and history of boating, which would not only be good for teenagers, but for adults and younger kids, too."

Renee Prisble also sees community benefits to restoring the boat house, "I think a building at the Hagerty site would be beneficial for the whole community as well as the high school."

Kevin O'Donnell, in his letter to Cohasset's selectmen, pointed out another important factor, "In addition to these positive characteristics of the rowing program, the town of Cohasset has a historic connection to the traditional surfboats like the John Warren II. The building of the America's first life-saving boat house is an important and unique characteristic of Cohasset's identity as a New England town!"

So come on out to the Music Circus June 11 at 4 p.m. to see some great bands and to support the CHS maritime program. For more information call the high school at (617) 383-6100.



Members of the Alternative School at Cohasset High look over the antique boat house which could become home for the Maritime Institute. Be sure to support the concert June 11 to raise money for the restoration of the boat house.

Coughlin brings work ethic to Jacksonville

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

The quarterback of the N.F.L. expansion club, the Jacksonville Jaguars, is still more than a year before calling his first set of downs. But the new general manager/head coach has been busy since the beginning of the year preparing to build the Jaguars into a playoff contender as soon as possible.

And no one from New England will doubt for a second that if any man can get the Florida squad into playoff contention, Tom Coughlin is the one to do it.

Coughlin, who will be forever remembered as the great motivator behind B.C.'s huge 41-39 upset of Notre Dame, was the guest speaker at last Wednesday night's Ninth Annual Medallion Club Dinner at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham.

The dinner raises funds to support ND's sports teams and drew close to 150 people. Boston Globe sports columnist Will McDonough served as the master of ceremonies at the dinner and has been, what Director of Development Mary Anne Jackson called "the driving force" behind securing well-known sports personalities to attend the dinner.

Past speakers include Bill Parcells, Carl Yastrzemski, Bob Costas, Sean McDonough and Red Auerbach. McDonough asked Coughlin last Octo-lacrosse power and it showed in the early-going when the Tigers got off series after series of crisp passes leading to goals.

"We had ten kids on the field and for the first ten minutes we were applauding every goal they got," said Cohasset head coach Ken Ekberg shortly after the game ended. "I think their chances in the tournament are excellent. I wouldn't bet too much on another team."

The Tigers wasted little time in taking it to the Skippers, who appeared jittery during much of the first period. Midfielder Mike Engel took a pass from Alex Weber and put NN's first shot of the game past Cohasset goalie Brandon DeVoe on the left side, just 24 seconds into the contest.

NN then went up 2-0 with 1:05 gone when Todd McNamara found the back of the Skippers' net.

The hard-checking Tiger squad forced Cohasset to turn the ball over several time in the opening minutes and were able to convert many of its possessions into goals.

The Skippers, though, had spurts throughout the game where they were successful in matching the faster, bigger NN team.

Both teams come from the same mold, only on a different size level. Like Cohasset, the Tigers' program starts in the seventh grade, giving future varsity players a headstart perfecting their skills on the field and getting used to playing one another.

With NN the overwhelming favorite, Kahan dug for some advantage the Skippers might have over the Tigers. The only one he could come up with was the fact NN had a preliminary-round bye, while Cohasset played its opening tourney game just two days earlier — an 8-7 win over Marblehead.

That one supposed advantage didn't play into the scheme of the game with the Tigers dominating from the start, rarely letting their guard down throughout.

Cohasset's Chris Adams, the team's leader in total points this season, was the first of the Skippers to throw some checks of his own. Cohasset slowly began to position themselves better on defense after falling behind 5-0.

Matt Belson and John Lacks pressured NN's attacks toward the end of the first period and the Skippers slowly began to ease the Tigers' onslaught against DeVoe.

The Tigers scored two more times on shots DeVoe had no chance against due to NN's lightning-fast passing and the score was 7-0.

Cohasset, however, showed the talent that garnered them a tournament berth when junior midfielder Ben Redfield broke up a play and raced down the left side of the field. He passed off to Adams behind the net with less than 10 seconds remaining in the first period. Adams wheeled around from the back and whipped a low shot past Tiger goalie Steve Brandt with two seconds left.

After Engel scored on a wicked shot 40 seconds into the second period the score remained the same with both teams being denied one after another by DeVoe and Brandt.

Co-captain Charlie Endris was robbed of a goal on a point-blank shot on Brandt, but the NN goaltender couldn't get to Brett MacQuarrie's unassisted goal at the 10:30 mark.

Cohasset was able to ward off two minutes worth of NN's pressure in their end in the third quarter, but after the Skippers moved the ball down the field and Redfield just missed adding his second goal, the Tigers struck again at 6:33, upping the score to 9-2.

DeVoe, who will attend Rowan College in the fall as the lacrosse team's No. 1 recruit, made a superb save through traffic, but the rebound bounced to captain Brandon Doyle on the left side, who easily tapped it home.

Cohasset scored once more late in the fourth period on, what had to be, the prettiest goal of the game.

Trailing 15-2 with 2:23 left and the contest long since decided, Adams fired a pass to Ken Leahy, who timed it perfectly and whipped his shot past Brandt the second he had possession.

The Norwell High girls' track team won yet another Class D title over the weekend at Weston High.

It makes ten straight seasons for the Lady Clippers as Norwell edged out second place Scituate by a 59 to 47.5 final.

The Lady Clippers also kept their 100-plus dual meet winning streak intact during the regular season as they won the South Shore League title again.

However this year had to be one of the most trying.

First of all, the Lady Clippers had a new coach, Chuck Martin.

Martin, a former all-scholastic cross country runner, replaced NHS track legend Bob Littlefield, who left the Norwell school system to become a principal in Rhode Island.

Second, the Lady Clippers missed one of their best performers, Cristin Napier, for the entire season due to a knee injury.

Napier, one of the top sprinters, jumpers and hurdlers in the area, tore up her knee during soccer season and did not recover sufficiently to compete this spring at her usual top level.

In addition, all-star high jumper Meghan Prentiss did not compete in the Class D meet last weekend because she is away on a nature expedition before heading off to college.

Asked what having those two healthy and competing would have meant to the team, Martin said, "About 30 points. With those two, we would have been in much better shape. But there was still enough talent to take the title."

Some of Norwell's talent includes Jessica Lincoln, Cathy Devine and Sara Hurley, who had standout meets for the Lady Clippers.

Hurley won the long jump and was on the second place 4 X 100 relay team.

Her long jump win was Norwell's only first place of the meet.

Lincoln was third in the 200, fourth in the triple jump and also ran on the relay team.

Devine took third place in the 400 and was also on the relay team.

"We won the title with a lot of depth and I'm very pleased for the players," Martin said. "It wasn't easy for us."

The Norwell High girls' track team has stood for excellence for the last decade.

It may be a long time before another sports program is this successful.

Several parents and fans of the Cohasset lacrosse team were more than a Cohasset High lacrosse fans were more than a little irritated after traveling to Newton North to cheer the Skippers on in Saturday's 15-3 loss to defending state champion Newton North in the first round.

And for good reason.

Voices of frustration and anger could be heard from the Cohasset contingent because it was forced by the referees to stay well back from the sidelines, making it virtually impossible for the players' parents and friends to see the action at the other end of the field.

Giants continue their winning ways

By Robby Carpenter
Special to the Mariner

The league-leading Giants have been having a great season. Led by Eric "Dinger" Belz, Courtney "Watch Out Boys" Caron, Robby "Hit Dog" Carpenter, Andrew "Smasher" Sullivan and Philip "The Bases" Strazzulla, the Giants have put together an outstanding record. Defensive highlights have included a golden glove performance by Michael "Fastball" Devine, robbing the Reds of a sure home run, and an unassisted double play by the "Hit Dog." Steven "It Ain't Over Till Its Over" Davis gave the Giants their most exciting moment this year when he hit a home run with two outs and two strikes in the bottom of the last inning to tie the Cubs. Drew "Gusto" Musto matched this feat on Monday when he singled in the tying run against the Reds in the bottom of the sixth with two outs. The Giants have gotten impressive defensive support from Laura "Play Ball" Genello, Nick "Slick" Barnes, Doug "Clutch" Pearce and David "Killer" Kupsc. Coaches Steve "Never Stop At Third" Sullivan, Joel "The Ref" Carpenter and Jay "Songbird" Caron are proud of the progress the scrappy Giants have made this year.

1994 Cohasset Firefighters Dodgers

The Dodgers are in the process of rebuilding this year. The Dodgers have reached the league championship game the last three year, won the regular season championship twice and won the overall championship last year, finishing the season 20-0.

This year, the Dodgers team has eight new players. Veterans from last year's team are Greg O'Keefe, Adam Leahy, Sean Chase and Mark Verrochi.

New members are: Liam and Jari Martin, Catlin and Greg Donovan, Steve Maynard, Andrew Walsh, Kyle Weber and Brian Lewis.

Coaches are Don Roine, Steve Weber and Kevin Lewis.

This year's team gets better and better every game. The team relies on pitchers Greg O'Keefe, Andrew Walsh, Liam Martin, Kyle Weber and Adam Leahy. Brian Lewis and Jari Martin are the team catchers. Infielders are Steve Maynard, Adam Leahy, Andrew Walsh, Kyle Weber, Catlin Donovan, Sean Chase, Mark Verrochi. Playing the outfield are Greg Donovan, Greg O'Keefe and Liam Martin.

The coaching staff is extremely encouraged by the progress of the team and look forward to an exciting season.

Golf tournament set for June 6

Join your friends and tee off for a good cause at South Shore Health and Educational Foundation's fifth annual golf tournament, which will be held June 6 at Cohasset Golf Club. Proceeds from this year's tournament will benefit the expansion of South Shore Hospital's special care nursery, which provides specialized local care to infants who are ill, premature or have medical problems at birth.

Three corporate sponsors have already signed up at the Golden Tee Club level: Purity Services, Advantage Health Corporation and Perini Corporation.

Player sponsorships start at $250 which includes a contribution to a special care nursery, lunch, an afternoon of golf and dinner. Participants will also be eligible for prize drawings.

Although space is filling up fast, corporate and player sponsorship opportunities are still available; for more information, call Jill McDonough, South Shore Health and Educational Foundation at 340-8848.

Girls' night out June 3

Friday, June 3, from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m., come join Ruthann, Susie, George and Gina for a fun-filled evening of bowling, gymnastics, obstacle course and make-your-own hot dogs. Each child receives something for participating. Bowling and obstacle course prizes will be awarded. Girls ages 6-11 may attend. (Sorry 5- and 12-year-olds) No drop ins! Members $13, non-members $15. Limited sign-up. Must be prepaid. For more information call the South Shore Community Center of Cohasset at 383-0088.

Playground volunteers sought

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept applications for volunteer counselors for its summer, 1994 Playground program. Those who may be interested in working on a volunteer basis for a few hours each week, between July 6 and August 19, may call the recreation office at 383-6791 for further information.

The commission's playground program is for children ages 3 through 12. Volunteer services are especially needed with younger age groups of 3- to 7-year-olds. CRD will train volunteers who qualify and have a strong interest in working with children.

Wah Lum Academy to host Taoist master

Saturday and Sunday, June 18 and 19, internationally renowned author and Taoist teacher Mantak Chia will visit Cohasset to teach two workshop courses. Master Chia, founder of the International Healing Tao System and a leading authority on Taoist tradition, has authored 10 books on the subjects of Tao meditation and Chi Kung practices.

His workshops here will require no previous experience and will be open to the public. Curriculums will include an energy channeling meditation and Tai Chi Chi Kung, which is a tai chi chuan short form appropriate for beginner or advanced.

For information on times and cost call Wah Lum Academy Director John Loupos at (617) 383-6822.

Youth Track begins June 6

The South Shore Youth Track Club will hold registration on Monday, June 4 at 6 p.m. at the Norwell High School outdoor track facility.

The track club is sponsored by the Norwell Boosters Club and is open to youths age 7-18 from all South Shore towns.

Practices will be held every Monday and Wednesday from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at Norwell High School starting June 6 through August 3.

The club offers a fun low-key introduction to the sport of track and field. It will not be mandatory to attend all practice sessions.

The club will participate in local youth track meets, the Hersey Games and Junior Olympics competions.

Norwell High school girls' head coach Chuck Martin will be managing and coaching the South Shore Track Club.

In the last six years, Martin has coached five divisional state championship teams and had three state runner-up teams while coaching at Notre Dame Academy and Norwell High School.

Assisting with the club is former NHS track stand-out Alicia Porro, a high school triple jump all-American. She is currently on the track team at Penn State.

South Shore Track Club uniforms will be provided to all participants.

The fee is $50.

Coughlin brings work ethic

ber if he'd attend this year's dinner and he readily agreed.

"I'm very glad to be back (in New England) for a very worthy purpose," Coughlin said.

The former Boston College football coach took the New England football community by surprised when resigned from his position earlier this year after weighing the pros and cons of leaving The Heights for the N.F.L.

He admits it was a difficult decision to make.

"I have great feelings for the guys at Boston College," Coughlin said as he took a break from autographing everything from B.C. paraphernalia to Jacksonville Jaguars caps, which are already on the market.

"Any decision to leave Boston College was very difficult," he continued. "I felt it was a chance of a lifetime that may not come around again."

Coughlin was renown for his strict work ethic while at B.C. He was usually in his office early on Sunday mornings, reviewing the previous day's game, meeting with reporters and doing paperwork.

That hasn't changed since the switch to Jacksonville.

Since taking the job, Coughlin has immersed himself in work, which he expects will take him to the team's opening game in September of '95.

Coughlin said he'll spend the summer evaluating personnel, keep an eye on the free agent market, both restricted and unrestricted, get an idea of who will be in the expansion pool and decide what players can help the club, and determine who will be on his staff.

With his position as general manager, Coughlin has the opportunity to pick his own players and make the trades to help shape the team.

The bottom line for him is that he wants to be competitive with the rest of the N.F.L. as soon as possible.

"Certainly we'd like to be the type of team to compete as soon as possible," Coughlin said.

He also believes he has an obligation to put together a team that will display the "pride, intensity and physical play" to make Jacksonville proud, just as he did at B.C.

Coughlin doesn't believe the transition from coaching at the college level to pro will be that difference. He said both play hard and, to a point, their motivations differ in that players in the N.F.L. earn their living through football.

"I'm not going to change who I am and the way things have to be done," Coughlin said. "No matter what level they're at, there's a level of motivation. They go out there and want to do their best."

We know exactly what Coughlin means, at least those of us who followed B.C. football the past two years.

Prevention can help you beat the heat

By Mary Shinkwin
Special to the Mariner

Though the winter of '94 may never fade from memory, it is indeed behind us. We can now look forward to warmer weather and spending more time outdoors. For those of you planning to exercise in the warm weather, it's important to take note of how heat can affect your body. A basic understanding of heat illnesses and a little foresight can keep you cool during hot-weather workouts.

Your blood transports heat from deep within your body to your skin in all kinds of weather. On cool to warm days, a fair amount of heat is lost directly in the air. When air temperature approaches skin temperature (93°F), however, evaporation of sweat is the most effective cooling mechanism. How well evaporation cools your body depends on the amount of moisture in the air — humidity. High humidity means the air will accept little or no additional water and evaporative cooling is minimal. When air temperature is greater than 80°F, for example, you're at risk for heat illness if the humidity is greater than 50 percent.

Heat can adversely affect you in varying degrees, ranging from a mild headache to life-threatening heatstroke. In the worst situation, your body builds up too much heat, your temperature may rise and you may become delirious or lose consciousness. This is called heatstroke and is a serious medical emergency.

Before your temperature reaches heatstroke levels, however, you may suffer heat exhaustion. With heat exhaustion, your core temperature and heart rate increase, and you may experience exhaustion, dizziness, nausea, headache or shortness of breath. If you have heat exhaustion and continue to exercise, core temperature will continue to rise and our temples may throb, you may feel like your head is on fire, or have chills in your trunk. The threshold of heatstroke varies by individual, but if you continue to exercise you may lose consciousness. Your brain may lose its ability to control body heat and your temperature will keep rising. Unless you receive emergency care, brain injury or death is likely.

If you see anyone showing signs of heatstroke, call an ambulance immediately. For both heatstroke and heat exhaustion, cool the person's body as quickly as possible with ice, a cold shower, a garden hose, wet towels, fans or any available means.

It is critical to recognize signs of heat illness. The real challenge, however, is to recognize that heat illnesses are preventable. An ounce of prevention can not only eliminate a headache or nausea, it can save a life. Be smart. Take measures to reduce your risk.

- Monitor weather conditions and adjust your workout accordingly. Exercise in the coolest part of the day: early morning or after sundown.
- Avoid dehydration. You can sweat out up to two quarts of water per hour. Thirty minutes before exercise, drink as much water as comfortable, up to one pint. Then drink one cup every 10 minutes during your workout. Afterward, drink even if you are not thirsty because you will quench your thirst long before you replenish your body's fluids. Avoid caffeine and alcohol in the heat because you promote water loss.
- Wear loose-fitting clothes that allow air to circulate and expose as much skin as possible to promote sweat evaporation. Light colors are best because they reflect sunlight. Sweat-dampened clothes won't allow evaporation, so change or remove them as soon as practical.
- Restrict hot-weather activity if you are older, markedly overweight, have heart disease or have experienced heat injury, because you are at higher risk.
- Ask your doctor about the effects of any medications you take, as they may decrease heat tolerance.
- Listen to your body. Stop exercising at the first sign of heat illness.

The reason they couldn't see what was happening downfield was because the referees ignored the crowd of Tiger fans, who had a great, unobstructed view of the entire game...right on the sidelines.

With players being knocked out of bounds during a particularly physical game as Saturday's was, it was good judgement on the referees' part to have the fans well away from the playing field to avoid possible injury. But that should have applied to spectators of both teams, state champions or not. I guess home-field advantage applies not only to the team, but to its fans as well.

The future of the Andy Callahan Memorial Road Race has a big question mark surrounding it because of the disappointing turnout of runners for this year's race.

The 19th annual 10K jaunt through the streets of Rockland was moved from Monday to Saturday, with a new starting time of 8 A.M., instead of the previous 1 P.M.

The move appeared to be a good one for several reasons. Runners would avoid the early-afternoon heat, which in some years proved to be unbearable. They also could get a holiday race under their belt without it conflicting to the rest of their Memorial Day weekend plans.

Strangely enough, however, the field remained the same as last year with 206 runners answering the starting gun, compared to 202 in '93.

It would be a shame for Rockland, which has received more than its share of negative press in the past months, to lose one of its most positive and prestigious events. The race has had its glitches in the past, and had a few this year when several runners took a wrong turn. But the race has a crop of loyal sponsors from throughout town and every effort should be made to continue the race.

One alternative would be to change the season in which the race is run, and start it later in the day to help guarantee cool weather. It was obvious, based on this year's race, that runners aren't thrilled with the prospects of a hard 10K so early in the morning.

business notes

■ Gayl and J. Edward Varallo of Cohasset were among seven court reporters providing captioning services for more than 1,000 people attending Assistive Technology '94, a full-day conference of workshops and exhibitions of assistive technology for people with disabilities.

The Varallos used Computer-Aided Realtime Translation technology to instantly translate their stenographic notes into readable English text and flash them onto computer monitors or projection screens. CART technology is being used for conferences, classrooms and computerized courtrooms. It is especially designed to aid deaf and hard-of-hearing people.

■ The DeWolfe Companies, Inc., (NASDAQ:DWLF) recently announced revenue and earnings for the first quarter ended March 31.

The company's 1994 first quarter revenue increased 45 percent to $13,450,000 from $9,269,000 in the first quarter of 1993. Earnings for the first quarter 1994 were $80,000, an increase of 433 percent from $15,000 recorded for the same period in 1993. Earnings per share increased 200 percent to $.03 from $.01 recorded during the first quarter of 1993.

Richard B. DeWolfe, chairman and chief executive officer said, "I am very pleased with our first quarter 1994 results considering the unusually severe weather we experienced and the general business slowdown it created throughout our region. These figures demonstrate that our aggressive growth and productivity goals remain a priority.

"During the three-month period we added 81 sales associates raising the number to 932, up 9 percent from year end, and the number of real estate sales transactions during the first quarter increased to 1884, up 46 percent from 1292 during the first quarter of 1993."

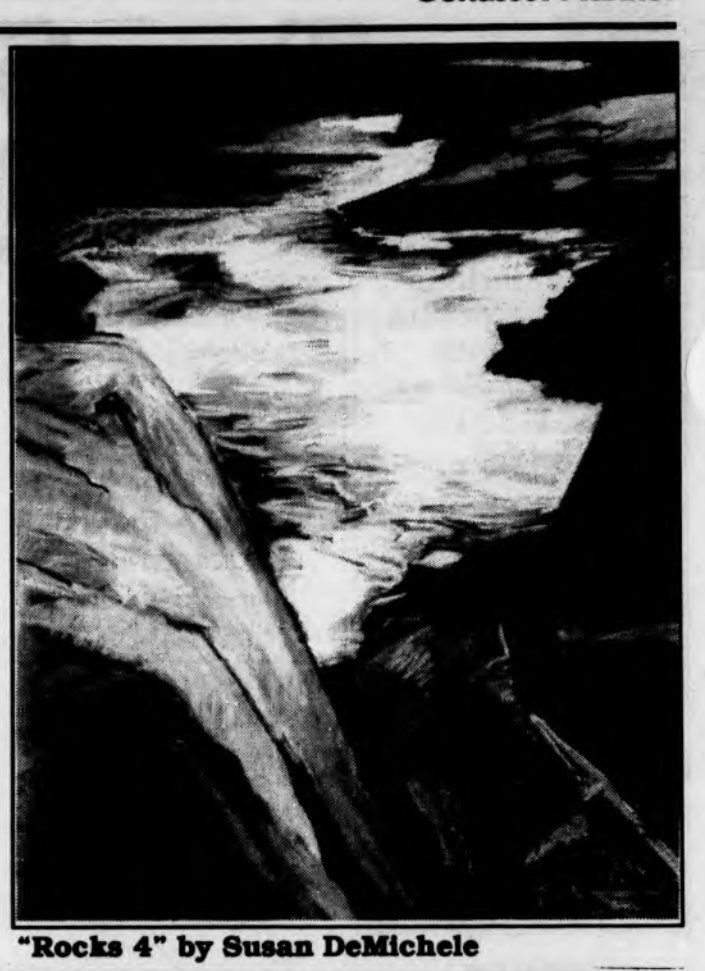
Cohasset artist featured at Newbury Street gallery

Using the shapes of rocks to frame the sky and sea, Susan DeMichele of Jerusalem Road in Cohasset, has developed a series of pastels which focus on the power of these natural forms. Combining the strength of the rocks with the delicacy of their colors, a harmony is created with the ever-changing sea and sky. These compositions of DeMichele's rocks and other landscapes will be seen at the Marlborough Galleries, 165 Newbury Street, along with paintings by Pam Shore, June 9 - 30. Included in this show is the pastel "Rocks 4" which won first prize in drawing at the 1994 All New England Juried Show, South Shore Art Center. Please call the Marlborough Gallery, 267-8350 for more information.



"Rocks 4" by Susan DeMichele

Mammography screening

The Cohasset Social Service League is once again sponsoring the Mobile Diagnostics, Inc. (MDI) mobile mammography service. June 4 (9:15 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.), town hall parking lot.

The mammograms are performed on the fully equipped MDI coach, which is convenient, comfortable, private, and staffed by registered female certified mammographers. The equipment is state-of-the-art low dose mammography unit. The x-rays are read by board certified radiologists, and the results will be sent to you and your physician. This service is accredited by the American College of Radiology. For more information and to schedule your mammogram, call the Cohasset Social Service League at 383-0771.

Country estate benefit

South Shore and Cape residents are invited to "Lion's Head Farm", country estate of Eleanor Gleason Bleakie, 135 Border St., North Scituate, for a cocktail reception to benefit Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts Sunday, June 12, from 5 to 7 p.m.

The Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts is a statewide, non-profit social service, health education and medical service organization whose continuous history dates back to 1928. Mrs. Bleakie added that her mother, Mrs. Hollis Gleason, was an early pioneer in PPLM.

Reservations may be made with committee members, Eleanor Bleakie 545-1637, Polly Logan 383-0031 or 492-0518.

CHS Class of '94 is not afraid to be different

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

The 73 graduates of the Cohasset High Class of 1994 left their high school days behind Sunday following the school's annual commencement.

But judging from the speeches delivered to hundreds of the graduates' friends and family members — the teenagers' academic preparation is only part of the picture. What they learned about being individuals and making choices has prepared them for what lies ahead.

'It is time for us to discover who we really are and what we really want to do.'

— Courtney Schultz, Class valedictorian

In keeping with tradition, Cohasset graduations feature the students themselves. No outside speaker is invited to give the commencement address.

Boring is a word that isn't part of the vocabulary of Class salutatorians Christa Ansbergs and Anne

(See page 11)

Coastal Coalition anti-train signs derailed by town policy

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

The disappearance of political signs espousing the view of the anti-train group around town isn't the result of vandalism.

The town's by-laws do not allow lawn signs unless they advertise the home for lease or sale, work being done at the property such as painting or carpentry, or a home occupation, according to Cohasset Zoning Enforcement Officer Robert Egan.

Egan said he notified Nancy Buckley, a Hingham resident and head of the grass-roots citizens' group Coastal Coalition, that the signs were in violation of the town's by-law.

The signs came down without a fuss, Egan said.

Buckley said a Scituate lawyer who is a member of the Coastal Coalition is looking into the matter and the group has contacted the American Civil Liberties Union to inquire about its civil rights.

The Coastal Coalition did not apply for a permit for the signs, Egan said.

He explained the town has a policy which allows election signs in residential districts for the two weeks before an election. Citizens can obtain permits for up to ten signs. The policy which has been around for years is not covered in the town by-law, he said.

Reservists gather on D-Day

The men hadn't planned to hold their reunion of D-Day, June 6, 1994; it was just coincidental.

But after all was said and done, 18 members of the former 94th Reconnaissance, 302nd Infantry Regiment, gathered Monday at the Red Lion Inn in Cohasset for a reunion.

"Some of us haven't been together for 40 years," said Walter Allen Jr. of Scituate who noted that 10 of the original members had passed away.

Allen and Charles Paulding of Pembroke had organized the event.

Although the evening was planned for fellowship, it was a solemn occasion too as they remembered those who had passed away in their unit and those who died during the landing at Normandy.

Allen said none of the men had been at Normandy on D-Day 50 years ago, but Lt. Col. C. Lee Shackford of Hingham served with the 1st Division after D-Day.

According to Paulding, who is a retired master sergeant, said the reunion was for the men who formed an Army Infantry Reserve unit back in 1949. Some of them were World War II veterans; others later served in the Korean War.

The Reserve unit was on call during the Bay of Pigs, the Berlin Crisis and the war in Vietnam, but it was not called up for active duty.

Dredging summit, June 14

The public is invited to a dredging summit with town, state, and federal officials at 10 a.m., Tuesday June 14 at Bancroft Hall at the Minot Ledge Lightkeepers Residence on Government Island.

The meeting will address trying to obtain money for dredging and any emergency action that may be taken to alleviate the conditions in Cohasset Harbor. Both the outer and inner harbor are in critical need of dredging. The outer harbor channel has become very narrow due to silt buildup. The Army Corps of Engineers sent a survey boat to do soundings and it ran aground. The Coast Guard had to come and move the buoys last fall because they were lying on their sides. Now fishing boats are having problems getting in and out of the harbor at low tide.

For more information about the meeting, call the selectmen's office at 383-9900.

Cohasset's week

Dog banished from town

On the advice of Animal Control Officer William Quigley, selectmen ordered a dog owned by Matthew Fitzpatrick, 60 Pleasant Street, be taken out of town as soon as possible.

Following a dog hearing in February which included testimony from some of Fitzpatrick's neighbors about the dog's aggressive personality, selectmen ordered Fitzpatrick to chain the dog on a run within his fenced yard and that the dog be taken in and out of the house on a leash.

"Should the dog be found running at large off your property, the board will banish him from town," said Executive Secretary Gregory J. Doyon in a March 8 letter to Fitzpatrick.

According to Quigley, May 29 the dog jumped from the back of Fitzpatrick's pickup truck while Fitzpatrick was backing out of his driveway. The dog chased a 12-year-old girl into her house.

"Fitzpatrick stopped the truck and yelled for the dog. The dog returned to Matthew and he loaded him into the truck and left the area," Quigley said.

Firefighters are praised

In a letter to Fire Chief Roger W. Lincoln, Peter J. Wood, 77 Summer Street, praised the performance of Capt. Robert Silvia, Firefighters Bill Protulis, Tom Hernan, Jay Fiori, and Frank Mahoney in trying to save the life of James Leonard who suffered a heart attack during the Memorial Day Parade, May 30.

"They worked as a highly skilled and professional team. Their knowledge, dedication, and experience were obvious to all of us who were there," Wood wrote.

"Cohasset is indeed fortunate to have such a dedicated group of skilled professionals."

Boat house update

Selectmen designated the Cohasset Maritime Institute, a non-profit corporation in formation, as prospective custodian of the boat house on the Hagerty property, purchased by the town last year.

Jack Buckley, a Cohasset High School teacher and head of the Cohasset Maritime Institute, has offered to renovate the structure so it can be an educational and recreational center with a focus on rowing.

The Hagerty Committee charged with coming up with a plan for the property endorses the idea.

Selectmen are reluctant to give their whole-hearted support until both the Hagerty Committee and Buckley give them a better idea of what it will cost to renovate the structure.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby cast the dissenting vote warning that plans for the property should not be "piece meal." She is not against Buckley's idea but feel it is premature because there is no overall plan for the two-acre site.

Buckley would like the Maritime Institute to enter into a lease arrangement with the town similar to the $1 a year lease the Teen Depot group obtained for the Independence Building.

Cohasset PALS Officer Lisa Matos talks to a class at the Deer Hill School. PALS is a new program worked out between the schools and police department which augments the health education program already in place in Cohasset schools.

Revised zoning bylaws available

The Cohasset zoning bylaws have been revised and reprinted. They are for sale in the Building Inspector's Office and the Planning Board Office for $10.

South-shore resident Eleanor Gleason Bleakie will host her second benefit on behalf of the Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts this Sunday, June12, at her family farm in Scituate.

Bleakie's involvement with Planned Parenthood, an organization committed to the preservation of good health, protection of freedom of choice, and promotion of health care, could be considered a family legacy. Mrs. Hollis Gleason, Bleakie's mother, was a dedicated advocate of legal reform for contraceptive issues, including legalizing the sale of birth control in Massachusetts back in the 1930's.

"In those days, when birth control was essentially illegal, only the well-to-do had access through their private physicians," Bleakie explains of her mother's efforts. "People who didn't have physicians of their own were completely disadvantaged." Bleakie has been actively involved with Planned Parenthood for five years, giving her time and energy where and when it's needed, whether sponsoring an event, contacting state and national legislators, or standing in front of the local Stop and Shop gathering signatures.

The cocktail reception benefit, to be held on the grounds of the Bleakie farm, will feature two keynote speakers: New York Congressman Amory Houghton, and Nicki Nichols Gamble, the executive director of the Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts. Monies raised from the $50 per person admission support the multitude of educational and health care programs that are the foundation of the Planned Parenthood organization. Bleakie is strongly committed to the organization's focus on preventive care and family planning.

"Planned Parenthood spotlights the importance of contraception and good health," she says. "They are active in school sex education programs and AIDS awareness. Though many see them as merely an organization connected to abortion, that is not where their emphasis lies. The goal is to prevent unplanned, unwanted pregnancies."

> I just feel any thinking person must be aware of the need for planning a family.'
> — Eleanor Gleason Bleakie

A South Shore resident with roots in Hingham, Cohasset, and Scituate, Bleakie was raised in Cohasset, and is a past president of the parents association of Hingham's Derby Academy, where her four children were educated and both her husband and father served as trustees. In addition to her ongoing support of Planned Parenthood, she is vice-chair of the World Affairs Council of Boston.

Bleakie does not shrink from expressing opinions, or from calling for reform. "I think over-population is the root of all of the world's problems today," she stresses. "Starvation, air-pollution, the destruction of the ozone layer can all be attributed to over-population. Over the years I have seen a positive change in the attitudes of the public, and many of our local legislators. I just feel any thinking person must be aware of the need for planning a family."

The benefit will be held from 5:00-7:00 p.m., Sunday, June 12, at Lion's Head Farm, 135 Border Street, North Scituate. To make reservations contact Eleanor Bleakie at 545-1637, or Polly Logan at 383-0031 or 492-0518.

Coalition meets June 15

Signs "Progress Yes — Train No" or "Train = Taxes" urging people to sign a petition, represent the position of the Coastal Coalition, a citizens' group who favor expanded and improved bus and water tranportation as opposed to the train.

Signatures on a petition to be presented to Gov. Weld are being collected at Carousel Antiques, Strawberry Parfait, Cohasset Hardware, Nothin' More Natural, and French Memories.

The public is invited to a Coalition meeting at 8 p.m. June 15 at the Chart House. Parking is limited, please walk or car pool.

Anyone interested in helping plase call, Doug and Kathi Yeager, 383-9820 or Nancy Buckley, 740-4673.

Sea mural to light up blank wall

By Judith Brennan
Mariner correspondent

The sea will be the inspiration for the mural that will be painted on the 10 by 15 ft. wall between the Cohasset Art Center and Pat Gentile's barber shop next door.

The idea for the project came about as a means of drawing attention to the entrance of the Art Center and as a way of dressing up the blank wall. Serendipitously the artist, Syma, who belongs to the Center happens to have served on several art committees in Boston with a well known muralist, and she recommended that the Cohasset group meet with her.

The artist, Heidi Schork, who has painted more than 40 murals in the Boston area, comes to Cohasset with quite an impressive and unusual background. She received her college education at the Instituto Tecnologico y de Estudios Superiores de Monterrey, Mexico. After coming to the Boston area she met a Uraguayian muralist with whom she worked on several city projects. Her work has appeared in several publications and she has worked on exhibitions for the Children's Museum and the Artists' Foundation of Boston. She also teaches art and Spanish in the Cambridge School System.

As preparation for the project and as a way to get a feel for the town, past and present, she consulted with town historian, David Wadsworth, who happily provided loads of background information as well as old photographs.

"The sea is most important and I'll abstract from that. As a work of art, it must first be approachable and also convey pride in the town — a safe and beautiful place to live. I want the kids to take this experience with them wherever they go."

This project will be a community effort and a real cooperative venture receiving support from the Massachusetts Cultural Council, the National Endowment for the Arts, Hancock Paint of Cohasset who is donating all of the paint, and the Cohasset PSO and Arts Boosters.

Student volunteers from the high school will assist Schork in the design and execution of the mural. Tom Sipple, an art teacher at the high school, will help with the art supplies and by providing motivation for the kids.

"My job is that of a facilitator. This is a big commitment for these kids at this age to come every day after school and one whole weekend to finish the project. Once the design is completed, the actual process of execution will be up to Heidi and the kids," Sipple said.

Cohasset already has one mural on the side wall of Tedeschi's Convenience store in the center of town, and a mini-mural is planned for the inside of the bus stop on the Common.

If all goes as planned, and the weather holds for several days, the work will begin the weekend of June 11 and 12, and continue through the week. It is due to be completed June 18 with the unveiling taking place Sunday, June 19, to coincide with the opening of annual Festival on the Common.

Festival exhibition offers historic perspective

The South Shore Art Center presents "Pieces From Our Past," selections from the Cohasset Historical Society's collection, as its 39th Art Festival President's Choice Exhibition opening during Festival on the Common weekend, June 17-19. A Festival Gala Reception will be held Friday evening, June 17, from 7 to 9 p.m. at 119 Ripley Rd. Tickets are $10 each with proceeds benefiting the Art Center's educational program; please call (617)383-9548 to reserve. A lecture "Windows To Our Past" by David Wadsworth, curator of the historical society is featured.

The exhibition, curated by Cohasset's Penny Redfield, features landscapes, portraits and primitive work done by several artists many depicting South Shore locations and buildings dating from 1800 on. Several period costumes will also be on display as will artifacts and ship models.

One such ship model is a replica of the St. John, the famine ship from Ireland's west coast which made a fatal landing on Cohasset's shore in October of 1849. Known as Cohasset's most tragic shipwreck, 99 passengers from Counties Galway and Clare died when the St. John smashed into the submerged granite ledge called the Grampuses a mile offshore from Windmill Point. Each year, many people from Galway and the island of Lettermullen, home of the St. John's shipbuilder Tony Conneeley, come to visit the Cohasset Maritime Museum and remember those who perished and are buried in a common grave at Cohasset's Central Cemetery.

"Their assignments in the Reserves were to be the backup to the regular Army in any future conflicts," he said.

In 1949 the world was unstable. "From one week to another, we were unsure what might happen, that as reservists we could be called to active duty."

As reservists they attended monthly drills and took leave from work to attend two weeks of summer training.

Paulding said the unit met every Tuesday for drills and classes and to learn about weapons. At first they drilled at Scituate High School and later went to the Mealy Post in Cohasset. They also drilled at the Ripley Road School, and by then, the unit became so large, they were dispersed to other units and drilled at the Boston Army Base.

In their radio communications, they used the Red Lion Inn as a code.

Allen said five of the original members retired from the Army after World War II and the active Reserve.

Those attending served in the 94th for various periods of time. They included:

Andy Sestito of Cohasset, 1957 to 1963; Ben Curley of Cohasset, 1953 to 1957; Nate Towle of Cohasset, 1949 to 1959; Bob Barrow of Cohasset, 1953 to 1958; Dick Poland of Cohasset, 1952-1960, and Lewis T. Brown Jr. of Hingham, 1956 to 1960.

Also, Kenneth R. Jason of Cohasset, 1947 to 1956; Leonard A. Muzzi Jr. of Hingham, 1953-1958; Lou Tower of Quincy, 1951-1958; C. Lee Shackford Jr. of Hingham, 1947-1972, and Charles G. Peterson of Quincy, 1946 to 1967.

And, Robert Withem of Scituate, 1947 to 1959; Francis Sargent of Cohasset, 1952 to 1956; Malcolm F. Hall of Scituate, 1949 to 1955; Donald Ford of Scituate, 1949 to 1958; Robert G. Ripley of Cohasset, 1955 to 1963; Ken Sargent of Scituate, 1947 to 1953, Walter Allen of Scituate 1947 to 1968 and Charles Paulding of Pembroke, 1953 to 1978.

Eighteen members of the 94th Reconnaissance, 302nd Infantry Regiment, gathered Monday at the Red Lion Inn in Cohasset for a reunion.

cohasset's week

Transient licence okay'ed

Selectmen approved issuing a transient vendor's license to James Yess of King Street to operate an ice cream truck from 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. in Cohasset neighborhoods. Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan asked Yess to meet with Safety Officer Clifton Jones to go over safety guidelines.

Step increase approved

Selectmen approved a step-rate increase for Police Officer Jeffrey Treanor effective June 28. Treanor's annual salary will go from $28,683 to $29,322.

Liquor license gets nod

The Nativity-Assumption of the Virgin Mary Church, 811 Jerusalem Rd., applied four one-day liquor licenses for July 1-4 for the annual Taverna. Selectmen approved the request this week.

Professional statement paid

Selectmen approved payment of $2,024.50 to Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson for professional services provided the town in May.

Anti-train signs come down

Peter Pratt praised Egan for enforcing the by-laws but asked his counterparts to confer with town counsel about adjusting the town's policy.

Pratt said the signs are an action of free speech.

While agreeing to consider the matter, other selectmen said the issue was "murky" and loosening the policy could open the door to a range of political groups and causes.

Selectman Jane Goedecke suggested the board consider limiting all political signs to two weeks. But other board members countered that two weeks could become perpetual if citizens continued to apply for permits.

In a telephone interview, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said the town policy is specifically for election signs and does not cover signs like the Coalition's which advertise a viewpoint.

"Now that the issue has been raised," Doyon said. "Perhaps thought should be given into incorporating the election-sign policy into the town by-law."

Doyon said the purpose of the election-sign policy is to prevent a proliferation of lawn signs from littering the town. He noted that without any restrictions signs could conceivably pop up and cover any issue from "Ban the Bomb" to advertising loyalties to athletic teams like "Go Celtics."

The Coastal Coalition signs urged citizens to sign a petition against restoration of the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad and said the train would mean higher taxes.

Accolades go to Ann Leonard of Elm Street who recently competed in the Senior Olympics and brought home the gold. Ann who is 80 years young came home with five gold medals for her performance in the javelin, shot put, running long jump, standing long jump and softball throw.

Ann's proud daughters Ann, Patty, and Susan say their mother continues to be a great role model!

Tom and Jay Jay Healy of Cushing Rd. will be celebrating their 45th wedding anniversary. They were introduced to each other by Jay Jay's cousin, Ernest Sullivan of Locust Rd., and were married at St. Anthony's church in Cohasset. Sharing in their happiness are their four children and their spouses, and their six grandchildren. Congratulations.

The Baystate Magic Basketball Club, Inc. is proud to announce that Sally Hamill of Cohasset is a member of the 13-year-old Massachusetts State Finalist team which recently competed in the AAU (Junior Olympic) State Championship Tournament. As such she and her teammates will be traveling to Kenner, Louisiana from July 14 to 23 to compete in the National AAU Championship tournament for 13-year-old girls.

We sure hope that you will let us know all about the tournament (and your travels) Sally, and we wish you the best of luck in your quest for the gold.

"Grammy' Janet Malloy and "Grandpa' Henry and "Grandma" Yvette Rattenbury are so happy. Janet and Mark Rattenbury had their first child May 15, Michaela Malloy Rattenbury, weighing in at 6 lbs. 12 1/2 oz. and a long 19 inches.

Michaela arrived the day of mom's surprise baby shower. Oh well, and, on "Auntie" Jane Corry's birthday. The good news was that "Uncle" Larry Malloy was on hand, having arrived from Charlotte, NC, for a quick visit!

Speaking of the Malloys, we want to wish Bill Malloy Jr., his wife Dianne and their daughter Kathryn Rose the best as they move to their new home in Norwell.

Happy belated birthday greetings go to Michael Corry, who was a great big five June 3.

More belated birthday greetings — Happy BIG birthday greetings to Ann Pompeo, whose birthday was last month. Ann and her family went to discover more genealogy about her family.

Mary Hartwell also gets birthday greetings, although a tad late. Her birthday was June 8, and we truly hope it was a happy one, with many more to come!

Stand tall Class of 1994

Stand tall—Class of 1994.

Tall as the magnificent tall ships from all over the world who majestically paraded in New York Harbor to celebrate the Bicentennial of our country in the year of your birth—1976.

As you set down upon this earth, Viking II set down upon Mars' Utopia Plains as we moved ever closer to the great wall of galaxies discovered when you were sophomores in high school.

As you began your rounds in the ring of life, "Rocky" punched through the Silver Screen as the picture of the year. "Network" and "All the President's Men" took all the other Oscars.

While you hid behind a mask of pablum, George Benson's "This Masquerade" topped the singles charts. While you squealed a bit off key, Stevie Wonder's "Songs in the Key of Life" took all the album accolades.

Gerald Ford was president.

Dorothy Hamill enthralled the world with her grace on ice as she won Olympic gold for figure skating and set a trend for a short, swinging hair style which lasted a decade.

Bruce Jenner earned his spot waving an American flag on a box of Wheaties for years to come with his electrifying Gold Medal performance in the decathlon.

In 1981 you let go of your mother's hand for the first time and began that 13-year journey which would take you from show and tell to "Pomp and Circumstance."

While your chariot went from tricycle to bicycle "Chariots of Fire" was the best picture of the year.

While you were getting gold stars upon your forehead for good work, Henry Fonda and Katharine Hepburn got Oscars for "On Golden Pond."

The Harvard Lampoon gave its worst actor award to Clint Eastwood in his third go-round as Dirty Harry Callahan.

Perhaps you remember your parents' euphoria when, minutes after Ronald Reagan was elected president, the 52 Americans who had been held hostage in Iran for 444 days were freed.

Perhaps you remember your parents' horror when President Reagan was shot in the chest just two months after his inauguration.

Dad might have had a smile on his face and a little more silver in his pocket because there was the biggest tax cut in the nation's history that year.

Mom may have had a smile on her face because the first woman was made a Supreme Court justice, Sandra Day O'Connor.

Los Angeles beat the Yankees in the World Series.

Carney Lansford of the Red Sox was the American League batting champion.

The New York Islanders won the Stanley Cup.

The Oakland Raiders won the Super Bowl.

Young people were humming Kim Carnes' "Bette Davis Eyes," the top tune of the year. Bette Davis herself, who was 73 at the time, got a big kick out of the attention her eyes were getting.

1987—you went from MVP in elementary school to a rookie in middle school.

Did you buy any stocks with your paper carrier money? If you did, you watched the stock market soar at the beginning of the year, breaking record after record.

But on October 19, it plummeted a record 508 points.

They could have used Michael Douglas who won the Oscar for best actor in "Wall Street."

President Reagan announced the nation's first trillion dollar budget.

An Iraq war plane missile killed 37 sailors on the frigate U.S.S. Stark in the Persian Gulf May 17.

Public hearings on the Iran-contra affair went on from May to August. Lt. Col. Oliver North became a media sensation saying he believed his actions were authorized by his superiors. President Reagan said he has been stubborn in pursuit of a policy that went astray.

Reagan and Soviet leader Gorbachev signed an unprecedented agreement to dismantle long range missiles.

Cher won an Oscar for "Moonstruck."

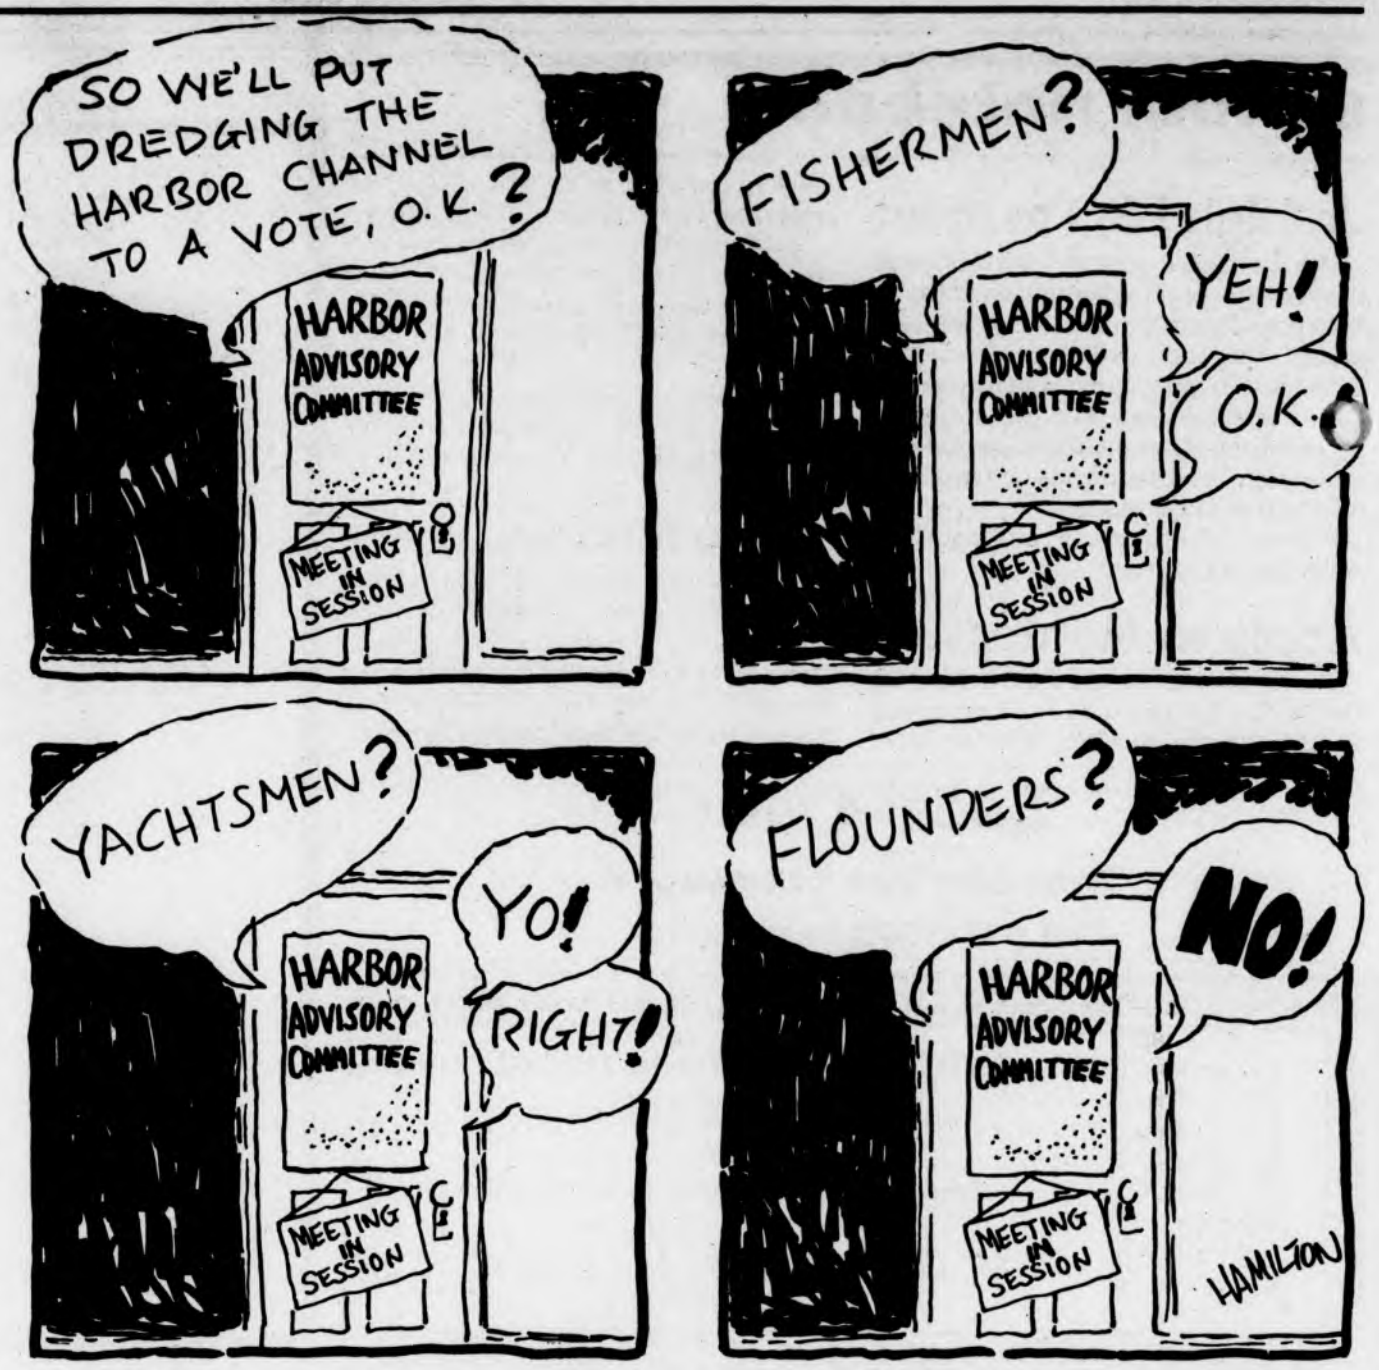
And theatergoers became star-struck as the epic saga of Jean Valjean's 19 years on a chain gang for stealing a loaf of bread captivated the great white way as "Les Miserables" opened on Broadway.

Were there any Elvis sightings? Probably. The record of the year was Paul Simon's "Graceland."

Edmonton beat Philadelphia in the Stanley Cups. The Giants won the Super Bowl. Mike Tyson defeated "Bonecrusher" Smith.

Wade Boggs was American League batting champion. Minnesota reigned supreme on the diamond.

Our beloved Celtics were beaten by the Lakers in the NBA championships. And after three years of winning the MVP award, Larry Bird had it Magically snatched from his hands by Mr. Johnson.



You were the first class of the 1990s to enter the hallowed halls of high school on the last leg of your journey.

Did you think it was "Another Day in Paradise?" This was the top song that year by Phil Collins.

Or did you thing it was "Misery", the movie that earned Kathy Bates an Oscar?

While you were at the freshman dance, "Dancing with Wolves" was winning best picture.

It certainly wasn't another day in paradise on August 17 just before you began high school when Operation Desert Shield forces left for Saudi Arabia to defend that country following an invasion of Kuwait by Iraq.

The month before Desert Shield the Dow Jones Industrial average pushed to an all-time high.

The Democrats made some small gains in the Senate and House elections.

Unemployment reached a three-year high of 6.1 percent.

President Bush vetoed a civil rights bill that sought to reverse six Supreme Court decisions that activists said watered down anti-discrimination laws.

Edmonton won the Stanley Cup. The Raiders won the Super Bowl. Cincinnati wore the World Series ring.

You have come through these four years of high school. You have seen the Berlin Wall fall, the Anita Hill-Clarence Thomas debacle and a boxing champion named Mike Tyson jailed for rape.

You have seen the Soviet Union disintegrate and Chinese students massacred in Bejing.

You have seen apartheid crumble and the first free elections in South Africa.

You have seen a young man from Hope, Arkansas become the first Democrat in the White House in 13 years.

You have witnessed a video of five cops beating a black man named Rodney King and their not-guilty verdict inflame the worst riots in the history of the country.

You have seen 90 members of a religious cult burned to death in Waco, Texas.

You have seen floods in the mid-west and Robert Parish-high snow in the northeast.

You have seen the tragic death of a lovely woman named Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis trigger memories of Camelot in the White House and the assassination of a young president which happened 13 years before you were born.

You have relived the Holocaust in "Schindler's List."

You have relived D-Day in the memories of survivors 50 years later.

In your four years in high school you've seen much sadness in Boston sports. Is there anyone who will ever forget the silhouette of Larry Bird at the Garden holding his son and waving good-bye to Celtics fans forever?

What a stabbing feeling to remember the shocking news that Reggie Lewis suffered a fatal heart attack.

We gained Mo Vaughn but lost Wade Boggs.

The Red Sox, Celtics and Patriots have been mediocre at best. Only the Bruins have made a few stabs at the Stanley Cup.

But we did have our meteor, our aurora borealis. It came in the last second of the BC-Notre Dame game on the toe of Dave Gordon.

Now it's your turn to be on your toes.

The world needs you.

The world needs your intelligence, your integrity, your compassion.

You must make life better in the 21st century.

Perhaps in your class will be the doctor who will cure AIDS.

Perhaps in your class will be the Nobel Peace Prize winner who will stop the bloodshed in Ruanda Somalia and Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Perhaps in your class will be the visionary who will stem the tide of violence in the streets.

Perhaps in your class will be the example who will put racism to rest forever.

Perhaps in your class are the idealists who will conquer homelessness, illiteracy and poverty.

Stand tall, Class of 1994. We are all looking up to you.

CHS Class of '94 is not afraid to be different

Lindgren. They shocked and surprised the crowd with a joint speech ending with a sword fight with Lindgren wielding a trombone and Ansbergs a calculus ruler.

"If every graduation has a sword fight in it, would you have paid attention?" they asked.

The women emphasized focusing on "our strengths" to achieve excellence in a few things rather than mediocrity in many.

Class valedictorian Courtney Schultz noted how high school has prepared the graduates for making decisions in a confusing world.

"Conflicting messages are thrust upon us" like the right to choose, the right to life and the right to die, she said.

"..It's up to us to emerge as free standing individuals," she said. "It's time for us to discover who we really are and what we really want to do."

In her welcoming address, class president Sarah Atherton said the graduates were ready to move ahead.

"We're ready to pursue our own individual dreams," she said. "Cohasset High has prepared us and instilled us with confidence to make our dreams come true."

Supt. Stephen Hart urged the graduates not to sit on the sidelines. He mentioned Bruce Springsteen's song "57 Channels and Nothing On."

"Don't move from one choice to another never investing the energy to be successful," Hart said.

Hart talked about the dedication of Tom O'Neill, 22, of Rockland, a cancer researcher and the son of a Cohasset High School teacher. O'Neill was killed May 24 in a laboratory accident.

"He did not channel surf his way through life," Hart said.

Following the processional, Carrie Cosme sung the Star-Spangled Banner with accompaniment provided by Angsbergs on the trumpet and Lindgren on trombone. School Committee Chairman Nancy Sandell presented the diplomas.

Graduates marched in to the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" and marched out to "The Thunderer" by John Philip Souza. Music was provided by the Cohasset Concert Band directed by Marcia LaJoie.

obituaries

David Pattison

David J. Pattison, 53, of Boynton Beach, Fla., formerly of Cohasset, a representative for the Pharmacy Corporation of America, died May 18 at home after a long illness.

Mr. Pattison served 11 years in the United States Coast Guard.

He was born and educated in Cohasset and graduated from Cohasset High School.

He leaves his wife, Carol (Wilson) Pattison; two sons, David Michael Pattison of Royal Palm, Fla. and Dennis Joseph Pattison of Lake Worth, Fla.; his parents, Frank J. and Dorothy (Bates) Pattison of Delray Beach, Fla. and Cohasset; a sister, Joanne Pattison Cogill of Cohasset; a niece and two nephews.

A memorial service will be held later in Cohasset.

Memorial donations may be made to Hospice of Palm Beach County, 5300 East Ave., West Palm Beach, Fla. 33407.

James Whelan

James Lawrence Whelan, 75, of Cohasset, died June 2 in his home.

Born in Quincy, Mr. Whelan graduated from Quincy High School in 1937, The College of the Holy Cross in 1941 and Harvard Business School in 1943.

Mr. Whelan served in the United States Navy during World War II and earned the rank of Lieutenant.

He moved to Cohasset with his wife, the former Ann Flaherty, in 1954.

Mr. Whelan created a number of successful business during his career. In 1949, he established the Madison Corporation of Boston, prospering for more than 35 years while he served as president and CEO. In 1965, Mr. Whelan purchased the Miles Standish Corporation in Hampton, N.H.

He was an avid sportsman and belonged to several clubs including the Abenaqui Golf Club and the Rye Beach Club, both in Rye, N.H.; the Cohasset Yacht Club and the Cohasset Tennis & Squash Club.

After his retirement in 1989, Mr. Whelan continued to study history and poetry. He was also an accomplished pianist. Active in community affairs, he served as a member of the Cohasset Committee to Restructure Town Government.

In addition to his wife, he leaves three sons, James H. Whelan of New York, N.Y., Joseph F. Whelan of New Haven, Conn. and Robert V. Whelan of Hingham; four daughters, Katherine Whelan of Washington, D.C., Martha Drew of Scituate, Ann Whelan Foye of Madison, Conn., and Elizabeth Whelan of New York, N.Y. and three grandchildren.

A Mass of Christian burial was celebrated June 6 at St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the James Lawrence Whelan Fund, c/o The Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 106 South Main St., Cohasset 02025.

John Fleming

John J. Fleming, 94, of Cohasset, co-owner of Fleming's Hardware and gift Shop for many years, and a Navy veteran of World War II, died June 1 in Brockton Veterans Administration Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Fleming was a member of the George H. Mealey Veterans of Foreign Wars Post.

Born and raised in Cohasset, he graduated from Boston College High School in 1921 and Holy Cross College in 1928.

He leaves three cousins, the Rev. Thomas Kelly, a Jesuit priest at Boston College High School; Robert Quinn of Milton, an attorney and Joseph Quinn of Dorchester.

A funeral Mass was celebrated June 3 at St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to charity.

Elinor Kennedy honored

Mrs. Elinor Kennedy celebrated her 50th year as a member of the Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset at a reception in her honor where she was presented with a crystal bowl.

At the annual meeting Mrs. Betty Madden, president, thanked the officers, committee chairmen and members for their cooperation and efforts in making the past year a successful one.

Officer elected for the coming year are Mrs. Jean Syrmopoulos, president; Mrs. Jean Manganaro, vice-president; Mrs. Doris Flint, treasurer; Mrs. Mary Edmonds, recording secretary; and Mrs. Dorothy Lincoln, corresponding secretary.

Chorale to perform

The First Parish Church of Cohasset will host the Concord Chorale in concert at 7 p.m. Saturday June 18 as part of the Festival on the Common/Harborfest Weekend.

Founded in 1970, at the Concord Baptist Church in Boston's South End, the chorale boasts more than 75 fine singers whose diverse repertoire includes gospel, anthems, jazz and contemporary music. They have performed at the New England Conservatory Gospel Festival; at a Martin Luther King Memorial Service at the Boston University Marsh Chapel; on the Sunday morning television program "Higher Ground:" and at a private performance at the Wang Center.

The chorale is a favorite in the Boston area. The singers are accompanied by the Montgomery brothers — Dennis on piano and organ and Christopher on drums. Among the many talented singers in the chorale are Christina and Adrienne DeVaughn, who have attended school in Cohasset through the METCO Program, and their mother, Donna DeVaughn. The DeVaughns and their music minister Roscoe Mills performed for Cohasset's Deer Hill students in the spring of 1991.

Chorale president Kim McCant and nearly 50 of the chorale members will be at the First Parish concert. Seating is limited and not reserved. Tickets are available at the First Parish Church office, 23 North Main St. between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Any remaining tickets will be on sale on the common in front of the church during festival. Tickets are $7 or $5 with a Harborfest button.

Don't miss 'Fun in the Kitchen,' a local band made up of Cohasset High School students and graduates appearing in the annual 'Rock 'n Row' concert at the Music Circus June 11 to help pay for repairs to the antique boat house on the Hagerty Property. From left band members are: Dean Volungis, Mike Equi, Kevin O'Donnell, and Dana DeVoe. For more information, call the high school at 383-6100.

Cruise departs June 11

Combine a good time and a good cause Saturday June 11. This year's "Helping Hand" fund-raiser, which provided scholarships, is aboard the privately chartered 197' Provincetown II will depart Pemberton Pier in Hull and features three live bands on three separate decks during the 9 p.m. to midnight sailing.

Tickets may be purchased for $25 per person at the Community Center, the Community Center Nursery School, the Second Congregational Church, from Rose Collins at the girl's softball league, from Grace Evans at the Scituate/Cohasset Newcomer's Club, at Milliken Field during Saturday soccer games or be sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to "Helping Hand," 60 Hillside Dr., Cohasset 02025.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

MOVING EXPENSE DEDUCTION

QUESTION: I bought a house because of a job transfer. The new job location is in another state and much too far to commute. Are my moving expenses tax deductible?

ANSWER: Moving expenses are deductible if your new job site is more than 50 miles farther away from your home than your former job location.

There is no dollar limit on DIRECT moving expenses. Direct moving expenses are the cost of moving household goods and personal effects from the former residence to the new residence.

Direct expenses include traveling expenses (lodging, but not meals).

South Shore League golf champion Garrick Towle spends some vacation time with one of his biggest fans, his mother, Patience.

Garrick Towle putts his way to championship — for fun

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Garrick Towle was staring victory in the face and he wasn't about to let it slip away. He was golfing well, and his main competitor, Abington's premier man on the course, Jason Grant, was becoming increasingly frustrated with his own play.

The Cohasset Junior/Senior High School eighth-grader was in the midst of a tight battle with Grant during last Wednesday's South Shore League Championship when the Green Wave golfer hurled his club halfway across Duxbury's North Hill Country Club after finishing with a bogey on the 11th hole.

"He wasn't too happy," said the outgoing Towle who took a break from a round of golf at the Cohasset Golf Club to talk candidly about the league championship. "He threw his putter about 100 yards. It shows you're losing all concentration. When he lost it, I was still going strong."

Towle would go on to take the title by one stroke, finishing with an 83. But even after Grant tossed his club a country mile, he didn't make things any easier for Towle.

Grant's tough 11th gave Towle a two-stroke lead with a long way to go against a seasoned competitor. The score remained close right to the end, even through the auspicious 18th hole, where sprinklers made play that much tougher.

Towle teed off with a fine 260-yard shot and then was forced to rush his next shot because of the sprinklers and spongy surface. He wound up in the sand trap. Towle then chipped his way out, but the ball rolled 15 feet past the cup.

Grant cagily talked to Towle during the match. It eventually got to the point where he informed Towle exactly what he had to do to claim the championship trophy while they were on the last hole.

"He said, 'you know you have to make that to win,'" Towle said, remembering the message Grant filled him in on.

The Green Wave golfer would have been better off keeping his thoughts to himself.

Admitting that his "hands started shaking," Towle sunk the tough, downhill putt to defeat Grant and the 22-player field.

The victory came as a surprise to Towle, who expected to finish behind Grant with a score in the 90s. "My goal was to go out and have fun," he said.

"It was a big surprise," Towle continued. "I don't think anyone from Cohasset has won it for a long time."

Towle got a last-minute preview of the Duxbury course just the day before during a make-up match against Hanover. It was the third time he has ever played the nine-hole layout and didn't golf his best. Towle went into the championship "a little apprehensive" but with a better knowledge of the course.

"It sort of told me a little about the greens," Towle said. "I played better the day of the tournament than that day."

With the Cohasset Golf Club a stone's throw from his home, and his father, Rick, "an avid golfer" it's no real surprise Towle got his first taste of the game as a 4-year-old.

Both his grandfathers also play and he tries to play every Sunday afternoon and works on perfecting his putting daily. And despite the time and effort Towle puts into his game, having fun with it is the most important part for him.

"I like it and have fun," he said. "I'm not out there because people want me to be. I'm out there because I want it."

Dave McKee

by Joe & Dave

On Saturday I was shot at, almost hit by a huge metal ball and sunburned from forehead to fingernails while covering the state high school track championships.

The following is my story.

In the beginning...

I awoke early Saturday morning and made the wonderful drive from Weymouth down Route 18 to Bridgewater State College, where the track meet was held.

It was close to 200 degrees and I was sweating like a moose in my air conditionally challenged pick-up truck.

(By the way, I hit about 43 straight red lights and was getting a buzz from all the fumes of the cars ahead of me.)

Anyway, I made it to Bridgewater State and drove around for ten minutes trying to find parking.

It was worse than parking at a Bruins-Canadiens game at the Boston Garden.

I finally parked and grabbed my notebook, camera and pen and headed to the meet.

I arrived shortly after the first few events.

And I as walked to the long jump pit, I could feel the sweat rolling down my back.

I watched a few jumpers and ran into several high school athletes I cover.

One was carrying an umbrella to beat the sun. The other was drinking juice like she had just been rescued from a desert island.

Track athletes are pretty smart. Sportswriters aren't.

A sickening thud...

After a few more events, I decided to make my move. I had a tank top in my truck and I made the executive decision to ditch my heavy 100 percent cotton T-shirt.

I cut across the track, ducked out behind the fence and started towards my truck for relief.

Suddenly I looked up and saw a burly high school kid launching the shot put.

With a huge metal cannon ball flying through the air towards me, I felt like a cavalry officer at Gettysburg.

Summoning speed I didn't know I had, I made a cut to the left that O.J. Simpson would have been proud of and the shot put landed with a thud about 25 feet from me.

My forehead was safe for now.

I changed into the tank top at my truck and started to feel some cool summer breezes.

The world was alive again.

Cohasset Little League

All-Star game on tap

This week's teams highlighted in Cohasset Little League Baseball are Mets, Orioles, White Sox and Blue Angels. Please call Susan Carr at 383-0331 with your team's news.

Don't forget that Little League pictures are scheduled to take place Saturday, June 11 and Sunday, June 12. Please have your picture packet filled out and ready to hand to the photographer to avoid delays when your team is scheduled to be photographed.

The Little League Family Cook-Out will take place Friday, June 17, at 5 p.m., at Barnes Field, followed by the 11- and 12-year-old Major League All-Star game. Please call Andy Krueger at 383-6141. Finger desserts are needed. Any volunteer help would be greatly appreciated.

Mulligan leads Mets over Dodgers

Behind strong starting pitching from hard-throwing Danny Mulligan and solid relief effort from Chris Pratt, the Mets defeated the Dodgers Monday night in Little League action, 6-4.

After dropping a tough 4-3 decision to the Red Sox May 5, the Mets once again found themselves in another tight contest with the battling Dodgers.

Peter Whoriskey and Jake Morgan provided the offense, each chipping in with multiple-hit games.

This game had plenty of outstanding defense, with real fielding gems turned in by Timmy Baird, Matt Pilczik, Adam Merril, Nick Pestone and Tim Grassey.

The Mets were smoking fast on the base paths also. Henry "Speedy" Roth and "Hustling" Ted Gledhill created all kinds of excitement.

Orioles set for playoffs

The minor league Orioles, coached by Greg Bertovich and Peter Berg, took their 14-1 record into playoff action this week, looking to continue their dominant hitting and pitching displayed during the regular season. Coming off a tough, two out of three series last weekend with last year's champion, Toronto Blue Jays, the team is really coming together. All year long the Orioles have combined awesome hitting (averaging almost nine runs per game) with some of the best pitching in the league. Standouts Jeff Scribner and Alex Berg have combined for nine wins on the mound this year, giving up less than four runs a game. In middle relief, Tommy, "The Bomb" Anderson, and Jay, "Fast Ball" Bertovich have looked terrific all year. Adam Friedman, the team's stopper and clean-up hitter, has been stellar as a late-inning closer.

The Orioles' hitting, however, is their strongest suit. Leadoff batter Nick Laas has the best on-base percentage on the team and really gives the "birds" an early spark in the order. Starting catcher, Nick Spirito has also been a standout defensively and at the plate. With each successive game, Mike Casey, Scott Faber and John Friedman improved dramatically at bat and make up one of the best outfields in the league. Braun Goodson and Paul Trendowicz have been instrumental to their team's success through their ability to play both infield and outfield while doing the job offensively. The power of the order continues to be; Anderson, Berg, Scribner, Bertovich and Adam Friedman who have combined for over 20 homers during regular season play.

Going into the playoffs this week, the Orioles have to be considered the favored team to win it all but, as coach Berg said, "this league is getting better each week and every team has a legitimate chance to win the championship". The next few games are sure to bring an exciting conclusion to a great season of baseball for the Cohasset Minor League "A" teams.

White Sox finish fantastic season

By Dan DeGruchy and Joel Carpenter
Special to the Mariner

The Minor American League White Sox rounded out a great season last weekend, finishing in third-place overall and entering the playoffs with high hopes. The players have all had a chance to play all the positions this year, and there have been some terrific plays. In the second game of the year, Dan DeGruchy's diving catch in center field robbed the Yankees of a grand slam, leading the Sox to victory. Although the White Sox experienced a setback early in the season when star shortstop Brian Krupczak was called up to the Major Leagues by the Cardinals, Brian's brother, Jared, managed to take up the slack, turning in many great plays. Behind the plate, the catching team of Joel Carpenter, Barry Tufts and John Durkin have been the backbone of the team, calling signals for pitching aces Kevin O'Brien, Danny Kinchla and Jimmy Figueiredo. The Sox have had a lot of power at the plate this year too. Led by the consistent power of Robin Cunningham, the quick bats of Danny Roth and Brian Bilton, and the eagle eye of Johnny "Don Baylor" Figueiredo, they have sent opposing pitchers ducking for cover.

The White Sox are hoping that the spirit and determination which carried them to so many wins this season can bring them the championship!

Blue Angels soar to new heights

By Kathy Ofsthun
Special to the Mariner

This year's Blue Angels team, sponsored by the VFW, was made in heaven. The scorekeepers lose track when home run hitters Dom Strazzula, Andrew Flynn, Lindsay Feig, Daniel Sullivan and Chris Ofsthun step up to the plate. In fact, with coaches Sullivan and Flynn pitching, each member of the team is batting over .750.

Excellent base running by a number of players turns singles into homeruns as well. Angels Joey Durkin, Leo Clougherty, Chris Simms and Patrick Flynn really do fly; and due to impressive catching and fielding abilities, nothing gets past ace fielders Lisa Musto, Nathan Needle, Nancy Durkin and Josh Dupre.

As a result of their devotion to the game and good sportsmanship, the Blue Angels are on Cloud 9.

Cohasset Land Sharks

By Mike Rolandelli Special to the Mariner

Landsharks hit the water running

By Mike Rolandelli
Special to the Mariner

The Cohasset Landsharks took to the field Wednesday for the first time this season and won big in a 15-3 assault on Kingston. Nick Welz pitched a good game with 12 strikeouts. The story, however, was Welz at the plate. He put on a clinic in the art of relaxed hitting while going 3-for-4 with a triple, two singles and three RBI. Scott Theriault went 3-for-4 as well with two singles, a double and a walk. Chris Rolandelli dropped two kids off at the pool, catching one a little too far from first and gunning the other down on an attempted steal of third. Rolandelli completed his work behind the plate with a 3-for-5, three-single evening.

Your support of the Landsharks is greatly welcomed. We have a competitive schedule this summer (the schedule is printed in this issue of the Cohasset Mariner) and admission is free to see great baseball in your own backyard at Milliken Field.

Other notables: Grant Ende and Andy Kamataris two hits each. Both Greg Stevens and Eddie Taylor had one hit each in their first league game. Dave Leahy had a triple and a single. Joe Menis drew a walk in his first ever game of organized baseball.

MVP Nick Welz was 3 for 4, 3 RBI and 12 strikeouts.

Fans of the day — Weezie and Bryan Welz.

Bug-O-Meter — 100 percent, absolutely brutal.

Landsharks win, 10-8

The Landsharks upped their mark to 2-0 Friday with a 10-8 win in Carver. The Sharks bit first and jumped out to a 4-0 lead through two innings. The Crusaders rallied to tie the game at four in the third, but that was as close as they would get.

Nick Welz began a fifth-inning rally with a walk, followed by a Greg Stevens single and an Andy Kamataris walk. Dave Leahy smoked a two-run single to right, scoring Welz and Stevens. Rookie Chris Goodman sacrificed home Kamataris, and Chris Kondrat picked up Leahy with a towering sacrifice fly to complete the four-run inning.

Scott Theriault pitched 4-1/3 innings of good baseball before running into trouble in the bottom of the fifth. Stevens came on to preserve the win for Theriault and earn himself a save.

Other notables — Brendan Kinchla made a key throw to the plate to nab a greedy runner.

— Chris Rolandelli gunned down a runner at second with guys at first and third when the Sharks needed an out.

— Chris Kondrat walked three times, scored twice and had an RBI.

— Andy Kamataris walked and scored twice.

MVP — Dave Leahy, 2-for-3, two RBI.

Fans of the Day — Cheryl Taylor and Herb Muscato.

Bug-O-Meter — 100 percent (again).

South Shore Youth Track practices set

South Shore Youth Track practices will be held every Monday and Wednesday from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at Norwell High School through August 3.

The track club is sponsored by the Norwell Boosters Club and is open to youths age 7-18 from all South Shore towns.

The club offers a fun, low-key introduction to the sport of track and field. It will not be mandatory to attend all practice sessions.

The club will participate in local youth track meets, the Hersey Games and Junior Olympics competions.

Norwell High school girls' head coach Chuck Martin will be managing and coaching the South Shore Track Club.

In the last six years, Martin has coached five divisional state championship teams and had three state runner-up teams while coaching at Notre Dame Academy and Norwell High School.

Assisting with the club is former NHS track stand-out Alicia Porro, a high school triple jump All-American. She is currently on the track team at Penn State.

South Shore Track Club uniforms will be provided to all participants.

The fee is $50.

For more information call Chuck Martin at 617-391-0458.

Garrick Towle putts his way to championship

The competitive instincts are there as well. He'd eventually like to play in college and someday travel on the PGA Tour. "I want to keep playing and place in some tournaments," Towle said. "I also want to go on tour."

Towle improved from being the No. 4 and 5 man as a seventh-grader, to the No. 2 and sometimes top spot, this season, with Mike Riley. He wound up winning over half of his league matches before taking the biggest at North Hill.

Towle won't be entering every tournament that comes his way this summer. He plans to be among the entrants of a handful, but with a higher confidence level thanks to his fine season for the Skippers.

The Cohasset Golf Club Junior Championship heads Towle's schedule. And for good reason. He has owned the tourney since 1991, copping first place in each of the last three years. Towle also will compete in the Braintree 4-Ball Tourney and the Independent Insurance Agents of Greater Boston Youth Championship for the first time.

Towle, however, is approaching the tournaments with an extremely low-key attitude, preferring instead to concentrate on improving his overall skills. "I'll just go and play," he said of the tournaments. "I'll see what I can do."

As for his opponents in the SSL, they are well aware of what Towle can do when he's on the golf course with a club

Cheerleaders signup

Girls between the ages of 7 and 13 who are interested in cheerleading this fall should sign up Saturday, June 11, from 9 a.m. to noon at the entrance of the Scituate High School gym, at the rear of the school.

Also, cheerleading coaches and parent volunteers also are needed.

For more information, call Susan Hoffman, vice president for cheerleading, at 837-9346.

Mite football signups

Signups for boys interested in playing Mite football this fall will be held June 11 from 9 a.m. to noon at the entrance of the Scituate High School gym, at the rear of the school.

Boys must be between the ages of 7 and 10.

For more information, call Mites' head coach Vin O'Brien at 545-8306 or assistant coach Tim Bulu at 545-3731.

Outdoor golf lessons

The Cohasset and Scituate Recreation Departments will co-sponsor outdoor golf lessons throughout the spring and summer months, to be taught by Cohasset Golf Club's assistant pro Andy Moulton.

Sessions begin during June and are five weeks in duration, meeting one hour weekly from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m. and again from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. The fee for this program is $60 per person for the five-week session.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791, or the Scituate Recreation Department at 545-8738. Should you need to borrow clubs to participate in lessons, please indicate this at the time of registration.

Community garden planned

Planting is ready to begin at the Community Garden located in Wheelwright Park. The Cohasset Council on Aging is coordinating this effort and is looking for a few people with or without gardening experience to help work the garden. If you enjoy working in a garden, planting, weeding, or are able to come and water the plants, we could use your help!

If you are interested in helping us for just an hour or two a week or would like more information, please call the council at 383-9112 and ask for Pat Ryan.

TRIPS ON SCHEDULE

Upcoming trips planned, call 383-9112.

Special event — "The Phantom of the Opera," July 15, $59, orchestra seating (first floor). Call the center for reservations.

Upcoming trips:

June 23, Rockingham Park, $35 per person.

July 26, Block Island, RI, $51 per person.

July 31-August 1, Tanglewood, $229 per person (double occupancy).

August 31, Odyssey Cruise, $43 per person, Boston Harbor.

September 21, Salem Cross Inn. Price to be announced. Fall Foliage.

October 12-16, Quebec City, $439 per person (occupancy).

Choppy water ahead for Cohasset's big dig

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Town, state, and federal officials rolled up their sleeves Tuesday morning to try and come to grips with how to get Cohasset harbor dredged as soon as possible.

Sitting in Bancroft Hall,the brand-new community meeting room at the Minot Ledge Lightkeepers Residence on Government Island overlooking the harbor, officials hashed over the complicated process of balancing federal, state, and private jurisdictional issues in the town's port.

After nearly two hours of discussion, the fog lifted a little.

There were no quick or easy answers to a state and federal process consisting of layers of bureaucracy — but the town did come away with a game plan.

Selectmen will look into spending as much as $15,000

Festival weekend fever infecting area

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Festivitis has plagued townspeople for months.

People at the Art Center have it, local businesses have it — and so does the entire congregation at the Second Congregational Church.

Cohasseters of all ages have it too.

It's an annual affliction with symptoms including craving for chowder and strawberries, dreams of cooling off in a dunk tank, the urge to shop, and yearning for a ride in a trolley.

The cure: art to satisfy the soul, food for the body, and fun for the spirit — which all come together this weekend in a magnificent compound — the Festival on the Common.

Cohasset will get to showoff for upwards of 10,000 people from all over the South Shore and right here in

No longer welcome in town, Maui goes to court

By Steve Adams
Mariner staff

Wagging her tail at the initial glimpse of her master and pressing her front paws up on the chain-link enclosure which serves as her home, Maui has never heard of Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 140, Section 157.

But that 1791 statute may determine Maui's future. Cohasset selectmen voted June 6 to banish the 2-year-old Rottweiler-boxer mixed breed from the town in response to a series of complaints from neighbors in the Pleasant Street area.

Maui's owner, 24-year-old Matthew Fitzpatrick of 60 Pleasant St. and his parents Edward and Rosemary, say they have been singled out for enforcement of the law — a standard they say few dogs in town could pass if subjected to similar scrutiny.

"Can you just call up and discredit somebody?"

Signs of change in court ruling

By Charlene Vandini
Mariner Staff

This week's ruling by the United States Supreme Court could send town officials running to their respective town counsels for assessment of its impact on local sign by-laws and policies.

The unanimous decision by the high court says towns cannot prohibit the display of political signs by homeowners on private property.

Hingham responded to an earlier court decision in California, according to Mary Jean Shultz, that town's zoning administrator.

In that case, prohibiting the display of political campaign signs was ruled unconstitutional, as a

Choppy water ahead for Cohasset's big dig

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Town, state, and federal officials rolled up their sleeves Tuesday morning to try and come to grips with how to get Cohasset harbor dredged as soon as possible.

Sitting in Bancroft Hall,the brand-new community meeting room at the Minot Ledge Lightkeepers Residence on Government Island overlooking the harbor, officials hashed over the complicated process of balancing federal, state, and private jurisdictional issues in the town's port.

After nearly two hours of discussion, the fog lifted a little.

There were no quick or easy answers to a state and federal process consisting of layers of bureaucracy — but the town did come away with a game plan.

Selectmen will look into spending as much as $15,000

Festival weekend fever infecting area

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Festivitis has plagued townspeople for months.

People at the Art Center have it, local businesses have it — and so does the entire congregation at the Second Congregational Church.

Cohasseters of all ages have it too.

It's an annual affliction with symptoms including craving for chowder and strawberries, dreams of cooling off in a dunk tank, the urge to shop, and yearning for a ride in a trolley.

The cure: art to satisfy the soul, food for the body, and fun for the spirit — which all come together this weekend in a magnificent compound — the Festival on the Common.

Cohasset will get to showoff for upwards of 10,000 people from all over the South Shore and right here in

No longer welcome in town, Maui goes to court

By Steve Adams
Mariner staff

Wagging her tail at the initial glimpse of her master and pressing her front paws up on the chain-link enclosure which serves as her home, Maui has never heard of Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 140, Section 157.

But that 1791 statute may determine Maui's future. Cohasset selectmen voted June 6 to banish the 2-year-old Rottweiler-boxer mixed breed from the town in response to a series of complaints from neighbors in the Pleasant Street area.

Maui's owner, 24-year-old Matthew Fitzpatrick of 60 Pleasant St. and his parents Edward and Rosemary, say they have been singled out for enforcement of the law — a standard they say few dogs in town could pass if subjected to similar scrutiny.

"Can you just call up and discredit somebody?"

Signs of change in court ruling

By Charlene Vandini
Mariner Staff

This week's ruling by the United States Supreme Court could send town officials running to their respective town counsels for assessment of its impact on local sign by-laws and policies.

The unanimous decision by the high court says towns cannot prohibit the display of political signs by homeowners on private property.

Hingham responded to an earlier court decision in California, according to Mary Jean Shultz, that town's zoning administrator.

In that case, prohibiting the display of political campaign signs was ruled unconstitutional, as a

Drunk-driving charged

Police arrested Walter P. Phipps Jr., 37 Norman Todd Rd., on Beechwood Street last Friday for allegedly driving under the influence.

Sgt. Robert W. Jackson said Phipps, 31, was charged with operating after having his license revoked, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, operating an uninsured motor vehicle, and operating after having his license revoked for operating under the influence.

Phipps was arraigned Monday in Quincy District Court and his next court date is June 21.

to hire a consultant to provide engineering expertise to help guide the town through the lengthy permitting process littered with conditions from a range of environmental agencies.

The town will also work closely with state legislators Sen. Brian McDonald and Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray to try to insure that the $300,000 currently allocated in the state budget for Cohasset dredging is approved and that the town be made aware of any restrictions on the money. Congressman Gerry Studds' office will keep the town abreast of the availability of federal funding.

And the town will prepare the paperwork to initiate the permitting process. In the meantime, Deerin Babb-Brott, dredging coordinator with Massachusetts Coastal Zone Management, a state agency, will prepare a flow chart for the town depicting the step-by-step process.

In light of the complicated procedure which could be peppered with problems Selectman Peter Pratt, who set up the meeting, conceded that there was no way dredging will be accomplished this season. But he was optimistic that the project will move forward because the lines of communication are open.

"This is the first time we've had these people in the same room together," he said.

Biological testing being done in the harbor will determine if the silt and sand to be removed is suitable for open water disposal. If not, then the town must find a place for to dump it, further complicating the process and opening up another layer of environmental review.

However if that occurs, the channel dredging project could be broken off from dredging the inner harbor where any contamination problems may arise. The town will seek to permit the entire project — but will split the two if necessary to insure that the channel dredging isn't held up, Pratt said.

The window of time to dredge is winter and early spring so that shellfish and spawning flounder are not adversely affected.

Depending on the availability of state and federal funding, dredging could begin next year.

Lawn sign vandalism

Police Sgt. Robert W. Jackson said police have not received any complaints of lawn signs being stolen.

Two members of the Coastal Coalition called the Cohasset Mariner this week to report that a large number lawn signs supporting the group's anti-train sentiments had been stolen.

They disputed the lead in last week's page-one story saying the disappearance of lawn signs was not due to vandalism but due a town policy prohibiting political signs.

Building Inspector Robert Egan said the signs came down without a fuss after he informed the group's leader Nancy Buckley of Hingham that the signs violated the town's policy. He said he was not aware that a large number of the signs had been stolen prior to his order to take them down as members of the Coastal Coalition charged.

Model of wrecked ship captures piece. . .

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

It's fitting that the refurbished model of a sailing ship lost off Cohasset's rocky coast should be formally unveiled at the South Shore Art Center.

Upwards of 1,000 hours of labor and attention to excruciating detail have turned the antique model — a replica of the ill-fated Saint John which broke up in a gale off the Cohasset coast nearly 150 years ago — into a work of art.

John Hartshorne put his love of history and boats to good use into the project for 2-1/2 years. Hartshorne and Mary Hagerty will jointly make the presentation of the Saint John along with a sheave from the wreck of the original ship to the Cohasset Historical Society at 8 p.m. Friday in a special reception at the Art Center as part of the weekend-long celebration, Festival on the Common. A sheave is a pulley-like device used to guide rope.

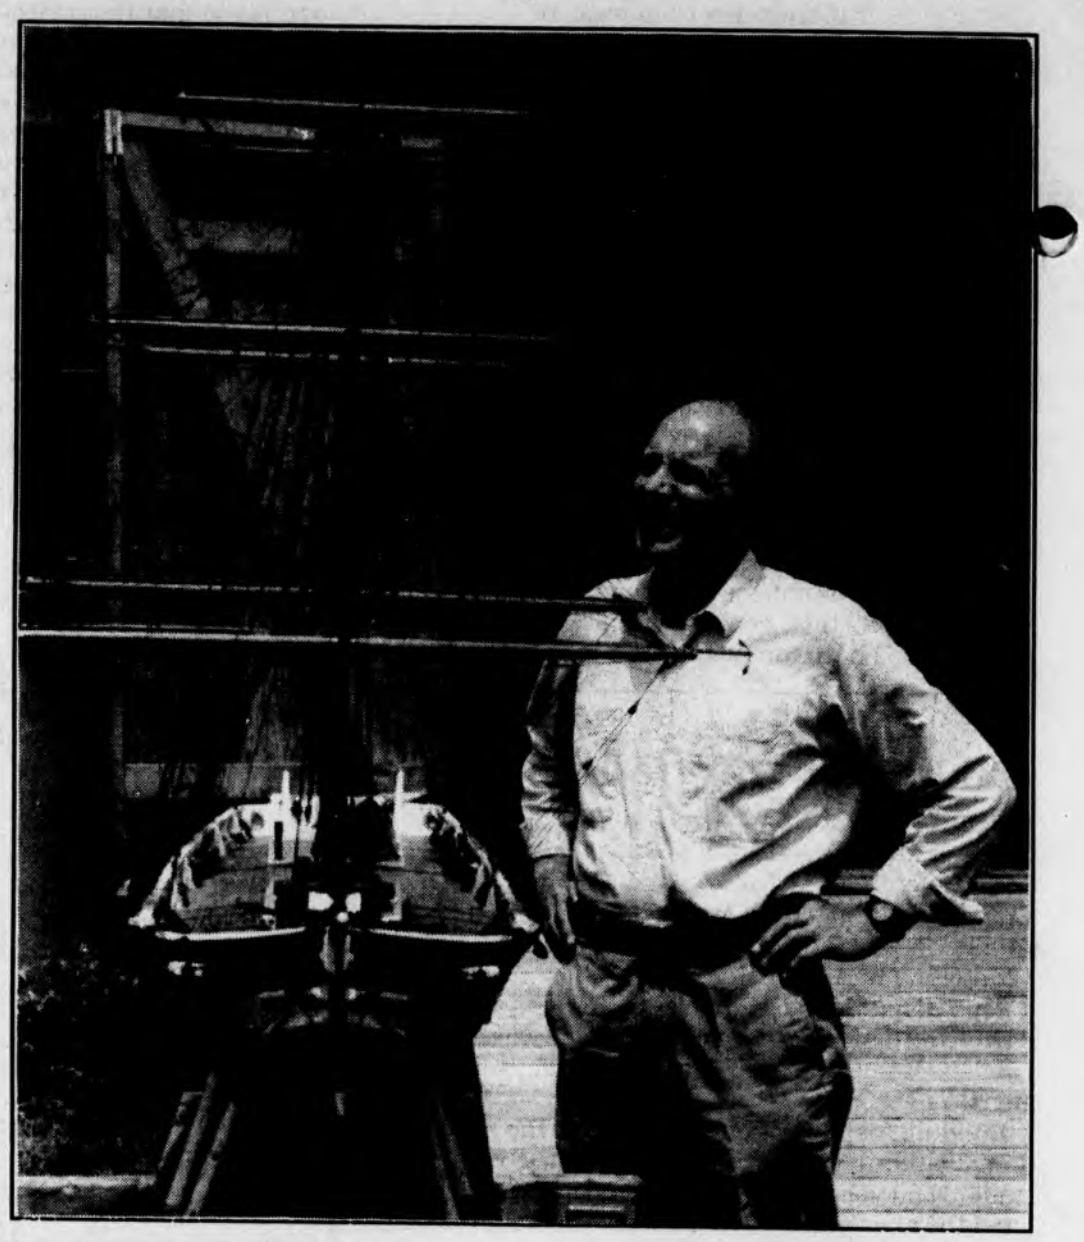
Hagerty's husband, the late Francis Hagerty who founded Cohasset Colonials a furniture kit manufacturer and builder of racing shells in town, bought the dilapidated ship model from a dealer in Boston 17 years ago.

Her husband died before he had a chance to refurbish the model, so Mrs. Hagerty offered it to the Historical Society.

Coincidentally, just before being turned over to the organization the Saint John was nearly shipwrecked in water racing through Hagerty's basement during the "No-Name Storm" of October 1991 — a Northeaster probably of similar force to the one that destroyed its namesake.

In Cohasset Central Cemetery, a large Celtic Cross stands as a memorial to the 99 people who were mostly Irish immigrants escaping the potato famine who lost their lives in the 1849 Saint John disaster.

(See page 5)



John Hartshorne of Border Street proudly examines the Saint John, which he painstakingly refurbished over 2-1/2 years. The model will be officially presented to the Cohasset Historical Society at a special reception Friday at the South Shore Art Center.

. . .of Cohasset's past

Hartshorne estimates that the model was built around the turn of the century.

"Someone was attempting to reconstruct the Saint John as it looked," the Border Street resident explained.

The brig, a sailing ship, was originally used for cargo "t as the Irish famine took hold it was converted to a packet" (passenger) ship to take immigrants to America with bunks below deck and a deck house for those who could pay more.

A rare, carved figure depicting an Irish peasant woman with a baby in her arms which was found in the ship's hold and rigging that is correct for the period are strong clues that the model is indeed a replica of the Saint John.

Part of Hartshorne's research included a visit to the Model Makers Guild where enthusiasts offered advice and detail about features of sailing ships of the era.

"I was encouraged to bring it back the model maker made it," Hartshorne recalled.

The Saint John was built in Lettermullen, Ireland and sailed back and forth from Ireland to New Brunswick.

The model, which has ballast probably installed by the original model maker, is capable of sailing. The ballast used is a form of lava rock and may hold the key to who the model builder was. The type of rock is from far away, Hartshorne said.

"I think the builder was a seaman who picked the rock up somewhere," he said. Hartshorne hopes that anyone with a clue to the model maker's identity will contact the historical society.

Hartshorne worked painstakingly making the dowels and lines and reconstructing the intricacies of the rigging. He made the miniature chain one link at a time and added brass fittings like a bell that were typical of ships of the era.

A British Merchant ensign, which was flown because Ireland was a British protectorate and therefore would have sailed under its flag, is one of the many authentic touches.

Hartshorne invested about $150 in the project which he says was money well spent.

"It took a lot of time, but I'm pleased with the result," he said.

The Saint John will be on display through July at the Art Center. Then it will moved to the Cohasset Maritime Museum on Elm Street.

Tickets are $20 per person. Call the historical society at 383-1434 for reservations and information.

Maritime Museum is opem

The Cohasset Historical Society's Maritime Museum is open until Sept. 30, each afternoon from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m., except Mondays. Admission is free to the public, and donations are welcomed. The Maritime Museum, an 18th century ship's chandlery, holds collections of artifacts, models, documents and pictures relating to Cohasset's history as a New England maritime town, featuring the 19th century fishing, shipbuilding, shipwrecks, lifesaving and mercantile trade. There is also a general collection of historical artifacts from early Cohasset.

A special exhibit this summer features photographs and artifacts illustrating the history of one of Cohasset's major local industries active from the 1930s to the 1990s at Cohasset Harbor, Hagerty Co., known also as "Cohasset Colonials." Items relating to the early years of the company, dating from its boatbuilding years of the 1930s and 1940s, and its wartime defense work during World War II will be shown in this unusual exhibit excerpted from company archives now owned by the Historical Society.

No longer welcome in town, Maui goes to court

asked Rosemary Fitzpatrick. "Everybody should be treated the same. We're not being treated fairly."

In fact, they assert that several of the complaints against Maui were provoked by violations of the town's bylaws by neighboring dogs. Section 12-F of the Cohasset bylaws prohibits dogs from disturbing the peace and quiet of any neighborhood or running loose on any public way or private property without being under direct control of their owners.

"I get dogs coming through here all the time. They wander through here and harass her because she's penned up," said Matthew Fitzpatrick.

Agreed his mother: "I said to (Executive Secretary Gregory) Doyon, 'Take a good look at my face, because I'm going to go record every dog in this town (that runs loose)," she said.

Dog complaints become more frequent in the summer months throughout the South Shore, animal control officers say. Even in towns with leash laws, residents complain that the law is rarely or sporadically enforced. But hearings called by selectmen to act upon "Complaints as to Dangerous Dog," as the state statute is entitled, engender the most controversy.

The law states that selectmen "may make such order concerning the restraint or disposal of such dog" living in the town which is determined to be "a nuisance by reason of vicious disposition or excessive barking or other disturbance."

Maui has been ordered removed from town by Tuesday, June 14. Matthew Fitzpatrick filed an appeal Monday in Quincy District Court.

"What we feel badly about is someone would tell an untruth to get the dog banned from town," said Rosemary Fitzpatrick. "There was nobody to refute what was said."

On Feb. 28, in response to complaints of aggressive behavior toward neighbors, the board ordered Maui to be chained on a run within a fenced yard and taken in and out of the house on a leash. If the dog was found running loose again, she would be banished from the town, the Fitzpatricks were notified in a March 8 letter from Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon.

Maui had previously been confined to a pool enclosure behind the home, but since has been moved to a pen surrounded by a chain-link fence.

Matthew Fitzpatrick of Cohasset and Maui.

The final straw for Maui came May 29 when Matthew loaded her into the bed of his Nissan pick-up truck en route to Wampatuck State Park, where he planned to go mountain biking. As he pulled out onto Pleasant Street, Maui fell from the truck into the road.

According to a complaint filed with the town, 12-year-old Megan Corry was walking in her front yard when Maui approached her. The girl ran into the house as Fitzpatrick called the dog back to his truck.

Fitzpatrick said Maui was disoriented from the fall, bleeding from the head, never left the public street or made any threatening gesture.

"We know he was at fault for (not keeping Maui on a leash), but (Maui) never went after her and that's why we filed the appeal, because it's not true," said Rosemary Fitzpatrick.

But Animal Control Officer Bill Quigley said the Fitzpatricks have had ample warning to avoid Maui's fate.

"The residents testified (in March) that the dog, they felt, was aggressive to the neighbors. The board decided to give Matthew Fitzpatrick a chance to keep the dog," Quigley said. "He got loose."

Matthew Fitzpatrick said Maui does not pose a threat to children, getting along fine with his roommate's nieces and nephews. The two rent an apartment adjoining Matthew's parents house.

"If she was vicious, we would have put her down. If there was ever a threat with kids, I wouldn't want her," he said.

"She looks kind of scary, I guess," he added. "That's my impression. She has a look to her."

Whether Maui attacked or approached anyone May 29 is irrelevant, Quigley said. The dog violated the terms of the March order.

"The bottom line is: the dog was loose," Quigley said. "The way the board worded it, it doesn't matter whether the dog was chasing the girl or chasing a leaf down the street."

According to "The Complete Dog Book," published by the American Kennel Club, Rottweilers are "basically a calm, confident and courageous dog with a self-assured aloofness that does not lend itself to immediate and indiscriminate friendships. An ideal Rottweiler is self-confident and responds quietly and with a wait-and-

Attorney: dangerous dog statute may be unconstitutional

■Mulls civil rights challenge of statute

By Steve Adams
Mariner staff

A Boston attorney representing a Lincoln family whose St. Bernards have been ordered destroyed by lethal injection wants the state law regarding dangerous dogs declared unconstititutional.

Steven M. Wise, who specializes in dangerous dog hearings, is appealing the selectmen's decision and considering a constitutional challenge of the statute invoked in the decision.

"It implies an attitude toward dogs that existed in 1791, when they were not even considered property," said Wise. In that era, it was not even possible to prosecute people for stealing a dog because no property rights were associated with them.

That has since changed, and Wise contends that the statute is unconstitutional, among other reasons, because it deprives individuals of their property without due process.

"Studies have shown that for many people, a pet is the most important emotional relationship they have," said Wise. "So when a government agency comes in and says, 'Hey, off with the dog's head,' that makes them very upset."

"These hearings turn into a real emotional things for the people involved," agreed Cohasset Animal Control Officer Bill Quigley. "It's their dog, it's their pet, it's part of their family. But on the other hand, you don't want to see a child get hurt. The town is trying to protect themselves."

Cohasset Selectmen voted June 6 to banish Maui, a 2-year-old Rottwiler-boxer mix, from town after the dog temporarily got loose in violation of a restraining order.

In March, the board sent a letter to owner Matthew Fitzpatrick of 60 Pleasant St. ordering the dog be leashed or enclosed at all times and warning that Maiu would otherwise be ordered removed from town. In response to a complaint from Jane and Martin Corry Jr. of 81 Pleasant St. regarding a May 29 incident, the board voted at its next meeting to banish Maui.

Quigley said dog hearings before the selectmen are an "extreme" measure, noting the town hasn't ordered a dog banished since 1990.

"A lot of times the board will give a second chance," he said. "They give people enough rope to hang themselves.

"If they give them a fair chance, they really don't have a lot to say when they get to court. They were given a second chance, is what it is.

"It's a real extreme case when there's a dog hearing. Usually, the people will abide by what the animal control officer offers. If they don't, they end up before the selectmen."

Lincoln Selectmen ordered a pair of St. Bernards destroyed by lethal injection for the April 1 attack on Dr. Patricia Simmons, a local psychiatrist. Wise, representing the owners, Nai Nan Ko and his wife Julia, filed an appeal in Concord District Court, arguing that the execution would violate the Ko's civil rights.

Wise claims the Lincoln Selectmen failed to follow the state law of a written complaint before action is taken, and did not allow cross-examination.

Wise criticizes the statute for empowering a political body with making judicial decisions.

"The problem with this statute is it's not fair. People are not dealt with fairly. I'm afraid it has a lot of elements of a kangaroo court.

"You have this political body making quasi-judicial decisions. But what's happening is: it's not judicial, it's a political decision. If you have a hearing where there are a lot of people screaming, they say, 'OK, let's kill the dogs.'"

Neighbors' testimony often reflects their own relationships with the dog owner, he added.

"These cases can get very emotional and very charged. You'll have an inflammatory, emotional hearing where very few facts get communicated. What gets communicated is neighbors saying, 'I'm afraid.' That may be, but that doesn't mean there's grounds for it.

The law also states that the court shall affirm the selectmen's decision unless it was made "in bad faith" or "without proper cause."

"I've done dozens of cases. Nobody has ever been able to tell me what 'proper cause' even means," Wise said.

What the law says

Chapter 140, Section 157, Massachusetts General Laws ('Complaint as to Dangerous Dog') states in part: "If any person shall make complaint in writing to the selectmen of a town... that any dog owned or harbored within his or their jurisdiction is a nuisance by reason of vicious disposition or excessive barking or other disturbance... such selectmen... shall investigate or cause to be investigated such complaint, including an examination on oath of the complainant, and may make such order concerning the restraint or disposal of such dog as may be deemed necessary."

see attitude to influences in his environment. He has an inherent desire to protect home and family... (they are) especially suited as a companion, guardian and general all-purpose dog." Rottweilers are believed to be descended from the drover dogs indigenous to ancient Rome.

The AKC describes the desirable Boxer temperament as "deliberate and wary with strangers... will exhibit curiosity but, most importantly, fearless courage if threatened."

Rosemary Fitzpatrick said if state and local dog laws were strictly enforced, there would be an avalanche of complaints. Quigley, the town's part-time animal officer since 1987, acknowledged that this has been a particularly busy year for his department.

"In the summer, people are in their backyards, having a barbecue, and these dogs will come right up and take hot dogs right off the grill," said Quigley. "We also have a problem with loose dogs in Sandy Beach."

Quigley said he has been overwhelmed with complaints in recent weeks — everything from barking dogs to diseased raccoons. On a single day last week, he received 20 messages on his answering machine.

"Right now, I'm inundated with calls about wildlife," he said. "We've had some diseased, distempered raccoons out in the daytime. After a long winter, they're more likely to be out looking for food. It's hard to help everybody. Eighty-five percent of them are wildlife calls."

Matthew Fitzpatrick he is frustrated that he was never given a chance to respond to the latest complaint against Maui.

"I would have been there (if he had been notified)," said Matthew Fitzpatrick.

"He wasn't given an opportunity to face this man," said Rosemary Fitzpatrick. "No one was even notified until Tuesday afternoon. A police officer appeared at the door Tuesday afternoon with a letter for Matthew. We found out about it that way."

Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson provided a legal opinion March 10 stating that selectmen were within their rights to order the dog banished without a second hearing.

Citing Chapter 140, Section 157, Henderson wrote, "It would appear that language (of the statute) is sufficiently broad to enter a restraining order and an order for removal in the same decision."

Right now, Matthew Fitzpatrick is learning what he can about the court appeal process, and just how numbered Maui's days in Cohasset may be.

"I don't want to leave, but if I have to, I'll find another apartment out of town," he said.

No longer welcome in town, Maui goes to court

asked Rosemary Fitzpatrick. "Everybody should be treated the same. We're not being treated fairly."

In fact, they assert that several of the complaints against Maui were provoked by violations of the town's bylaws by neighboring dogs. Section 12-F of the Cohasset bylaws prohibits dogs from disturbing the peace and quiet of any neighborhood or running loose on any public way or private property without being under direct control of their owners.

"I get dogs coming through here all the time. They wander through here and harass her because she's penned up," said Matthew Fitzpatrick.

Agreed his mother: "I said to (Executive Secretary Gregory) Doyon, 'Take a good look at my face, because I'm going to go record every dog in this town (that runs loose)," she said.

Dog complaints become more frequent in the summer months throughout the South Shore, animal control officers say. Even in towns with leash laws, residents complain that the law is rarely or sporadically enforced. But hearings called by selectmen to act upon "Complaints as to Dangerous Dog," as the state statute is entitled, engender the most controversy.

The law states that selectmen "may make such order concerning the restraint or disposal of such dog" living in the town which is determined to be "a nuisance by reason of vicious disposition or excessive barking or other disturbance."

Maui has been ordered removed from town by Tuesday, June 14. Matthew Fitzpatrick filed an appeal Monday in Quincy District Court.

"What we feel badly about is someone would tell an untruth to get the dog banned from town," said Rosemary Fitzpatrick. "There was nobody to refute what was said."

On Feb. 28, in response to complaints of aggressive behavior toward neighbors, the board ordered Maui to be chained on a run within a fenced yard and taken in and out of the house on a leash. If the dog was found running loose again, she would be banished from the town, the Fitzpatricks were notified in a March 8 letter from Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon.

Maui had previously been confined to a pool enclosure behind the home, but since has been moved to a pen surrounded by a chain-link fence.

The final straw for Maui came May 29 when Matthew loaded her into the bed of his Nissan pick-up truck en route to Wampatuck State Park, where he planned to go mountain biking. As he pulled out onto Pleasant Street, Maui fell from the truck into the road.

According to a complaint filed with the town, 12-year-old Megan Corry was walking in her front yard when Maui approached her. The girl ran into the house as Fitzpatrick called the dog back to his truck.

Fitzpatrick said Maui was disoriented from the fall, bleeding from the head, never left the public street or made any threatening gesture.

"We know he was at fault for (not keeping Maui on a leash), but (Maui) never went after her and that's why we filed the appeal, because it's not true," said Rosemary Fitzpatrick.

But Animal Control Officer Bill Quigley said the Fitzpatricks have had ample warning to avoid Maui's fate.

"The residents testified (in March) that the dog, they felt, was aggressive to the neighbors. The board decided to give Matthew Fitzpatrick a chance to keep the dog," Quigley said. "He got loose."

Matthew Fitzpatrick said Maui does not pose a threat to children, getting along fine with his roommate's nieces and nephews. The two rent an apartment adjoining Matthew's parents house.

"If she was vicious, we would have put her down. If there was ever a threat with kids, I wouldn't want her," he said.

"She looks kind of scary, I guess," he added. "That's my impression. She has a look to her."

Whether Maui attacked or approached anyone May 29 is irrelevant, Quigley said. The dog violated the terms of the March order.

"The bottom line is: the dog was loose," Quigley said. "The way the board worded it, it doesn't matter whether the dog was chasing the girl or chasing a leaf down the street."

According to "The Complete Dog Book," published by the American Kennel Club, Rottweilers are "basically a calm, confident and courageous dog with a self-assured aloofness that does not lend itself to immediate and indiscriminate friendships. An ideal Rottweiler is self-confident and responds quietly and with a wait-and-

Attorney: dangerous dog statute may be unconstitutional

■Mulls civil rights challenge of statute

By Steve Adams
Mariner staff

A Boston attorney representing a Lincoln family whose St. Bernards have been ordered destroyed by lethal injection wants the state law regarding dangerous dogs declared unconstititutional.

Steven M. Wise, who specializes in dangerous dog hearings, is appealing the selectmen's decision and considering a constitutional challenge of the statute invoked in the decision.

"It implies an attitude toward dogs that existed in 1791, when they were not even considered property," said Wise. In that era, it was not even possible to prosecute people for stealing a dog because no property rights were associated with them.

That has since changed, and Wise contends that the statute is unconstitutional, among other reasons, because it deprives individuals of their property without due process.

"Studies have shown that for many people, a pet is the most important emotional relationship they have," said Wise. "So when a government agency comes in and says, 'Hey, off with the dog's head,' that makes them very upset."

"These hearings turn into a real emotional things for the people involved," agreed Cohasset Animal Control Officer Bill Quigley. "It's their dog, it's their pet, it's part of their family. But on the other hand, you don't want to see a child get hurt. The town is trying to protect themselves."

Cohasset Selectmen voted June 6 to banish Maui, a 2-year-old Rottwiler-boxer mix, from town after the dog temporarily got loose in violation of a restraining order.

In March, the board sent a letter to owner Matthew Fitzpatrick of 60 Pleasant St. ordering the dog be leashed or enclosed at all times and warning that Maiu would otherwise be ordered removed from town. Quigley said dog hearings before the selectmen are an "extreme" measure, noting the town hasn't ordered a dog banished since 1990.

"A lot of times the board will give a second chance," he said. "They give people enough rope to hang themselves.

"If they give them a fair chance, they really don't have a lot to say when they get to court. They were given a second chance, is what it is.

"It's a real extreme case when there's a dog hearing. Usually, the people will abide by what the animal control officer offers. If they don't, they end up before the selectmen."

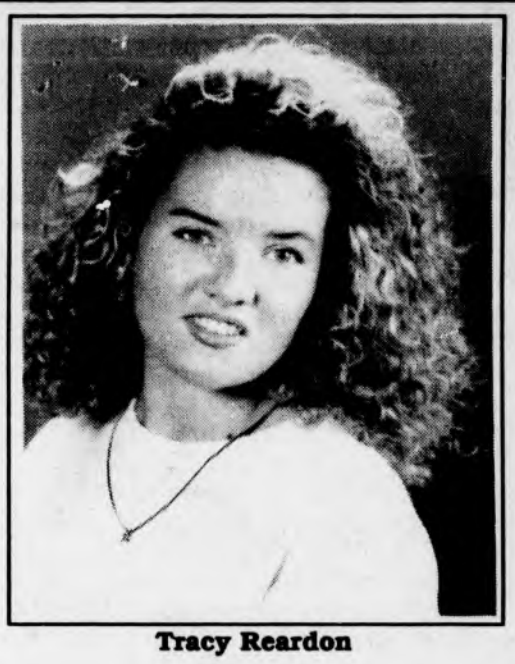
Congratulations to seventh grader Tara Hettstrom, for being a top finalist in the New England American Athletic Union Gymnastic Regional Championships. Tara placed third in all around, third on floor, and fifth on beam and balance (that's out of 65 competitions). A trophy and medals were given to her for her achievements, and we know she worked hard to get them.

Great job, Tara, we know that we will be reading a lot more about you as you make your way through the gymnastics world.

Safety officer Clifton Jones once again pleads for you to make your children wear helmets when they are riding their bikes, and is offering a reward for those that do so! If your child is spotted riding his/her bike with a helmet, Cohasset Food Mart may reward them with a free slush (large) — each officer will get 50 coupons to distribute, so we hope your kiddo will be seen wearing one. It is so important, it greatly reduces head injuries that can be acquired by one "little" fall. Make it mandatory in your house, just as "buckle up" is. And, thanks go to Cohasset Food Mart and the Cohasset Police for making us aware.

We are all so proud of Susan DeMichele, her art work is spectacular. What Susan does is use the shaped rocks that are prevalent on Jerusalem Rd., takes her pastels and allows everyone to see the rocks, sky and sea. Susan's art is presently at the Marlborough Galleries on Newbury St., stop in and enjoy them the next time you are there. Until July 30 that is. Susan won first prize in drawing at the 1994 All New England Juried Show.



Tracy Reardon

Tim Herzog

Congratulations go to Eric Theriault and Deana Genovese, both 1990 CHS graduates, both graduated from Plymouth State College in Portsmouth, N.H. They both earned a B.S and everyone is extremely proud of their accomplishments. We all hope that lots of good things are in store for you both.

Another accomplishment to report. Norma and Ernie's daughter, Kristin, has made the Dean's List and President's list at Rollins College in Florida. These grades were so grand that they impressed the people of Wake Forest University in North Carolina. Kristin is transferring there in the Fall of 1994 to begin her sophomore Year. Keep us posted!

It's good to see Jessica Jenkins home again after she spent her junior year abroad studying in Switzerland. At the conclusion of the year she was inducted into the National Honor Society and received the Headmaster's Society Award and the 11th grade math award. Jessica must have tons of stories to tell, hopefully we will hear from her in the future.

You may have seen the beautiful wedding party when you went by the Second Congregational Church a few weeks ago, the beautiful bride was Jill Nedrow. Jill is now Mrs. David Zimmermann. Bridal Attendants included Kerry O'Brien and Dina Potolicchio, fellow classmates.

Amy Duncombe came from Long Island, New York, Sara Seavey Russell from Salem, Oregon, and Nicky White from Seattle, Washington.

What a great time reminiscing they must have had. Especially Jill, Kerry and Amy and Sara, who were sports teammates through their CHS years, and graduated in 1985. They sure earned a ton of varsity letters, that's for sure. Surely they are still remembering the stories!

Speaking of stories, it was whispered to me that "Around Town" was part of the rehearsal dinner, an extra paragraph was added to tell all about the wedding party. Hmmm, is someone vying for my job?

News from Thayer Academy. Tracy Reardon, daughter of Thomas and Susan Reardon, who recently graduated from Thayer, will be attending Wheaton College. Tracy was also accepted at Regis. Tracy was such a big part of all aspects of Thayer, she will be a real asset to Wheaton. Hopefully we'll be hearing all about it.

St. Lawrence University awarded a Bachelor of Arts Degree to Ms. Tegan R. Hamilton of 363 Jerusalem Rd. She was an English Writing Major, a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, participant in the International Study program in Kenya, a graduate of the Holderness School. Congratulations.

The Cohasset Red Cross Bloodmobile had good news to report this week. Their last bloodmobile was held at the Parish House June 7. Ninety people showed up to donate blood, and 84 pints were donated. Quite a feat, and all that donated (as well as donating time) are to be applauded.

Tabor Academy announced that Tim Herzog graduated May 28. Tim was a member of the sailing team, and plans to attend St. Mary's College in Maryland in the fall. Tim is the son of Mrs. Margot J. Herzog.

We hope that Grace Silvia gets better with each passing day as she recovers from surgery at the Deaconess Hospital. Get well soon.

Belated birthday greetings go to Elinor Kennedy, a sure example of the saying "you're not getting older, you are getting better"! Congratulations!

Washington State University sends word that Stuart A. W. Tolman earned a spot on the President's Honor Roll through all of his hard work, and we applaud him.

Harry and Ruth Goodwin certainly deserve a standing ovation, they will be celebrating their 54th anniversary this

Margaret H. Bemis

Mrs. Margaret (Mardy) Houghton Bemis, 92, died at her home in Bedford, Saturday, May 14.

She was born February 18, 1902, in Brookline. She was the daughter of the late Silas A. and Margaret (Beckwith) Houghton.

Mrs. Bemis attended Winsor School and Mrs. Walker's School. For 70 years she was an expert tennis and badminton player, and also a proficient knitter, keeping her grandchildren and family in sweaters, socks and gloves.

She was an active volunteer at the Emerson Hospital and The Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston.

Mrs. Bemis had a summer home in Cohasset on Hobart Lane and went there every summer since 1926.

She leaves her husband, F. Gregg Bemis of Bedford; a daughter, Margaret B. Ross of Cambridge; a son, F. Gregg Bemis Jr. of Santa Fe, N.M.; 9 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. Memorial contributions may be made to Emerson Hospital in Concord. Arrangements by Bedford Funeral Home, Bedford, Mass.

Anne Witzke

Anne (Pyrczak) Witzke, 81, who worked for the Fafnir Bearing co. in New Britain, Conn., for many years, died May 28 at the home of her daughter, Barbara Cook of Cohasset after a brief illness.

Mrs. Witzke was a member of the Republican Party and St. Joseph's Church in New Britain.

Born and educated in New Britain, Conn., she lived in Cohasset two years.

Wife of the late Edmund Witzke, she also leaves two grandchildren.

A service was conducted June 1 by the Rev. Joseph Bowrret in Rose Hill Memorial Park, Rocky Hill, Conn.

Memorial donations may be made to charity.

Our role

What transpired this week at the Cohasset Mariner goes beyond the question of whether or not you are in favor of restoration of the Greenbush Line.

It goes to the very heart of the role of a newspaper — especially a local one — when faced with a controversial issue where emotions run at a fever pitch.

Following a recent story on the issue of lawn signs and coverage of the conflicting views of train supporters and detractors, the editor of this paper was besieged by several members of the passionate anti-train group "The Coastal Coalition" which apparently has no designated spokesperson.

Poised for battle, those who called or came in accused the paper of bias, demanded to know why a press release had not appeared (when in fact it had), insisted on the paper writing certain stories, and questioned why the paper included the viewpoint of the opposition in a June 2 page-one news article.

It is no secret that the Cohasset Mariner is in favor of restoration of the Greenbush Line. Recently, we applauded the efforts of Scituate selectmen in initiating a petition among their counterparts in the area to get the Greenbush Line off the starting blocks. In another recent editorial we endorsed Alternative 6a — restoration of surface rail to Greenbush with a tunnel under Hingham Square — one of half-a-dozen transportation alternatives being studied by the MBTA.

Those editorial decisions were reached in a similar way to those at other newspapers every day: we put our heads together, examined the facts, and took a stand.

Whether it's criticizing the actions of local officials, educating readers about a newsworthy occurrence — or taking a position on an issue — newspapers take sides in editorials.

As your local paper — we provide ample space on the editorial pages so that your opinions are represented. We are alert to lobbying efforts but encourage letters-to-the-editor and we try to be fair when we receive letters from readers with opposing views to see that they get equal play if possible.

News stories, however, are different. Regardless of the editorial stand of our paper — we strive to present a balanced picture in stories. You may not agree that we succeed in that endeavor all of the time — but our goal is to do the best we can within the time constraints of a deadline-oriented business.

However, several members of the Coastal Coalition have made it clear to us that nothing we write will be right to them, unless it's only their side that's represented.

Here at the Cohasset Mariner, we're not going to batten down the hatches. We can take the heat.

But we want to make it perfectly clear: this paper will not goaded into being a cheerleader for a cause — no matter how charged with righteous energy its proponents may be.

Some thoughts for Father's Day

letters

(Ed.'s note: Mrs. Moores was featured in 'Picture This' two weeks ago).

To the Editor:

It was really fun to meet your reporter who did the article for a person of the week page. She was very pleasant and after a bit of discussion...I got the idea of how she goes about her job.

Because it is so near Father's Day — I want to make it clear that my happiest moment was perhaps getting the Hutchinson River and Parkway sign installed in Pelham, New York. However, it was happy only because I did this to honor my father, who had a great faith in the possibilities open for women. I also learned that very clearly timing is in great measure — the key to accomplishing any feat albeit a job, a deed, a goal, etc. Another, to my surprise is working sans a committee. Not always, of course, but in many cases — "yes."

The word "lobbying" is not one with which I have close acquaintance — but if it means what I think — this was not the case. Remembering, I wrote just one letter at first to Congresswoman Barbara Kenealley (daughter of John Bailey a very public political figure in Connecticut). I did not know that Geraldine Ferraro, who was running for vice president, was a real friend. She just wrote and told me whom I should contact — the Gov. of New York, and he and I both, contacted DOT (Department of Transportation-NY).

This information is not really important to the reader, but because it is nearing a sort of memorial day for fathers no longer here and sometimes even neglected in the sadness of a deep financial and emotion-filled Depression that covered the nation and was then followed by a dreadful and devastating World War which engulfed us — and took many of the men not yet clear of the woes and challenges of that Depression — into marching off to separation from their loved ones and into other types of turmoil.

For more than 75 years, the various historical societies (with committees) had wanted the name of Anne Marbury Hutchinson affixed where it could be seen by the motoring populace. It just never happened. And, it is only in looking back that I feel it important. I just felt it was a job to be done. I had no intention of going to the unveiling of the sign, but I was persuaded and I did go. And every Father's Day I laugh to myself when I think of it. His heroine and ancestor now has her name on a highway in the New World...and she was an English woman born in the late 1500s who never let the Puritan leaders of the Massachusetts Bay Colony forget their charge — and she suffered because of her commitment to freedom of religious thinking.

For over 350 years, the leaders of the Puritans tried to eliminate her from the thoughts of early immigrants...who fled north and south led by Rev. John Wheelwright, when she and her family were banished to Rhode Island and she met her death as a widow in Pelham, New York. Although she was an Anglican and her father an Anglican clergyman...it is believed now she had become or joined the Quaker cause. The reason that the Royal Governor Thomas Hutchinson was sent back to England was because he

Restoration of Greenbush rail supported

To the Editor:

A new sign has recently sprouted on the lawns around town. To our family, it is as unwelcome as the most pervasive weed, and a lot more detrimental.

We are typical of the many South Shore families who have one or more members working in the city outside of the financial district.

In our case, both my husband and my daughter commute to Cambridge on a daily basis. In order for them to get to their respective school and job on time, they leave the house at 6:45 a.m., and join the myriad others who must deal with a dangerous and stressful highway commute in order to live in Cohasset.

Contrary to public sentiment, this group is not adequately served by bus or commuter boat. We often utilize the commuter boat, and value its service, but it is not able to answer the needs of those who work or attend school in areas of the city other than in the vicinity of Rowe's Wharf.

When I was my daughter's age, many of my parents' friends commuted to Boston from the South Shore via the train. The only non-resident I knew of who was reported to have taken the train to the South Shore before he lived here was my father. At the time he was a recent Harvard graduate who had two published novels to his credit, but didn't own a car. Today, he might be feared as "...the wrong kind" because he traveled by train to get here; to my mother, he was a breath of fresh air.

Those families we represent who would benefit most by the return of the Greenbush line are often those receiving the lowest expenditure from our town because we are either working or in school in another

'Back on Track' disputes claims made by 'Coastal Coalition'

By William J. Grimes
Special to the Mariner

commentary

(Ed's note: William Grimes is a Hingham resident, member of the Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) which commented on a federally-ordered feasibility study on transportation alternatives, and is chairman of Back on Track, a pro-train citizen's group. The Mariner contacted Nancy Buckley, leader of the anti-train Coastal Coalition, to invite her to submit her comments this week. Mrs. Buckley declined because of her busy schedule preparing for the Coalition meeting held last night after the Mariner went to press. She said she will respond next week).

For ten years, our organization, Back on Track, has worked for the restoration of commuter rail service on all three branches of the former Old Colony rail system on the South Shore. We note with satisfaction the current progress on reconstruction of the Middleborough and Plymouth branches, and continue to work to ensure that the Greenbush branch is restored to rail service as well.

Back on Track was formed because our members knew that projects like this one are bound to create concerns among the populations of the communities involved. The MBTA has spent millions on the compulsory environmental studies that address these issues, and this process is nearing its conclusion. Of course, once the rail alternative is approved, the details of specific construction impacts in the individual towns will be addressed. Citizen participation will be encouraged at that time.

We are therefore concerned that the public statements and literature distributed by a group calling itself the Coastal Coalition, replete as they are with inaccuracies, half-truths, and outright lies, represent an attempt to confuse and deceive the public about the Old Colony Railroad Restoration Project and the nature of the environmental study process. As a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee studying all three lines, I strongly resent the suggestion that a group of individuals, whose concerns I believe to be selfish and parochial, and who have not participated in the study process over the last decade, can be permitted to spread rumor and deception in this fashion. In my opinion, the campaign of the Coastal Coalition either reveals an ignorant unawareness of the facts, or reflects a cynical campaign of disinformation intended to panic those members of the general public who have not been following the restoration process as closely as we. In either case, the following commentary on two Coastal Coalition flyers speaks for itself.

• Document I — Invitation to Public Meeting April 27, 1994

THE TRAIN
KNOW THE FACTS...THEN DECIDE

(Ed.'s note: Coalition claims are in italics).

• 42 Street Crossings Total...Do You Know Where They Are?

11 in Cohasset, 6 in Scituate, 14 in Hingham

• Feds Spending Millions to Eliminate Dangerous Street Crossings

• Osgood Playground 40 ft. From Tracks

• Cohasset's 11 Crossings

Beechwood, 2 Private, Cushing (near Pond), Spring, Pleasant (Strawberry Parfait), Smith Place (Carousel Antiques), Sohier (Osgood), Rocky Lane, King Street, Main Street (golf course).

The MBTA commuter rail system has many crossings on its lines. For example, the line to Rockport (Beverly-Rockport=16.6 miles), which most resembles the Greenbush route, has 8 private and 19 public grade crossings for a total of 27. While it is of course desirable to eliminate as many grade crossings as possible, all those on the Greenbush line will be protected by flashing signals, bells, and gates. The MBTA and its consultants are currently studying the possibility of using horns mounted at the crossings to reduce and possibly to eliminate the blowing of locomotive horns, thus reducing the area of noise impact when the train passes.

A significant number of crossings will be eliminated in Hingham if one of the tunnel options is selected, as was strongly suggested by the CAC in its recent report to the MBTA.

• Continual Pesticides (?) Sprayed

• Possible Water Supply Pollution

The statement makes no sense; what are "continual pesticides"? What is the significance of the question mark?

More importantly, the MBTA does not apply pesticides; it uses herbicides, which control weeds and not insects; their use is closely regulated. You may be sure that local conservation commissions will work closely with the MBTA to be sure that local bodies of water and wetlands are adequately protected from the effects of such substances and that alternative methods of controlling weed growth on the right-of-way will be used when appropriate.

• Derailments Could Block Emergency Vehicles

This is nothing more than scare talk; derailments on MBTA lines are extremely rare, and the odds of one occurring precisely on a crossing are negligible. With only 24 trains a day, all of the gate closures add up to only 30 minutes; crossings will therefore be clear 97 percent of the time during the 17 hours of operation on weekdays, and clear 100 percent of the time when no trains are running.

• 35 mph Through Village — Requires 700 Feet to Stop

Automobiles routinely travel 35 mph in our towns, speed limits notwithstanding. They are not confined to a narrow right-of-way as the trains are, and are much more likely to be involved in accidents of all kinds. The right of way will be fenced in dense residential areas, and the design of this fencing, with local citizen input, can be matched to the neighborhood.

• Higher Taxes

The flat statement "Higher Taxes" is meaningless; no evidence is presented to support the accusation that rail restoration will unavoidably cause taxes to rise.

• Loud Double Decker Diesel Engines

There is no such thing as a "double decker Diesel engine." The new bilevel coaches now conveying MBTA riders in air-conditioned, air-suspended comfort are indeed double-decked, but the engines are not. This is an example of this group's use of exaggeration and untruth to panic the unwary.

• Freight Trains

There is no plan to operate freight trains on the Greenbush line; the other two lines have never stopped running freight on their routes. While no one can guarantee that freight would never be carried on the Greenbush line, the fact is that this is an extremely unlikely development, which would predictably encounter strong opposition.

• No Emission Control On Diesel Engines

Harmful emissions from a locomotive pulling a train are many times less than those from the automobiles that would be required to carry the same number of passengers, and several times less than the emissions from the buses it would take to do the same job. Currently, the MBTA meets the Federal Railroad Administration Standards for Diesel fuel; there are no EPA regulations. The use of alternative fuels such as compressed natural gas (CNG), now under test on other transit systems, is being explored.

• Scituate Station Trains Run All Night in Winter to Avoid Freezing

The facility for overnight storage of the diesel locomotives at Scituate will utilize electrical heaters for the engines, eliminating the need to idle them all night long. A brief warmup period will be required each morning, however, to ready the trains for their runs: building up air brake pressure, use of head-end power to heat or air-condition the passenger cars, etc.

• Cohasset Currently Pays MBTA $149,706/Yr. Braintree With 1 Train Station Pays MBTA $936,322/Yr.

Braintree has no train station; it has the Red Line terminal and garage, which serve a busy rapid transit line. There is no basis for comparison.

Some of Cohasset's payment goes to support commuter rail service in other communities; isn't it time the town benefited from some of this money itself?

• Document II — Invitation to Meeting on June 15, in Cohasset

Many of the same points are raised as in the case of Document I, plus:

PROBLEM:
TRANSPORTATION ON SOUTH SHORE
PROPOSED SOLUTION — TRAIN TO GREENBUSH

IMPACT ON ENVIRONMENT

The winding train route was laid out in the 1800s along the lowlands because the engines didn't have power for hills. A diesel run, double decker, high speed train with NO EMISSION CONTROL will charge through these same wetlands and marshes including the PROTECTED Back River Estuary. HERBICIDES/CHEMICALS will be sprayed to control growth along the tracks, threatening water supplies and fragile ecosystems. The Environmental Protection Agency considers any noise above 55 decibels as NOISE POLLUTION. Decibel levels on the Greenbush line will reach 115 decibels. This pollution will occur 24 times a day! Noise barrier walls will become targets for GRAFFITI.

The route of the Greenbush line was chosen because it was level and would require less locomotive fuel; it also allows the trains to operate at higher speeds than over hilly terrain. Had it been necessary to traverse hills and valleys, tunnels and bridges would have been built, regardless of the power of the engines.

No mention is made here of the locations at which the noise level would allegedly reach 115 DB.

Graffiti are not associated exclusively with railroads; there are current examples of the sprayer's art in all the Greenbush communities. By involving themselves in the planning process for their towns, citizens can help determine the size and nature of structures to be built; they can decline noise-barrier walls as unnecessary in view of the few minutes a day they will be needed, or request rough-finished surfaces that discourage graffiti.

According to the MBTA, many of the graffiti "artists" they have identified come from the suburbs to do their scribbling in the inner city, not the other way around!

END OF THE COMMUTER BOAT

of people in workforce on South Shore > 73,170 (according to latest U.S. census)

of people MBTA anticipates will take the train > 3,500 (1/3 currently using public transportation)

of people currently commuting by boat > 2,500 (many of whom the MBTA predicts will switch to the train)

The exorbitant MBTA DEFICIT will NEVER justify two major modes of transportation to the same area servicing SO FEW PEOPLE. The train will mean the probable DEMISE of the commuter boat, ending the most reliable, weather resistant, pleasurable form of public transportation (advertised in New York as the civilized commute) as well as ending the best demonstration of public/private cooperation.

There is no plan to eliminate commuter boats from their current route. In a multimodal transportation system like that which we need here on the South Shore, many will switch from the boats to the trains because it is more convenient, comfortable, and close to home. Commuter boats have been determined to be inadequate to meet the needs of the Greenbush communities; we need the train and bus too, and of course there will always be those who want to or must use their automobiles.

The commuter boat is not the most reliable and weather-resistant form of public transportation; during this winter's storms, the commuter rail lines kept close to schedule while the boats were delayed or stopped by ice in the harbor.

ALTERNATIVE SOLUTION — BUSES AND BOATS

MBTA studies show that for $36 million we could get:

1. an expanded Hingham Shipyard terminal
2. new Nantasket (Hull) terminal
3. 5 new high speed commuter boats
4. feeder bus service on South Shore
5. increased peak-time service

By proposing "buses and boats" as an alternative solution, the Coalition totally ignores the reality of commuting from Scituate, Marshfield, Duxbury, and North Plymouth. Denying fast, smooth rail transportation to the citizens of these communities, who have voted with huge majorities to restore the Greenbush trains, the Coalition would force them to drive to Hingham through all kinds of weather to board one of the "5 new high-speed commuter boats," or to crowd into feeder buses to get there.

Add to that our recommendations:

1. new Boston terminals — Fan Pier, South Station new South Shore terminals — Quincy, Weymouth

2. TIMED bus service upon arrival in Boston to transport people to the Prudential and other downtown areas

3. direct water shuttle from South Shore to Logan with Park and Ride lot

4. midday, late night, weekend service

5. handicap accessibility

6. conversion of Greenbush train route to bicycle/walking path

There is no way to get a "high-speed commuter boat" to South Station, nor will there be in the future. Dropping passengers at Fan Pier who want to go further or connect to the Red Line would mean forcing them to walk a long distance or to change to a bus of some kind, subject to traffic delays. As for Quincy and Weymouth boat terminals, the Red Line is there to carry these riders.

The reference to "timed bus service" is ludicrous; downtown traffic realities make this only a hallucination. Passengers arriving at South Station by rail could easily transfer to an outbound commuter train serving Back Bay Station to reach the Copley Square area, or go downstairs to the Red Line for downtown Boston, Beacon Hill, and Cambridge.

Commuter rail stations and trains on the Greenbush line will be handicapped-accessible. And there is no reason why commuter rail could not offer midday, late night and weekend service if there were a demand.

SICK AND TIRED OF HIGHWAY TRAFFIC?

Congestion on our highways will not improve until we develop transportation system that will help the 79 percent of the South Shore workforce who DO NOT WORK IN BOSTON. We are recommending a busway system on route 3 from Marshfield to Boston and along Route 128. This is based on a system used in Germany and Australia that has the characteristics of light rail combined with the FLEXIBILITY of buses.

Railroad restoration will help those who don't have to drive to Boston, by removing cars from local streets and making it possible for some two-car families to save money by getting rid of one car. Traffic on the Southeast Expressway will not be reduced to a trickle; no one claims it will. But where is there even a hint of sympathy in the Coalition's flyers for those who suffered in the massive jams caused by last winter's snows?

The bus system referred to is called the "H-Bus" and

(See page 12)

Father's Day. . .

was "soft on Quakers." (Thomas Hutchinson—Milton, Mass.)

To think it was a high school teacher, Anthony Lyon, that pointed her out to me and the class as a most interesting New England historical figure is a focal point of historical fun for me.

Now is the time to mention that if roots could be interesting to you...become a member of the South Shore Genealogical Society (Norwell, Mass. at James Library) — no matter what, or how new you are to this country, they do offer help and suggestions to trace your background. But best of all, you realize just how fascinating history really can be. And, the other thing you observe is that families are so similar; good guys, bad guys, artists, musicians, polititians, tavern owners, boring folk, humorous folk, craftsmen...and history comes alive in your mind and you find things you could not have dreamt — not ever. It makes you curious and keeps creative and even "conjectured" thoughts flowing with new energy. Try it, you'll love it!

And in a way, this Parkway & River acknowledgement also honors that wonderfully young school teacher who died at 33. He was unmarried and so it is to remember him also. He was an inspiring dear man. Anthony Lyon. (Graduate of Amherst College and a teacher in Medford High School.) He was in his 20s when he taught.

operates in Essen, Germany along a streetcar line that runs on private right-of-way in the middle of a major street. To enable the buses to utilize the same surface, stop exactly at the loading platforms, and avoid striking the streetcars as they pass in the other direction, small horizontal wheels extend sideways from the bus to engage concrete strips that guide the front, steering wheels of the bus. This system is also used in a tunnel, once again to keep the bus running straight.

The total length of this special service is about a mile; it would not exist without the need to follow the streetcar tracks. It makes no sense whatever to suggest such an oddball, custom-made application for a major commuter line. Apart from the obvious problems of keeping the guideway clean of ice and snow, plus the lack of space in the middle of Route 3 north of Hingham, the fact that each bus has its own Diesel engine to add to air pollution levels while carrying only a fraction of the passengers accommodated in a railroad coach makes this "solution" nothing more than a daydream by those who choose to ignore reality.

Conclusion:

It should be clear from the above that the Coastal Coalition has shown no interest in the detailed environmental study process that has occupied so many of us since 1984, when Back on Track was founded, and for which we have all had to pay, and rejects the conclusions of the CAC and concerned citizens who have devoted hundreds of hours to helping provide their fellow South Shore residents with the same quality transportation which the rest of the metropolitan Boston area enjoys. The Coastal Coalition spokespersons have not a word to say about the transportation needs of Scituate and the towns to the south, but would force them to use second-class, less comfortable buses and boats to get to Boston, while indulging in the fantasy of grossly expanded commuter boat facilities and proposing totally unsuitable transportation technologies like guided buses. By refusing even to consider the possibility of restored rail service or to offer realistic solutions to transit-starved towns in the Greenbush corridor, the Coalition makes its selfish aims plain for all to see and, we are confident, to reject.

Dedicated volunteer thanked

To the Editor:

The FISH organization wishes to thank, publicly, one of our members who is retiring after two decades of loyal service, Elinor Kennedy. She is in her early 90's and deserves her well-earned rest.

FISH's purpose is to serve those in need of any sort of help, just as a good neighbor would do. Mrs. Kennedy has rendered that help by giving up one morning a month to answering her phone and providing drivers for emergencies.

There are two ways in which people can assist FISH. One is as a driver, one full day a month, mostly taking people to doctor's appointments.

Have you ever had to go to a doctor in the South Shore Hospital area without a car? How would you get there?

There are two people on FISH duty every day Monday through Friday. One is the driver and the other is the "back-up." The latter stays home all morning to handle calls while the driver is out. That is where Mrs. Kennedy served so faithfully for so long and to whom we are paying tribute.

FISH is badly in need of both drivers and back-ups. If you can help in either of these essential ways — only one day a month — please call me at 383-1111.

Before writing off the return to the Greenbush line, I hope that those of you whose lawns are host to the Stop The Train signs will stop and consider the advantages to the rest of the population whose lives will be improved by restoration of train service to this area.

Signs of change in court ruling

violation the first amendment's guarantee of free speech.

However, Shultz said, the town's by-law does regulate the size and number of signs displayed on private, residential property.

In Hingham, each home may display one election sign of a maximum size of two square feet, Shultz said. It can have a maximum height of six feet, as measured from the ground to the top of the sign.

Using this year's Hingham town election as an example, a resident could have displayed a sign for "Iris Daigle for Selectmen" or "Paul Healey for Planning Board," but not both. This also applies to support or opposition for ballot referenda.

The town by-law also permits one one-square-foot house sign, such as those for a professional who maintains an office at the residence. It may be affixed to the house no higher than five feet above the ground floor, Shultz explained.

Hingham's by-law prohibits "internally illuminated" signs, such as signs using neon tubing, but allows signs to be illuminated by flood or spot lights.

There are provisions in the by-laws to allow an application for a variance for additional or larger signs, Shultz said.

Cohasset has no by-law provisions for election or political signs in residential areas, relying instead on a long-standing "policy" of the building commissioner that election signs may be displayed for two weeks prior to the election and must be removed immediately after the election. Residents must apply for permits to display up to 10 signs.

This policy has been in effect "for 15 or 20 years," according to Cohasset executive secretary Gregory Doyon.

"Political" signs differ from election signs, Doyon said. While an election sign denotes support for a candidate or referendum question, a political sign supports or opposes a particular cause or viewpoint. These are not allowed under the town's policy.

Cohasset Zoning Enforcement Officer Robert Egan said Tuesday he will continue to enforce the existing policy in that town until he's instructed to do otherwise.

"Nothing has changed until someone tells me it's changed," Egan said. He expects the selectmen to refer the Supreme Court decision to town counsel Richard Henderson for an assessment of its impact on signs in Cohasset.

"It's not my job to interpret the law," Egan explained when asked if he would immediately allow political signs.

As reported in the June 14 New York Times, the Supreme Court decision upholds two lower court rulings from the Federal District Court and the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, both in St. Louis, Missouri stemming from a case where a resident of Ladue, Missouri was prohibited from displaying a sign opposing the war in the Persian Gulf. The law enacted in that city in 1991 was designed to eliminate "ugliness, visual blight, and clutter." The law did permit signs advertising a house for sale and small identification signs.

"A special respect for individual liberty in the home has long been part of our culture and our law," The Times quoted the decision, written for the Court by Justice John Paul Stevens. "That principle has a special resonance when the government seeks to constrain a person's ability to speak there."

Last week in Cohasset, Egan ordered that signs opposing restoration of commuter rail service be removed from homes there. The signs were placed by members of the Coastal Coalition, a grass-roots group with members in Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, and Weymouth. No permits had been issued for those signs.

At that time, members of the Coastal Coalition said they were investigating the constitutionality of Cohasset's sign policy. Selectmen there said town counsel should be consulted on the matter.

Two weeks ago, Hingham police removed other Coastal Coalition signs that were displayed on town property on East Street, near the intersection with Route 3A. The signs were similar to those used at railroad crossings, bearing the message "Progress Yes-Train No." Police said the signs confused some truck drivers, who stopped at inappropriate times, "causing near misses of motor vehicle accidents."

The Grand Tour — with Ginger Ferenz, 383-2863

The spring-time garden at the home of Alan and Linda Snowdale at 50 Mill Lane is brimming over with color! A brick walk winds its way to the front door while a low stone wall borders the driveway creating a home for a weeping cherry tree surrounded by peonies, pink tulips, along with yellow, pale pink, and dark pink single tulips. The lantern post has climbing clematis while a sundial and birdbath nestle among white and purple pansies, English lavender, dark pink phlox, pale purple phlox, daffodils, red tulips and double white daffodils. This is a beautiful garden — be sure to bring your house guest by the enjoy the view.

Author appearing

P. Carey Reid, author of the moving novel Swimming in the Starry River will read from his book June 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the Paul Pratt Library. Reid will also discuss the process of getting a book published and what was involved in writing this debut novel. When not writing, Reid teaches at Northeastern University. His poems and stories have been widely published in small presses and literary magazines. The author will be available to sign books courtesy of Buttonwood Book Store.

Sumi-e Art displayed

For June, the reading room at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library is enhanced with Sumi-e Art. Sumi-e Art pronounced (sue-me-ay), or oriental brush painting, consists of many styles of painting originating in China centuries ago and spreading throughout Korea and Japan. The Sumi-e Society members use a variety of styles — from realistic to abstract and from purely oriental to a combination of Western and Oriental.

The artists represented are Jo-An Levine, Elizabeth Robinson, Christine Flood, Ann Mahon, Edith Quigley, Kathleen Carr, Marie Pattyson, Mary Cowan, Ann Overbeck, Elizabeth Dunlavy and Ann Williams.

In addition to the Sumi-e Art, Christelle Holland of Scituate is exhibiting a collection of miniature paintings. Holland's paintings in one inch square frames represent a collection of mini-oils of local scenes including harbor scenes of Cohasset and Scituate. All are for sale.

Summer reading program

This summer Cohasset school children are invited to join readers all over the state and book a "Ticket to read". "Ticket to Read" is Massachusetts' annual statewide summer reading incentive program, scheduled for departure from the Paul Pratt Memorial Library June 24. The program is provided by the Massachusetts Regional Library Systems. This summer we will go global, with themes emphasizing travel, transportation, and cultural diversity

The summer reading program is open to all children who have completed grade 1. Reading cards may be picked up at the library for recording the titles read throughout the summer. Participants in grades 1-3 who read 20 books will be awarded a paperback book of their choice from the Friends of the Library. Participants in grades 4-6 will read 15 books for their paperback gift, and those in grade 7 and up need to read 10 books.

Participants will receive bookmarks and game sheets, as well as coupons for reduced admissions from some of the many cultural institutions and recreational attractions in our region, such as the New England Aquarium in Boston, Whalom Park, and Heritage Plantation of Sandwich.

There is also a program for "Almost-Readers" and their families — Those younger children who enjoy being read to or who are just beginning to read themselves with help. All participants in the program will receive certificates of merit signed by Gov. Weld.

"Kids who read succeed", proclaims the American Library Association. And the more kids read, the better they read. The "Ticket to Read" summer reading program will help young participants to read and maintain their proficiency throughout the school year, but just as important, to enjoy theme-related programs and activities in a non-competitive library environment. In focusing on travel and the world, the summer reading program has the added benefit of helping children to expand their bases of knowledge and to provide them with a broader foundation for future learning.

School board puts off vote on vacation changes

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

Despite earlier indications, the Cohasset School Committee has decided not to vote on the proposed school calendar change during the month of June. The change would involve replacing the existing February and April vacations with one March vacation.

"Our intention is the same. We still intend to implement the change for the 1995-1996 school year, but we don't need to vote in June," Committee Chairman Nancy Sandell said.

Although the committee has made its position very clear, it still intends to set up a small subcommittee to further discuss the change. The committee will be comprised of the Sandell, School Supt. Stephen Hart, the head of the PSO and the head of the Cohasset Teachers Association. The committee will meet twice between now and September to conduct further dialogue on the proposed change.

One school committee member questioned the committee's continual use of the phrase stated intention regarding the change.

"What does stated intention really mean? We haven't voted for it until we've voted for it." explained Ken Wilcox.

The school committee intends to vote on the change during its first meeting following the first professional development day of the next school year.

Some committee members urged that a vote be taken in September in order to afford parents the opportunity for as much time as possible in making vacation plans for the 1995-1996 school year.

"I thought that the plan to vote earlier rather than later was to help people plan," Wilcox said.

"The longer we delay, the more confused that the community is getting," added Ralph Kidder.

One group that is very interested in the proposed change is the Cohasset Teachers' Association. The association presented a notice to the school committee that it would like the opportunity to discuss this change among the teachers at the beginning of the next school year.

The school committee also heard from Hart, who presented the results of a survey conducted by the school department regarding the proposed change. The survey was sent to the chairpersons of the 350 school committees throughout the state. Cohasset has received 149 responses. In reviewing the results, Hart stated that nine communities already have a March vacation schedule in effect or plan to implement one within the next two years. Another 11 communities indicated that they might consider it at some stage in the future. Another 125 communities indicated that they do not presently have nor do they expect to implement a March vacation schedule within the next two years.

In other business, the school committee heard from representatives of a restructuring committee which was set up three years ago to address scheduling problems which exist at the Junior/Senior High School. The committee presented a summary of its recommendations to the school committee, with an emphasis on one alternative calling for an eight period schedule at the school. The change would involve reducing class length from 45 minutes to 41 minutes, but would allow students to take an additional class each day.

The change will allow for the inclusion of additional lab periods throughout the school week and will eliminate some of the scheduling conflicts which exist with regard to classes which are only offered at one time during the week. The proposed change is expected to add 17 percent more scheduling time, allowing students more flexibility. In this way, students may be able to add a second foreign language or lab periods within the various disciplines.

According to members of the restructuring committee, the majority of teachers and students are in favor of the change.

Kidder, whose commitment to finding ways of giving the students more time on academics is well-documented, raised concerns that the change might actually reduce time on task if students elect to take additional study periods or other non-academic offerings.

Most of the restructuring committee members agreed that students had expressed interests in increasing academic selections and expanding their schedules, rather than opting for study periods.

The school committee will review the findings of the restructuring committee. The restructuring committee will go forward with attempting to devise an acceptable eight period schedule.

The school committee holds its next meeting June 23.

— Student of the Month —
MEGAN RHODES

In addition to maintaining consistently excellent academic achievement, Megan has personified the personal qualities that characterize an outstanding student. From homework that is always done well and on time, to helping another student solve a difficult problem, Megan runs the whole gamut of student expectations cheerfully and courteously. She is an outstanding role model for other students to emulate.

Mr. Franey

Graduation notes!

Cohasset High School graduate Courtney Schultz received the Friends of the South Shore Hospital Scholarship and graduating senior Elizabeth Deveney joined her classmate Carrie Cosme in singing The Star Spangled Banner at the beginning of the school's commencement last week. The women's names were omitted from articles in the June 9 edition of the Cohasset Mariner.

Effort recognition roll

(The following students have been named to the Grade 7 Effort Honor Roll for the third quarter in recognition of their diligence and conscientiousness. They have received outstanding effort grades in at least four subject areas.)

Catherine Brister, Benjamin Smoot, Benjamin Littauer, Jared Ford, Alyssa McNamara, Tara Hettstrom, Lauren Genovese, Steve Sceery, Katie Walsh, Susana Candia, James O'Sullivan, Justin Golden, Caitlin O'Neill, Kaitlin Jackson, Karyn Gray, Alex Russell, Jamey Watts.

Hot dogs help late bus

Supporters of the Cohasset Metco Program ran three fund-raiser snack shops during the course of this spring baseball and soccer season. Farm league games at the high school early Saturday mornings were livened up by the coffee, juice, and donut sales held in May.

A hot dog and soda stand at Miliken Field this past Saturday finished off the effort.

Proceeds from the sales will go to MEOF, the Metco Extracurricular Opportunity Fund which funds the Metco late bus. Cohasset Metco students who stay for afterschool activities at the high school level use the late bus for transportation home.

Funding for the bus was lost four years ago in Metco budget cuts. The Cohasset Metco Committee, a committee of the PSO, assisted by many of the town and high school booster organizations, then set up MEOF so the bus could start up again.

There will be no coffee stand this Saturday because of the Harborfest/Festival on the Common festivities. A super effort by all volunteers means the 1994-95 school year will begin with some late bus funds. Contributions to the late bus effort may be made through the School Superintendent's Office, Pond Street, Cohasset, MA 02025 by marking the check MEOF.

Schools to benefit from book sales

Early dismissal news

By Ed Leonard
Special to the Mariner

Thursday, May 19, the teachers of Deer Hill and Joseph Osgood Schools presented their professional development projects to each school's faculty. As you may already know, the teachers have used some release days to work on these projects. Some teachers worked as teams to develop curriculum areas while others did individual projects.

An example of these projects completed at Osgood involved five teachers, Cynthia Hurley, Jean Free, Faith Maloney, Marie Davis and Marilyn D'Angelo. They developed a first-grade science curriculum unit called "Changes." The four areas the children would learn more about through this research included critters, trees and plants, you, and weather. Each area studied integrated science with other subjects and skills including reading trade books, writing skills and other hands-on activities.

One of the Deer Hill projects focusing on technology was developed by Ray Levine, a fifth-grade teacher. His project used a laser disk and was entitled "Solar System Rescue." This is an amazing teaching tool and shows students the solar system on video rather than pictures in a textbook. Mr. Levine's demonstration helped other staff members to learn how to use this new piece of equipment.

The philosophy behind this approach to professional development is that by teachers sharing their projects with their peers, the whole staff learns new skills.

Charlene Sullivan

Name: Charlene Sullivan

Occupation: Special events coordinator at the South Shore Art Center. (Charlene is artisans chairperson for the Festival on the Common).

Most embarrassing moment: At a prior Art Festival, when I put too many artisans under a tree on the Common and had to ask some to move, like the fudge man — whose fudge later melted.

Best day of your life: So far, the day my son graduated from college.

Goal: To have the most successful Festival ever, resulting in many sales for the artisans.

Best vacation: Going to Nantucket every summer.

Favorite holiday: Fathers' Day, because it's on Festival weekend.

Pet peeve: People who think the Festival is only for art-lovers, it's for everyone!

Favorite book: Anything by Taylor Caldwell.

Biggest worry: That people will complain about parking at the Festival on the Common when they can conveniently take the trolley from the Music Circus.

Favorite place: The Common at Festival time.

Favorite junk-food: Chocolate-covered popcorn.

Person you'd most like to meet: Gloria Steinem

Festival on the Common

Winners named in festival exhibitions

When "Festival on the Common" opens in Cohasset Friday, June 17, at 1 p.m., art appreciators will be able to view the finest in art and photography, including two juried exhibitions selected by professional panels for the South Shore Art Center's 39th Art Festival. The juried shows will be on display with the SSAC Members Show in the Main Tent on Cohasset Common June 17-19 while the Young Artists Exhibition and the President's Choice, Pieces From Our Past, selections from the Cohasset Historical Society's collection, will be featured in the Art Center galleries at 119 Ripley Rd.

An awards ceremony will be held Friday evening at 6 p.m. at the main tent to present prizes to several artists, including Best in Show in the Juried Art Exhibition to Zoe Bradford of Weymouth and Best in Show in the Juried Photography to Jeanne Barry of No. Attleboro. Awards in the Juried Photography Show, selected by judges Gail Bryan and Nicolas Nobili, will be presented to J. Paul MacDonald of Plymouth, first place color, second and third places black & white; Thomas Lucas of Cohasset, second place color; Mary Ellen Welch of Milton, third place color; Leigh Stephens of Rockland, first place black & white; Julie Hawkins-Burnham of Cohasset, first and second places special effects; Jean Abbott of Scituate, second place special effects; and Lois O'Hara of No. Quincy, honorable mention for color.

Nineteen artists will receive awards for the Juried Art Exhibition, selected by judges Marilyn Pappas, Audrey Pepper, and Charles Stigliano. Prizes for oil & acrylics will go to Valerie Forte Vitali of Scituate, first place; Thomas Lucas of Cohasset, second place; John Donovan of Brighton, third place; and honorable mentions to Rosalind Farbush of Cohasset, Heather Risley of Stoughton and Shawn Robertson of Scituate. Watercolor awards will go to Mary Callahan of Marshfield, first place; Becky Haletky of Rockland, second place; Eugene Conlon of Braintree, third place; and honorable mentions to Bob Jorgensen of Ashland and Sergio Roffo of Scituate. Honors in drawing & pastel will go to Todd Doland of Hingham, first place; Donna Rossetti-Bailey of Marshfield, second place; Donna Basile of Scituate, third place; and honorable mention to Virginia M. Allen. Graphics awards will go to Stephanie Roberts of Marshfield, first place; Wilfred Loring of Hingham, second place; and honorable mention to Michele Meister.

A Festival Gala Reception will be held at the Art Center following the Awards Ceremony, from 7 to 9 p.m. The reception will celebrate the opening of the Pieces From Our Past Exhibition, which will remain on display at the Art Center through July 29. Tickets to the reception are $10 each, with proceeds going to the Art Center's educational programs.

The South Shore Art Center's Art Festival is the oldest, consecutive-running art festival in New England. The five exhibitions featured during Festival will be complemented by art demonstrations and paint-alongs throughout the weekend, a Children's Creativity Tent, a distinctive artisans market of over 100 crafters, entertainment, food, a Strawberry Festival, and a Harborfest of activities including a ChowderFest, Pancake Breakfast, Blessing of the Fleet, and parade. For more information and a schedule of events, call (617) 383-9548.

Festival weekend fever. . .

town for the annual event which incorporates the annual South Shore Art Festival, Harborfest, Strawberry Festival.

The weekend is the culmination of a year's planning that starts almost as quickly as the tents and tables come down from the prior year's festival.

A team of 400 volunteers on 47 committees work to see that no detail is overlooked, according to Festival chairman Rhonda Myers.

Weekend activities include five art exhibitions, art demonstrations, paint "alongs,", and a Children's Activity Tent. More than 100 crafters participate in the Artisans Market where everything from handcrafted birdhouses to centerpieces is sold.

Artisans' work which must be handmade and coordinators make sure that there is a variety of booths. Even the food vendors are approved through the organizing committee so no two offer the same menu, Myers explains.

Although the main thrust of the three-day festival is to promote the arts — there's lots going on to satisfy all ages, tastes, and appetites.

The Chowderfest, which will be held Sunday on the small section of the Common known as the Honor Roll Courtyard is one of the most popular events. Chowder connoisseurs and regular folk alike sample chowders from competing area restaurants and vote for the best. The $4 admission benefits the Cohasset Social Service League, a public health organization.

Four hundred pints of whipped cream, 2,500 shortcakes, and 625 quarts of hand-sliced fresh strawberries go into the Strawberry Festival sponsored by the Second Congregational Church. Proceeds from sales go toward several outreach programs sponsored by the church. The courtyard between the Town Hall and the church off Highland Avenue provide an outdoor café where the delicious dessert can be enjoyed.

In addition to the Chowderfest, Harborfest includes pancake breakfast, parade, Blessing of the Fleet, and for the first time this year: fun at Sandy Beach Friday afternoon including in-line roller skating, ice cream sundaes, sand-castle contests and more. The fee for the Friday afternoon fun at Sandy Beach off Atlantic Avenue is $1 worth of canned or dry goods for the Cohasset Food Pantry.

All Art events are free. Donations cannisters will be places at the "arborways" at entrance points for those who would like to contribute something. The Art Center covers the cost of 24-hour security at the Common, renting the tents, food licenses, advertising in newspapers and magazines, and other expenses. Winners of the juried art shows receive cash prizes. Proceeds from sponsors and donations made at the Festival benefit programs offered by the Art Center which provides opportunities for creative expression and art appreciation to more than 5,000 students and participants from throughout the South Shore.

Myers notes that Festival weekend is a great time to invite friends and relatives and show off Cohasset.

Events Friday get underway at 1 p.m. and are capped off with a gal reception at the South Shore Art Center from 7 to 9 p.m. that evening. Tickets for the reception are $10. Saturday the Festival opens at 8 a.m. with the pancake breakfast and finishes with a concert at First Parish Church by the Concord Chorale Gospel starting at 7 p.m. Sunday the festival runs from noon to 5 p.m. For more information, please call the Art Center at 383-9548. Free parking on all three Festival days at the South Shore Music Circus is available. The trolley will run every 20 minutes, making stops at the Common, in the Village, at the Art Center and the Music Circus.

Church was 'one of the guys' on tennis court

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Cohasset's Amanda Church should have a distinct advantage when she plays against female competition on the tennis court this summer.

The 22-year-old UMASS-Boston graduate not only paid her dues in practice this spring with three-hour sessions, 6-7 days a week, but she did it as a member of the boys team.

Church, a former South Shore League All-Star in tennis at Cohasset Junior/Senior High School, wanted to continue playing the game she loved and wasn't going to let the fact that there was no girls program discourage her.

However, she did admit she was more than a little apprehensive trying out for the team her freshman year. "I was nervous because I didn't know what to expect," said Church, "and I was nervous at the first match. But I was okay after that."

Once Church became more comfortable with her new teammates, she was able to direct her undivided attention to improving her game. Church was hardly looked at as being a novelty on the team. She turned into one of its best players over four years.

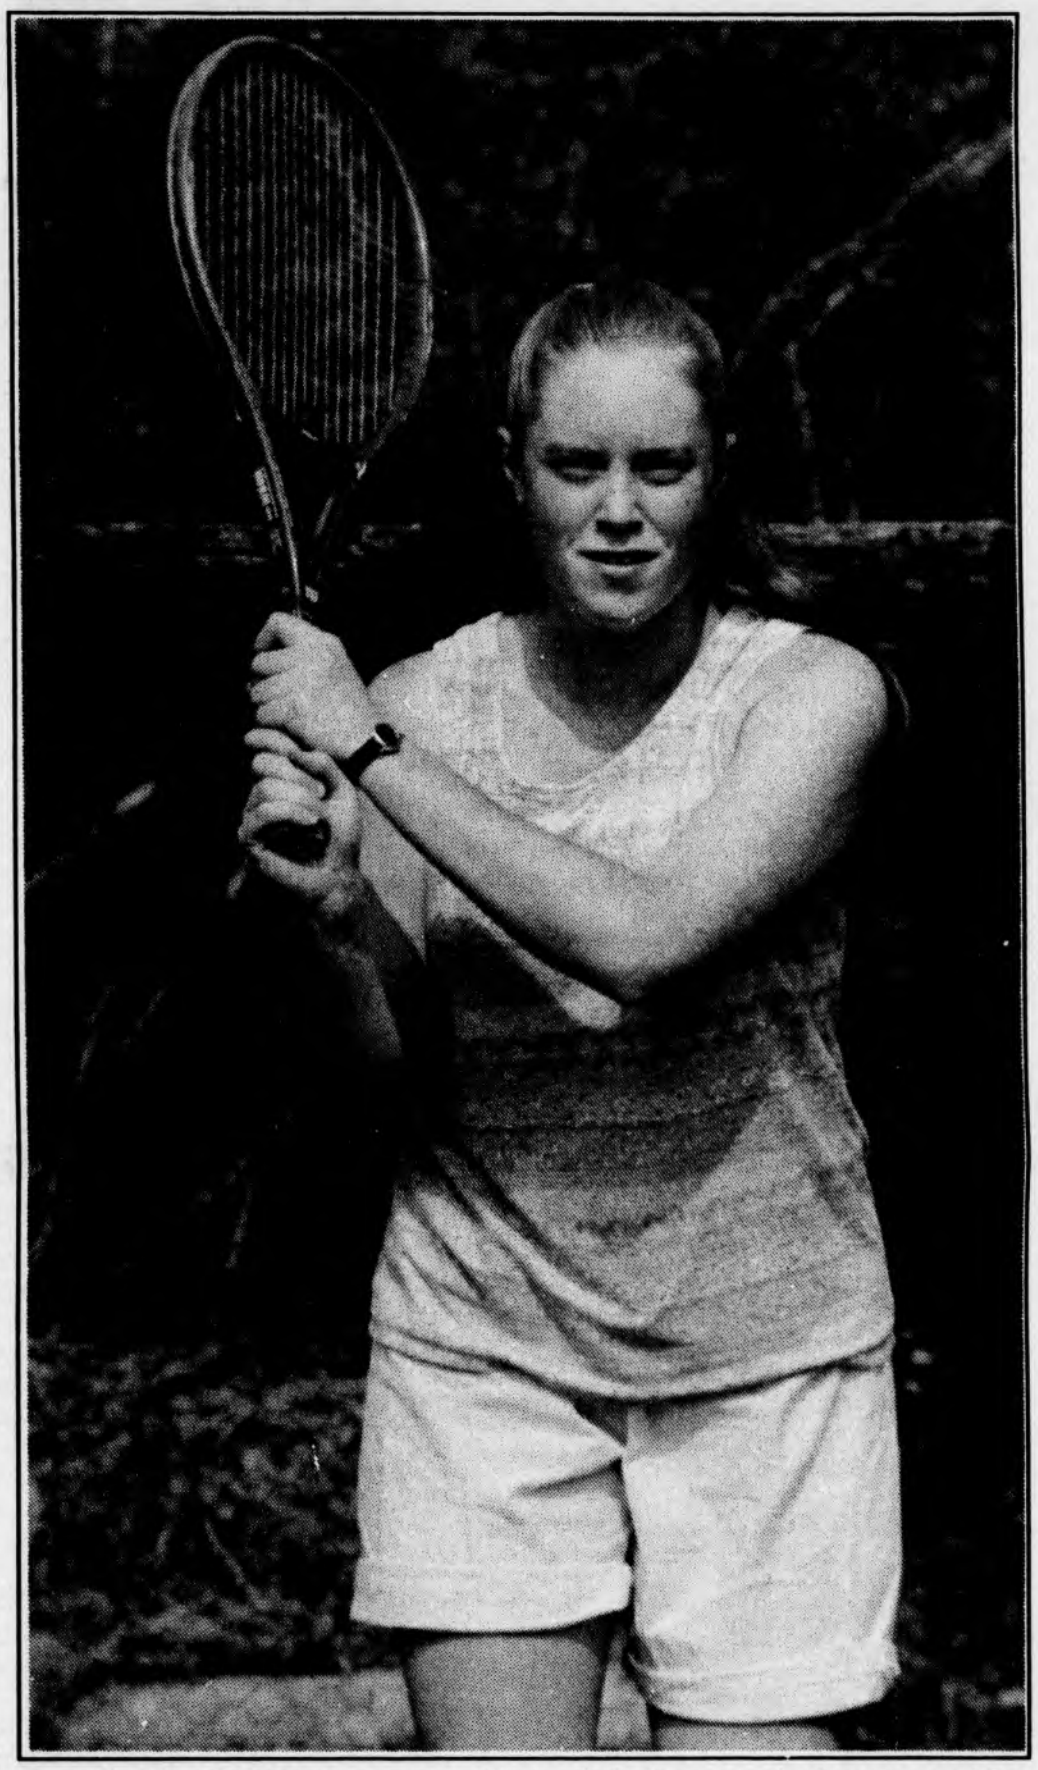
After playing No. 6 singles as a freshman, Church worked her way up to the No. 2 slot this season, along with competing in second and third doubles. As a team, save for one sub-par season, UMASS compiled records of 5-5, 7-3 and 10-1.

There's no doubt Church would have had a better individual record playing against girls, but she wouldn't be nearly as far along with her game the way she is today. Church said her "variety" of shots expanded. Going in as a freshman Church relied mainly on ground-strokes. Slowly, however, she perfected both her slice and top-spin.

"The higher I played," Church explained, "naturally the competition was better. I think I have more weapons, knowing how to use the shots and the shot selections than before. I think that will help me."

Not only did Church benefit playing for the boys team, but her improvements are bound to trickle down to the variety of players who she teaches during the summer through the South Shore Community Center.

(See page 25)



Amanda Church became a more well-rounded player on the tennis court by going up against stiffer competition as a member of UMASS-Boston's boys team.

Dave McKee

by Joe & Dave

Soccer enthusiasts along the South Shore are in Seventh Heaven now that the World Cup competition is in full throttle. Coaches, players, fans and referees just have to pack their families in the car and head on over to Foxboro Stadium to see some of the best soccer players in the world compete in the 22 nation event.

Even with the press attention, general excitement the World Cup has brought to the area and the fact that the competition is held once every four years, the cold truth is soccer will never catch on as a spectator in the United States the way it has in Europe and the rest of the world.

The number of participants is rising dramatically in both youth soccer and college females, but don't expect any major network to bid for the rights to cover the sport on a continuous basis.

Why? There are a number of reasons.

As far as the American team is concerned, it is just not that competitive with power squads from countries like Brazil and Argentina. And with low scoring games one of the trademarks of the sport, it is not likely to hold an audience's attention for long.

Aside from the most avid of fans, just how many soccer players can you name? Pele? Maybe Diego Maradona? As for Americans, Kyle Rote Jr., is the only U.S. player I identify with the game, and that was years ago.

It is peculiar that most Americans could give a hoot about soccer, but can sit in on a spring afternoon and watch a round of golf — even bowling! The excitement of these two "sports" can't begin to measure up to a well-played soccer match.

Do you want to appreciate a soccer game? Why not try watching a South Shore League match this fall. Notice, if you will, how well conditioned these high school players are. Their skilled foot work in passing or driving past a defender. Observe the bumps and bruises they accumulate in a game and the communication on the field between the players.

Standing on the sidelines gives you a whole new respect of the game that just can't be captured on TV. The sport may not grab your undivided attention the way basketball does, but its fast pace and talented players could possibly change the way you look at the sport.

If not, there's always golf — and for me — the nap that goes along with it.

Sure she's just a novelty but I can't help thinking "The First Lady of Hockey" goaltender Manon Rheaume, wouldn't be the enormous attraction she is if she looked like Roseanne Arnold instead of a candidate for the cover of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Rheaume, who is arguably the most attractive female in the sports world today, has none other than Tampa Bay Lightning General Manager Phil Esposito to thank for signing her to a contract. That separated Rheaume from the other

South Shore Track Club is Martin's mission

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Since he started coaching on the South Shore four years ago, Chuck Martin believed a summer track club, solely for kids, was something that Norwell and surrounding towns was in desperate need of. With soccer, little league and basketball flourishing at the youth level, track was left out in the cold.

So Martin, Norwell High's cross-country and track coach, decided to do something about it by forming the South Shore Track Club.

Geared to kids from ages 7-18, the club offers basic skills to the youngsters and practices are designed with age of the kids in mind.

Martin is offering an open door to youngsters on the South Shore who want to see what talent they just might have. And they don't have far to travel for the Monday and Wednesday night practices at Norwell High's track.

"You look at the Quincy Track Club and they have 800 kids," Martin said on Friday. "They travel from as far away as Plymouth (for practice) because there's nothing in between. It's to get the interest going and it'll definitely help our program six or seven years down the line."

If parents are worried that their young children will be pushed to the brink of exhaustion as members of the club, they needn't be. Martin has competed and coached long enough to know how to monitor an athlete's workout so he or she leaves the track pleasantly tired and looking forward to the next practice.

Before taking over for former Norwell coach Bob Littlefield, Martin coached at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham for four years. Martin, who hails from Medford and was named to the Boston Globe All-Scholastic cross-country team as a senior, led ND to two state cross-country titles and a runner-up finish.

He worked the girls into shape through a sensible program, designed to strengthen them, not break them down. Martin has every intention of utilizing the same type of coaching method with the club.

Most importantly, he is very much in tune with just how many activities young kids do to fill their summers. He doesn't plan to push the club members beyond their capabilities.

For example, the young kids will race no further than a half-mile. Instead of the heavy shotput, there's the more forgiving softball throw. And the standing long jump eliminates the sprint to the take-off mark.

"It's very hard to push a little 7- or 8-year-old," said Martin. "You know he's got four baseball games a week and four soccer games so he gets the exercise."

For Sally, there's Magic to her game

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

For 13-year-old Sally Hamill, her trip to the National AAU Basketball Championship Tournament, July 14-23 in Kenner, Louisiana, as a member of the Baystate Magic Basketball Club will be more than just an opportunity to compete against the best players in her age group from across the country. The articulate seventh-grader is also looking forward to getting to know her competitors off the court.

"I think it'll be a good experience," said Hamill with a smile. "It's good to go places and see the other teams. It's fun with all your other teammates. It's fun on the court and we meet a lot of people.

Hamill and the rest of the Magic squad couldn't help but have their share of fun this year. The overall team, which is made up of a white and a red squad, competed in a number of tournaments, mainly against 14-year-old clubs, to prepare themselves for what promises to be tough-as-nails opponents at the nationals.

Ranked 14th in the state heading into the April 30, national qualifier at Melrose High School, Hamill and her teammates on the White squad showed they belonged in the upper echelon of the state — certainly higher than 14th — by dropping seeds No. 11, 7, 6, 5, and 3 (twice) before losing to their sister team, the Magic Red.

But because the tournament was double-elimination, the squad's work was just beginning. The Magic had to go back down and play the teams again over the course of three weekends.

"The kids had to literally swim upstream," said Bernard Hamill, Sally's father, who coaches both the Magic squad and her team at St. Pauls School in Hingham.

The highlight of the tourney for the White squad was its easy, 37-26 win over the No. 2 ranked Central Mass Cougars. They lost to the Red squad for a second time, but it didn't really matter much by that point in the tournament. What did matter was that both of the Magic teams were headed for the nationals, making them only the second time in the history of the Massachusetts AAU that one group has sent two teams from the same age group (13-years-old) to the national finals.

One of the major reasons for the team's success has nothing to do with talent or athletic ability. Hamill believes the fact the players get along so well with one another and are friends off the court can only be a positive influence when the players lace their sneakers up for a game.

Thirteen-year-old Sally Hamill is all smiles knowing she'll be playing against the best basketball players in the country within her age group.

"It helps the team out on the court," Hamill said. "We pass and aren't ball hogs. We have to be together at tournaments and it helps when you're friends."

In fact, not one girl all season has asked Mr. Hamill how many points she scored. "They're really unselfish, a nice group of kids," he said.

As the team's starting point-guard, Hamill's her job is to bring the ball down the court and set up the plays. Her highest point total of the season was a modest 10, due mostly to the players' unselfishness in passing the ball.

Hamill has proven time over she can shoot. She led the team with a 58-percent average from the field and averaged 15 points per game for St. Pauls. Hamill led the Magic in 3-pointers, and in one game, was a perfect 4-for-4 from beyond the 3-point line. It turned out the four shots were the only ones Hamill took the entire game.

"It's a good weapon to have in this age group," Mr. Hamill said of Sally's accuracy from 3-point land.

Hamill's success has a large part to do with her Larry Bird-like work ethic. She first began practicing as a fourth-grader and will have played in the neighborhood of 65 games this year.

Because she plays so many games and is an honors student, Mr. Hamill said he does "reality checks" to make sure his daughter is happy with the choice she made playing basketball nearly 10 months of the year.

"I think there's a lot more to high school and life than just sports," he said. "I tell her 'if you don't want to play and aren't happy, there are plenty of other things you can do.

"I just want her to be happy," he said.

Hamill is extremely happy. She is playing the game she loves. She has her father as her biggest fan and will soon be heading to Louisiana for the most prestigious tournament of her life, to date.

And Hamill is going into the competition with several goals.

"I want to win a few games and have fun," she said. "Obviously we'd like to win it. But if we can't do that we want to do our best.

"I get a little nervous before the games, but on the Magic team we go out and try to do our best and realize it's only a game."

A game Hamill can't get enough of.

Lions gearing for season final

By M. Ernst
Special to the Mariner

The Lions will play the final game of an exciting season with "Speedy" D.J. Silvia, Danny "the Arm" Allen, "Cool" Colin Magruder and Christopher "Throw It to Home" Noehring all working overtime in the outfield. The team stopped many a potential home run. The infield had help from Timmy "the Tiger" Pilczak, "Boomin" Brian Buckley, George "Go for it" Miller, "Smokin' " Brian Straughan and Zach "Throw 'em out" Murray.

Awesome hitting was seen by all the loyal fans. Led off by Steven "the Slugger" Simmons and followed by Callie "Count me in" Ernst, Brendon "the Long Ball" Barrett, "Home Run" Teddy Straughan, Tom "Run Those Bases" Ross, all that was left to rack up those runs was for Kate "Clean Up" Carpenter to come to the plate.

Thanks to all for an incredible season, but especially to the coaches Ed Straughan and Bob Ernst for the time, energy, patience and encouragement.

Rangers close in on league title

With one game remaining in the season, the Rangers are closing in on first place in Cohasset Little League. The Rangers, who were 8-8 in 1993, have had a successful 1994 with a league leading record of 13-3.

The success of the team has been due to a 100-percent team effort from the eight seasoned veterans and four rookies. Leading the team with timely hitting and solid defensive skills are Mickey Palone, Doug O'Brien and Will Moody.

Strong hitting performances have been turned in by our returning 12-year-olds (playing in their final season) Lex Mincolla, Matt Santoro and Greg Figueiredo. Their team leadership will be missed.

Chris Caron, the infield general, is enjoying a golden glove year at second base. The rookies Greg O'Connell, Eric Libby and Jeremy Tedeschi have shown both offensively and defensively they are ready to step into the retiring veterans' cleats. Rookie Troy Canistraro has played flawless baseball at every position in the field. Troy will be missed as he will be playing his future little league games in California. The team wishes him the best.

Eric Shea, the Rangers solid shortstop, has also filled in on the mound as one of the best right-handers in the league. The other mound magicians have been Doug O'Brien, Will Moody and Greg Figueiredo. Behind the plate, with a rifle for an arm, and playing solid defense is Mick Palone.

We wish all the teams the best as the playoffs begin.

Yank-Ease sprint towards season finale

By Mark G. DeGiacomo
Special to the Mariner

The Minor League's Orange Yank-Ease are primed and ready for their season finale this Saturday at the ungodly hour of 8 a.m. at the high school. Hard work and determination have produced an undefeated record at this point (all ties) but a hard fought contest is anticipated before a perfect season's record can be claimed.

Through wind, rain, heat and cold, as well as grueling Wednesday afternoon practices, the Yank-Ease have persevered. Each player has distinguished him or herself throughout the year.

An early season contract dispute with Alex Coffey threatened to deny the team

South Shore Track Club is Martin's mission

undertaking for Martin, but he is hardly charting out unfamiliar territory. He founded the Cambridge Track Club in 1984, a member of which, Scott Cody, won two consecutive state cross-country championships. Martin also started both the Medford and Lexington Lightning Track Clubs in 1985. The Lexington club currently has a membership of 200.

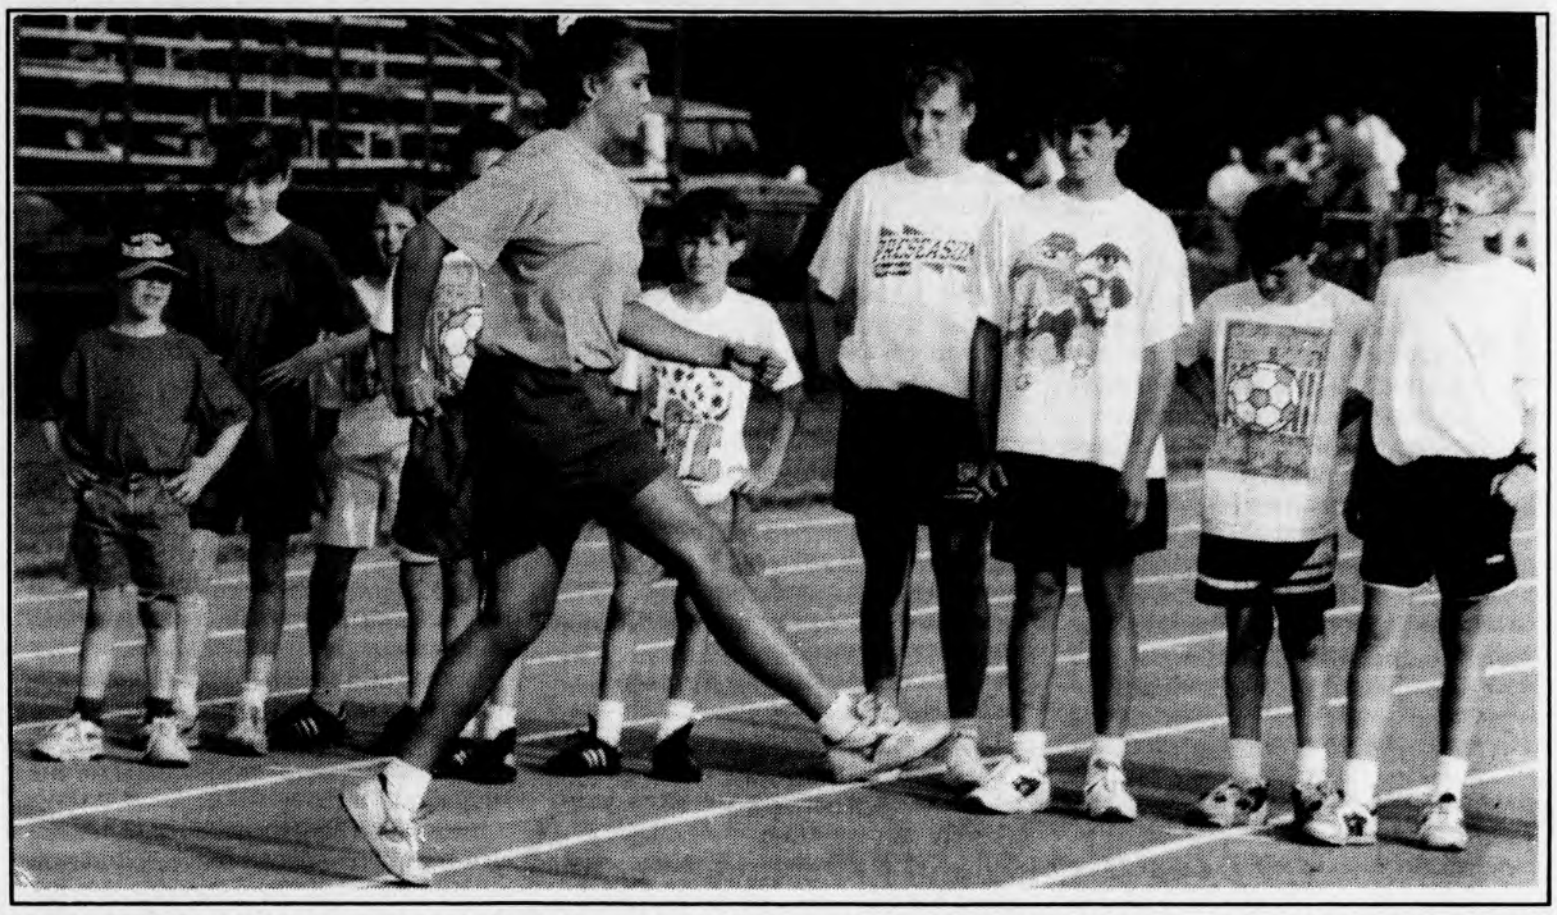
Martin will also have a host of coaches to work with the kids this summer. The staff includes former Norwell track standout and national triple jump champion, Alicia Porro and Norwell assistant coach, Dan Carton.

Also on hand will be several members of the current high school team who are all anxious to teach the kids what they have learned from Martin and through their own experiences.

The kids will be able to test themselves in several meets Martin has scheduled. Along with the Norwell Youth Meets, Martin hopes to enter club members in the Hershey Meet, as well as dual competitions against the Needham and Quincy Track Clubs.

And even though Martin doesn't race competitively any more, he still gets a great deal of personal satisfaction watching the "overall progression" of his athletes, no matter what the level.

"I get as much enjoyment when someone improves his mile time from seven minutes to 6:30 as I do if they improve from 6:30 to six minutes," Martin said. "Plus, you see some of the kids move on and do well in college.



Alicia Porro instructs a group of students from South Shore towns in drills during Monday night's South Shore Track Club practice. Porro, a former national champion in the triple jump, is a member of the club's coaching staff. (Staff photo/Alan Chapman)

"I'd like to get half the kids from the club to go on and run in high school," he continued. "They'd go in knowing what track is all about."

And they'd have the South Shore Track Club to thank for it.

Church was 'one of the guys' on tennis court

Now, in her sixth year of giving lessons to players as young as 6-years-old, Church has even more to offer as a teacher.

The response to Church's lessons has grown since she first began. During her initial season, Church had enough students to fill 4-5 hours. This summer she plans to put in 8-9 hours daily.

Church gets as much satisfaction watching her students improve as she does following her own progress. She particularly enjoys the 9- to 10-year-olds.

"I like them because you see a lot improvement at that age," Church said. "Seeing the improvement in the months I have them then hearing they practice on their own after (is satisfying)."

Church will be conducting lessons through September then she'll be coaching a girls tennis club at UMASS. If that goes well, and Church is confident it will, the club could gain team status for the '95 fall season.

"For a team, we need only about seven or eight women," Church said. "I think there is an interest. I know two or three girls who have said something. It's just a matter of getting the girls together at the same time for practice."

Church intends on cutting back on her competition this summer; just playing a couple of low-key tournaments in July and August. For her, the summer months are dedicated more to teaching than preparing to compete.

"During the season it was a lot of work," Church said. "Now I go out and play for a couple of hours a few days a week."

For Church, competing isn't the end all, be all of the sport, the way it is for several young tennis players, most notably Jennifer Capriati, who became disillusioned by tennis and quit at an early age.

Church doesn't see herself in that category and plans on returning serves for a long time to come. "You can play tennis for as long as you want," she said. "It's for all ages. I want to continue and have fun."

Teaching and coaching should only add to Church's party on the court.

Tryout dates set for swim team

Yes, it's that time again.

So please pull up a chair, unloosen that tie and turn down the Metallica CD for a few minutes.

It's the Extra Points spring high school awards.

Here we go.

Best softball player

Silver Lake's Amy King.

She led the OCL in homers, RBI and was in the top five in batting. Under her leadership, the Lakers reached the state tourney for the second straight season.

King has great mechanics and absolutely kills the ball when she connects.

However, she may have played her last softball game as she has a full basketball scholarship to Assumption College in the fall.

Best baseball player (tie)

Norwell's Frank O'Brien, Hingham's Corey Farina and Silver Lake's Chris Watson.

O'Brien, a senior first baseman led the SSL in batting and was a clutch RBI man for the tourney-bound Clippers all season. He was also one of the SSL's top basketball players over the winter.

Farina, only a junior, was in the top five in hitting in the ACL and played a solidly behind the plate for the tourney-bound Harbormen. But baseball is not his best sport. Farina is the best running back in the ACL and will tear up the gridiron in the fall.

As for Watson, after leading the OCL in hitting as a sophomore, he finished in the top five as a junior.

Watson, a center fielder, also hit for power and was a terror on the basepaths with more than 20 steals. Has legitimate Division I College potential and led the Lakers to their most wins since the mid 80s.

Best tennis player (female)

Marshfield's Kerry Steel.

Lost only once during regular season in tough ACL. Great groundstrokes and kicked my butt during practice one day.

Best doubles (female)

Scituate's Beth Giovannini and Rachel Amara. This duo led the Lady Sailors to the Division II South finals and were team leaders all season.

Best tennis player (male)

Scituate's Sean Murphy. This number one was a standout all season for the SSL champs.

Best doubles (male)

Scituate's Mike Cocci and Ben Kamman.

This duo was crowned the Individual South champs and finished in the top four state-wide.

Best female track athlete (tie)

Scituate's Alicia Jaymes, Norwell's Jessica Lincoln and Marshfield's Debi Pierce.

Jaymes was a standout in the 400 and the high jump, placing in both at the states. She has a full-ride to BU in the fall.

Lincoln and Pierce are two of the best runners and jumpers their school's have ever seen.

Lincoln qualified for states in the triple jump, long jump, the 200 and the relay.

Pierce set school records in the 100 and the triple jump and qualified for the states in both.

Here's another coincidence. Both are also standout soccer players and will attend URI in fall. They should continue their excellence for the Lady Rams.

Best male track athlete

Scituate's Tom Scanzillo.

This West Point bound senior finished second in New England in the 300 hurdles last weekend and led a Sailor turnaround this season under first-year coach Kathleen Stewart, a former state champ in the 300 hurdles herself.

Close But No Cigar Award-

Both the Scituate High baseball and softball teams missed berths in the state tourney by one win.

Both coaches, Vin Gilarde (baseball) and Phil Pisano (softball), are two of the nicest guys around and deserved a better fate.

But next year with a new .500 record tourney cut-off, both teams should make it to the Big Dance.

Best clutch performance

Scituate's Regen Steverman.

In third place heading into the final throw at the state javelin championships, sophomore Steverman fired a missile to take home the gold medal for the Lady Sailors.

Best Overall Team award

Hingham boys' lacrosse.

After finishing the regular season with only one loss and a league championship, the Harbormen fell to Lincoln-Sudbury in the EMass semi-finals. Lincoln-Sudbury went on to win the state crown this week.

Hingham is an early favorite for next year's state title and should be solid for years to come under coach John Todd.

However, they will miss All-American Jason Hanrahan, who will play at Providence College in the fall.

Girls softball jamboree June 25

The Cohasset Girls Softball League will hold its annual jamboree Saturday, June 25, at the high school front field. Festivities begin at noon with four one-inning softball games being played by Division 1 teams. Division 2 will be playing later in the afternoon and sixth-graders from Division 1 will be asked to play in this game as well. Other events include a batting contest and a throwing contest with prizes awarded to the winners.

The jamboree has been an annual event for the softball league and promises to be a great family afternoon. All league participants and their families are asked to join us for good food, contests and great softball action! For further information, please call Rose at 383-0760.

Hettstrom, Smith fare well in regional championships

Erica Hettstrom and teammate Julie Smith completed in the NEAAU Regional Gymnastic Championships in Methuen,June 5.

Both gymnasts were competing in the Intermediate 15 and over division.

Julie Smith received a 7.20 on floor, a 7.25 on vault, a 7.10 on the uneven bars (a personal best), and a 6.95 on balance beam.

Erica Hettstrom placed fourth on floor with a 7.90, fourth-place finish on the bars with a 7.70 (a personal best) and second on the balance beam 8.15. Erica also placed fourth in the All-Around.

Both gymnasts train at the South Shore Community Center of Cohasset Gymnast in Motion program under the direction of Ruthann Ardizzoni and Patricia Donahue.

Yank-Ease sprint towards season finale

her considerable baseball talents. However, before Alex missed a single game, she and management reached a settlement which installed Alex as the first assistant coach/player in League history. Alex has been a great help at practices and a strong player during games. A request by Alex's brother and teammate, John Coffey, to be named co-assistant coach was quickly rejected by management so John could concentrate his full efforts on the field. John, known as the team's "most awesome" hitter, has consistently produced both at the plate and in the field.

An early season injury to Corey Faber had fans and teammates alike holding their breath for fear that Corey may be lost for the year. But an ice bag, a game ball declaring Corey to be "the toughest player on the team," and the encouragement of his teammates and baseball star siblings, Ashley and Scotty, got Corey back on the field without missing a single game. Since then, it's been very hard to keep Corey still. Speaking of baseball families, Casey Coleman, one of the senior members of the team, has contributed both his substantial talent and the baseball knowledge, instilled in him by his grandfather to the team. "Mighty Casey" is ready for the minor leagues next year, but are they ready for him?

Jared "Sultan of Swat" Kinch never failed to strike fear in the heart of this writer who has had the misfortune of having to pitch to Jared all year. Although far too modest to "call his shot" as his namesake did in 1934, home runs are the norm when Jared is at the plate. The mid-season acquisition of Anthony Fiore proved to be a shrewd move by management. This first-year player has the talent and love for the game that guarantees he will have a bright baseball future in this town.

You may not know what it means to "Zap" a baseball now, but after a few years of watching Nick Zappolo play, that term is sure to enter the jargon of Cohasset sports fans. Nick's ability to hit to all fields always requires opposing players be ready for anything.

The mighty swing of Colin Regan has been admired and feared by all who attended Yank-Ease games this year. Also a star fielder, Colin has the minor league coaches drooling in anticipation of signing him up next year for their team.

Patrick Horrigan did his dad, team sponsor Tom Horrigan of Cohasset Endodontics, proud this year. A newcomer to the game of baseball, Patrick's determination and "never say die" attitude have paid off both at the plate and in the field. Keep your eye on Patrick!

Timmy Toomey has been a crowd pleaser all season. Although the batting helmets may not always have fit, it never seemed to bother Timmy at the plate. Timmy has been especially effective during games in which the thermometer tops 80 degrees. "I like it hot," said Timmy when asked if he wanted a water break, "I just want to play ball."

Jonathan Littauer's keen eye at the plate would have led to many walks this season if walks were allowed in the Farm League. Jonathan always waits for his pitch and then strokes the ball over the infielders' heads.

The speedy Derek Manton has never failed to take the extra base. On the field, Derek enjoys pretending not to pay attention just so the batter will hit the ball to him and give Derek an opportunity to throw another batter out at first.

It's no surprise that the combined genes of the Prescott and the Busk families have produced a terrific player named, what else, Prescott Busk. Prescott has excelled all season in the field, especially when playing first base. When at bat, Prescott has always come through with a strong hit for his team.

Speaking of genes, how did those DeGiacomo boys get to be so good! The list of sports accomplishments for the last generation of DeGiacomos in Cohasset is far from distinguished (in fact, non-existent is more like it), but things are different this time around. Jimmy DeGiacomo always insists on using the heavy wooden bat so he can put extra power behind his line drives. In the field the accuracy of Jimmy's throws is well-known. Sammy DeGiacomo has thrilled fans all year with his strong swings and his quick, alert base running. Sammy's slides into home plate have become legendary.

With a team like this, you can be sure there will be a sensational ending to a sensational season this Saturday. So grab a large cup of coffee and come up to the high school Saturday morning to see the Yank-Ease in action. In this writer's opinion, they are all pretty special.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 92P1073E1
NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To all persons interested in the estate of Harriet B. Long late of Cohasset in the County of Norfolk.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the First, amended second and final account(s) of Edward B. Long and State Street Bank and Trust Company as Co-Executors (the fiduciary) of said estate have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the twenty-second day of June, 1994 the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham this twenty-fifth day of May, 1994.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
SUPERIOR COURT
NORFOLK, ss.
No. 94-1260

TO GEORGE MUIR III AND JUDY MUIR and to all persons entitled to the benefit of the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended

GREETING:

Hingham Institution for Savings

Claiming to be the holder of a mortgage covering real property situated in 122 Forest Avenue, Cohasset, County of Norfolk, Massachusetts given by George Muir III and Judy Muir to Hingham Institution for Savings dated April 27, 1987 and recorded at Norfolk Registry of Deeds in book 7549 page 574 has filed with said court a bill in equity for authority to foreclose said mortgage in the manner following: by entry to foreclose and by exercise of power of sale set forth in said mortgage.

If you are entitled to the benefits of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended, and you object to such foreclosure, you or your attorney should file a written appearance and answer in said court at Dedham on or before July 7, 1994 or you may be forever barred from claiming that such foreclosure is invalid under said act.

Witness, JOHN J. IRWIN, Jr., Esquire, Chief Justice of our Superior Court, the 9th day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety four.

PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
NORFOLK DIVISION
DOCKET NO. 94P0953A2

Estate of VELMA LAFLAMME AKA VELMA L. BARNES LaFLAMME late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that JOHN T. BARNES of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK be appointed administrator of said estate with surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before ten o'clock in the forenoon on July 6, 1994.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within fourteen (14) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, this twenty-fourth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-four.

Tea at Aisling Gallery

The Aisling Gallery, 229 Lincoln St., Rt. 3A, is hosting high tea with Molly Bloom doing character readings from James Joyce's "Ulysses" from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday June 19 under the tent.

There will be music, tea and trifle, cakes, breads and other refreshments. Memento posters and bags with new original artwork will be on sale. Period costume (1904) is encouraged. Admission is $8.

Call Jeanette Cavanagh at 383-2176 for information.

Coffee with authors

Buttonwood Books and Toys hosted the second "Coffee With the Authors" at the Chart House Restaurant.

Katherine Hall Page, author of the Faith Fairchild mysteries explained how her characters were developed and how she chooses plots and settings.

Deborah Scaling Kiley, the author of "Albatross," an account of survival at sea after the wreck of a yacht, gave an account of the writing and publishing process as well as explaining how the writing of the book enabled her to achieve stability.

PBS Victory Garden host Roger Swain entertained with anecdotes underscoring his commitment to gardening in an ecologically sound way.

Autographed copies of all the books are available at Buttonwood Books and Toys.

What's on Pierson

Thursday, June 16, host Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person are John P. LaWare, member of the Federal Reserve System's Board of Governors in Washington, and Neal F. Finnegan, President and CEO of UST Corporation, formerly known as USTrust, a large banking institution in Boston.

LaWare, appointed by President Bush, and Finnegan will discuss national monetary and fiscal policies, the state of the U.S. economy, the banking industry, and other related topics. Viewer phonecall participation is welcome.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8-9 p.m., from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham and on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

For further information about upcoming guests and additional show information contact the Pierson Show's executive producer, Robert Belliveau, at 545—2500.

Register for CCD

Registration is open for religious education classes at St. Anthony's. Children entering first grade should be registered now at the CCD office in the rectory Tuesday and Friday. Forms are being mailed to returning students in grades 2 through 10.

Concord Chorale performs

The First Parish Church of Cohasset will host the Concord Chorale in concert at 7 p.m. Saturday June 18 as part of the Festival on the Common.

Tickets are available at the First Parish Church office, 23 North Main St. between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Any remaining tickets will be on sale on the common in front of the church during the festival. Tickets are $7 or $5 with a Harborfest button.

New babysitters in town

Kelsey Henderson, Stephanie Canton, Siobhan Hart-Kelly and Sarah Bertorien completed the babysitting course sponsored through the Cohasset Community Center. The class gave the future babysitters a better understanding of the safety and care of children as instructed by Linda Farray.

The Cohasset Public Safety Officer, Cliff Jones, spoke to the class about safety and they saw a video on fire safety.

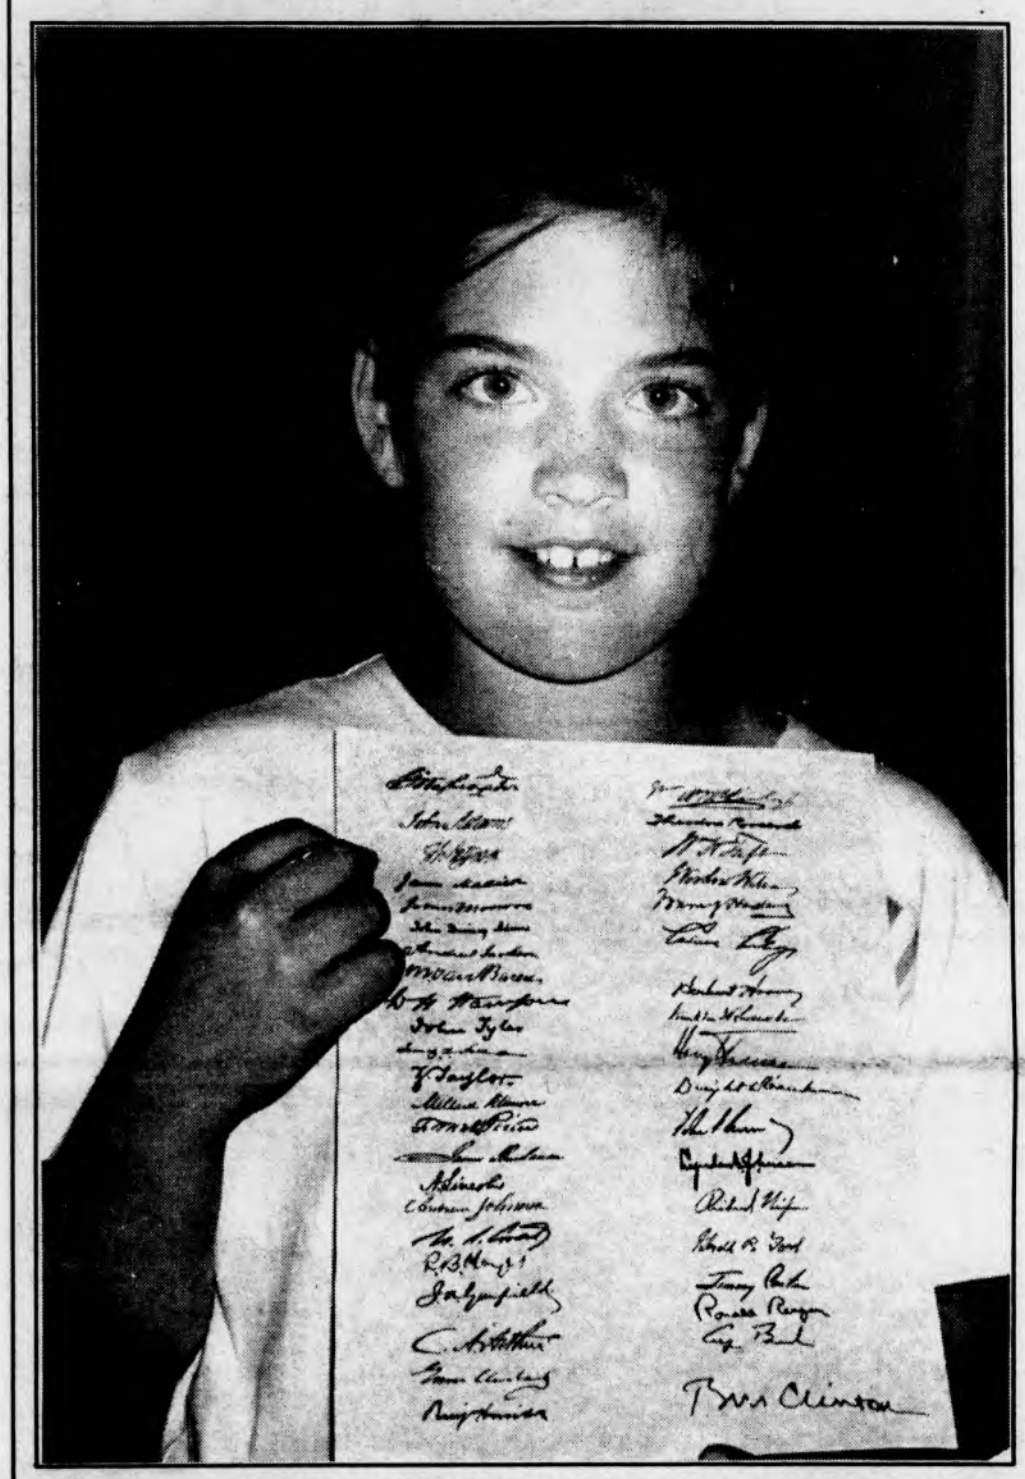
Clinton has a Cohasset connection



Martha Henderson shows off President Clinton's signature which he added to a souvenir she bought at the John F. Kennedy Library.
(Staff photo/Mary Ford)

President Bill Clinton may be having problems with his national approval rating — but for Cohasset's nine-year-old Martha Henderson, he's number one.

She followed his campaign and election. And last year at the suggestion of her teacher, she made an impressive poster featuring Clinton clippings as a second-grade project.

So earlier this year, when she and her family visited the John F. Kennedy Library in Dorchester, she bought a piece of parchment paper with the presidents' signatures — from George Washington to George Bush.

But to her dismay, the souvenir had not been updated to include Clinton.

Undaunted, Martha took matters into her own hands. She sent Clinton a registered letter and photograph of herself along with the parchment paper and asked the President to add his signature.

"Do you think you could take a moment and sign your name under George Bush?" Martha asked.

Last week — Martha got her wish. Her parchment-paper souvenir arrived in a large manilla envelope

Town flooded with water problems

■ Fire suppression is critical concern

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Record demand for water with the onset of summer is wreaking havoc with the town's antiquated system of pipes, pumps and water mains.

Complaints from dozens of residents in the Jerusalem Road/Linden Drive area and the knowledge that lack of sufficient water pressure for fire suppression purposes could result in an emergency sent town officials scrambling for answers this week.

Unlike other towns, Cohasset's water problems are not related to supply but to the town's distribution system — which, officials say, has been neglected and poorly maintained.

Water commissioners enacted a ban on outside watering from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., plugged a leak, fixed a pipe along Cunningham Bridge, replaced elbows in a pumping station with straight pipe, and increased hours at the water plant as stop-gap measures to increase the water pressure until they can get a handle on the scope of the problem.

In the meantime Fire Chief Roger Lincoln will look at Straits Pond, swimming pools, and even the Atlantic Ocean for possible help with fire suppression if an emergency should arise.

The fire department's pumper trucks each hold about 500 gallons of water which is used up in about

Annual festival gets rave reviews

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

For the first time there were more people waiting to get dunked than waiting to do the dunking, organizers say.

The dunk-dank, provided by the Cohasset firefighters, was just one of dozens of attractions at the weekend-long Festival on the Common.

The annual event drew thousands to Cohasset Common and harbor despite August-like temperatures.

For state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray who was featured in the Harborfest Parade on Sunday afternoon — Cohasset was the place to be.

"Although it's hot, it's a beautiful day for sightseeing and traversing the Common," said Murray, who praised the organizers of the event.

Art Center director Lanci Valentine said numbers were down a little due to the heat — but artisans and food vendors still reported a brisk business.

"I just love it," she said. "You can't get get any nicer place than Cohasset Common."

Keith Knowles of the Harborfest committee said Harborfest was practically perfect.

"Again it was a wonderful success — a wonderful weekend," he said.

Knowles said the Friday afternoon activities, which included in-line roller skating and sand-castle making at Sandy Beach, went quite well for the first time out. He said next year Harborfest will beef up the publicity for the beach events.

Knowles said the parade was super.

"It was an excellent parade, tons of fun," he said.

Sunday afternoon, the chowderfest was a big attraction. Six local restaurants competed for top honors with the Red Lion Inn getting the most votes from chowder-lovers who lined up despite the 90-degree heat.

In what has become a festival tradition, shortcake smothered in strawberries and whipped cream fed throngs in the courtyard next to the Second Congregational Church. The service was quick and friendly and the strawberries, delicious.

A highlight of the Harborfest parade was the Model-T with new Cohasset Historical Society President Mary Hartshorne and her husband, John, on board. The Outside water ban

The Cohasset Water Commission has declared a ban on outside watering (except for hand-held hose) from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., due to a severe drop in water pressure in many parts of Cohasset. The town is taking other steps to improve water service. However, in the interest of public safety, this interim step is necessary. This ban does not apply to property served by Hingham water.

"Thank you for your cooperation and patience during this very difficult time," commissioners said.

Regional planner sought for rail study

A regional group hopes to obtain money for a consultant to assist local communities with the review process for the Greenbush Line.

The parent organization of the South Shore Coalition will provide up to $25,000 — roughly equivalent to 15-to-17 weeks of full-time work — this year to its 'subregions' for projects on a competitive basis.

The ten-town South Shore Coalition, of which Cohasset is a member, plans to submit a proposal to the Metropolitan Area Planning Council to use the money for a planner to help town officials comment on the environmental feasibility study on restoration of the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad project.

Selectman Jane Goedecke, who is Cohasset's representative on the South Shore Coalition, said most towns in the region can't afford a full-time planner.

"It will enable towns in the South Shore Coalition to have more professional and well-thought-out responses to the environmental impact report," she said. "That does not mean towns are expected to have a coordinated response. Each town can have its own response based on assessments of its own needs."

Goedecke said the joint use of planner will also help the group see if sharing can work in the future for other

Ambulance billing update

In may the fire department billed $11,889.63 for 37 ambulance transports and collected $8,942.71 which was deposited with the town treasurer. This fiscal year to date, the town has billed $105,764.93 and collected $86,984.80 for a collection rate of about 82 percent.

Firefighter is enrolled

At the recommendation of Fire Chief Roger W. Lincoln, Fire Fighter John J. Dockray will attend the next Massachusetts Fire Fighting Academy recruit class from July 5 through Sept. 8

Board volunteers sought

Selectmen are looking for volunteers to serve on as associate members of the conservation commission, on the mosquito control committee and on the computer study committee. Anyone interested in serving should contact the selectmen's office at 383-9900.

At their meeting Monday, selectmen appointed Craig D. Muir to the Drug and Alcohol Committee, and Rebecca Bates McArthur to the Historic Commission.

"I kept jumping up and down," Martha recalled about her reaction. Her favorite president had indeed added his signature to the list.

Martha's already shown her teacher Mrs. Alcott and her third-grade class at the Osgood School.

And as for her photograph — the President kept it.

"I might be hanging in the halls," Martha said.

Martha lives on Fair Oaks Lane with her parents and two sisters, Kate, 11, and Caroline, 7.

2-1/2 minutes. It takes 10 minutes to hook up a four-inch hose line to Hingham.

Lincoln will investigate obtaining access to Straits Pond to pump water from that source and possibly using an electric pump to utilize ocean water. The chief will also make an inventory of swimming pools in the area.

A task force including Lincoln, selectmen, the town's civil defense director, health agent, water commissioners and the town's interim water superintendent planned to meet again yesterday (June 22) to continue discussions regarding emergency action after the Cohasset Mariner went to press.

Severe water pressure problems started shortly after Memorial Day, Water Commission Chairman Ronald Goodwin said.

In a meeting Monday, water commissioners took the heat from dozens of angry residents and officials who demanded specific answers and a plan of action.

Water commissioners will seek engineering help to oversee a plan to correct the problem both on an interim and long-term basis. Long-term plans include enacting regular flushing of water mains, a leak detection program, installing a new standpipe on Scituate Hill, and finishing the metering program so that town can accurately track how much water is actually being used. The tracking program will help determine how much water is lost through leaks.

As the Mariner went to press, the possibility of declaring an emergency in order to obtain state help, which could include bringing in huge water tankers and installing temporary above-ground water mains to run up Forest Avenue, had not been ruled out.

The water department is in the process of preparing a proposal to hire an outside contractor to run the department. A private company is running the department in the interim.

Selectmen voted at their meeting Monday to instruct town counsel to show them all contracts and legal documents with respect to the water department.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson said selectmen were within their rights to see any town legal papers sent to him.

"You have the right to know anything I do," he said.

Town meeting voters last March rejected having selectmen take over control of the water department.

projects.

In its proposal, the Coalition notes that restoration of the Greenbush Line will have "significant impacts" on the area "both positive and negative."

"It is critical for each of the South Shore communities to thoroughly review the Supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Statement/Report (SDEIR) for the Greenbush line and to respond comprehensively and proactively to the major issues affecting their town.

"The various boards and departments in each community will have differing concerns and coordination of comments among boards and departments will be necessary.

"Unfortunately, there will be a limited time to respond to the SDEIR, and most South Shore communities will not have the staff to adequately review the document, compile the concerns of various boards, and prepare thorough comment letters," the South Shore Coalition stated in its proposal.

"The staff person assigned to the Coalition would thoroughly review the SDEIR, meet with relevant boards in each town, compile each community's concerns, and assist each community with the preparation of a comment letter or letters. The staff person would work for and with each individual community, and it is expected that the letters form each community will differ considerably in their content and recommendations.

"At the end of the project review, the staff person will evaluate the process and provide examples of how communities with different organizational and staffing structures can respond effectively to major and complicated project proposals," the South Shore Coalition said.

The decade-old South Shore Coalition, a local government agency which includes the towns in the Plymouth/Norfolk senatorial district plus Rockland, Hanover, and Norwell, should not be confused with the Coastal Coalition, a grass-roots group recently formed to oppose the Greenbush Line project.

Anti-train group hopes to derail Greenbush at state level

By Alice C. Coyle
Mariner Staff

Last week's Coastal Coalition meeting in Cohasset was the last one for a while said Coalition co-founder Nancy Buckley. While she and co-founder Randy Young both called the rally a big success, it was the Coalition's fifth public meeting and "putting it together was a tremendous amount of work," Buckley said.

For now, Buckley and Young said they plan to continue to fight rail restoration to the Old Colony Greenbush line at the state level and keep educating South Shore residents about alternative modes of transportation.

"It's our mission to educate the public so there will be no surprises when an alternative is chosen," Buckley said, adding "Kingston and Middleboro are reacting now, after the decision has been made. We'd like to see people becoming aware and acting before any decision is made."

Both Buckley and Young remain encouraged by a letter from the state's secretary of transportation and MBTA chairman, James J. Kerasiotes. In the letter Kerasiotes informed Buckley that the MBTA has not made any final decisions and is looking at other options including "the development of a water and bus transportation system along the corridor." Kerasiotes maintained that the Weld administration is "very strong proponent of intermodal transportation...Commuter boats, bus, rail and the automobile have to be a part of any transportation system we develop on the South Shore...," he said.

Governor Weld did not attend the Coalition's rally but more than 200 people did, including, "Back on Track" chairman William Grimes and several others from the pro-train camp.

Many of those who ventured out on a very foggy night, including the Coalition's founders, were from Hingham. But nearly all shared a common concern about the possible restoration of rail service on the Greenbush line.

With the aid of a slide projector, representatives from Weymouth and Hingham spoke out against the train's return to the South Shore and specific effects it could have on their towns.

Ellen Kelly of East Weymouth spoke of the detrimental environmental effect the train could have on the fragile Back River Estuary, which is home to the endangered Great Blue Herron.

Hingham resident Carol Meyer focused most of her presentation on the several hazardous grade crossings proposed for Hingham and the gridlock that might occur in an already congested area. Meyer spoke of freight trains and the 115-decible noise level of trains running 24 times each day and the negative effect to residential properties and buildings near the tracks.

All of the issues that the Coalition and its representatives have brought up have already been addressed by the "Back on Track" movement during its ten years of study, said Grimes. He and other train supporters handed out their own literature which both refuted Coalition claims and showed the results of their studies and the advantages of rail restoration.

The evening's featured speaker was Arthur Imperatore, owner/operator of an integrated transportation network called the NY Waterway which links New Jersey and New York via the Hudson River.

Imperatore spoke at some length about his successful ferry and bus transportation system - a system that has grown steadily since its start in 1986 and has helped to alleviate some of extensive overcrowding of other transportation options in that region. Imperatore's system which moves more than 20,000 passengers each day between New Jersey and New York is a private, non-subsidized operation.

And while the system has been a great success for Imperatore and New York and New Jersey commuters, questions continue to be raised by Grimes and others in favor of the train, about just how applicable such a system would be here. It is an ocean rather than a river that divides the South Shore from Boston.

Imperatore indicated that some further investigation would have to be done in this area before designing the boats and the system. At this point, Imperatore said the commuter boats from Hingham are too slow and have too little capacity to be really effective. Imperatore recommended several high speed catamarans each able to hold approximately 400 commuters and estimates the trip between Hingham and Boston would take about 20 minutes. Imperatore maintained that the intermodal aspect of the system is the key to its success.

"Buses are critical to the system in order to bring people from the waterfront to the business and shopping areas," he said.

As for fares, Imperatore says he charges $1.85 for the three to four minute ferry ride across the Hudson and the ensuing bus ride. Here, Imperatore estimates fares would have to run between $4 and $5.

Imperatore is not currently working with anyone on a specific system for Massachusetts, but his system was used rather as a model for what could be done here, said Martha Reardon of Harbor Consultancy International.

Time quickly ran out before a potentially explosive question and answer period between the two camps could get underway and in that way Young was able to fulfill his goal of making the rally and "informational meeting" rather than a debate.

Still, Grimes and fellow "Back on Tracker" Richard Prone debated a good deal of the information provided by the Coalition.

Grimes said the rally was more scare tactics by the Coalition, with exaggerated and false information on rail restoration.

In light of all the discussions on expanded ferry service, Prone, a Duxbury resident, who formerly lived in Scituate said the Coalition's alternatives won't help Scituate or Duxbury.

Illana Marks, a Scituate representative for the Coalition asked the assembled group to try to visualize what the train will really be like.

"But do not indulge in nostalgia," warned Marks, who spoke of the drifting diesel fumes from trains charging through towns with horns blasting, lights flashing and high sound barriers riddled with graffiti in order to help the crowd visualize the return of the train.

Cohasset resident Jacqueline Whipple didn't need help visualizing the train, she remembers it well. Whipple said she and her family lived with the train for years and was sad to see it go.

"We never had a problem," Whipple said, "it was wonderful, it was exciting, it was the umbilical chord to the business centers."

"They're not worried about the train in Weston," piped in Prone who maintained "the South Shore desperately needs the train."

Environment vs. property values take center stage at hearing

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

The Cohasset Conservation Commission conducted a public hearing June 21 on a request for determination of applicability filed by ten town residents. The request concerned the operation of Cat Dam and its effect on wildlife species who live in the lagoon and Little Harbor. The hearing pitted the applicants and their concern for wildlife well-being against abutters and their concerns regarding algae and property values.

According to representatives of the group which requested the hearing, the tidal gates at Cat Dam are currently operated by three abutting residents. The group would like the Conservation Commission to evaluate the current procedures and, if necessary, undertake a scientific survey in order to determine what is best for the environment of the lagoon and Little Harbor.

"We are here in order to request that the commission determine what is best environmentally for the lagoon. This could involve changing the operation of the tidal gates," said Edward B Long, one of the residents who requested the hearing.

Another resident who requested the hearing, John Hubbard, stressed that he felt the subject of the lagoon comes well within the province of the Conservation Commission, specifically falling under provisions dealing with salt ponds.

Commission Chairman Jeffrey Waal responded to the applicants by indicating that it is unusual for the commission to be asked to evaluate a general environmental situation. Instead, the commission is usually asked to rule on a particular proposed practice that might affect the environment.

The hearing was attended by many abutters of the lagoon and Little Harbor who are equally concerned about the effects that a change in the operation of the tidal gates might have on algae formation and the aesthetic qualities of the area. Consistent with that, abutters indicated that they are also concerned about a decrease in property values that might occur if the water levels are decreased or eliminated entirely in the lagoon.

Lee Lyman, an aquatic biologist who testified at the hearing, suggested that leaving the tidal gates open at all times would result in the area reverting back to a tidal flat. This, he says, would have a positive impact on some wildlife species and a negative impact on other species. He agreed that a reversion to a tidal flat could result in decreased property values.

As it presently exists, the Cat Dam does not completely impede water. It simply keeps the area from becoming mud flats during low tide.

Some of the abutters also took issue with the applicants' suggestion that a committee of three decides the present operation of the dam. The abutters claim that the three gentlemen involved in the operation of the dam have consulted with scientific experts and have done a great deal of research into the effect of the operation on the environment.

Abutters also claimed that the area of the lagoon and Little Harbor are rich with wildlife and that any significant change in the way the dam is operated could threaten the established forms of wildlife in the area.

Lyman also spoke about the dangers of algae growth in the area. He indicated that algae in small quantities is not a problem but that when it becomes fairly thick, it will wreak havoc with the underlying ecosystem. Specifically, he said that it will cause oxygen deprivation and sunlight deprivation to the underlying environment. The algae is also an environment for certain types of insects.

After hearing testimony from both sides, the commission voted to close the hearing and issue a determination within 21 days.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

SMOKE ALARMS

QUESTION: How important do you consider smoke alarms in a home?

ANSWER: If you don't already have them, I would recommend that your first priority be the installation of smoke detectors in your home. They offer a measure of protection out of all proportion to their low cost, efficiency, and ease of installation. They are the best form of fire warning for a family, because they "discover" fire in its early stage. Smoke will be evident from a fire much sooner than heat and will trigger the alarm and awake sleeping occupants.

Their cost is nominal compared to the magnitude of tragedy they can prevent.

Five art exhibitions are feast for the eyes. . .

By Alison Cohen
Mariner correspondent

On a sunny weekend, the old, the new and those yet to be met in Cohasset. Under the tent and in the galleries, people looked at the world through different eyes. All around the common artists and artisans brought the works of their hands to sell.

From the art borrowed from the historical society to the two juried art exhibitions and the members show to the work of students, it was clear the past, present and future of art was alive and well.

Under the main tent, viewers encountered every conceivable medium and subject matter. Best of show awards went to Weymouth artist Zoe Bradford for an untitled shadow box featuring religious iconography. Within the confines of the ornate case, Bradford displayed a crucifix, rosary, an egg and angel and tiny images of people, including the famous photograph of the Vietnamese child running down the road with his clothing burned off by napalm bombs.

In the juried photography exhibit, best of show went to Jeanne Barry's black & white photograph entitled Provincetown.

Barry captured a line-up of stark white mailboxes along a picket fence with a weather-beaten shingled house in the background. Although Provincetown has grown up into a tourist mecca, Barry's photograph echoes its rural past as home to farmers and seafaring men.

The photographs showed how clearly the person behind the lens shapes Only 22 photographs made it past judges Gail Bryan and Nicolas Nobili. The two judges said they looked for overall excellence and attention to detail.

Mariner photographer J. Paul MacDonald showed off his talents with photographs as varied in subject matter as the locations he took them in. The judges awarded him a first place for color and a second and third prizes for his black & white photographs.

MacDonald earned a blue ribbon for Spirit Place, a color photograph taken in South Dakota of a curved wall with a brilliant blue sky as its dome.

MacDonald's Orphan at Reventado would break anyone's heart, even without knowing the story behind the black & white photograph.

According to MacDonald, he was traveling with an earthquake relief team in Central America. The helicopter he was riding in landed in a deserted village. All the residents had been evacuated except for this terrified tiny girl alone in the jungle. Another black and white photograph, Safe Passage, memorializes a piggie that has made it safely through the littered city streets.

MacDonald also earned a special award for excellence in the members exhibit for his black & white photograph, Garden of Souls. Although the religious statuary appear to be kneeling in some exotic locale, MacDonald found them in front of a Marshfield church on Route 3A.

Cohasset's prolific artist Tom Lucas took home awards in the members exhibit, the juried exhibition and the juried photography exhibition.

Lucas continues to draw inspiration from the lush landscape and vivid colors of Mexico. His oil stick, Milagro Hand, earned an honorable mention in the members exhibit. Balcony, an oil painting of colorfully dressed women watching a fiesta from their second story balconies is captured from the viewpoint of someone looking up from street level. The intense light and bright colors gives it a festive air.

Lucas also showed his mastery with a camera in Patterns, a color photograph capturing the stiletto lines of a fern-like plant against a rough-textured wall. The dark leaves are further set off by the warm honey tones of the wall.

Four more works by Lucas were on display in the main tent: an oil painting called Tree of Knowledge; Mexicana, an oil pastel, and color photographs entitled Lanterns and Blue & Red.

First prize in the black & white photography division went to Leigh Stephens for her photograph of a woman in white entitled #3 . In the color division, Mary Ellen Welch took third for her photograph of a gaggle of ducks whimsically titled Bill of Sail while Lois Ohara merited an honorable mention for Number One, a study of the interplay of line, color and texture featuring a stark white house, red brick foundation and white picket fence.

Playing with the senses is the whole point of special effects. Cohasset's Julie Hawkins-Burnham showed how well she plays by taking both first and second prizes for Psychedelic Clown and Kitten in Wonderland respectively. Hawkins-Burnham took a child in clown makeup and created an leonine aureole all around. Her tiger kitten lurks among the roses like a tamer version of Blake's tyger in the forest.

Third place in the special effects category went to Scituate resident Jean Abbott for From the Sea. Abbott's work created a Miró-like composite of shells and shell-shaped objects.

In the juried and members exhibitions, a rich array of paintings, sculptures and photographs presented themselves to the viewer. There were the expected lavish landscapes and compelling portraits and then works that surprised with a different skew on life. These artists could make you feel the heat or long to feel the surface of an object or suggest the sensual shape of a teapot with a single curved line.

Carolyn Harvey's Satutt Band played in the steamy heat of an August town carnival while Marshfield artist Donna Rossetti-Bailey pinned down the panoramic beauty of the North River marshes as the green of summer gives way to the gold of early fall.

Rusted and abandoned gasoline pumps and the detritus of a Cohasset garage surfaced in at least two gritty works by Becky Haletky while Sergio Roffo turned his artist's eye on pumpkins for sale in Quincy Market and the chill appeal of winter in an up-scale Boston neighborhood. In total contrast, John Donovan moved all the way past form into the densely textured realm of Light and Distance where swamp water green gave way to the brighter notes of turquoise.

The disparate ways of using watercolor were nowhere more apparent than the stark and spare view of a New England farmhouse in Eugene Conlon's Weiss Farmhouse. The cold seemed to rise up from the surface of the painting. At the other extreme, Mary Callahan's mountains in early spring lost definition and moved toward the realm of imagination with the suggestion of form in color.

Fruit and flowers filled the canvases of award-winning works by Ros Farbush, Heather Risley and Donna Basile.

Farbush used thick slabs of acrylic to get down the riot of color in the flats of flowers for sale at a truck farm, Risley used oils to create the delicate detail of an inviting wisteria-draped garden gate while Basile turned a lump of charcoal into the deep gloss of five different kinds of peppers.

Some artists approached their canvases soberly, some sentimentally and some with a silly sense of humor.

When it came to portraits, Valerie Forte Vitali may have taken a realistically romantic view of a young woman with sunflowers, but Shawn Robertson parked his tongue firmly in cheek and drew balloon-headed parents towing their roly-poly children in a little red wagon. One of Robertson's other whimsical works showed a young boy using a giant No. 2 pencil as a pogo stick.

Annual festival gets rave reviews couple wore old-fashioned dusters made by Yvette Rattenbury.

Floats featured Cub Scout Pack 38, Cohasset PALS officer Lisa Matos and some Deer Hill School students; the Music Circus; and the recycling committee.

To honor Father's Day, Sunday children in the Kids Tent had Polaroid photos taken and made cards in the "Get Framed for Father's Day" event sponsored by the Art Center.

There was an emergency Sunday afternoon when a young mother had an allergic reaction from a bee sting. Cohasset EMTs and paramedics from South Shore Hospital treated her at the scene.

A mini-controversy brewed over the murals in the bus stop, Sunday. Cohasset art students made their own original statement by painting both the portable and permanent murals in the shelter. The Art Center obtained permission from selectmen to go ahead with the project but later learned approval from the Historic District Commission, which reviews projects on the Common, was required. To make things right, the Art Center painted over the permanent panels, which were not supposed to be painted, and removed the portable ones which Valentine said were "not too attractive." Valentine noted that with the last minute-festival crunch, communication was a problem which contributed to the confusion.

"Messages were talking to messages," she said.

'You can't get any nicer place than Cohasset Common.'

— Lanci Valentine, Art Center director

Todd Doland and Virginia M. Allen took very different approaches in the still lifes they submitted. Doland used an almost Japanese approach in suggesting the curve of a teapot on a breakfast table. Allen, on the other hand, used deep cobalt blues and clear turquoise to get the transparent look of her glassware and mirror just right.

Down the hill from the common, the South Shore Art Center galleries presented the past and future of art. The historical society lent portraits, landscapes, sculptures and a ship's model showing Cohasset and her people from the earliest days to the turn of the century. Although clothing and hairstyles change and roads have been built up, the more Cohasset changes the more it remains the same. The glimpses into the past will remain on display until July 29. It is definitely well worth the trip. You'll recognize the names and wax nostalgic over the pictures.

Be sure to memorize the names of many of the artists in the gallery beyond. You will be seeing their works in coming years. The incredible talent coming out of Rockland High School was the biggest delight of the visit. These ninth and tenth graders show a promise well beyond their tender years.

Heather Croffts took up a pen and with tiny points of ink captured a big-eyed baby in a hat. Fellow students Cory McKiernan and Danielle Zingaro also used pen and ink to draw a portrait of a pensive child and a girl. Ninth-grader Megan McKee's pencil drawing of a pair of unlaced high top boots also showed a mastery of medium and subject matter with great promise for the future.

Rocklanders weren't the only talents on display. Brian Rusconi of Weymouth used a monochromatic watercolor palette for Waterfall, and conveyed its rush, flow and splash to great effect. Page K. Chase also used watercolor in pinks and faint green for Hibiscus by the Pool in Puerto Escondido.

And we cannot forget the innocent and artlessly artful works of Osgood School second and third graders who captured what the knew, learned and felt about the world in paint or fabric collages.

To repeat the old adage that a picture is worth a thousand words conveys the problem when faced with five art exhibitions, each filled with wonderful work that deserves to be named and described. All this art and strawberry shortcake that was a work of art for eye and palate, too — what a wonderful way to spend a summer's day.

One weekend was not enough time to savor this food for both body and soul. If you missed it this year, save mid-summer 1995 for an art experience.

Junk dealer's gets nod

Selectmen approved a Junk Dealer's license for Consignment Sports, 757 Chief Justice Cushing Highway. They have not received applications from the Antique Store and Kent Company. Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said the third notice has gone out to those businesses.

Building inspector's report

In his monthly report, Building Inspector Robert M. Egan said there were 26 building permits issued in March with an estimated value of $561,000.

"These and other projects required plan reviews as well as inspections for work in progress. Random inspections are also an important method of assuring code compliance," he said.

Egan said he is particularly aware of sign and enclosure of business violations in the Highway Business District this time of year.

"I am using the non-criminal disposition method of dealing with infractions after giving adequate warning to violators," he said.

He explained that due to the large turnover in real estate as well as refinancing of existing property, he spent considerable time dealing with real estate agents, appraisers, and insurance companies.

"I have been involved with the Conservation Commission in making routine determinations of jurisdiction for building permits. On several occasions, I have accompanied commissioners on-site visits and other times to make inspections at their request and reported back," he said.

Ice cream vendor change

James Yess and his business partner, Ziad Haddad, will sell ice cream at Sandy Beach after all. Peter Kulturides notified selectmen that he is too busy to serve the beach area. That freed up a spot at the beach for a transient vendor. Yess and Haddad will also sell ice cream in Cohasset neighborhoods, as they originally planned.

Watch out Ginger Rogers! Amelia Catherine and Amy Butman are on their way. You can catch the two June 26, Sunday, at 2 p.m. at the West Jr. High School in Brockton.

They will be performing in the "Around the World" magical tour. Their mom, Georgine, has been very busy making costumes for the show. Break a leg girls. Hope to see you there!

Happy 5th birthday to Amelia Catherine Rose Butman.

Recently Amelia and her friends spent a great afternoon with a fairy princess, a clown, and PJ the pony. All the kids enjoyed the pony rides, even the adults.

Mrs. Sandra Flint Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Doris Flint of Cohasset, was a recent graduate of the University of Colorado Graduate School, receiving an Executive MBA with honors. Mrs. Anderson and her husband Jim are commercial pilots and reside in Boulder, Col.

Be sure to congratulate her the next time she is in town.

Have you noticed the exhibit that is in the Paul Pratt Library? Christelle Cumbow-Holland has done a series of miniature oil paintings of Cohasset scenes and oils depicting local historical sights and landmarks. Be sure to take a look. The exhibit will be moved to Linda's Manor, Rte 3A, Cohasset on July 10 where it will be sold off at her open house held from noon to 5 p.m.

You will want all of them, they are great.

News comes from Amherst College, Jonathan F. deLima graduated May 22. Jonathan majored in music. He received Amherst's bachelor of arts degree. Jonathan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. deLima; we wish him well in the business world.

The University of Massachusetts-Dartmouth awarded degrees to two fine Cohassetites, Robert Abbadessa and Madlyn MacDonald. Hearty congrats to both of you.

Stonehill College also sent local graduate announcements. Hats off to Frank Willshire (who graduated Cum Laude) and Michelle Massa. Best of luck to both of you as you enter the "real world".

Marianne and William Cole are a happy couple, and with good reason! Her name is Brenna Irene Cole, she was born May 3 at 7:57 p.m. and weighed 7 lbs. 5 ozs. Brenna joins her sister Elise, who is thrilled too have a baby sister! Priscilla and Dick Cole, Brenna's paternal grandparents, are really happy too!

Hats off to all of the hard workers that made this past weekend do much fun for so many. The Art Festival was said to be the best ever; the strawberry shortcakes the best in the land; the food was yummy; the parade, complete with clowns, was loved by young and old; all in all a huge success! Even in the heat, tons of people were there and many memories were made.

Just in time for summer, four young ladies have completed the babysitting course (given by the Cohasset Community Center) taught by Linda Farray. Sarah Bertorlen, Kelsey Henderson, Siobhan Hart-Kelly and Stephanie Canton should top your list of sitters, they learned all about the care and the safety of your little ones.

Congratulations go to Megan Rhodes this week, she was chosen student of the month at CHS, a nice reward for all of the things that she does. Keep up the good work, Megan!

Keeping your cool

They say the living's easy in summertime but anybody with young children knows this is not true.

The lazy, hazy days of summer got off to a hot and humid start last week but as far as mothers (and fathers) are concerned, summer officially kicks off in earnest next week when school lets out for two, yes two, whole months.

The kids scream "yippee!" as the bus rolls away from school one last time and they are set free to deliriously enjoy their freedom.

But parents greet this freedom with great pangs of angst. "What are we going to do with the kids until Labor Day?" becomes a consuming preoccupation.

Long before the days of TV and video games, a mother's standard response to a bored child was "Go read a book," often followed by the stinging criticism - "A bored person is a boring person."

True enough. Fortunately, parents of young children (and teens) in Cohasset need only consult the long list of Community Center, Art Center and Recreation Department activities to find many ways of keeping their kids happy (well, somewhat happy) and out of trouble.

We will continually publish and update community offerings throughout the summer on the Happenings pages.

For those inclined to open a book in July and August, the Paul Pratt Library has put together a summer reading program for children.

As usual, the town's swimming program does a wonderful job of keeping kids cool at the Cohasset Swim Center off Sohier Street. These programs give moms and dads a much needed break from the little ones during the hot summer months.

And if your family is on a budget (whose isn't?), why not bring a picnic basket and a blanket to the Sunday St. Stephen's Church Carillon concerts on the Common.

All the experts agree that stress on parents increases dramatically during the summertime. Kids are at loose ends without the structure of school and organized sports activities. Parents become understandably over-stressed when their children are constantly underfoot and demanding attention. Such stress can sometimes lead to child abuse.

Some tips for keeping your cool with your kids this summer:

- Keep children on a regular schedule for bedtime and meals. Believe it or not, keeping a structure minimizes stress.
- Take a break from the house or the neighborhood and go for a picnic to the local playground, park or beach.
- Check out free or low-cost recreation programs.
- Contact a high-school student interested in baby-sitting, if only for a couple of hours. Have a responsible neighborhood youth take your child for a walk. Moms need time out, too.
- Try to rearrange your work schedule to get home for a lunch time visit to check on things at home. If that's not possible, call during the work day.
- Encourage reading and developing a hobby.
- Ask your friends about swapping child care. Set up a car pool for camp and other summer activities.

Perhaps most of all, summer is the time to kick back and relax, a time to take a break from the super-organized routine that dictates a family's life during the school year.

We're looking forward to the Summer of 1994. It's already off to a beautiful, promising start.

Trains are the best answer

letters

To the Editor:

Ugly are the signs opposing the railroad; about as ugly as their owners' argument that the railroad would bring undesirables. Not only ugly, but nutty. Robbers, rapists and litterers aren't going to take a train, do their deed, then wait at the station to go back to their lair. Nor are undesirables going to walk to the beach to despoil it, then walk back to the railroad station. They would use cars.. Railroads are for commuters, and would be scheduled primarily to serve commuters.

The population of the South Shore (and the nation) will continue to grow. Much of the income of that population will be earned in the big city, and the wage earners must be transported. The roads and city parking lots already are overloaded. Buses and boats never will carry the volume that trains easily can handle, and should be regarded merely as a supplement to the train.

Resisting the railroad because of taxes is costly shortsightedness. Eventually the railroad must be revived in some form, and it will cost far more later than earlier. Europeans aren't any more congested than we are getting to be, and we should envy and emulate the convenience, economy and environmentally positive (relative to the alternatives) benefits of their trains.

The anti-train crowd would be less irritating and might be taken more seriously if they would abandon their most nonsensical (or merely weak) arguments and concentrate on a few that might withstand rational and objective discussion.

Festival success a joint effort

To the Editor:

The June Festival on the Common enjoyed another successful year thanks to all our friends and supporters. The combined efforts of all the town departments and officials, the countless volunteers the residents of Cohasset, and all those who attended in spite of record breaking temperatures, made for a weekend of fun memories for all.

The South Shore Art Center, the Second Congregational Church's Strawberry Festival and the Cohasset Harborfest Committee all experienced a successful weekend. Your support allows each of us to continue in our individual endeavors whether that be providing art and education programs, assisting other non-profit groups through annual donations or offering ongoing community programs for our town.

When we see everyone working and having fun together, it is easy to see why we all love working and living in Cohasset. We thank everyone who made this event of community spirit come to life and are already looking forward to making 1995 Festival on the Common even better yet.

Scholarship support appreciated

To the Editor:

Thank you to everyone who made this year's Helping Hand Sunset Dance Cruise a success. To those who sold tickets, bought tickets and provided donations, you are the true helping hands.

This scholarship was created to recognize those individuals who, at an early age, realize that there are people in society needing a "helping hand."

The recipients, Marnie DeMichele, Courtney Schultz, Julie Larrabee, and Aimee Mitchell, have collectively given of themselves to the Appalachia Service Project, Community Volunteer Service, South Shore Elderly Services, Project Bread, Wellspring, Volunteers For Young Mothers, Red Cross Blood Mobile, Christmas Fair Volunteers, Kids Organized To Promote Education, Committee For a Drug Free Weekend, Student Tutor, and Peer Counseling.

In addition to their maturity at such a young age, the striking similarity among all the recipients of this year's scholarship is their awareness of "Look What I Have Gained" by giving a helping hand, as opposed to "Look What I Have Done."

This scholarship, which is the effort of an entire town, tries to recognize the whole person, those individuals who have given back to the community, and as a community we can be proud to say that these four young women come from Cohasset.

Train money could be better spent elsewhere

commentary

(Editor's note: the following commentary was provided by Nancy Buckley, co-founder of the Coastal Coalition, a grass-roots group opposed to restoration of the Greenbush Line.)

Nancy Buckley
Special to the Mariner

The overgrown tracks of the Greenbush line may seem like a romantic reminder of a bygone era. However, before we spend $300 million restoring this line, we need to consider the many economic, environmental and quality of life issues involved.

• "Over the past 25 years, taxpayers have pumped more than $100 billion in subsidies into urban mass transit systems. Yet mass transit ridership is roughly 10 percent lower than in 1963" (Wall Street Journal, May 13, 1994).

What could explain this? Perhaps the assumption that the percentage of commuters heading to cities such as Boston is higher than it actually is, has blinded transportation planners from seeing the real mobility needs of suburban areas.

There is a common assumption that if the train is built we won't have the highway traffic problems we now have. However, a careful analysis of the ridership numbers confirms an MBTA's manager's projection that "highway traffic won't get any lighter" (once the train is built) as quoted in the Patriot Ledger.

Statistics taken from the "Journey to Work" file from the recent U.S. Census show that there are 73,160 people in the workforce lining in the Greenbush corridor (Marshfield, Scituate, Cohasset, Norwell, Hingham, Hull and Weymouth). Of this workforce of 73,160 only 3,000-3,500 are expected by the MBTA (March 1994 Environmental Impact Study) to actually use the train. Consider also that of this low expected ridership, one-third already take some form of public transportation, which equates to approximately 2,000 new riders. Two alternatives being studied by the MBTA to attract these 2,000 new riders are:

$36,303,000 Expanded Commuter Boat Service with Improved Hingham Terminal and New Nantasket Terminal.

This alternative provides for the purchase of five new high-speed commuter boats with increased peak-time service.

This also includes expanded bus service with new park and ride lots along the Greenbush corridor. (Note: This alternative is based on faulty assumptions, and will be challenged by Coastal Coalition experts. For purposes of this article, I am using the MBTA's language.)

$291,130,000 Commuter Rail to Greenbush with Short Tunnel

This was the preferred alternative of the Greenbush Citizens Advisory Committee (GAC). A 3,600 foot cut and cover tunnel from Fort Hill St. in Hingham to before Water St. would be constructed, eliminating only five of Hingham's 14 grade crossings.

It is important to note that the Mass. Highway Department is working on a high occupancy vehicle lane (HOV) as part of the Central Artery Project. As confirmed in an earlier MBTA study, extending this lane to Marshfield would provide Duxbury and Marshfield residents faster access to Boston than driving all the way to Scituate to board a train that would leave and pick up passengers at six other stops before reaching Boston.

The tax implication from the train restoration are outlined as follows:

•There will be a loss of tax revenue to your town from homes and businesses that will no longer pay taxes because they will be destroyed by the MBTA to make room for the train and parking lots.

• Noise and pollution will lower property values of homes within a certain radius of the train line. This means less tax dollars will have to be paid by these owners.

• The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) consider any noise above 55 decibels as pollution. Decibel levels near grade crossings will reach 115 decibels. Hard to describe noise but we all know we wouldn't pay much for the homes affected.

• There are no emission control standards for the diesel trains and herbicides will be sprayed to control growth along the tracks. Health conscious decisions would again enter into how much you would actually pay to live near this.

• Fares ride the train will cover only 20 to 25 percent of the operating costs to run and maintain the train once it is built. The MBTA charges your town an assessed amount every year that is based on a complicated formula established by the legislature.

The bottom line to all of these tax implications is that there will be less money being paid to the town, more being paid to the state from our town which will mean that there will be less money to run the schools, police, fire etc. or else the town will have to raise your taxes.

• Village life as we know it will be changed forever. Aside from the safety risks, the noise pollution as we try to shop, the aesthetic changes resulting from the clearing of trees, the gates, flashing lights and unsightly noise barrier walls, the most dramatic difference in our busy, daily lives will be in traffic tie-ups at the 43 grade crossings.

Traffic will be stopped in both directions:

• 24 times a day from commuter trains and an as yet, unspecified number of freight trips (from March 1994 Environmental Impact Study).

• The monumental effect on traffic due to the state law that requires school buses and trucks to stop every time they approach a crossing.

• The question remains: how can we justify spending close to $300 million to transport 2,000 new riders when less costly transportation alternatives are available? Is it simply "politically correct" to say one supports mass transit however blindly and without analyzing the numbers?

Transportation dollars that would be saved could be spent on strengthening and improving inner city transportation networks which would improve the quality of life for those who are truly transit dependent.

There is no vote on this issue. Governor Weld has the final say at the state level. We want him to know that we oppose the train and support the preservation of the natural and cultural character of the South Shore through the enhanced use of water transportation and supporting bus feeder systems.

Back on Track statements criticized

To the Editor:

I am appalled that the Mariner has allowed itself to become the mouthpiece of William Grimes, who has made derisive remarks and blatantly lied about the Coastal Coalition's motives and purpose. The Coastal Coalition is not "driven by selfishness and city-phobia," as Grimes accuses. The Coalition is genuinely concerned about the very real probability of increased assessments (taxes) as well as the likelihood of freight trains running on the Greenbush line.

The Coalition is also trying to find alternatives to the railroad that will be much less expensive, more effective, and still preserve the small-town atmosphere of our South Shore towns. One of its goals is to save our communities from the encroachment of urban sprawl which more often than not crops up in areas through which railroads run. This is a far cry from "city-phobia."

There are serious safety concerns that would affect not only Hingham, but other towns along the Greenbush corridor: 42 grade crossings (more than two grade crossings per mile); the use of pesticides to clear track areas; the uncertainty of what freight trains would be allowed to carry, should they run on the tracks; the real possibility of derailments, especially in heavily congested areas; and the fact that the maximum speed of the trains, according to Grimes himself, is 60 miles per hour. (A six-car passenger train traveling at "only" 30 mph would take 700 feet to come to a stop, should a child, car, or pet make its way into the train's path. And yes, this is a very real possibility, as are derailments, as evidenced by a simulated train wreck held in Sherborn, Mass., June 11, staged by the Sherborn Fire Department and Conrail. Conrail often sponsors drills of this kind to teach communities how to handle potential derailments.)

The Coastal Coalition has the facts to back up why they and other citizens of the South Shore are opposed to the restoration of the Greenbush line. Grimes claims that opponents of the restoration project should "realize (that) all their fears have been addressed." Quite to the contrary, there are so many unanswered questions and assessment, safety, and cost issues that have not even been addressed, that the Coastal Coalition was formed out of a sense of civic duty and concern — to intelligently inform South Shore residents of the potential disaster that the restoration of the Greenbush line could bring.

I have also noticed that proponents' letters to the editor are full of anger and hatred, and completely devoid of any facts addressing the Coalition's concerns.

As for Grimes' group, Back on Track, are they willing to pay for the rise in assessments (taxes) which will almost certainly be levied on the South Shore communities if the train is pushed through? (Just check out the amount of money your own town is now being assessed for MBTA service, even without the "privilege" of the train running through it. The MBTA considers it a "privilege" for us to have the Greenbush trains pass through our towns, and South Shore communities will pay dearly for this "privilege.")

Is Back on Track willing to take the responsibility if there is a derailment, or if, for example, a freight train carrying hazardous waste topples over? The March, 1994, Environmental Impact Report states, "The Greenbush passenger schedule leaves blocks of more than one hour during midday periods and evenings when freight movements can be scheduled without serious negative impacts on shippers or commuter service." There have been several recent accidents involving commuter trains in the New England area and throughout the United States, and lives have been lost in some of them.

The Coastal Coalition is comprised of intelligent, caring, hard-working people who have their facts straight. I was not previously opposed to the train, but as I became increasingly aware of the many safety, assessment, and other cost and ridership concerns that the Coalition has been trying to get the MBTA to address, and that the Coastal Coalition has been trying to inform South Shore residents about, I became adamantly opposed to the restoration project. So I thank the Coalition for informing me of issues that I was previously unaware of, and encourage others who wish to be more informed to contact Nancy Buckley, Randy Young, or any member of the Coastal Coalition. They would be more than willing to share their concerns and answer your questions.

To spend over $291 million on a restoration project that, by the MBTA's own admission, would not alleviate traffic on the Southeast Expressway, would be a tremendous waste of taxpayers' money.

Benefit help appreciated

To the Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your support of "Cohasset by the Sea," a recent Super Cities Walk for multiple sclerosis. This year, 200 participants walked 1,860 miles throughout Cohasset and pledged $20,000 to the Massachusetts Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. There is new progress being made every day into the cause and cure of multiple sclerosis and it is support such as yours that pushes us one step ahead in the fight against MS. We look forward to working with you next year! Thank you.

Cohasset resident poll

Town departments are considering a new approach to the distribution of parking permits (Sandy Beach, etc.), transfer station permits, dog licenses, and mooring stickers. The proposals calls for establishing a uniform time period from mid-May to mid-June whereby residents could pick up these permits at one location in town hall.

The p[illegible]e of dog licenses by mail, and the payment of m[illegible]oring permit fees by mail will be continued.

Bound Brook clean up to aid Alewife migration

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

The Cohasset Conservation Commission approved a request by the Gulf Association for permission to conduct a cleanup of Bound Brook at its June 21 meeting.

The proposed work is aimed at providing for an unobstructed passage through the brook for alewife migration. The cleanup will involve removal of "blow-downs" and other debris from the brook from Beechwood Street, around Turtle Island, and easterly.

According to Gulf Association representatives at the hearing, the troubled inflow from Bound Brook into the river is what has been interfering with fish migration.

The reservoir is believed to be an ideal spawning ground for Alewife, but it is necessary for the brook to be unobstructed in order to allow for migration.

All work will be done by volunteers and will be done by hand. No heavy equipment will be used to conduct the cleanup. It will be necessary to use chain saws in some areas to remove downed trees.

According to Gulf Association representatives, the plan is being backed by a number of avid fishermen from the area who will welcome the revival of a fish run. Presently, there is a fish ladder on the westerly side of Beechwood Street which runs under the road.

The commission also issued a negative determination regarding proposed plans for the construction of four new tennis courts at the Milliken Bancroft Athletic Field. The construction is part of a larger project to redevelop the track and playing fields at the Milliken location.

The commission's determination means that the proposed work is not within the required 100-foot wetlands buffer zone required by law. Commission Chairman Jeffrey Waal informed representatives of the project that it shall create a well-defined limited work line at the site in order to prevent contractors from encroaching on the buffer zone. It was agreed that heavy yellow construction tape will be used to mark off the buffer zone.

In other business, the commission continued a hearing involving the proposed construction of a private pier at property owned by Peter Roy, 49 Margin St. The commission questioned Roy's representatives about the proposed pier width, stating that planned width may pose a threat to underlying vegetation due to shading. The commission will review proposed plans for the pier and will discuss its concerns further at July 19 hearing at 8:30 p.m.

Search for town cemetery space continues

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

The Cohasset Cemetery Study Committee met with three members of the Board of Selectmen Wednesday, June 8, to discuss possible recommendations for solving the town's shortage of available gravesites. The Board of Selectmen was represented by Jane Goerecke, Martha Gjesteby and Peter Pratt.

Under an existing state statute, the town is required to make available to its citizens an adequate number of burial gravesites. Although the town presently has gravesites available, the committee is struggling with insuring that an adequate number of sites remain available to the citizens over the next 25 years and that the sites are attractive to town residents.

The study committee was established in the mid 1980s and charged by the selectmen with evaluating the town's need for gravesites over the next 25 years. Committee member Nancy Snowdale urged the committee members and the selectmen present to remember the specific charge of the selectmen, which was to develop a long-term plan.

"I think that we need to find both a long-term solution to this problem and a short-term solution," stated Goerecke.

At the present time, it is estimated that approximately 30 to 50 new graves are needed per year in Cohasset. Most of the new gravesites purchased over the past few years have been purchased at the Woodside Cemetery where space is all but used up. Presently, it is estimated that there are only about 18 to 20 available gravesites at Woodside. The only other viable alternative to town residents at this time is the Beechwood Cemetery. The dwindling number of gravesites is of concern to the committee and selectmen as it is becoming increasingly difficult to meet the needs of the town residents and to comply with the state law.

"I think that this is a poor law. It will be changed because it is becoming impossible for towns to comply," Goerecke stated.

Beechwood, as it presently exists, has approximately 60 available gravesites for sale. Committee members raised concerns that most citizens have not opted for gravesites at Beechwood because it is not very well maintained. With this in mind, committee members seemed to agree that it will be necessary to devote funds to clean up the cemetery and to restore the historical monuments there. It is hoped that an improved appearance at the site will add to its attractiveness as a burial location.

In order to meet the needs of the town over the next 25 years, it will be necessary to expand the Beechwood site or to construct a new cemetery at another location within the town.

One possibility which has been the subject of discussion is a 9.8 acre parcel located on Route 3A near the Stop & Shop Supermarket. One complication to this site involves access. The parcel contains wetlands and would require that a bridge be constructed over the wetlands or that the wetlands be filled. Filling the wetlands would mean that the town would have to replicate the wetlands at some other location, which would involve a great deal of effort and expense. Similarly, the construction of a bridge which would be adequate to support automobile and heavy equipment traffic would be quite expensive. Access to the site would most likely be by way of an access road from Route 3A. It is expected that the cost of the construction of such a road could be as much as $1,000 per foot.

At this point, only preliminary engineering has been performed at the Route 3A site to assess its use as a potential site. The town will need to determine whether it is willing to devote sufficient funds to undertake the complete engineering work before this site can be settled upon as a new cemetery.

A second alternative would be to go ahead with a full expansion of the Beechwood site. One reason why this would appear to be more attractive alternative is that it could likely be accomplished in less time than constructing a new cemetery off Route 3A. In any event, the permitting process for either project may involve periods in excess of a year.

A plan to expand Beechwood was proposed in 1988, but was rejected. The former plan called for an expansion which would provide for an additional 270 double gravesites at the cemetery.

If neither alternative is determined to be acceptable, the town will have to look at other town-owned parcels which might be acceptable. The committee does not feel that any other acceptable sites presently exist. One final alternative would be for the town to purchase an acceptable parcel of land within the town.

The committee voted unanimously to investigate the use of Beechwood as an interim site, while further developing the various other plans for a long-term solution. The committee will attempt to get specific costs estimates for the various alternatives before making a final recommendation to the Board of Selectmen.

Europe holds strong summer attraction

While their counterparts are relaxing on Sandy Beach this summer, three Cohasset teenagers will be spending their vacation immersing themselves in the culture of foreign lands.

As part of the "short program" through the local chapter of the American Field Service, Candice Buckley, Megan McNamara, and Scott Moe are heading to Europe to live with families, work on their language skills, and absorb everything they can about their adopted countries.

Scott, a senior, will spend about six weeks on the south of France. Candice is heading to Madrid. And Megan is going to Switzerland.

All three say their enthusiasm for travelling sparked their interest in the program. Their families pick up the own expenses which can run as high as $3,200 including air fare.

The teenagers aren't reticent about leaving.

Megan says she loves learning about new places adding that Cohasset is pretty boring in the summer.

Candice and Scott, who leave this month, have written to their "host" families to get acquainted. Megan, who leaves in July, will be assigned a family soon.

Scott plans to pursue a career in communications after college and says being fluent in French will help. Megan would like to go into journalism and says that cultural experiences provide good writing fodder. Candice hasn't made up her mind about the long-term future but is looking forward to working on her speaking Spanish on her trip.
